The political arena is getting lively. Especially are the candidates for Governor getting their share of abuse in their ambitions to aspire higher. As yet nothing has been said in the TIMES in reference to whom the votors of this section favor for Governer. Some are for Cummins, and the balance for Harriman; the rest of the candidates being practically out of the question. While Cummins (as portrayed by the press of the state) is a capable man for the office, Harriman is the candidate of this district and the people should remember him, especially as long as he is amply as able and capable of serving in the capacity of as 'good a Governor' as the other fellow.

Notice has been taken by the papers of this section of the state that Bailey runs his paper 'the Britt Tribune' on a very nasty basis at times. Bailey is not so obsene and libelous as some people would like to make him out to be. Because he has the nerve to print some of the gossip the is going the rounds is no sign that his paper is spoiled to the core. A little honesty in depicting morals has served as a very good piece of advice in many cases. It makes a person ashamed of himself to read an exact production of his thoughts that he—himself—did not have the gumption to push out, and "that's where the shoe pinches." Bailey is slightly raw, but honest, and propounds some very agreeable logic.

An ancient writer said once upon a time that every man and woman, whether educated in books or illiterate; whether broad or narrow minded, should give their idea about this, that and the other thing. A fools idea can in many cases be widened out by a large preceptive mind until it is a valuable piece of property. When Columbus said there was another country on the other side of the earth he was ridiculed and called idiotic names, and there is many another man like him who proved to be smarter than all the world! Why is it then that the press of the little state of Iowa will call a man deprecatory names because he has an idea of his own?

The commissioners of insanity were called to Britt Monday, on information of the insanity of Mrs. O. N. Emery. In January Mrs. Emery had a slight attack of simple monomania with a second attack in April and the third last Saturday. Her mania grew worse at each succeeding attack and the commissioners decided that she was a fit subject for treatment in the asylum at Independence. This is an unusual sad case as her husband is left with the care of four small children, the eldest about nine years of age.—Hancock Signal.

Sometime between Saturday evening and Monday morning last burglars entered the store of C. A. Hunt & Co. through the front door and very systematically overhauled the stock of goods, appropriating some of very best in the entire stock. So far as the proprietors have been able to determine they lost 20 pairs of shoes, $300 worth of silks, $50 worth of satin, 13 doz. pairs of pants and some ribbons, making in all a loss of about $800. No clue, so far.—Corwith Hustler.

The County Supervisors are now about to begin work on another big ditch. This time the Boone river gets it and has long been needed. With the former successes and failures in view, no mistake should be made this time. Get it wide enough to carry the water off and deep enough to tile into it and the problem is solved. That is the main trouble with the Iowa river ditch it is neither deep enough nor wide enough.—Britt Tribune

FARM FURROWS,

From IOWA HOMESTEAD.

A man's true worth is what he is, and not what he has. He may be too often measured by what he has.

The all-the-year-around cow is the paying cow. Any other kind may be comparable with the Sunday Christain—not so good.

Sam says those Kansas women can't be depended upon. No one knows what they will do next. One of 'em recently called on a neighbor and laid a dozen eggs on the table and left. This is enough to surprise Sam or anybody else.

Some farmers make money by farming and others make it by speculation. In speculation what is one man's gain is another man's loss. In production, what is made is clear gain and the buyer of the product gets something for his money.

During the past nine months we have sent abroad 145,000,000 bushels of corn as against 160,000,000 during the same time last year. It is altogether probable that higher prices have had somethihg to do with this. In the meantime many farmers are now taking advantage of the little boom in prices and are delivering corn.

"I ran across a volume that brought tears to my eyes," said Sam in his easy and impressive manner. Being anxious to learn of this particular work that would do a thing of that kind I asked him what it could be. He calmly remarked "A volume of smoke." So characteristic of Sam. He has a most happy make-up and is a man peculiar in many ways. His face never gets long up and down—but the other way. Sam says the man who knows it all certainly knows a whole lot that is not true. This is gospel.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh. by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. KLEMME, - - - IOWA

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, May 13, 1901.

State Superintendent R. C. Barrett has secured an opinion from Assistant Attorney General VanVleck as to what constitutes a special teacher of music. The opinion will be of interest to every teacher employed in the public schools of Iowa, inasmuch as the law requiring teachers to satisfy county superintendents as to their ability to teach music goes into effect July 1. Necessity for the ruling of the attorney general comes up through a provision which makes exceptions of teachers in districts where special teachers of music are employed, as is the case in nearly all the city schools. In many cases special teachers are termed supervisors of music, and these visit the various schools in the district semi-weekly, weekly, fortnightly or every three weeks. In the interim the teachers have charge of the music and the question arose as to the meaning of the new law and whether it is necessary for these teachers to pass the examination. Mr. VanVleck holds that the supervisors are special teachers and that the regular teachers are not obliged to teach music. His ruling coincides with the law providing that certificates of teachers shall not grade lower because the teachers are unable to sing.

The controversy over the question of furnishing the army post with water has been settled. The Des Moines Water company, through its legal attorney, has agreed to extend the mains from the south corporation limits to the post, a distance of one and a half miles. The company had already been ordered by the city council to extend its mains from their present terminus on South Ninth street to the city limits, and the action of the company now removes all doubt but that the greatest condition imposed upon the city by the secretary of war—the demand for city water—will be complied with. Steps will be taken immediately to comply with the other four conditions, and it is again believed preliminary work on the post, calling for the expenditure of the $200,000 appropriated by the last congress for that purpose, will begin this summer. Persons interested in the work of securing the post are jubilant over the water company's action, as the unpleasant controversy is ended and all danger of losing the post altogether past.

An order has been issued from the office of the adjutant general in regard to the school of instruction in small arms practice for this year. It will open at the state range, near Cedar Rapids, June 10, and will continue for five days. Col. Thomas F. Cook of Algona, general inspector of small arms practice, will be in charge. A detail of three men from each company will be sent to the range and instructions will be given in firing the Springfield and the Krag-Jorgenson rifles.

It is said that the fire insurance companies doing business in Iowa have decided to go into politics for the purpose of securing the repeal of what they believe to be unfavorable legislation and the enactment of favorable legislation. A meeting of representatives of seven large companies, some Iowa and other foreign, was held at the Savery hotel, at which a preliminary plan of campaign was adopted. The state was divided into districts and a special agent assigned to each. Between now and election the companies will go into every county in the state and endeavor to convince the prospective members of the legislature, through the citizens of the various districts, that extensive changes are needed in Iowa fire insurance laws. Most of the work will be done by means of the local solicitors, who will be asked to participate in the campaign. In every community the companies intend to make a clean, frank fight for what they believe they are entitled to. They intend to organize, among other things, a bureau for the dissemination of information, which will inform the public what the companies want, why they want it, and what they believe the effects will be if their requests are complied with or refused.

The governor has named the following gentlemen to represent Iowa at the national conference on taxation to be held at Buffalo, May 23 and 24: John Herriott, Stuart; John Cownie, Des Moines; W. I. Babb, Mt. Pleasant; W. W. Witmer, Des Moines; A. W. Baldwin, Burlington; George D. Perkins, Sioux City; N. M. Pusey, Council Bluffs; R. L. Chase, Des Moines.

GILBERT PUT OUT FOR HERESY.

Prominent Theologian Ousted From the Seminary.

Chicago, May 9.—Dr. George H. Gilbert, professor of New Testament literature and interpretation in Chicago Theological seminary, has been removed from his position by the directors, who yesterday "found that Dr. Gilbert's published teachings are hysterical."

The storm center is understood to be just where it was a year ago, in the doctrine of the ideal pre-existence of Christ. The earlier volume entitled "The Revelation of Jesus" made the issue which the new volume on the "Teachings of the Apostles" expresses more clearly. It is still the clause in the confession of faith as to Father, Son and Holy Ghost, "the same in essence and equal in every attribute, are the one infinite and true God," and the clause as to the inspiration of the old and new testaments, which Prof. Gilbert is said to have left behind.

It is understood that Prof. Graham Taylor of the seminary and of Chicago Commons, has in his possession a number of documents and papers bearing on the disagreement, which he will make public in Prof. Gilbert's behalf in case the decision requires his resignation.

Kitchener Blames No One.

New York, May 9.—Lord Kitchener's long dispatch, dated March 8, describing in detail his futile endeavors to catch De Wet, apportions neither blame nor praise to any commanding officer of the British troops in the operations, says the Tribune's London correspondent. A careful perusal of the dispatch does not impress one with the idea that hostilities in South Africa are rapidly nearing a conclusion.

Cancer Germ Got Eisen.

San Francisco, May 7.—Dr. Joseph Eisen, the California scientist, whose discovery of the cancer germ was a notable event in the medical history of last year, has been attacked by cancer. He has submitted to an operation at St. Luke's hospital and the surgeons state that he is rapidly recovering, although nothing can as yet be determined about the final result. Dr. Eisen believes that he became inoculated with the cancer microbe while studying the germs through the microscope.

But he who knows, and knows that he knows, is a wise man; follow him.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

PACKING HOUSE NEARLY READY.

Killing on a Small Scale to Begin at Des Moine in a Few Days.

Des Moines, May 9.—The work of putting the Agar packing house in shape for opening has been nearly completed. The cattle killing department is ready to put in operation and the runways connecting the Vincent stock yards have been completed. It is thought that the pork packing department can be put in shape in about ten days, but because of the unsatisfactory condition of the hog market which has caused most of the houses to run on short time, there is no disposition to hurry this work.

The probabilities are that within the next week or ten days the house will be started up on a small kill in both departments and kept in operation for a few days on a small number of hogs and cattle to prove that the machinery, the chill rooms, etc., are in working order. Then if it is found everything is satisfactory, the local market will be opened and the operation of the house continued up to the supply of the stock offered.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Des Moines Captures the Presidency and Cedar Rapids the Next Convention.

Sioux City, May 13.—Cedar Rapids readily captured the next annual convention of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, at the closing session, defeating Council Bluffs, Keokuk and Burlington. Council Bluffs made a hard fight for it, but lost on account of its location in the extreme western part of the state. Officers were elected as follows: President, Arthur E. Holder of Des Moines; vice president, L. M. Jaeger of Burlington; secretary-treasurer J. H. Strief of Sioux City; legislative committee, J. H. Stewart, A. Holder and H. U. Keasey, all of Des Moines; delegate to the American Federation of Labor, Carl S. Evans of Muscatine. The convention transacted less important business than for years, due to the general prosperous condition of labor and its interests.

ACT OF A CRAZY MAN.

Leaps From a Window of a Flying Fast Express Train.

Austinville, May 9.—An insane resident of Rockwell City while in the custody of the sheriff and his father, en route to the insane asylum at Independence, took a flying leap from the Chicago Express here, landed head long on the road bed and when found was standing beside the track, bleeding from several scratches, but comparatively uninjured from his terrific leap.

The young man was about 35 years of age, weighing perhaps 250 pounds, intelligent and companionable, and while on the train chatted freely and coherently with the passengers. The sheriff was sitting on the outside of the seat, when suddenly, when just out of Austinville, while the train was running at the rate of sixty miles per hour, the man raised a window and made a leap.

NEW WASHINGTON LINE.

Illinois Central Proposes to Build From Cedar Rapids.

Washington, May 11.—A corps of engineers in the employ of the Illinois Central is now working on a survey for a new line of that road to extend from Cedar Rapids south through Western, Chippen, Kalona and Washington, and thence to Coppock, where it will connect with the Iowa Central, now controlled by the Illinois Central interests. When this line is built it will give Washington two more roads besides the Milwaukee cut-off and means much for the city. When thus constructed, Washington will be connected with the outside world by the Rock Island, Milwaukee, Burlington & Northwestern, the Illinois Central and the Iowa Central.

RUMORS ABOUT CONGER.

Chicago Inter-Ocean Says Rockhill Is the Iowan's Successor.

Chicago, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean prints the following special dispatch from Washington:

The freedom with which Minister Conger discusses the Chinese question in his public utterances convinces state department authorities that he has no intention of returning to his post, and in all probability Commissioner Rockhill will be appointed minister to China when the president returns from the west. Secretary Hay has faith in Mr. Rockhill's ability and experience with the Chinese, and he will recommend him to the president for the delicate and responsible mission.

ROBBERS LOOT STORES.

Nightwatch Bound and Gagged and a Big Haul Made.

Muscatine, May 10—The Fair, owned by Schiller & Scholnik, at Lone Tree, was entered by four unknown men at 2 o'clock a. m. and the night watchman, Joe Vetek, bound and gagged, while the burglars ransacked the store and made away with about $500 worth of merchandise. They made their escape by breaking open the handcar house of the B., C. R. & N. railway and stealing a car. They are supposed to have gone west.

Shot in the Lung by a Playmate.

Shenandoah, May 10.—Roy Rounds, the 15-year-old son of Cyrus Rounds of this city, was accidentally shot by his playmate, Charles Arnold, at Arnold's home while the boys were playing in the kitchen. The weapon was a thirty-eight caliber revolver. The Arnold boy took the weapon from the shelf and, pointing it at his comrade, pulled the trigger, not thinking it was loaded. The bullet took effect in the neck of young Rounds and lodged in the center of the left lung.

Aged Farmer Hanged Himself.

Decorah, May 11.—James Matthews, 76 years old, residing in the southwest corner of Burr Oak township, committed suicide by hanging. Mr. Matthews had a quarrel with his wife and after dinner went to the barn. When he failed to return in a reasonable time search was made for him and his lifeless body was found hanging to a tree some distance from the house.

Changes in Iowa Faculty.

Grinnell, May 11—The trustees committee on faculty has accepted the resignations of Prof. R. G. Cole, head of the musical department; Mrs. C. G. Cole, of the piano department; Miss Hall, of the same department; Miss Grace Henderson, preceptress of the academy, and Miss Haines, instructor of the academy. Prof. Cole will spend the coming year in Europe.

Discus Record Broken.

Cedar Rapids, May 13.—At a dual field meet between Coe and Cornell colleges, the state college record for discus was broken by Earl Barnell of Coe, with a throw of 106 feet 2 inches. Coe won with 72 points to Cornell's 47.

Medical Examiners Must Explain.

Des Moines, May 9.—Judge Bishop has issued a writ of certiorari in the case of the two students from the Barnes College of Medicine against the state board of medical examiners and the latter must certify to its proceedings in refusing to grant the students a certificate to practice medicine in this state.

Brakeman Killed.

Hampton, May 8.—E. C. Yuong, a brakeman on the Algona branch, was run over and instantly killed here making up a freight train, his foot being caught on a guard rail. He was a single man 30 years old.

NEW POINT IN MULCT LAW.

Valley Junction Saloonkeeper Says "Contempt" Is Unconstitutional.

Des Moines, May 13.—John Fairgraves, the Valley Junction saloonkeeper, has taken a shot at the Iowa statutes governing contempt proceedings for violation of liquor injunctions. He has filed an amendment to his motion for a discharge of the case against him on the grounds that the statute under which the proceedings were brought is unconstitutional and therefore void.

Fairgraves holds that inasmuch as the courts are created by the constitution of the state, the power and jurisdiction inherent in the courts is wholly derived from the constitution, existing for the purpose of protecting the judiciary. It is further held that the legislature has no power over subjects of contempt coming under a judicial branch of the government save that it makes reasonable repulations concerning procedure in cases of contempt; that the act is an invasion by one of the co-ordinate branches of the government and of exclusive province and jurisdiction of another branch.

The statute is attacked from another point on the grounds that it attempts to authorize an injunction where none could issue at common law, to forbid acts which the law denounces and punishes as crimes, in order to punish the repetition thereof as a contempt of court. It is claimed this method deprives the accused of a chance to prove his innocence by jury trial.

DELEGATES FOR IDAHO.

Will Represent Iowa at the National Mining Conference.

Des Moines, May 13.—Governor Shaw has appointed thirty delegates from Iowa to attend the international mining conference to be held at Boise City, July 23. The following is the list of appointees: William J. Miller, West Liberty; W. E. Ballard, Des Moines; James W. Miller, Des Moines; James A. Campbell, Ottumwa; John Verner, Oskaloosa; Floyd Davis, Des Moines; Alex. Dargavel, Centerville; H. L. Waterman, Ottumwa; P. C. Buxton, Muchakinock; S. T. Meservey, Fort Dodge; J. M. Christy, Des Moines; J. E. Stout, Des Moines; John Owens, Beacon; J. N. Lewis, Hiteman; H. L. Byers, Lucas; Prof. Samuel Calvin, Ames; W. H. Norton, Mt. Vernon; Thos. A. Haroing, Des Moines; H. Foster Bain, Des Moines; James Wilson, Centerville; Dr. W. J. Miller, West Liberty; Calvin W. Doop, Adair; John L. Tilton, Indianola; J. A. Green, Stone City; Frederick C. Semmek, Davenport; Henry A. Collin, Worth county; H. H. Canfield, Boone.

HOG CHOLERA CURE.

Omaha Man Agrees to Eradicate All the Cholera in Iowa.

Des Moines, May 13.—Governor Shaw has received a proposition from John H. Moore of Omaha, who is willing to furnish the farmers of Iowa a hog cholera remedy provided the state will give him a quarter of a million dollars. An additional requirement is that the governor shall lay the matter before the federal authorities when in Washington again and seek to have $500,000 added to the amount. He thinks his remedy is of such unquestionable merit that the governor would be justified in turning him over $250,000 out of the treasury. Major Fleming, the governor's private secretary, has replied to Mr. Moore expressing his doubts as to the legal authority of the governor to do this sort of a thing and suggesting that the matter be laid before the general assembly.

Slot Machines at Des Moines.

Des Moines, May 13.—Slot machines are still out of sight in Des Moines and will probably remain so until the grand jury has taken action on the cases now before it. An effort is being made to have the grand jury serve notice on the machine operators that they will be indicted if the machines are further operated and this will have the effect of closing them permanently. The case against Jesse Hammond, the Fifth street cigar salesman, is still undecided and Justice Duncan will not render an opinion on it until the grand jury takes some action on the matter.

Ten-Year-Old Boy Confesses.

Cedar Falls, May 10.—Lee Fox, a 10-year-old boy of Riceville, has confessed to the burning of several barns and two dwelling houses. For several weeks fires have occurred there in rapid succession and young Fox was suspected, but no evidence could be obtained which would hold him. When confronted with the charge of the burning of the last barn of M. Monholan he confessed. He will be sentenced to the reform school.

Sugar Beets at Onawa.

Onawa, May 11.—Some of the farmers in this vicinity have gone in the culture of sugar beets this year. James Crawford has just planted ten acres, Mr. Moss twenty-five acres and Dan Fairchild five acres. Other parties have smaller amounts. This is the first experience in the raising of sugar beets in Monona county, and is attracting considerable attention. If successful quite an acreage will be planted next spring.

Adams for Towner.

Corning, May 13.—The Adams county republican convention was held in this city Saturday. It was aparent that the republicans of this county have only one interest to serve in the struggle over the nomination of a state ticket—that is, to do whatever may be to the advantage of Judge Towner in his candidacy for the nomination for supreme judge.

Young Man Badly Mangled.

Creston, May 11.—M. I. Bishop was killed two miles east of Stanton. He attempted to board an east bound freight train that was going twenty-five miles an hour when he was thrown under the wheels and frightfully mangled. He was 18 years old and his parents reside in Stanton.

Burglars Rob a Convent.

Cedar Falls, May 11.—Burglars entered the convent of the Sacret Heart and stole $26 and all the valuable deeds and documents belonging to the Sisters of Mercy. There is no clue to the robbers.

Drake Wins State Meet.

Ames, May 13.—Drake university of Des Moines won the triangular intercollegiate field meet here, competing with Grinnel and Ames. The points won were: Drake, 54; Grinnell, 43; I. S. C., 38.

Finds Pearl Worth $1,000.

Davenport, May 11.—John Bailey, a pearl fisher at Le Claire, found a pearl as big as a marble in a clam shell and sold it to Howe Brothers, jewelers at Clinton, for $1,000.

Iowa Defeated by Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., May 11.—Wisconsin university defeated Iowa in a debate on the "Construction of the Nicaraguan Canal." Wisconsin favored the canal.

Found Tied to Railroad Track.

Corning, May 7.—About 11 o'clock p. m. Theodore Gerard, a merchant of this city, was found tied across the rails on the track about half a mile west of the station. The attention of a near-by resident was called by his frenzied cries for help. It appears that he had been struck senseless in his store about 9:30 o'clock, just as he was in the act of closing the safe. He recovered consciousness just long enough to be rescued from his perilous position when he again swooned away. He is now in a precarious condition. The robbers secured about $100.

THE SASKATOON DISTRICT.

ONE OF THE NEW WESTERN CANADA DISTRICTS.

The Great Advantages of Settlement Where the Soil Is of Unexampled Fertility.

During the past year or two a large number of American settlers (those going from the United States to Canada), have made homes in the Saskatoon district in Western Canada. They have found the climate all that could be desired and their prospects are of the brightest. In writing of it a correspondent says:

The lands for sale are choice selections from a large area, and every farm is within easy distance of a railway station. Experience has shown that this district enjoys immunity from summer frost, from cyclones and blizzards. The South Saskatchewan, flowing through the tract, is one of the finest rivers in the country, being navigable and having an average width of stream of 1,000 feet.

The agents of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your paper and who will be pleased to furnish full information, tell me that within the limits of the tract there are two distinct varieties of soil. One is a rich black loam, and the other is a somewhat lighter loam, containing a small admixture of sand. There appears to be no appreciable difference between the fertility of these two kinds of soil. Both are alluvial in their characteristics, both are marvelously productive, and both rest upon a subsoil of clay. The advantage of this formation is that it retains the heat of the day during the night, and is favorable to the early maturity of crops. Every kind of crop will here attain the highest perfection of quality. The land is admirably adapted for stock-raising and dairy farming, as well as growing grain. Some idea of the richness of the natural grasses of the prairie may be formed from the fact that more than 200 tons of hay were gathered within a short distance of Saskatoon and stored up for use during the winter. A growth so luxuriant demonstrates beyond all possible question the suitability of the land for pasturing cattle, and no doubt this important industry will be largely carried on.

Nature has been lavish in her gifts to this territory. Not only is the soil of unexampled fertility, but the climate is delightful and healthy. Such is the testimony of every settler, and this testimony is confirmed by enthusiastic opinions from every traveler, explorer, missionary or newspaper correspondent who has ever visited this far-famed Saskatchewan Valley. In former years vast herds of buffalo came here to winter from the elevated storm-swept regions south of the United States boundary line, proving thereby the adaptation of these rolling prairies to the purpose of raising stock. The land is dry, with sufficient, but not excessive rainfall, capable of early cultivation in the spring, and free from summer frosts. The configuration of the country renders artificial drainage unnecessary, and prevents the accumulation of stagnant pools; mists and fogs are seldom seen. The days of summer are full of sunshine, under the genial influence of which crops rapidly ripen. Autumn is characterized by an almost unbroken succession of fine weather, during which the crops are safely garnered. In winter it is cold, but extremely exhilarating and pleasant, owing to the wonderful dryness and bracing qualities of the air. The winter is a source of profit as well as enjoyment to the people, being far healthier than a humid climate.

Water and fuel—these two prime necessaries of life are plentiful throughout the district.

Here is the latest story of Judge Henry E. Howland, one of the most popular after-dinner speakers of New York: "There was a little boy who was badly puzzled over the theory of evolution. He went to his mother and asked: 'Mamma, am I descended from a monkey?' 'I don't know,' she answered; 'I never met any of your father's people.'"

DOUGLAS FACTORY

To Be Enlarged Before the First of July. Will Make 6,000 Pairs Daily.

Advertising pays.

W. L. Douglas is going to increase the capacity of his factory to 6,000 pairs of shoes per day. The addition will add 16,000 square feet of space for manufacturing purposes. At the same time a new 400 horse-power engine and an additional 150 horse-power boiler will be installed, which will afford adequate power for the present and another addition to the factory, which will no doubt be necessary later on.

When the factory starts up the first of July it will be on an output of 500 dozen or 6,000 pairs of shoes per day, and the weekly pay roll, exclusive of office help, superintendent, foremen etc., will be $22,000 per week. The Douglas salesmen on the road are selling 25 per cent more goods than last season. The increased sales is the direct result of good shoemaking and extensive advertising. The advertising expenditure of Mr. Douglas is now larger than at any period of his business, and this is to be still further increased. Beginning this week half-page advertisements of the Douglas shoe will appear in all the principal newspapers of the large cities, as well as such papers as the Youth's Companion.—Brockton, Mass., Times.

Former Judge Henry E. Howland has a deservedly high reputation as an after-dinner speaker. It is his practice to connect five minutes of serious talk with twenty-five minutes of story-telling. All of his stories are apropos, and, most of them are new. At the dinner of St. David's society the other night, the judge was in a happy vein. The anecdote which was received with the greatest laughter was that of the little boy who was considerably puzzled by the theory of evolution. One day he said to his mother:

"Mamma, am I descended from a monkey?"

"I don't know," she answered: "I never met any of your father's people."

Another of Judge Howard's stories had to do with the old Maine farmer who had been married four times. Shortly after the death of his fourth wife, a neighbor stopped him and said:

"Mornin', Cyrus. How's the wife this mornin'?"

"Wal, to tell ye the truth," replied Cyrus, "I'm kinder out of wives jest now."

A leading Cincinnati minister recently prayed for those in his congregation who were too proud to kneel and too lazy to stand.

NEWS IN GENERAL

TRIED TO SELL OFFICIAL PAPERS

Trusted Employe of the War Department Summarily Dismissed.

Washington, May 12.—An attempt to sell confidential communications between the attorney general and the secretary of war in the Neeley case has been unearthed by Chief Wilkie of the secret service. Information had been obtained from Judge John Lindsey, counsel for Neeley, in New York, who had received a letter signed John B. Dickenson, offering him copies of the correspondence. Judge Lindsey turned the matter over to the attorney general. The latter called in Chief Wilkie and placed the matter in his hands. An officer was sent to the general delivery of the postoffice, and when a man presented himself and asked for mail for John B. Dickenson, he was followed. He went direct to the insular division of the war department.

Shortly afterward a conference between the secretary of war, Solicitor General Richards, of the department of justice, Colonel Edwards, chief of the insular bureau, and Chief Wilkie was held, and it was discovered that the man representing himself as John B. Dickenson was William Davis Williams, the stenographer of Colonel Edwards, a position which he has held for a year past. He formerly was private secretary to Congressman Brumm, of Pennsylvania. Williams volunteered to turn the correspondence that he had endeavored to sell to Judge Lindsay over to the authorities. As the sale had not been completed, no charge was made against Williams, but he was summarily dismissed by the secretary of war. Williams came here from Mineersville, Pa.

The papers which Williams desired to sell to Mr. Lindsay consisted of the draft of an opinion of the attorney general upon questions submitted by Mr. Lindsay relative to requisition testimony in the Neely case. The opinion was prepared by an assistant attorney familiar with the Neely case. The opinion was prepared by an asssistant attorney familiar with the Neely case, and was submitted to Secretary Root for consideration and observation. There also was a letter from Secretary Root to the attorney general. These papers Williams offered for sale for $200.

PENSION "SHARKS" AFTER SOLDIERS

Returning Soldiers Beset on Every Hand by Lawyers.

Washington, May 11.—Pension Commissioner H. Clay Evans is hot on the track of pension sharks who beset the soldiers now returning from the Philippines. These attorneys or "grafters," as they are called, have congregated in San Francisco, Washington and New York. The commissioner has a number of special agents at these points, who are watching their movements and disbarment proceedings are likely to follow in many cases. It is said that the attorneys pursue the soldiers on the trains, so greedy are they for fees.

A report from one of the special agents says: "I find that generally no matter under what head their discharge may come, the soldiers, both regular and volunteer, are cocked and primed on pension matters and all eager to secure pensions. Whether this is due to pension literature that has been circulated in the Philippines or merely the natural desire of the soldier to step from the pay roll of the army to the pension pay roll, I am unable to say. However, the fact remains that they are most willing subjects of the pension attorneys. These solicitors are paid $2.50 for a gunshot wound case, $2 for a straight disability case on surgeon's certificate of disability and from that the prices range down to $1 according as the element of uncertainty may enter the case."

MILLIONAIRE BOILED IN BEER.

Tragic Death of a New York Brewer in His Own Brewery.

Troy, N. Y., May 11.—Samuel Bolton, Jr., a millionaire brewer and one of the most prominent and influential business men of this city, has been found dead in a vat of boiling beer in his brewery. His body literally was cooked and death must have been instantaneous.

Much mystery surrounds the circumstances, which the authorities are trying to unravel. One singular feature of the case is that Mr. Bolton's hat and watch and chain were found on the floor near the vat. Despite this, friends of the dead millionaire are of the opinion that his shocking end was due to an accident.

Mr. Bolton arose in his usual condition of health and went to his place of business, the Bolton brewery, at the customary hour. Later in the day he was found in the vat of boiling beer on the second floor. Nobody about the brewery seems to be able to throw any light on the circumstances and apparently none saw him go to the second floor of the building.

FIX CLAIMS ON CHINA.

Ministers to Send Joint Note Asking for 450,000,000 Taels Indemnity.

Peking, May 10.—The foreign ministers decided to address a collective note to the Chinese government informing it that a joint indemnity of 450,000,000 taels would be demanded and asking what method of payment is proposed. A reply is expected at the end of the week, which will probably propose to meet the indemnity by raising the customs tariff.

It is considered likely that the powers will assent to some such measure in return for concessions on the part of China in the shape of a total abolition of the likin, the placing of import duties on a gold basis, really free navigation of Chinese waters and the removal of impediments to navigation and the tax at Woo Sung.

Found Dead at Home.

Ottumwa, May 13.—The body of Fred Bowen, a well-to-do farmer living two miles southwest of Chillicothe, was found lying fully dressed upon his bed. He had been in Ottumwa and is said to have left here late at night in an intoxicated condition. Death is said to have been caused by alcoholism.

Kitchener Reports.

London, May 13.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office as follows:

"Since May 5, 28 Boers have been killed, six wounded and 130 taken prisoners, and 183 have surrendered. Nine thousand rounds of ammunition, 210 wagons, 1,500 horses and large quantities of grain and stock have been captured."

Lord Roberts May Be Ousted.

London, May 7.—It is stated on excellent authority that great friction exists between Lord Roberts and Sir John Broderick, the secretary of state for war, to such an extent that Lord Roberts' reign as commander-in-chief may terminate very suddenly.

Umbrellas were unknown in this country until a few years before the revolutionary war.

La Follette Flays Legislature.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—"A mockery of platform pledges and judicious legislation alike" is the way Governor LaFollette sums up his opinion oof the Hagemeister primary election bill, which he has vetoed. The governor's veto message was read at the opening of the senate by Chief Clerk Houser. At the conclusion of the reading an effort was made to pass the bill over the veto. The stalwarts held together and came within two votes of accomplishing this by the necessary two-thirds majority, the vote being 18 to 11.

SALISBURY IS FAILING FAST.

Alarming Reports About His Condition Are Prevalent.

New York, May 10.—A dispatch from London says alarming reports about Lord Salisbury's condition are prevalent.

A. J. Balfour, the government leader of the house of commons, and a nephew of Salisbury, had a private audience with the king, which is understood to have been caused by the prime minister's health. There has been complete silence on the subject for three weeks, the only indication that he was not recovering being afforded by the postponing of his return from Beaulieu. He was to have been in London by this time, but he has not yet left his Riviera residence. The attack of influenza before Easter left him extremely enfeebled and nervous. News received in London shows that his debility is resisting all treatment. The World correspondent asked Lord Hugh Cecil, M. P., one of Lord Salisbury's sons, if it is true that the premier is seriously ill. He replied: "I know of no ground for such a statement." The possibility of Lord Salisbury's retirement had been freely canvassed in political circles. His death would not dissolve the ministry, but would lead to its reconstruction. The World correspondent hears that King Edward would first ask the Duke of Devonshire to take the premiership and if he should refuse he would then ask Mr. Balfour to accept it. Mr. Chamberlain is now regarded as quite "out of the running."

MANY REDUCED TO RUIN

Appalling Result of War in Northern Pacific Stocks.

New York, May 10.—Bitter stress developed in Wall street by the second hour of trading on the stock exchange yesterday. The violence of the commotion had spent much of its force, at least for the time being, when the chairman's gavel fell announcing the close of the day's proceedings. The casualities were great and the field of battle was strewn with the wounded and may be with the dying. But of actual fatalities none was recorded of importance during the day. During the height of the panic rumors of insolvencies were handed about more quickly than they could be reported. But no confirmations could be had of the intimations of financial wreck. Those against whom the rumors pointed refused even to show any sign of distress, and professed themselves ready to meet all obligations. Notwithstanding these assurances, the fact was too obvious from the crash of values on the exchange, that credits and borrowing power were shrinking at a too prodigious rate, not to leave the mind of the whole financial world in a condition of intense strain. But the indications at the close of the day were strong that the principal damage had been wrought upon the speculative class, or upon holders of securities on margin for whatever purpose.

The shrinkage of collateral made it necessary for the banks in many cases to exact an additional collateral during the day, and this added much to the distress for a time. But in the late dealings the principal banks in the financial district agreed to form a pool and raise a fund to loan the money rate down to 6 per cent on the stock exchange. The bid for money had been run up to 60 per cent and was threatening to keep alive the panic. The dozen banks quickly came to an agreement to raise $16,000,000, with implied willingness to raise the sum if necessary. There were heavy loans placed also by individual banks, ranging in some cases to $25,000,000 and $30,000,000. Through the early part of the day bankers exacted the market rate for loans. But with the growing need to suppress the panic they offered the rate down to 6 per cent.

The real stress of the occasion came upon the men who were shut up in either their private offices or those of brokers who were struggling and even fighting on the floor of the exchange.

In the brokers' offices sat many men who were reduced to absolute ruin as a result of fifteen minutes' proceedings on the stock exchange. Some of these have been made opulent within a few weeks past as a result of the unparalleled rise of prices. With the true gambling spirit they have replaced all their winnings in new ventures on each successful turn. Yesterday's drop, therefore, wiped them all out. In many cases one could see the gamblers' fortitude with which the chances of gain were accepted. But the glittering attraction of this market has brought into it a constantly increasing assortment of more staid and experienced speculators; men and women who have brought long standing hoards from secret places and from savings bank deposits with the determination to make one successful stroke and then retire with the proceeds.

The extent of the decline during the day was as great in some cases as has taken weeks to attain on the advance. The figures alone suffice to indicate the proportions of the drop. In Delaware & Hudson the extreme decline was 59 points, Manhattan 38⅝, Rock Island 35½, Union Pacific 38, Atchison 34½, Atchison preferred 32, Southern Pacific 29¾, United States Steel preferred 26½, while a range of 5 to 30 points would cover the collapse in nearly every active stock on the stock exchange.

In the outside market the stress of the demand for funds was shown by the perpendicular drop in the price of Standard Oil 171 points over night.

WALL STREET STEADINESS.

The Storm Having Been Weathered, No Further Apprehension Is Felt.

New York, May 11.—Wall street emerged from its gloom yesterday morning with growing confidence in the day and with something like buoyant elation. Prices of stocks went up with a rush at the last, closing at about the top, and with the net losses left after Thursday's session largely recovered. There were some clouds remaining on the situation yesterday morning and some natural trepidation lest the violent collapse of Thursday should have left some casualties which would not be disclosed until the clearing house sheets of the stock exchange had been made up. Early in the day the official announcement was made that the sheets of all the members of the exchange had been cleared perfectly and that all their checks had been honored. This relieved the last feeling of apprehension and the feverish and earnest signs which were manifest to the stock market during the first hour disappeared. Things quieted down to a steady condition of business such as had not been witnessed in Wall street for many weeks. It is estimated the shrinkage in values on Thursday amounted to $30,000,000.

Some people seem to have a grudge against all mankind.

Turkey's Reply Not Liked.

Constantinople, May 11.—The German, Austrian, French and British ambassadors promptly sent back the porte's reply to their representations on the subject of Turkish seizure of the foreign mails, owing to the offensive allegations that the foreign post-offices facilitated smuggling. Pending a settlement of the question embassy couriers are taking the European mails to and from the Bulgarian frontier.

PRESIDENT ON A JOURNEY

Phoenix, Ariz., May 8.—The presidential party spent an interesting day in Arizona yesterday. The beautiful turquoise sky, bright sunshine and invigorating air afforded the party much relief after the hot and dusty ride of Monday. The two hours in the morning at the Congress Gold mine up in the clouds of the Blue Tank mountains were replete with incidents and were thoroughly enjoyed. A large American flag was draped across the tunnel through which the president passed, and after he emerged he told the little group of miners who congregated about the train that he had seen Old Glory floating from tower and state house and warship in many different places, but that he never before during his life had seen the American flag 1,500 feet under the ground. At five o'clock in the afternoon the party resumed its journey. The departure was so timed that the Colorado desert and old basin of the Gulf of California, below sea level and barren of all vegetation would be traversed during the night.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—Yesterday the president and his party had their first taste of the hospitality of California. The introduction to the land of sunshine, fruit and flowers was like a dream of paradise after three days spent in the alkali deserts of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. Governor Gage and the California congressional delegation met the president at Redlands and welcomed him to the state. Through an avenue lined with palms and Venetian masts the president was driven over beds of roses, beneath a triumphal arch of flowers and fruit to the Casa Loma hotel, on the balcony of which the exercises took place. A drive through the orange groves and parks followed. All along the route of the drive ladies showered the president and Mrs. McKinley with flowers, and through the streets they bombarded him from the windows with confetti until the air was a perfect maze of color. From Redlands down to Los Angeles it was one continuous ovation. Every station was crowded with children with wreaths of flowers in their hands, and with cheering men and women. Minute stops were made at Colton, Ontario and Pomona, and at 2:30 o'clock the train drew into Los Angeles. Great preparations had been made for the arrival of the party in Los Angeles and the reception was a splendid one. Last night the president and Mrs. McKinley stayed at the home of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—From a broad, blue canopied pavilion, surrounded by the members of his cabinet, the governor of Ohio and notables from many states, President McKinley yesterday reviewed the floral parade of the Los Angeles carnival. The streets of the city were literally jammed with people. Pasadena, Santa Monica and other neighboring towns in southern California were almost entirely depopulated. The scene on Broadway, where the reviewing stand was located, resembled Pennsylvania avenue in Washington on the day of the inauguration parade. Mrs. McKinley did not witness the show, but she drove along Broadway and received the plaudits of the multitude just before the procession appeared. The president rode at the head of the parade in an open carriage drawn by six spirited milk white horses.

San Luis Opispo, Cal., May 11.—The route of the president's train northway from Los Angeles yesterday lay through the Santa Clara valley, where it ran for hours along the edge of cliffs overhanging the Pacific ocean. At every stopping place today there was a flower show rivaling in beauty the floral parade which the president witnessed at Los Angeles. At Ventura and Santa Barbara the president was simply overwhelmed with flowers. The carriages in which he rode were lined with them and the streets over which he passed were paved with them. As the president approaches his destination at San Francisco the programs at the different stops are more enjoyable and less fatiguing. A drive through the city was in each case the principal feature at the places where he stopped today. The president was much interested in the old Spanish missions, filled with historic relics, which he visited both at Ventura and Santa Barbara. San Luis Opispo, the last stop of the day, was reached at 7 o'clock last evening. The party will spend today and Sunday at Del Monte.

ELEVATION TO THE CARDINALATE

Mgr. Martinelli Receives the Insignia and Is Installed in Office.

Baltimore, May 9.—Sebastian Martinelli, titular archbishop of Ephesus, and cardinal-elect of the Church of Rome, yesterday received at the hands of Cardinal Gibbons the red beretta, and donned the robes which will hereafter mark his rank. The ceremony, which is the necessary step in his elevation to his new position, was marked by all the pomp and brilliance usually attendant upon such occasions. It was held in the venerable cathedral, the first edifice of its kind erected upon American soil, and in which the first American priest and the first American bishop were ordained. Among those who witnessed it were men and women prominent in every walk of life, diplomats, legislators, educators, journalists and ecclesiastics, the latter including half a score of archbishops, half a hundred bishops, priests, monks and seminarians.

REMAIN IN FORBIDDEN CITY.

American Forces Ignore Objections of the Foreign Powers.

Peking, May 19.—The Americans have evacuated the districts under their control, with the exception of the forbidden city, which they will continue to occupy in spite of foreign objections until orders to the contrary are received from Washington. As it may be impossible to turn over the American districts to the Chinese, who certainly would not be allowed to keep them independently, General Chaffee, in order to prevent chaos, notified Count von Waldersee a week ago that he would evacuate those portions adjoining the British which were assigned to them and the remainder portions assigned to the Germans.

Minister Is Guilty of Rioting.

Topeka, Kan., May 13.—Rev. F. W. Emerson, pastor of the principal Christian church here, and Dr. M. R. Mitchell, a well known physician, have been found guilty of precipitating a riot. The two were members of a mob that broke into a saloon in North Topeka at the time the Nation agitation was at its height.

Hollow Ash... Hall

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.)

"Rats, Mr. Magnum! Do you pretend to be wiser than the whole country side?"

"By no means, my love."

"Well, every one says the place is full of ghosts!"

"Yes, my dear."

"What every one says must be true."

Mr. Magnum did not dare to say no.

"And so the place is haunted," replied his better half, triumphantly.

"Ugh! I would not live in that old house for the whole world," said Kitty, shrugging her shoulders.

"Does Mr. Cowley like it?" asked Mrs. Magnum.

"No—I think not."

"Then why does she stay?"

Mr. Magnum coughed and looked embarrassed.

"My dear, Mr. Cowley is a very peculiar man—very. I am afraid he generally does what he likes, without consulting his wife."

"And she lets him?" exclaimed Mrs. Magnum, shutting her lips, viciously.

"I am afraid she does."

"Well, if women will be fools, they must. But I only wish I was Mrs. Cowley! Do you feel tired, Miss Marjorie? You don't look quite well."

"I am rather tired," replied the governess, very quietly.

"Then pray don't sit up longer than you like."

Miss Marjorie took the hint, put away her work, said good-night, and left the room. Two pairs of eyes followed her with anything but loving looks.

"Nasty, proud thing! I hate her!" said Kitty, in a low tone.

"And so do I!" replied her mother, with emphasis. "But she will be going next month, so we need not trouble ourselves about her."

CHAPTER VIII.

Miss Marjorie did not, however, go to her own room. She took a cloak from its peg in the hall, threw it over her head, opened the front door softly, and went out. Mrs. Magnum would have been shocked out of all her propriety if she had seen her pacing up and down the garden walks alone; but just at that moment Miss Marjorie cared little for Mrs. Magnum, or anything she could say.

The night was dark and starless, the air chill and raw. But after that heated room it was a positive luxury to feel the fresh, damp wind coming from the hills. After those sharp, unnerving voices it was soothing to listen to the leafless trees breathing and whispering of the coming of the rain. Storm and cold and darkness—they were all preferable to that snug parlor and its disagreeable inmates; and so Miss Marjorie paced up and down, up and down, and thought.

Thought of another time which had been far happier than this! A time when she was also a companion, but not Miss Magnum's companion! A time when there was one voice that always softened when it spoke her name; when there were eyes that brightened at her coming—lips that welcomed her as only privileged lips might do! She thought of long, pleasant evenings, spent with books and work and music, around a cottage fire. Of quiet walks and talks by summer moonlight. Alas! where had those blissful moments fled? Why had the dearest, the sweetest of ties failed her? Why, from that wealth of love and tenderness had she been cast out into the cold world alone?

She had been foully slandered; she had been cruelly distrusted; she had been heartlessly deserted! Over and over again she said this to herself. Yet on that night, as she walked up and down the gravel path, the sense of injury and of wrong seemed to die away and in their place came a wild yearning for the olden time—but for one moment of the happiness of yore!

"Oh, that it were possible
In this dull life of pain,
To find the arm of my true love
Around me once again!"

she murmured, as she clasped her hands above her aching heart. Where was he? What was he doing now? Beautiful and bright, he had risen like a star above her lonely path; had won her heart, and worn it for a time; had bound her to him by the most sacred ties; then left her for years, perhaps forever! Where was he—where was he? And she stretched out her arms to the sullen night sky in her vain and passionate appeal to him who would come no more.

The sky grew darker. A drop of rain touched her cheek. She turned to go in, yet, with a strange, uneasy feeling, she lingered a moment beside the gate looking out upon the dark road that led into the village. Then her eyes wandered away beyond Banley, and out towards the hill where the haunted house stood. How strange the unseen and unacknowledged link that bound her to the people there! What would they say when she went to them and told her tale? Would they think her mad or would they take compassion upon her for the sorrow she had undergone, and admit her to their family circle as a welcome and honored guest? Was it likely? Had they ever heard her name? Yet how well she knew theirs; and how much she could tell of their daily life and habits, from the stern banker down to his favorite daughter, Rose! "Cousin Rose! Cousin Rose!" She said it aloud twice, and then started and flushed guiltily, lest any one should have heard her.

Some one had heard! Not Mr. Magnum—not even Kitty, but a tall, handsome young man, who had been walking along the public road, with his hands in his pockets and his head bent down. He had passed the garden gate without even looking that way, but the low voice made him start and turn round. In an instant he had leaped the iron fence, and stood by Miss Marjorie's side.

"Have I found you at last?" he exclaimed. "I have looked for you all over England, and in vain. Now, Marjorie—"

But Miss Marjorie looked in his face, gave a low cry, and fainted.

He caught her in his arms and kissed her passionately.

"Marjorie, my love, my darling, look up and speak to me!"

Slowly she revived. Slowly she came to the knowledge that life was no longer a blank—that he had returned, and that he loved her still.

"Oh," she sighed, "is this a dream?"

"No dream, but truth, my darling."

"Are you sure? I have dreamed so many times."

"But you are awake now. Awake, to hear me say that I wronged you—that I was a jealous, suspicious fool to listen to a word against you; awake to see me kneel at your feet and ask your pardon! Look, Marjorie! I won't rise till you say you have entirely forgiven me!"

"My love—my love!" answered Miss Marjorie, bending over him with a radiant smile. And then the long misery of the past was wiped away and forgotten.

"But where have you been?" she asked, when the first surprise was over. "Where have you been, and how did you know I was here?"

"I have been in Australia, my love. I would not come back till I could lay a fortune at your feet, as some amends for all I have made you suffer; and I can do it now. Thanks to a spade and pickaxe, I am a rich man, and you shall have a new silk dress every day, and eat off gold and silver plate, if you like, Marjorie!"

"As if I cared for that!" she said, kissing him.

"No, I know you are not mercenary; but still, money is one of the best things you can have, my child. Money and love—love and money; any one who can get those two things may think himself remarkably well off in this vale of tears, Miss Marjorie! And you have both; and if you don't feel obliged to me for getting them, you are a very ungrateful young woman, I must say."

"Oh, I do, I do, but how in the world did you know I was here?"

"I did not. This is the strangest part of the story. I came home to England lonely and sad enough. For three years in Australia I have been trying to find you out, through agents and advertisements, in vain. Where have you been?"

"I taught in a school at Brixton for two years after I lost you; and then one of the pupils, daughter of this Mr. Magnum—"

"The gentleman who owns this house?"

"Yes; his daughter was educated at that school, and she thought I would make a suitable companion for her mother, who is ill, or who fancies herself so, at least. I have been here a year. I shall leave the place in a month's time."

"In a week—in a day!" was the impetuous reply. "Do you suppose I am going to have you slaving here now I am home again? You will pick up your traps to-night and be ready to go with me when I call for you to-morrow, which will be as soon after breakfast as I can get over from Banley. Do you hear?"

"Yes, but I must give some notice."

"Not a bit of it. Are they kind to you?"

"Not very."

"Do you like them?"

"Not at all."

"You don't mean to say that they have ill-used you?"

"Oh, no."

"But, in fact, you hate them?"

"Exactly."

"Poor darling! And you have had a year of this drudgery?"

"Never mind; it is all over now."

"That it is."

"But finish your story. Tell me how you happened to find me here."

"Do you know that my uncle Cowley is here?"

"Yes."

"Shut up with all his family in a house full of ghosts?"

"I have heard of it."

"I went straight to his house in Mecklenburg square, only to find it empty. The housekeeper gave me the present address, and, on reaching Banley, I found his name in everybody's mouth. If he had seen half the sights and heard half the sounds villagers relate he must be a lunatic by this time. In the place of waiting till to-morrow to pay my visit, I thought I would go to-night, and see if there was any truth in these marvelous tales. And while I was walking along, thinking of ghosts and hobgoblins, I heard a little voice plainly say in the darkness, 'Cousin Rose!—Cousin Rose!' It was the voice I had been hungering and thirsting to hear for three long and weary years. Now you know the whole. Were you thinking about Rose?"

"Yes."

"You will like her dearly. She is a good little thing, and will make a sister of you the moment I tell her your story. Will you go there with me to-morrow?"

"Will they welcome me?"

"Of course they will, you goose! Oh, Marjorie! My own Marjorie! they will love you for my sake, even as I love you for your own, you wicked, fascinating, cruel little monster!"

"He! he! he! That's prime!" exclaimed a boyish voice in the shrubbery; and Marjorie started from her lover's arms.

"Julius, is that you?" she cried.

"I should rather think it was!" the promising youth replied, standing out upon the gravel path. "I've been watching you for ten minutes at the least, and haven't you been going on kissing and hugging! Oh, my! won't mother go into a tantrum when she hears of it! I shan't have to learn any more Latin lessons! You'll have to pack, Miss Marjorie, as sure as eggs is eggs! Heigho, jeminy, and a rigdum!"

His exulting dance was speedily brought to an end. Mr. Cowley, who had kept silent so far from sheer astonishment, now grasped him firmly by the collar.

"You young scoundrel!" he exclaimed, "how dare you speak in that manner to Miss Marjorie?"

"She's my governess; I'll say what I like to her!" was the impertinent reply.

"And she is my wife! And if you dare to say a word about her—to look at her insolently—to insult her in the smallest way—I'll give you such a flogging that you will never want to utter a lady's name as long as you live! Do you hear, sir?" and he shook him in the air as a terrier shakes a rat.

"Oh, my! let me go! I'll call my father!" said the frightened boy.

"Hold your tongue, you whelp! Where is the key to the garden gate?"

"In the hall, sir."

"Go and get it—and don't let anyone see you! Be quick!"

Julius, thoroughly subdued, ran up the steps, and in a moment reappeared with the key.

"What are you going to do, Charles?" inquired Miss Marjorie, wonderingly, as he opened the gate and held out his hand to her.

"I am going to take you away with me."

"Impossible."

"I don't know what that word means!"

"But I have not even got on my bonnet."

"Never mind, your cloak will protect you, and we have not far to go. Into that house you shall never step again, after the specimen of your treatment I have just seen."

He drew her out upon the footpath, and turned to the boy, who stood with open mouth at the gate.

"Lock it, and go in," he said.

"But what am I to say to mother?"

"Tell her that Miss Marjorie has gone away with her husabnd," was the laughing reply. "Come, my love, draw your cloak well round you. I never ran away with a lady before; but, upon my word, this eloping with one's wife is a very pleasant business!"

And so, while Julius ran in with his wonderful news, and sent Mrs. Magnum into a fit of screaming hysterics, the strangely re-united pair walked on arm in arm right through the darkness towards the haunted house.

HIS HORSE STOOD SENTRY.

Great Racer Stood Guard Over His Intoxicated Driver.

This reads like a fairy tale, but it is true. At the sale of the late Marcus Daly's thoroughbreds William Lakeland, one of our well known metropolitan trainers, bought Ogden for $4,200. This is a valuable horse by Kilwarlin—Oriole, foaled in 1894, winner of the Futurity of his year and many other important events and whose family figures show twelve English Derby winners. All this just to show the kind of gentleman he is Lakeland wished him taken down to his Sheepshead stables that night and after a talk with his foreman, Frasch, Ogden was dispatched by road in the care of a colored stable boy, to whom Lakeland gave $5 as an inducement to take extra care of the horse. Blanketed and hooded from hoofs to ear tips, Ogden serenely wended his way through the falling snow, and doubtless wondered if he were going back to Montana and the familiar Bitter Root farm. Later Mr. Lakeland went home and sat up hour after hour waiting for the coming of his new purchase, but none came. His feelings may be better imagined than described. He loves his horses, as evinced by his wonderful success with Tea Tray and other erratic animals which he brought round to a proper state of mind. He sat up all night, sending messengers in all directions until dawn, and by that time he was ready to take up the quest himself. It was not the money that was worrying him; it was the exposure of a good horse to the inclement weather and what the probable results might prove. Just then came a call from the telephone which sent him flying down the boulevard at a rapid gait. The police precinct wanted to know if he had lost a horse and what he was like, reporting that Ogden had been found by an officer standing in the road, with the colored boy drunk at his feet. In other words, the horse was taking care of the drunken lout, as many a horse has done before, and will again, bless them for it! Mr. Lakeland found Ogden safe and sound at the precinct, apparently very much at home, and soon had him in his own stall. As for the stable boy, Mr. Lakeland declined to bother with him. He did not want a justifiable case of assault and battery on his hands. He had Ogden and that was all he cared about.—Spirit of the Times.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS.

Some Startling Ideas Expressed by New York Pupils.

There must have been some brain pressure in the public schools of New York in the examinations that were held early this month. It is only on that assumption that one can explain the unique reading of a famous sentence given by a pupil in a Brooklyn school in the examination in English literature:

Stored in some trouser house of mighty kings.

"The lungs are organs of execration" was a gem combining ignorance with unconscious truth. It belongs to a youth in England. Richmond Burough is responsible for the pupil, hard pressed as was the subject of his discourse, who answered the question as to why Cornwallis surrendered by saying "Because he could not help himself." The same borough owns the young man who defined pig iron as being the iron "that they make nose rings for pigs of." A Borough of Manhattan pupil is the one who declared in a composition that "George Washington, after his victory over King George, went home to Mount Vernon, where great crowds met him at the railroad station." Another Manhattan pupil thinks that excommunication is "when a telegraph wire breaks." It must have been an anti-imperialist who had this to say in an English school the other day about Polynesia: "Polynesia is a group of small islands in the Pacific which are under the protection of the British, otherwise seem very quiet and peace loving." He has a companion in misfortune in the Borough of The Bronx who explained that the Philippine Islands are islands of "fugitive savages, most of whom are democrats and cannibals." "Insulators," said a youth, who evidently has no aspirations toward electricity are "people who insult other people." Llamas, according to a young idea, are "beasts of burden, like camels, only smaller and no hump, used to carry silver and other precious metals, and also as priests of Asia." "King Alfred," said another young student, "was a monark who burned the cakes and made himself generally familiar with his subjects." The crocodile, according to a great light seen by a boy in Brooklyn, "is a hard shell, which eats young virgins who bathe," a definition that really conveys warnings in several directions. A municipality was described by a juvenile sage and observer as being "a city ruled by Tammany Hall." It was another equally acute observer who defined politics as being "a way in which places are got for men who are out of a job."—New York Press.

"It Seems as Though my Back Would Break."

Is it not true? Women suffer, feel the very life crushed out of them, grow old before their time. Each morning wake up determined to do so much before the day ends, and yet—

Before the morning is very old the dreadful BACKACHE attacks them, the brave spirit sinks back in affright; no matter how hard they struggle, the "clutch" is upon them and they fall upon the couch crying:

"Why should I suffer so? What can I do?"

The answer is ready, your cry has been heard, and a woman is able to restore you to health and happiness.

Backache is only a symptom of more fatal trouble—heed its warning in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will stop your torture and restore your courage. Your pains come from unnatural menstruation or some derangement of the womb. Let those who are suffering read Mrs. Morton's letter and be guided by her experience.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been so delighted with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would write and thank you. My system was entirely run down. I suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back and could hardly stand upright; was more tired in the morning than on retiring at night. I had no appetite. Since taking your Compound I have gained fifteen pounds, and am gaining every week. My appetite has improved, have no backache, and I look better than I ever looked before.

"I shall recommend it to all my friends, as it certainly is a wonderful medicine."—MRS. E. F. MORTON, 826 York St., Cincinnati, O.

POOR LITTLE JOHNNY! AND HIS "TUMMY"!

Small boys, and many times large ones, and occasionally girls, too, big and little, suffer terribly from convulsive pains or "cramps" in the bowels and stomach—pain so violent that it "doubles up" the ones attacked, and makes it impossible for them to stand up.

Some people call it colic, but most honest, plain-spoken people call it "belly-ache" and very properly, for the seat of the trouble is in the bowels, and caused by the violent efforts of the bowels to rid themselves of something which doesn't belong there. The small boy usually gets it from over-eating or from eating forbidden fruit, and suffers mostly in the summer time.

It's spring now, and "in times of peace, prepare for war." Let the boys and girls and the big folks, too, for that matter, clean out the clogged channels filled with winter bile and putrid undigested food, strengthen the 30-feet of bowel canal, liven up the liver, and "summer belly-aches" will have no terrors, because they won't happen. The way to make the body ache-proof is to use CASCARETS, gentle, sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, the perfect system cleaners and bowel strengtheners. For fear that anybody in the family should ever be attacked by belly-ache, keep a box of CASCARETS in the house always, and remember that all pains and troubles in your insides are

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.

Shudders at His Past.

"I recall now with horror," says Mail Carrier Burneet Mann, of Levanna, O., 'my three years of suffering from Kidney trouble, I was hardly ever free from dull aches or pain in my back. To stoop or lift mail sacks made me groan, I felt tired, worn out about ready to give up, when I began to use Electric Bitters, but six bottles completely cured me and made me feel like a new man." They're unrivaled to regulate stomach, kidneys, and bowels. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by J. L. Harr. Only 50c.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

The educated women of the Philipinnes are playing the role of lobbyist and clamoring for self-government offices, by way of report.

It is about time for the democratic party of the state and of the county to begin operation. Our columns are open to democratic uses as well as republican. Partiality to either party is not practiced by the TIMES.

Did you ever stop to think how great an enterprise that billion and a half dollar steel trust really is? And to think that a man only thirty-five years of age is president of this great combination makes us beleive we are 'simply foolish.'

The dailies are floating articles about the Younger brothers liberation from the Minnesota penatentaries. These fellow are a remniscence of the notorious Jesse James gang, and what the object is in turning them loose upon the public one can only guess at.

It is rumored that President McKinley will visit the people of Hawaii, Porto Rico, Cuba and the other newly acquired territories soon. If he observes to do in 'Rome as the Romans do' or in Turkey as the Turkeys do of course he will have a nice visit. The vice presinent will act as president pro tem.

Klemme is a small town in size, but is as big as any of them for it's size, and a whole lot bigger than some of the bigger places when it comes to getting there in a hurry in business. Since the first of this year 55 car loads of lumber have been unloaded and 7 are on the track awaiting removal. 62 total. Is there a town in the county that can beat it?

The Chicago Great Western has changed it's course and will not come through Klemme as was predicted. It will run from Hampton west to Rowen: a station will be planted three miles south of Alexander, another between Rowen and Clarion or four miles north of Galt. This will make the towns so thick down in that country that it will be difficult to determine whether the towns are towns or just well improved farms. Whereas one town gets fair trade now, all of them, will only get a bite while our town is getting a square meal. Perhaps it is just as well that the road does not come to this place.

The race for Governor is getting scortchingly hot! The wily pollyticians are sifting it down to a fine point. The are all—the canidates—every mother's son of them as smooth as glass; as affable as an orator, as shrewd as a railroad magnet, and certainly as courteous as a society doctor; these things—high and mighty as they are—make the choice so much easier than it—the choice—would be under ordinary circumstances. They are all—the candidates are—angels without wings but fit for heaven—we are sorry they cannot depart by wire—too good to be on this side of the pearly gates, so they are! It's an easy matter to pick your man now-a days.

Mr. Carnegie sold out at the top notch of the market presumably to disply the philanthropical side of life; spend his money and die poor. And now because he does not hasten to waste his fortune and shorten life there seems to be a "weeping and wailing and gnashing" on the part of some people. Mr. Carnegie, in all probability, made all of his money himself, and is, perhaps quite able to spend it of his own accord and free will; does not inquire after the advice of people who are toiling under the mortgage bond. If Carnegie's money is not Carnegie's money it would be well to know whose money Carnegie's money is. If he sees fit to furnish the United States with libraries and make contributions to educational institutions it is, most assuredly his privilege to do so. If Mr. Carnegie, however, sees fit not to do these things he can likewise exercise his privilages. If Mr. Carnegie cannot do as Mr. Carnegie pleases one would like to know if some one could induce Mr. Carnegie to do diffierent than Mr. Carnegie pleases to do!

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh. by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

The Union Pacific Railway company has filed its amended articles with the secretary of state. The capital stock is increased $100,000,000, making the total capital $296,178,700. Secretary Martin received the fee demanded, $2,000, this amount being prescribed by law according to the opinion of Attorney General Mullan.

The total real and personal taxable valuation of property in the city of Des Moines, according to the new assessment which is now practically completed, will be something over $15,000,000, and may go over $15,250,000. This means that, in the judgment of the assesssors, the real and personal property in the city listed by them is worth over $60,000,000.

At a meeting at the Savery house forty agents of Union insurance companies and special agents and officers of state companies discussed the plan of organizing Iowa for educational and political purposes. The plan adopted contemplates a divisi of the state into districts and t assignment of a special agent to each district. The propositions were discussed in all their phases and unanimous support was assured from every man present. It was announced that the platform should be one broad enough for American underwriters to stand upon, and that the legislation sought should be to end that equal rights to all and special privileges to none would be guaranteed. Monday, May 30, was set as the day when district chairmen should go to their fields and begin active operation. The success of the plan seems assured.

The May report issued by the board of control contains a census of the various institutions as compared with that of a year ago. In the two penitentiaries there has been a decrease of 55, of which 32 are at Anamosa and the balance at Fort Madison. In all other institutions business has been exceptionally good, especially in the insane asylums, where there has been a total increase in patients of 102. These are divided as follows: Clarinda, 32; Independence, 21, and Mt. Pleasant, 40. The natural increase in insane patients in the state for a period of one year is in excess of 200. This number includes those at county and private institutions in addition to those at the state hospitals. In the industrial institutions there has been a growth of population of 26 boys at the reform school at Eldora and 63 girls at Mitchellville.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Iowa Agricultural society it was decided to engage F. M. Barnes of Chicago to furnish the amusement features at the state fair this fall. His entertainment will be of the nature of a vaudeville performance and will be given on a stage to be erected directly in front of the amphitheater. Different attractions will be put on between races. There will be no Midway this year and the performance will be free to all those in the amphitheater.

The United States grand jury returned true bills against the persons charged with complicity in the Marion county alleged election frauds of last November. Cases against John H. Stubenrauch and John Reuvers, both of Pella, were docketed. The charge against them is subscribing to a false affidavit for the purpose of securing the issuance of naturalization papers. No other cases were docketed, but it is understood that other indictments were returned, some of them against prominent people of Marion county, but that they will not be docketed until arrests are made. In a general way it is charged that by false affidavits and by a conspiracy in which several persons were concerned, parties at Pella secured possession of naturalization papers that has been dated back two years by means of which they secured final citizenship papers for thirteen Hollanders who voted in the November general election for all the national, state and county officers. This condition was developed by a contest over the office of county attorney, in which proof came out that thirteen votes cast for Strong, democrat, were thrown out and Metzger, republican, was declared elected. It is not likely that the trial of these cases will be reached at this term.

The long pending Vincent case has been withdrawn from the railroad commission. J. F. Vincent, until recently owner of the Des Moines union stock yards, visited the office of the railroad commission and asked that the controversy be dropped. He gave as his reason for not desiring to press the case further that the control of the stock yards had passed out of his hands into the possession of the Agars. He said further that an understanding had been reached between the Agars and the Rock Island and other roads whereby there would be no furthmer difficulty about the shipments of live stock to the yards here.

FORTY-EIGHT PERSONS DROWNED

Not a Soul Survived from Two Ships Wrecked Off Australian Coast.

Victoria, B. C., May 18.—News has been received here by the steamer Moana of the loss of the steamer Federal off the Australian coast during the heavy gale at the end of March. Thirty-two persons perished with her. Six bodies were recovered with the boat, but no other wreckage was found and it was believed that the vessel foundered near the const. When the bodies were found dingoes were eating them and were driven away with difficulty. The bodies were badly mangled by the wild dogs and only a few were identified, including Captain Coult and Engineer Hills. The ship Louise Lamont was lost during the same storm, with sixteen souls, and nothing was heard of any of them.

Makes a Generous Donation to His Old Home Town.

London, May 17.—Andrew Carnegie has given 100,000 pounds to establish district libraries in Glasgow.

In making the gift to Glasgow, Mr. Carnegie wrote a letter, in which he recalled the fact that fifty-two years ago he sailed for America from Glasgow. He had done so much for other places that it was a pleasure to do something for her.

Turks Show Great Brutality.

Sofia, Bulgaria, May 14.—It is reported from Tikvesh, a vilayet of Salonica, that the Turkish police in that district are acting with great brutality toward the unfortunate inhabitants. Many Bulgarian residents in the Tikvesh district have been arrested and cruelly tortured.

M. J. S. Guechoff, Bulgarian diplomatic agent at Constantinople, has made strong representations to the porte with regard to these charges, and has also drawn the attention of the foreign diplomatic corps in Constantinople to the matter, for the purpose of having an end put to such atrocious proceedings.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

RECALLS AN ACT OF HEROISM.

Railroad Abandons Bridge Made Famous by Kate Shelley.

Boone, May 30.—Kate Shelley, the Moingona heroine, has been railroaded into obscurity. Years ago she left her bed and in a howling storm crept over the big bridge crossing the Des Moines river, which had been damaged by the flood, and signaled an approaching train about to plunge into the raging torrent.

A generous public contributed $1,000 in recognition of the brave act, and in past years train hands on the Chicago & Northwestern road have been accustomed to point out a little vine-clad cottage which the girl built with the money. The place is near the eastern approach to the bridge, the scene of her courageous act, and in plain view of all the trains as they swing around the curve.

Commencing yesterday, however, Kate Shelley's place will be seen but semi-occasionally, for the trains are to be run over the new cut-off, which will leave Kate Shelley and Moingona miles to the south. No more will admiring passengers and trainmen get a wave from her hand, for the old road will be practically abandoned.

BANK ROBBER ARRESTED.

Bankers' Casualty Company Makes a Capture at Council Bluffs.

Centerville, May 18.—The Bankers' Casualty company of Des Moines reports that a man giving his name as Charles Green and filling the description of Charles Hart, wanted in this county for bank robbery, has been arrested at Council Bluffs.

Charles Hart and Sol Davis attempted to rob the McDonald bank in Cincinnati on the night of November 2, 1898, and were captured near Mystic by Sheriff Climie and a posse the next day. They were lodged in jail and the grand jury indicted them. Their trial came up the first week in December and after the evidence was in and while the jury was deliberating on a verdict, on the night of December 8, 1898, or the morning of the 9th, they broke jail. Davis was captured and returned to Centerville on January 21, 1899. The jury had found both guilty on the indictment, and on Monday evening Judge Roberts, who had heard the case, came here and sentenced Davis to nine years in the penitentiary, where he was safely landed the next day.

PUBLIC PERIL IN PHTHISIS.

Dr. Conniff Urges Necessity of Hospital for Poor Consumptives.

Davenport, May 18.—That hospitals for the tuberculosis poor are more necessary to the protection of the public than insane hospitals and penitentiaries was the statement made in the annual address of President R. A. Conniff of Sioux City at the annual meeting of the Iowa State Medical association. The association will probably urge on the Iowa legislature the founding of such an institution. A lively discussion followed the motion of D. C. Brockman of Ottumwa that marriage of criminals and degenerates be prevented by legislation. The matter was referred to the legislative committee. The election of officers resulted: President, J. R. Guthrie, Dubuque; vice president, S. Bailey, Mount Ayr; secretary, V. L. Treynor, Council Bluffs; treasurer, G. L. Skinner, Cedar Rapids.

NEW ASSESSMENT PLAN.

Step Rate System Is Adopted by the United Workmen.

Marshalltown, May 16.—At the meeting of the grand lodge A. O. U. W. the graded assessment plan proposed at the last meeting of the grand lodge was adopted. Council Bluffs was selected as the place of holding the meeting next year, and the following officers were elected: Grand master workman, W. M. Narvis, Muscatine; grand foreman, W. H. Berry, Indianola; grand recorder, B. F. Rehkopf, Des Moines; grand overseer, J. K. Townsend, Burlington; grand guide, F. M. Connelly; grand receiver, B. F. Carroll, Bloomfield; grand inside watchman, E. Tolman; grand outer watchman, J. R. Haines, Marshalltown; grand trustee, A. Hartung, Des Moines; supreme representatives, W. M. Narvis, R. L. Tilton and A. W. C. Weeks.

HALF A DEPOT WRECKED.

Freight Runs Into Switch Engine With Disastrous Results.

Villisca, May 18.—The east half of the C., B. & Q. freight depot here was torn to pieces by way freight cars being pushed through it. The wreck was caused by an extra running into a switch engine with four cars attached. The switch engine was on the main line when the engineer saw the extra coming in and reversed the lever and jumped, which, together with being hit by the extra, sent the switch engine and cars into the depot with terrific force. Both engines were badly damaged and four cars practically destroyed. No one was injured.

Great Western Extension.

Sioux City, May 16.—Information at hand here indicates that the Chicago Great Western extension to Sioux City from Fort Dodge, the present terminus of the Mason City & Fort Dodge, is to be as follows: From Fort Dodge to Somers, thence to Rockwell City, Sac City and through Ida county to Anthon, Woodbury county, where it will follow the survey already made by the St. Louis, Iowa & Dakota (proposed). The Omaha extension will be southwesterly through Calhoun, Carroll, Shelby and Pottawattamie counties. Keen interest is felt here, as news of the progress indicates that the road will be surveyed and partially constructed before snow flies. Rapid work is being done, five engineering corps being in the field. The announcement is made here authoritatively that the trains will be run into Sioux City over the Chicago Great Western rails next summer.

Sac County Cummins.

Sac City, May 20.—The Sac county republican convention requested its delegation to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of A. B. Cummins for governor and Warren Garst for state senator. The convention was strongly for Cummins and Garst and none but their friends were placed on the delegations.

Union County Anti-Cummins.

Creston, May 20—Union county convention convened Saturday and selected thirteen delegates to the state convention. The convention was without incident and without resolutions upon the subject of governor. Paul MacLean is one of the delegates. The delegation is against Cummins.

Mrs Vptil Acquitted.

Toledo, May 17.—Frances Vptil, the aged woman who was indicted by the Tama grand jury for murder in the first degree, and whose trial for the murder of her husband at Chelsea has been progressing in the court here, has been acquitted.

O'Brien County for Brown.

Sioux City, May 16.—The O'Brien county republican convention, assembled at Primghar, endorsed the candidacy of E. C. Brown of Sheldon for railroad commissioner. No reference was made in the convention to the governorship, but it is stated the delegation is solid for A. B. Cummins.

Bob Durkin in the Toils.

Ottumwa, May 17.—Robert Durkin, one of the Eldon bank robbers, who served a term in the penitentiary at Fort Madison after pleading guilty to the crime, was arrested in Chicago, charged with being implicated in cracking a safe in Peoria.

HITS SUICIDE CLAUSE.

Judge McPherson Says Insurance Company Must Pay.

Des Moines, May 15.—Judge McPherson of the federal court handed down an opinion in the case, Josephine Kelley vs. the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. This is an action in which the planitiff sued to recover the amount of two insurance policies held by her husband and in which she was named beneficiary. The policies were secured in 1893. Ed Kelley died by his own hands two years later and when demand was made by Mrs. Kelley for payment it was refued on the grounds that the holder of the policies died by his own hands while in a fit of insanity, and that according to the contract payment could not be enforced. On the back of the policy the following contract was drawn up and signed by Kelley: "I warrant that I will not die of my own hands during a period of two years, while insane."

It was contended by the company that Kelley died while insane and by his own hands, therefore, failing to carry out his part of the contract. The court holds that any contract entered into between a man and insurance company, in which the former agrees that he will not die by his own hands while insane, is null and void for the reason that he does not know whether or not he will be able to carry out his contract. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount of the two policies aggregating $7,500.

CHURCH IS NOT LIABLE.

Trustees' Contract With Lyceum Bureau Not Legal.

Des Moines, May 20.—In the case of the Lyceum Bureau vs. Asbury M. E. church et al. Judge Bishop rendered a decision for the defendant. Plaintiff is engaged in the management of a number of amusement enterprises and made a contract for a series of entertainments for the benefit of Asbury church. John Gibson and E. B. Evans, trustees for the church, made the contracts. Later the church elected not to give the entertainments and plaintiff sued for the consideration named in the contract. The defense was that the trustees exceeded their authority in entering into the contract and that the articles of incorporation of the church did not authorize it to engage in amusement undertakings. The court held to this defense, giving it as his opinion that the trustees of religious organizations, unless it is especially provided in the articles of incorporation that it may engage in this business, cannot contract for amusement ventures.

DOG WAS TRUE TO MASTER.

When the Boy Was Drowned He Informed the Family.

Waverly, May 20.—At Shell Rock, Harry White, aged 17, was drowned while bathing in the river. His faithful shepherd dog ran up to the home of the boy's parents and acted so strangely that the family were immediately alarmed, though not aware that Harry had gone swimming. A member of the family followed the dog to the river, where the drowned boy's clothes were found. The river was dragged and the body recovered.

Mystery in Suicide.

Burlington, May 18.—The man who shot himself dead in Crapo Park proves to be Frank Shepard, a resident of Buffalo, N. Y. It is said he has a brother living there. There is considerable mystery about the man's life, he having claimed to have been at one time a cowboy on the western plains. It is known he had considerable money previous to his death, but not a penny was found on him or in any of his effects. No trace of his money or his jewelry can be found, and the fact that a strange woman was with the man a day or two before his death, and has utterly disappeared, lends color to the theory of foul play in some manner. It was for a time intimated that the man was murdered, the park policemen declaring they heard more than one pistol shot. This, however, is refuted by several eye witnesses who saw the man shoot himself.

Suicide of an Unknown.

Oelwein, May 17.—An unknown man came into town last night and registered as J. Byo, Calmer, Iowa, at the Mealy hotel. He paid for a bed and breakfast in advance and went to bed. He was called three times this morning but did not answer. The last time the hotel clerk entered the room and found him dead. The coroner was summoned and pronounced his death due to an over dose of morphine. Telegrams have been sent to Calmer, Cedar Rapids, Dubuque and other places, but no one knows him. There was no evidence on his person indicating his residence and he will be buried here if the body is unclaimed.

Railway Officers Fined.

Cedar Rapids, May 18.—P. A. Murphy and John Tenney, officials of the B., C. R. & N. railway, were found guilty of assault and battery in justice court, the complaining witness being one of the strikers. Murphy was fined $25 and costs, Tenney $50 and costs. About twenty-five men were shipped in by the company and two of the strikers attempted to dissuade them from going to work. Murphy and Tenney pushed them away. The evidence did not show that any blows were struck.

To Pay State Treasury.

Mt. Pleasant, May 16.—Judge Smyth has signed an order in court directing the executors of the estate of the late William G. Saunders to pay to the state treasurer the sum of $2,581.05 as the collateral inheritance tax due from the estate. This is one of the largest sums to be paid into the state treasury since the collateral inheritance tax law was deemed a necessity.

Ottumwa Toughs Sentenced.

Ottumwa, May 17.—Lewis Jones was sentenced to five years at hard labor in the penitentiary at Fort Madison and Henry Mongoven was sentenced to three years and six months by Judge Fee in the district court. The men will thereby pay the penalty for the part they took in the Pasnau assault at Crips Bros.' livery barn April 11.

Two Are Held for Murder.

LeMars, May 20.—The grand jury for the May term of court has returned indictments against Henry Steffen, William Beaver and Peter Peterson, charging the first two with murder and the third for manslaughter for the killing of John Jessep some time ago during a quarrel.

West Des Moines High School Wins.

Grinnell, May 20.—The State High School meet was won by the West Des Moines high school by the narrow margin of one point. The scores of the schools securing the first three places were as follows: West Des Moines, 27; Grinnell, 26; Correctionville, 25.

Library for Travelers' Use.

Des Moines, May 18.—The Iowa Masonic library of Cedar Rapids, which is now under the direction of N. R. Parvin, the deputy grand secretary and librarian, is establishing a new and interesting department called "Around the World by Pen and Camera." This is a collection of railway literature about various points of interest. It is intended to make it as nearly complete as possible and furnish a storehouse of information for prospective travelers and for everyone who may desire such information.

MRS. M'KINLEY VERY ILL

President Abandons Proposed Trip to the Northwest.

San Francisco, May 16.—Owing to the very serious character of Mrs. McKinley's illness, the president has definitely decided to abandon his contemplated northwestern tour and to return to Washington direct as soon as Mrs. McKinley is able to stand the journey. The gravity of Mrs. McKinley's condition has been known to the members of the president's immediate party for several days, but had been concealed in the belief that she would rally as she had done so frequently in the past when suffering from one of her periods of depression, and, with a few days of absolute quiet and rest, be restored to normal condition. But her present illness has been attended with entirely new complications, which have not yielded to treatment, and the president concluded that it was time the public should be apprised of the true situation. He is also anxious that the citizens of the cities and towns along the planned route on his return trip who have made such extensive preparations for his visit should receive prompt notification of the circumstances which impelled his decision.

The members of the cabinet are very apprehensive that Mrs. McKinley will not rally. Her physicians have not yet been able to check the bowel trouble, and her enfeebled condition mitigates against her. But at the Scott residence it is stated that there is no immediate danger, although a change for the worse would not be unexpected.

San Francisco, May 17.—Mrs. McKinley is in the valley of the shadow of death and may pass away at any moment. Yesterday morning shortly before dawn she sank rapidly, and it was feared she would die before restoratives could be administered. But she responded to the powerful heart stimulants which were given her, and during the day improved to such an extent that hope of her recovery, slight thought it was, revived. The new treatment for low vitality, salt injections into the veins, was administered to Mrs. McKinley and she responded to the treatment. But her life hangs by a thead. She has taken no solid food since she reached here on Sunday, and the physicians do not believe she can survive another sinking spell such as she experienced yesterday morning. She suffers little and bears up bravely. During her periods of consciousness yesterday her mind has been clear. The president is constantly at her bedside, and though worn by his long vigil, is standing the awful strain with remarkable fortitude.

Every banquet and public function planned in his honor here has been abandoned and the city with heavy heart is watching Mrs. McKinley's battle for life. If the end should come the president and his party will be ready to start back with the remains within twenty-four hours.

San Francisco, May 18.—President McKinley described the marked improvement in Mrs. McKinley's condition yesterday as a transformation. But, perhaps even the president of the United States may over state the case in his elation at the prospect of his wife's recovery. Certain it is, however, that Mrs. McKinley's condition improved to an extent that fairly nonplussed the doctors, brightened the anxious and devoted husband and filled the city with joy and thanksgiving.

The sinking spell that was feared in the early hours before dawn when the tide flows out and the vitality of the world is at its lowest ebb, did not come.

San Francisco, May 19.—Mrs. McKinley rested easily yesterday and seemed so much stronger and so cheerful that President McKinley and the physicians believe that she will rapidly improve from this time on.

AN AMASING STATEMENT

Balfour Tells of British Military Weakness in 1899.

London, May 17.—In winding up the debate on the army bill in the house of commons, Mr. A. J. Balfour, the government leader, made a sensational statement that, at one moment toward the end of 1899, there were in Great Britain only 3,300 rounds of small arms ammunition, with no reserve of artillery ammunition except what was actually with the guns retained at home.

Mr. Balfour made the revelation in an attempt to fasten on the liberals negligence in the matter of military supplies, pointing out that the last liberal government went out of office as a result of the conservatives revealing the insufficient supply of small ammunition, which was then 92,000,000 rounds, instead of 146,000,000, which the officials regard as the nominal reserve. He declared that the conservative government had raised this reserve to 170,000,000 rounds before the war broke out.

With reference to the dark period of the war Mr. Balfour said:

"I went through that period and, so far as I am concerned, I never mean to go through a like period nor to throw on my successors the risk of such a strain."

The liberal papers seize upon Mr. Balfour's sensational statement in the house, referring to it as "an amazing indiscretion." The Daily News says:

"This shows how near to ruin Mr. Chamberlain and his colleagues brought the country"

"To such light hearted gentlemen," exclaims the Daily Chronicle, "are the interests of a great empire committed."

BARS OUT TYPEWRITERS.

Government of Turkey Says Machines Cannot Come In.

Constantinople, May 20.—The customs authorities have prohibited the entry of typewriters into Turkey, and two hundred machines now in the custom house have been ordered returned to the consignor. The authorities have taken up the peculiarly characteristic attitude that there is no distinct feature about typewriting, by which the authorship could be recognized, or a person using a machine be traced, consequently anyone is able to put in type seditious writings without fear of compromising himself. Hektographic paste and fluid are also prohibited for similar reasons.

Wanamaker Home Burns.

Philadelphia, May 20.—The country home of Thomas B. Wanamaker at Meadowbrook, Montgomery county, was struck by lightning and destroyed. The loss is estimated at $500,000. The house was adorned with valuable paintings and bric-a-brac, all of which was destroyed. Mr. Wanamaker and his family were at their Philadelphia home at the time. A woman caretaker and her child and a man servant, who were sleeping in the house, narrowly escaped being burned to death.

Postmaster General Tired of Job.

New York, May 15.—A special to the World from Washington says:

The postmaster general, Charles Emory Smith, has given up the lease of his Washington home, No. 1774 Massachusettts avenue, and there are rumors that this portends his resignation from the cabinet the coming year. Those who are close to the postmaster general say he is only retaining his office at the earnest solicitation of the president and that as soon as practicable he desires to return to newspaper work.

Hollow Ash... Hall

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

CHAPTER IX.

To walk straight up to the door of a strange house, with nothing but a plaid shawl thrown over your head, requires a considerable amount of courage and nerve. At every step of the way Miss Marjorie's scruples grew stronger—her sense of outraged propriety more clear. At last she came to a dead stop, just as they reached the outer gate of Hollow Ash Hall.

"What is it now?" asked Cowley, patting her hand encouragingly.

"I really can't go in, Charles!"

"Nonsense!"

"They will think I am mad. Only see! I konw that my hair is half down and I have no bonnet! Don't make me go there, Charles, till I am more presentable—there's a dear."

"Madam, do you intend to obey your lawful husband or not?" said Mr. Cowley, with mock solemnity.

"But, Charles, do hear reason."

"No, I won't! I've had enough of reason in my life. So come along, my love. The moment you enter yonder door you will get a warm greeting for my sake, and no one will stop to think whether you have a bonnet on or not. But that is just like you women! You can't even die comfortably unless you have a fashionable winding sheet to be wrapped in!

"Men never study appearance—that is a fact well known!" said Miss Marjorie, quietly. He laughed, and led her up the avenue.

The shutters of the house were all closed, but through a crevice in one of the low windows came a bright line of light, testifying to the presence of its occupants.

"Now look for it! Look as dignified as you can, Marjorie," said Mr. Cowley, and rang the bell.

A light came rapidly through the hall. The door was opened, and a stout female,with a candle in her hand, peered doubtfully out into the night.

"Is it you, master?" she began. And just then catching sight of the muffled figure of Marjorie, she gave a shrill yell of horror and ran away.

"It's ould Queen Bess herself, and a tall black man with her!" they heard her scream—and then came a Babel of voices from the inner room.

"Shut the door! Lock it! Keep them out!" said one.

"I do wish papa would come! It is too bad to leave us in such a place alone!" sighed another.

"But some one is really at the door," spoke up a third. "It is all nonsense about Queen Bess; I am going to see what they want!"

"Oh, don't, Rose!" cried her mother and sister.

"Indeed, Miss Rose, it is Queen Bess as natural as life!" put in Mrs. Macarthy.

"Nonsense," replied Rose, and taking the candle she went out to the door with a firm step.

"Who is it, and what do you want?" she asked, quietly.

Mr. Cowley stepped in, and let the light shine full upon his face.

"Don't you know me, Rose?"

"Why Charles—Cousin Charles, can it be you?"

"It is really me."

"But I thought you were in Australia."

"So I was till a few weeks ago. Don't be alarmed, Rose; I am no ghost, but solid flesh and blood. And here is some one else, for whom I must crave a welcome—my wife, Rose, whom your servant mistook for the apparition of Queen Elizabeth."

Rose stared, as well she might, when he drew in Miss Marjorie beside him. But Cousin Charles was her great favorite, and she had faith in everything he did—in everybody he loved. So she held out her hand to the bonnetless stranger, with a pleasant smile, and then led the way to the drawing room.

"Mamma, you will never guess who has come!" she exclaimed. "Cousin Charles Cowley from Australia, and his wife."

Greatly bewildered, Mrs. Cowley came forward to welcome her guests. She had the wildest notions about the manners and customs of foreign countries and seeing a tall, stately lady with a plaid cloak doing duty for head and shoulders, as bonnet and shawl, she instantly fancied that it must be the native costume of the land from which she came—the ne plus ultra of all elegance and grace among the ladies of Melbourne and Sydney. It was good to see Mr. Cowley's face as the consciousness of her mistake dawned upon him by degrees.

"Dear me! Charles from Australia, and his wife! My dear, you are most welcome. Will you lay aside your—" She was at a loss how to designate the article of dress, but finally hit upon the word "burnous" as being the most suitable to the purpose. "Will you take off your burnous, my dear?"

At that Mr. Cowley burst out laughing.

"My dear aunt, it is not a burnous, but an old plaid cloak!" he exclaimed. "And my wife never saw Australia in her life. She has been living in this neighborhood for more than a year, and I just found her out by the merest chance in the world to-night, and immediately ran away with her."

Every face, even Mrs. Macarthy's, expressed the most intense interest and curiosity.

"If you will sit down I will tell you the story in a very few words," he observed; and within five minutes he was the centre of a most cosy-looking circle, with Miss Marjorie upon his right hand and Rose upon his left.

"You must al know that my Marjorie is an orphan," he began. "I met her first at a house in London, where, among the gayest of parties, her little pale, sad face caught my eye, and without my knowing it won my heart. It was her uncle's house, but she was not happy there. Her cousins tyrannized over her—her aunt snubbed her—and I soon found that her uncle and myself were almost the only friends she had in the world. No doubt I twisted this fact to my own purpose. I own candidly that I rejoiced when others were rude to her, so that she might see that I was kind. I won her, I do believe, more because she was grateful to me than because she loved me; but the love came afterwards, so that it did not matter. I won her, and made her my wife, in spite of all the sneers of her cousins, and the discouraging coldness of her aunt.

"For a time, we were very happy. Then some unknown correspondent began to trouble my peace. Anonymous letters came to me day after day, which told me that my wife was not what she seemed—that she loved another—that she only waited her time to play me false.

"I was foolish enough to read the slanders—to think of them—at last, to believe them. Circumstances, which looked suspicious then, but which I have seen by a far clearer light since, came up one after another to make me distrust Marjorie still more. At last I felt so convinced of her faithlessness that I deserted her.

"I left a letter saying why I had gone. I left her money, and I have never seen her face from that day till tonight it beamed upon me out of the darkness like an accusing spirit. Aunt—Rose—she has been a school teacher—a governess, a companion, during my absence. But she is one of the best and purest women on earth; and I took her away just as she was, from her drudgery, to come and tell you so. I am sure you will all befriend her. Will you not?"

"Every one of us!" was the hearty reply, and Mrs. Cowley folded the young wife in a motherly embrace, and Rose and Catharine kissed her on the cheek in the most sisterly fashion. Tears stood in Marjorie's dark eyes as they did so; and her husband turned his head for a moment, as if ashamed of the weakness which he could not help feeling and showing at their kindness.

"What the good lady who employs her will say to her elopement, I cannot conjecture," remarked Mr. Cowley after a moment's pause.

"Oh! she never had a very good opinion of me!" said Marjorie, cheerfully. "And she will probably utter a devout thanksgiving when she finds that she is to see me no more. There never was much love lost between us, I am afraid."

"Was she a nice person?" asked Catharine.

"Not according to my definition of the word nice. I can describe her to you in a very short time. She is a stout women, who thinks herself ill when she is only lazy, and who never gets out of her easy chair except to go to bed or to fly into a rage—which she does on an average of twelve times a day. No—decidedly I do not call Mrs. Magnum a nice person."

"I should think not!" said Rose, laughing. "I wish I could see her face when she hears you are gone!"

"Never mind Mrs. Magnum, now, said Mr. Cowley. "I want to hear something about my uncle and this mad freak of his. What could have put it into his head to take a haunted house?"

"Ah!" said Catharine, ruefully; "you must ask Rose that."

"Why?"

"Because she was at the bottom of it all!"

"Is that so, Rose?"

"I am afraid I must plead guilty, Charles. I thought it would be so nice and romantic to live with a ghost. But I don't like it at all. There is a dreadful cradle-rocking in the kitchen every night, and not one of us dares to stop there a moment after dusk. Papa heard it the first night we came, and yet he won't go away. I think he is a little frightened, but he fancies that people will laugh at him if he goes away. And so——"

"And so it will go on till we are all carried off bodily by these horrible cradle-rocking creatures, and then your father will be satisfied," broke in Mrs. Cowley, more in sorrow than in anger.

Her nephew broke out laughing.

"Ah, you may laugh, Charlie; but I can assure you it is no joke to live in a place that gives you the cold shivers every time you stop to think what it really is. And Mr. Cowley actually talks of spending his Christmas here! But nothing shall tempt me to stay, even if he does. At any other time I can stand it; but I will not eat turkey and plum pudding in company with half a dozen grown-up hobgoblins to please any man alive!"

"You are quite right, aunt. But I really was not laughing at your troubles, only at your funny way of telling them. But, joking apart, what is this story about a cradle? Because I have heard something in Australia, which I think relates to this house."

"In Australia? Why, how could any one know of it there?" asked Rose opening her eyes very wide.

"Who owns this house?"

"A Mr. Vernon."

"Exactly so. Do you know what his first name is?"

"Alfred," said Mrs. Cowley. Her nephew looked perplexed for a moment; then his face cleared again.

"Oh, I see! George was his brother. How long is it since they have lived in this house—the Vernons, I mean?"

"Oh, a great many years! Twenty or twenty-two, I think."

"That makes the story clear. You must know that I met a Mr. George Vernon in Australia—a man about forty years old. He drank to excess and gambled desperately; and, in fact, there were a great many queer stories told of him one way and another.

"One night he was in my tent with several of his friends, and the conversation turned upon the reality of ghosts, and the amount of credulity required to believe in them. Vernon said little at first, but later in the evening he suddenly looked up at me and exclaimed, "It is true, every syllable of it. They do come back. I have seen and heard them, too, by day and night, for twenty years past. They can come in any shape. They can turn their hands to anything. Why, I have known one to rock a cradle four-and-twenty hours without ceasing and sing all the while into the bargain!"

"'What a useful ghost to have in the house with a small family,' said some one, laughing.

"I never saw any one turn as pale as Vernon did.

"'Useful! You would not crack your jokes about them if you staid a night alone in my old house at Banley,' he exclaimed. 'Gad! What with the butler's pantry and the turret-room, it's little like laughing you'd feel by morning, I am thinking! Pass me the brandy and let me get it out of my head.'

"And sure enough he did get it out of his head; for it took two men to see him safe home when he left my tent at 10 o'clock that night."

"And what do you infer from that, Charles?" inquired his wife.

"Why, my dear, this is near Banley, and the only house that I have ever heard of where a cradle rocks. To make assurance doubly sure, Mr. Vernon's brother own's the place now. I would be willing to take my oath that the rocking of the cradle has something to do with one of these men; but which of the two I am not prepared to say."

"I saw George," exclaimed Rose, who had been deeply interested in the story.

"And I should like to hear the cradle," remarked Mr. Cowley.

"Oh, don't think of such a thing! It's too horrible!" exclaimed both the girls.

"I only want to convince myself that it does rock."

"But we all heard it."

"Then I confess I am like the young lady whose grandmother told her that she had found out by her own experience that love-making was very dangerous work. I want to find out by my own experience, too. Where is this cradle?"

"In the kitchen."

"Does it rock every night?"

"Yes."

"At what time?"

"It begins about nine."

"And it now wants a quarter to ten. It must be in full swing by this time. Rose, will you do the honors of the ghost to your old friend?"

"Not I."

"Catharine?"

"I must beg to be excused."

"Well, aunt, will you come?"

"No, Charles; I'll never set foot in that awful kitchen again, by day or night, while I have my right senses."

"Then I am sure that good servant of yours——"

Mrs. Macarthy shrieked a quick denial before he had time to finish the sentence, and Rose laughed.

DREAMS AND FAIR SEX.

Superstition That Is Rife Even Among Educated Women.

It doesn't seem possible that in this enlightened age, superstition could be rife among the educated, but there are, nevertheless, a number of young women who converse fluently, if not eloquently in three languages, and who read Spencer and Browning and Emerson, but who place a dreambook with their Bible on the table beside the bed and consult it in the morning the first thing. With a credulity worthy a negro mammy, if their sleep has been visited with unusual visitors, they seize this volume as soon as their eyes are fairly opened and look for an explanation. If misfortune is foretold by it, the seeker after knowledge assumes a bravado she is far from feeling. "I don't care," she says to herself, by way of bolstering up her courage, "I'm not superstitious, anyway, and I don't believe in such arrant nonsense." But she's nervous just the same for days, until other troubles have driven this mythical one out of her mind. There's one young woman known to the writer who never dreams of a young child without shivering and shaking for days after in fear of some dreadful thing happening to her. She has not consulted a dreambook on the subject, and so she doesn't know how infants and bad luck became connected in her mind, but nevertheless, after she has had a visitant of this sort while sleeping she says prayers of unusual length and then makes up her mind to be patient under afflictions sore. She is an intelligent woman, mind you, but she doesn't attempt to explain the terror that besets her at this particular dream. She doesn't call herself superstitious, of course no woman does, not even the one who won't walk under a ladder, but her friends do, and make light of her until she exposes some fetich of theirs, when the subject is carefully avoided afterward.—Baltimore Sun.

CUT OFF HIS WOODEN FOOT.

Man Caught in Trap and No One to Help Him.

John McLeod of Milford, Me., employed as a scaler on the lumbering operations in township 31, had a strange experience recently. He was caught in a bear trap, and was obliged to cut off his foot with a jackknife. Fortunately, he had a wooden leg, and the operation was not painful. He was going from one landing to another, and thought to cut off part of the distance by taking the bank of the Athabasca stream. And he got into a bear trap, which closed upon his wooden leg with a snap, and held him in such a way that he could not reach the springs to release himself. The spot was far from the camps or logging roads, and John was in quite a predicament. But the situation was joyful even compared with what it might have been had he been blessed with two good legs, or even if he had been caught by the other. As it was, he whipped out his jackknife, and in a short time had whittled himself clear, leaving a considerable portion in the trap. This he got out without much difficulty, and, taking it under his arm, with the aid of a stout stick as a cane hobbled to the camp. But Mr. McLeod has bitter thoughts and is very angry with himself. After he had told the story to the crew the little French "cookee" observed: "Why you no take off your whole wood laig—ah? You get out um thrap, and no spile you wood laig 'tall—ah?" It never occurred to John that he might have unstrapped his wooden limb, and when he thinks of it he grits his teeth and carves away the more vigorously upon the new leg he is making.

The Growing Tongue.

One of the wonders of the closing century is the immense spread of the English language, as compared with other European tongues. In 1801 the relative order of the prevalence of these tongues was as follows: 1, French was spoken by 31,500,000; 2, Russian, by 31,000,000; 3, German, by 30,500,000; 4, Spanish, by 26,000,000, half of them outside of Europe; 5, English, by only 19,750,000, of whom 5,000,000 were in the United States and 750,000 elsewhere. Now, the order is reversed, so far as English is concerned, for that language takes the lead with 130,000,000, of whom 75,000,000 are in the United States, 40,000,000 in Great Britain and Ireland. German comes next at a respectful distance, closely followed by Russian. French makes a bad fourth, and Spanish comes last.

The Best Hair Tonic.

It is said that frequent sun baths are the best known tonics for a woman's hair. The Greek maidens of old who sat on the walls of the city and combed their hair owed the beauty of their tresses to the sun's rays. When the hair is washed sit beside a lowered window, as the sun shines stronger through glass, and allow the hair to dry as it is being brushed. No bleach has been found so successful as the sun, which strengthens and beautifies generally.

A FAMOUS OLD HOUSE.

The house of Walter Baker & Co., whose manufactures of cocoa and chocolate have become familiar in the mouth as household words, was established one hundred and twenty-one years ago (1780) on the Neponset river in the old town of Dorchester, a suburb of Boston. From the little wooden mill, "by the rude bridge that arched the flood," where the enterprise was first started, there has grown up the largest industrial establishment of the kind in the world. It might be said that, while other manufacturers come and go, Walter Baker & Co., go on forever.

What is the secret of their great success? It is a very simple one. They have won and held the confidence of the great and constantly increasing body of consumers by always maintaining the highest standard in the quality of their cocoa and chocolate preparations, and selling them at the lowest price for which unadulterated articles of good quality can be put upon the market. They welcome honest competition; but they feel justified in denouncing in the strongest terms the fraudulent methods by which inferior preparations are palmed off on customers who ask for and suppose they are getting the genuine articles. The best grocers refuse to handle such goods, not alone for the reason that, in the long run, it doesn't pay to do it, but because their sense of fair dealing will not permit them to aid in the sale of goods that defraud their customers and injure honest manufacturers.

Every package of the goods made by the Walter Baker Company bears the well-known trade mark "La Belle Chocolatiere," and their place of manufacture "Dorchester, Mass." Housekeepers are advised to examine their purchases, and make sure that other goods have not been substituted.

An attractive little book of "Choice Recipes" will be mailed free to any housekeeper who sends her name and address to Walter Baker & Co., Ltd., 158 State Street, Boston, Mass.

A GIFTED AND BEAUTIFUL GIRL

Threatened With Nervous Prostration,

PROMPTLY SAVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MISS ROSE CULLEN, OF BUTTE, MONT.

Miss Rose Cullen, President Young Woman's Club, of Butte, Mont., writes from 921 Galena street, as follows:

"Peruna has many friends in Butte. I cannot say too much in praise of it. While finishing school I became very nervous and exhausted from over-study. I was weak and sick, and could neither eat, sleep nor enjoy life. A couple of bottles of Peruna put new life in me. I find that having it in the house and taking a dose off and on keeps me in fine health.

"A large number of my friends place Peruna at the head of all medicines."---Miss Rose Cullen.

How Peruna Quickly Cures Backache, the Bane of Womankind.

MRS. G. W. HEARD, Hempstead, Texas, writes:

"We have moved recently, and I must have lifted something that was too heavy for me in straightening things up, for I had such a backache and could hardly stand on my feet at all. Beside, I was so tired all the time. My face was spotted and I was very thin. I took one bottle of Peruna and was soon real well. When I feel tired and all run down I take Peruna and feel all right before I finish one bottle. I know it is a wonderful medicine, and both myself and husband praise Peruna.

"There has been a great deal of sickness through this part of the country, but, thanks to Peruna, which we use freely, our own family has escaped with almost no sickness at all.

"Could you but see our baby Ruby, (to whom we gave Peruna for bowel trouble), you would see from her robust looks that you need no better advertisement in this little town. She is so fat and rosy, is nearly five years old now, and is a great believer in Peruna."—Mrs. G. W. Heard.

Given Up to Die—All Doctors Failed—It Proved to be Catarrh of Stomach and Was Cured by Peruna.

W. A. Mitchell, dealer in general merchandise, of Martin, Ga., writes:

"I wrote you some time ago concerning my wife's case. She had tried all of the best doctors, and we got to where we thought all they did was against her. She weighed about 190 pounds when she was in good health. When she commenced with our family physician in April, 1898, she weighed about 130, but kept going down all the time. She went to Atlanta, Ga., and took treatment, but it did her no good. Then she went to Harmony Grove, Ga., and took treatment from the best physician there for three months. She kept going down under his treatment, although he was considered the best physician in the county. She went down from 130 pounds to 68, and we saw she could not live long. She was a skeleton. We consulted an old physician who told her to use Peruna. She gradually improved and got stronger. She has gained 38 pounds since she has taken Peruna, and is gaining every day, and does her own housework.

"She was well known when she was so low, and now everybody wants to know what cured her. She had indigestion and catarrh of the stomach. It is as good for children as for grown people. We haven't had to have a doctor for one of our children since 1898."—W. A. Mitchell.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

EWO INCIDENT BECOMES GRAVE.

Germany Must Answer to England for Unwarranted Attack.

London, May 18.—The Ewo incident, at Tien Tsin, May 4, when German soldiers guarding a German bridge across the Pei Ho, at the south end of the British concession there, fired on the British tug Ewo, wounding two of her crew, after the vessel had touched the bridge, which impeded river traffic, is assuming a graver character. Owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the German commander's explanations, the matter has been referred to the British minister at Peking, Sir Earnest Satow, with a view to diplomatic action being taken.

According to a dispatch from Peking to the London Times, published yesterday, after two of the Chinese crew had been wounded, (they have since died) the remainder were arrested, taken to a German prison and flogged. General Lorne Campbell asked General von Lessel for an explanation of the "unwarrantable act of brutality." Von Lessel's reply which has just been received, promising that the incident shall not be repeated, at least so far as the use of arms is concerned, is considered quite inadequate. The Times, in an editorial, says:

"Apart from the flag which the tug flew, we have no hesitation in declaring that such punishments are out of all proportion to the alleged offense. We would have condemned them if they had been inflicted upon coolies sailing under the German flag, at Kiao-Chau. The flogging proves that the German authorities deemed that something more than two lives was necessary to atone for such a heinous offense of running against a German bridge. We will want to know who the authorities were who took the law into their own hands and executed it in this brutal fashion. The fact that the crew dealt with in this high handed style were under the British flag introduces a serious factor. Von Lessel's apology is an aggravation of the original wrong done us. It is not the sort of satisfaction we are likely to accept. Tien Tsin is not the only place where Germans are disposed to forget that we are their allies and not their subordinates."

The Times concludes with a condemnation of the various German expeditions.

AGUINALDO A PRISONER.

Claims That He Cannot Talk Until Given Freedom.

Manila, May 18.—Aguinaldo, in an interview with the correspondent of the Associated Press today, expressed the opinion that the American government of the Philippines, in order to be unquestionably satisfactory, should conform strictly to the constitution. Asked whether he considered the Filipinos capable of exercising the privileges guaranteed by a literal interpretation and application of the constitution, he declined to express an opinion.

Concerning the political future of the archipelago, Aguinaldo was reserved. He said it was hardly time to discuss it, while he was in what he considered to be captivity. The military officials say he is kept guarded principally for his own protection. Aguinaldo says that he knows of no enemies, needs no protection and is willing to go out unattended if permitted to do so. He is pleased with the municipal law conferring full local self-government.

Concerning the provincial law, by which the governor is an elective office, Aguinaldo was uncommunicative.

It is not expected that Aguinaldo will continue to be prominent in Philippine affairs, though his friends concede his exceptional abilities for leadership.

Next week the balance of the first infantry will proceed to the island of Samar. Squadrons of the Ninth and Tenth cavalry will also be sent to Samar.

Nine new American judges called on General MacArthur today. The general said their duties were of greater importance than those of any of the officers who preceded them. He recommended the establishment of laws and a just judiciary ahead of the coming commercial activity.

STRIKE IS SETTLED.

Street Car Strike at Albany, New York Is at an End.

Albany, N. Y., May 20.—The street railway employes' strike, which was inaugurated eleven days ago on the lines of the United Traction company in Albany, Troy, Cohoes, Rensselaer and Watervliet, is at an end, and operations on the entire system have been resumed. There have been concessions on both sides, and an agreement was reached at a conference, at which both the corporation and operatives were represented, under which it should be possible to avoid strikes in the future. The company on its part agrees to receive representations regarding grievances from any committee of its employes, representing organized or unorganized labor, that men suspended or discharged by the superintendent shall be entitled to appeal to the executive committee of the company; that in case employes can disprove charges under which they were suspended or discharged they shall be entitled to pay for the time they were idle during such suspension or discharge and that there will be no discrimination against any of the men who engaged in the strike, except those guilty of unalwful or riotous acts. The company reserves the right to employ union or non-union men and to discharge employes for cause.

PHILLIPS RUNS CORN UP TO 60.

This Is the Highest Price Reached Since the Deal of 1892.

Chicago, May 16.—Geo. H. Phillips, who has the supply of corn deliverable on contracts this month cornered, yesterday bid the price up to 60 cents from the opening, which was at 54c. This is the highest price since May, 1892, when the Coster-Martin deal reaching its climax sold at $1. The total amount bought by Phillips during the forenoon did not run over 120,000 bushels, which was sold, mostly in small lots, by people who claimed to have the corn to deliver. It was reported that two houses who were short an aggregate of 500,000 bushels settled privately with Phillips for this quantity at 60 cents per bushel. The average price the "corn king" paid for this was 45 cents, which would indicate a profit of $75,000 on his sales yesterday.

Mrs. Nation Convicted.

Topeka, May 15.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Carrie Nation charged with joint smashing, returned a verdict of guilty. The trial was before the district court. The defense endeavored to prove that Mrs. Nation was insane at the time of the raid. The verdict is a general surprise, as it was expected that the jury would disagree or bring in an acquittal. Mrs. Nation was convicted for breaking into Ed Murphy's saloon one Sunday morning last February.

DEATH OF MRS. LYMAN J. GAGE.

Wife of the Secretary of the Treasury Passes Away.

Washington, May 18.—Mrs. Lyman J. Gage, wife of the secretary of the treasury died at her residence last night after an illness of nine weeks duration. For a time before her death Mrs. Gage suffered considerable pain, but she maintained her bright and cheerful demeanor and was conscious to the last. Heart trouble the result of grippe complications was the immediate cause of her death. Mrs. Gage was exposed to the inclement weather for about an hour on inauguration day, but at the time her health did not seem to have been affected. Later she took a severe chill and the illness folowed.

BATTLESHIP IS LAUNCHED

President McKinley Was Present at the Launching.

San Francisco, May 20.—Miss Barber pressed the button, Miss Deshler smashed a bottle of California champagne and at 12:26 p. m. Saturday the big battleship Ohio took her first dip into the sea. Fifty thousand people cheered themselves hoarse. The big guns of the warships boomed out a salute and every steam whistle shrieked its loud tones as the steel monster glided into the water. The noise lasted for nearly half an hour and when it finally simmered down there lay the Ohio peacefully floating in the little cove in front of the Union Iron works. Later she was towed to the dock, where she was tied for a year or more and until finished completely. As the vessel slid in the water, stern foremost, she created a big wave that made even the biggest steamers near by bob uncomfortably up and down. As for the smaller craft, they nearly stood on end. Mrs. McKinley was to have pressed the button that started the Ohio down the ways, but on account of her illness her niece, Miss Barber, acted in Mrs. McKinley's place.

Hon. Irving M. Scott and Henry T. Scott took the president and Governor Nash and their parties for a cursory inspection of the more important sections of the great yards where the ocean warriors are built. Both President McKinley and Governor Nash followed the explanations concerning the works closely and with evident interest.

The president began his speech attending the ceremonies of the launching by saying:

"I am inexpressibly thankful to the ruler of us all for his goodness and his mercy which have made it possible for me to be with you today."

After congratulating the workmen upon their success as shipbuilders he said:

"We ought to have a good commercial line from here to the Philippines, built by American workingmen, and manned by American sailors and carrying the American flag. There is nothing in this world that brings people so close together as commerce. There is nothing in this world that so promotes the universal brotherhood of man as commerce; and we want to encourage commerce. The nations are close together now. The powers of the earth are tied together. We have overcome distance. We not only want a commercial line, but we want a cable line from here to the Philippines. We want it to be an American cable that cannot be cut by any power of the world. They say trade follows the flag. The flag must follow trade.

The president then thanked the iron works employes for their hearty welcome and said:

I am glad to again meet the workingmen of my country. All my public life has been devoted in effort to giving the workingmen the best opportunity, the best chance for good wages and steady employment. When labor is well employed there is contentment and happiness in the homes of the laboring men.

I shall carry this beautiful souvenir of the employes of the Union Iron Works with me and it shall abide with me as long as I live, and it shall be passed along to those of my family that shall follow, as one of the dearest tokens that I have received from my fellow countrymen. (Enthusiastic applause.

STOMACH SUPERFLUOUS.

The Loss Does Not Prevent This Man From Eating.

Chicago, May 18.—Carl Krueger, the third patient in surgical history to survive an operation for the removal of his stomach, ate his dinner with his family at 970 Winnemac avenue yesterday for the first time since he left home to have his stomach cut out at the Illinois Medical college, a month ago.

After a generous meal of chicken soup, malted milk, mashed potatoes and coffee, Krueger said that he felt perfectly well, barring a touch of rheumatism in the left leg. In a month he hopes to recover his strength sufficiently to go back to his work as a florist.

For years Krueger suffered from cancer of the stomach. The malignant growth had spread to such an extent that he was but a short time ahead of death. Dr. B. D. Eads, professor of surgery at the Illinois college, told the sufferer that his only chance lay in having his stomach removed, and that this chance was none too great, but was worth the taking. According to the surgeons there is no reason why Krueger should not live to old age if he sticks to "spoon victuals."

OBSERVATION OF SUN'S ECLIPSE.

Good Views Were Secured at Sumatra, Mauritus and Other Points.

Port Louis, Mauritus, May 20.—The total eclipse of the sun was well observed at the Royal Alfred observatory. The partial eclipse was partly lost through a cloud and the first contact was entirely lost. The last three contacts were well observed. The party included twenty-two observers. Fifty-two photographs of the corona were obtained with the photographs were taken of the servatory, the Greenwich coronagraph, the new Begin telescope and other smaller cameras. Forty-one photoghaps were taken of the smaller phase for the diameter and place of the moon, and eighteen photographs were taken of the spectrum.

Phillips Closes May Deal.

Chicago, May 18.—It was reported in the corn pit yesterday that George H. Phillips had practicaly closed out his deal on May corn. On top of recent heavy sales for current month delivery he sold 1,000,000 bushels yesterday and the price dropped from fifty-four cents at which the marke closed Thursday to fifty cents.

Mr. Phillips refused to say positively that he was out of his May deal, although he did say: "It looks as though it was all off." Brokers in close touch with Phillips said they thought he had sold out practically all of his May corn.

Esterhazy Wrote the Bordereau.

Brussels, May 16.—The Independence Belge publishes affidavits signed by Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy before the French consul in London admitting the authorship of the Dreyfus bordereau and declaring that the bordereau was written with the connivance of Col. Sandhers, exchief of the secret intelligence bureau.

Mascardo Surrenders.

Manila, May 18.—General Mascardo, with 328 men, has surrendered to Capt. Joseph P. O'Neil of the Twenty-fifth infantry at San Antonio, Zambles province.

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician. She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

MRS. G. H. CHAPPELL.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

An "M. D's" Open Letter.

Benton, Ill., May 20—R. H. Dunaway, M. D., of this place, in an open letter, makes the following startling statement:

"I had Diabetes with all its worst symptoms. I applied every remedy known to the profession, as well as every prescription suggested in our books. In spite of all, I was dying and I knew it.

"As a last resort, and with scarcely any faith whatever, I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. In one week I saw a great improvement. After I had taken five boxes, I was sound and well. This is ten months ago, and I have not taken any medicine of any kind since, and am convinced that my cure is a permanent one.

"As a practicing physician with years of experience, I most positively assert that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine in the world today, for Diabetes or any other Kidney Disease. Since using them myself, I have used them in many cases in my practice and they have never failed.

"I am making this statement as a professional man, after having made a most thorough test of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and because I feel it my duty to the public and to my professional brethren. The truth can never hurt anyone, and what I have said is the absolute truth."

R. H. DUNAWAY, M. D.

It is no wonder that the public are enthusiastic over this new medicine, when our leading physicians themselves, are being won over to its use.

A Sunday school superintendent, who happened to be a dry goods merchant, who was teaching a class of very little tots, asked when he had finished explaining the lesson: "Now has any one a question to ask?" A very small girl raised her hand. "What is it, Martha?" asked the superintendent. "Why, Mr. Brooks, how much are those little red parasols in your window?" said Martha.

A story is told of a former duke of Hamilton, who invited one of his neighbors, a plain-spoken laird, to stop at his palace for luncheon after the conclusion of a business transaction. The laird was not used to the luxuries of life, and watched with an impatient eye the flittings about of a liveried servant who seemed to be everywhere at once, anticipating the laird's wants in a way that struck the rustic as positively uncanny. At last the guest turned deliberately about in his chair and addressed the servant in a tone of considerable irritation: "What are ye dance, dance, dancing about the room for, man?" he demanded; "can ye no draw in your chair and sit doon? I'm sure there's enough on the table for three."

How You Can Make Money

In the Sheep and Cattle Business.

The Montana Co-operative Ranch Company is a co-operative company organized under the laws of Montana.

It has a capital of $10,000, divided into $1,000 shares of $10.00, but present price of shares is $11.00 each.

Its ranch now consists of 1,440 acres of very rich land in the famous Sweet Grass Hills.

It now has seventy-nine shareholders, some of whom are bankers, merchants doctors, mechanics and fifteen ladies, scattered all over the United States.

Anyone can become a shareholder by buying one or more shares in the company. You are then entitled to put sheep, cattle or hogs on the ranch and the company guarantees to keep them, providing all feed, care and shelter for one-half of the increase.

Shareholders who had sheep on our ranch last year made over 30 per cent interest.

Honduras at the Buffalo Fair

The Republic Has a Handsome Building at the Pan-American Exposition

HONDURAS has erected a handsome building at the Pan-American exposition, and will make an extensive exhibit of her resources.

Honduras is the third in size of the Central American republics. It is generally mountainous but well watered, its principal rivers flowing into the Caribbean sea. It is said that the natural conditions are such that nowhere in the world can a greater variety of products be found. The staple products of all climates grow naturally and abundantly. Citizens of the United States have already become investors in her agricultural, grazing, forest and mineral lands, but her boundless resources are still practically untouched. The government is divided into 15 departments, with an area of 43,000 square miles. The population is about 400,000. Bananas are the chief crop and find a market largely in the United States. The growing of coffee and cocoa are increasing industries, and among the other exports, indigo, sarsaparilla, dye woods, cabinet woods, hides and skins figure prominently. Her live stock industry represents an investment of more than $8,000,000. Honduras will bring to the exposition a wonderful display, showing the great wealth of her mountains and plains.

The Honduras building at the exposition is located in the western part of the court of state and foreign buildings. It faces the approach and overlooks a portion of Delaware park and the lake. The building is designed with an octagonal rotunda surrounded with wide porches on three sides and with pavilions on four sides, the remaining side being occupied by the kitchen and toilet rooms. The central rotunda and two of the pavilions are intended for exhibits of the country's products. There are a cafe and offices for the commissioners in the other two pavilions. Stairs lead from the rotunda floor to a gallery, which surrounds the rotunda and is lighted by skylights and dormer windows. There are four large circular doorways, connecting the pavilion with the rotunda, which give a novel and pleasing effect. The porches are well protected by the broad projecting eaves and are comfortable places for weary visitors to rest and enjoy a taste of Honduras hospitality. The exterior of the building is an adaptation of the Spanish-American style with classic detail. The roof is of Spanish tiles, and the exterior of the building of staff.

No Loss Of Time.

I have sold Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and suger than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to threshers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. Phelps, Plymouth, Okla. As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by J. L. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled puysicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Shudders at His Past.

"I recall now with horror," says Mail Carrier Burneet Mann, of Levanna, O., 'my three years of suffering from Kidney trouble, I was hardly ever free from dull aches or pain in my back. To stoop or lift mail sacks made me groan, I felt tired, worn out about ready to give up, when I began to use Electric Bitters, but six bottles completely cured me and made me feel like a new man." They're unrivaled to regulate stomach, kidneys, and bowels. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by J. L. Harr. Only 50c.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist,

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

FARM FURROWS,

From IOWA HOMESTEAD.

Look out for the humbug that is liable to be flying about the neighberhood. This is about as bad a bug as any with which I am acquainted.

Don't forget to plant sweet corn and peas every two weeks so as to have fresh vegetables for a long season. This is the way it is done at our house.

On one of the days when one had to wear an overcoat while riding the planter, I said to Sam "This is a raw day, isn't it?" He said "Any day is only half done at noon, and is liable to be quite raw."

A horse will live twenty five days without solid food, subsisting on water only. He will live seventeen days without either eating or drinking and only five days when eating solid food without drinking.

Without pure water cows are not at their best, and good butter cannot be made from their milk. Many will laugh at this and will not know why they laugh. "He laughs best who laughs last."

The man is considered very much behind the times nowadays if he does not provide water for his stock at all times. Self-regulating watering devices are every where abundant A man can go away from home and remain for weeks, and his stock will be supplied with water.

It is useless to to tell farmers they are busy these days. They know that as well as anybody. Uufavorable weather has delayed farming in some localities until the farmers are very much behind with their work. This does not excuse anybody for doing poor work. It will not pay to give the work a "hit and miss" stroke because one is behind. There cannot be progress in poor work. Hasty and inadequete preparation of soil before planting is a very poor way to catch up.

ELL CENTER NEWS.

Lovely weather.

The Center school will be out next week.

J. W. Allens lost a valuable horse last week.

Some of the farmers are busy cultivating corn while others are hardly through planting.

A great many from this township attended the Memorial exercises at Garner Sunday.

Doc. Fatheringham and a brother who recently arrived from Canada were callers here last Thursday.

The Burman boys purchased 3 of those easy running riding cultivators of Gruetzmacher's last Thursday.

Tom Leese and Delos Clapper with their families spent Sunday with their parents and relatives here, returning to their home near Ardale Monday.

Maggie More left Tuesday evening for an extended visit with her sister in Oklahoma. She will be greatly missed by her many friends here.

W. J. Dysart was here this week looking after his farm. worked by Mr Ness. Mr. Dysart bought his land in 1899 for $18. an acre and still thinks it is a good enough investment to hold.—Kanawha Record.

The fellow who travels for a Burlington concern and makes this town semi-occasionly has found out lately that there are white men acting as officers over at the court house now, and that they do not fall over themselves to go back on their friends or send work out of town just because some fellow comes along and makes them a present of a lead pencil, or a cheap card case. —Hampton Chronicle.

He was here too.—Kanawha Record.

Here too! But the he that was here was a she-he.

An exchange frantically remarks: "It is a pity any man can be found who would deliberately cut down trees which are 5000 to 6000 years old, for such a pitiful purpose as to sell the lumber." Yes sir, a man that will take advantage of old age in that way should have his throat cut!

A minister said recently. "Brethern the collection will now be taken for expenses, for I am going away for my health. The more I receive the longer I will stay." When it came in the minister was struck by the amount It was the largest collection ever taken in that church and the man who got it hasn't made up his mind yet whether it was a compliment or the reverse.

The difference between the average country boy and the town boy is that the former wants to know everything and the latter thinks he knows everything. The former knowing that he can know more renders him susceptible of learning things, but the latter is filled with the opinion that he knows and does not try to find out things. There are however, exceptions to this rule.—Ex.

A traveling man reports a strange experience he had at a church supper on a recen evening He said that he kept crumbling crackers into a bowl of oyster soup, and to his intense surprisi, they kept disappearing. He made a hasty examination, and found that be some accident an oyster had gotten into the soup, and being gaunt and famished, had eaten up the crackers as fast as he crumbled them in.—Ex.

Three men, a barber, a bald headed man and an Irishman were traveling together. Not liking the looks of the place where they were to rest over night they decided that one should keep watch while the other two slept. The barber was to take the first watch the Irishman second and the bald headed man last. The barber amused himself by shaving the head of the sleeping Irishman, and promptly on the stroke of 12, said: "Pat, wake up!" Pat half awake, yawned, and passing his hand over his head said: "Holy Moses, he's gone and waked up the bald headed man when he should have waked up me."

A business card which recently came into our possession had the following on it's farther side:

Board $50. per week. Meals extra.

Guests are requested not to speak to the dumb waiter.

If you wish to get up without being called ask for self-rising flour for supper.

Hotel is surrounded by a beautiful cemetery. Hearses to hire at 25 cents per day.

Guests wishing to do a little driving will find hammer and nails in the closet.

If the room is too warm open the window and see the fire escape.

If you like athletics and good jumping, lift the mattress and see the bed spring.

If your lamp goes out take a feather out of your pillow; that' light enough.

Any one troubled with night mare will find a halter on the bed post.

Don't worry about paying your bills; the house is supported by the foundation.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will recieve special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure" Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, May 25, 1901.

Postoffice Inspector Stewart has returned from Foote, where he went to examine into the accounts of J. M. Harris, the postmaster who recently deserted the office and is claimed to have gone away with Miss Ottie Ferman, a young lady who left there at the same time that Harris did and because of whom Harris had had trouble with his wife.

Mr. Stewart said: "I found that Harris' accounts with the government are straight and that there is no charge that we can bring against him. The talk of issuing a warrant on a charge of deserting the mails is bosh, as the section does not apply to the leaving of mails after they have been received at a postoffice. So far as the government is concerned Harris can come home.

"His employers are after him, however, and charge him with embezzlement of from $800 to $1,000 of their funds. Harris was employed by Jay M. Jackson of Lorimor and P. D. Thomas of Williamsburg to manage a general store and was appointed postmaster at their instance."

Governor Shaw has paroled William Harris of Des Moines, who was sentenced in 1896 to twenty-five years in the penitentiary for the murder of George Frank. The petition for parole was signed by the court officials who had to do with the prosecution and by a number of persons who were acquainted with Frank. It is merely a suspension of sentence during good behavior and the requirements are that Harris abstain entirely from the use of liquors and keep away from bad company. The crime for which Harris was sentenced occurred on the night of September 9, 1896, at the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets and at a time when the streets were crowded with state fair visitors.

A special dispatch from Union, Hardin county, states that right of way has been secured through that city for a distance of six miles on each side of the town for an interurban road, to run between Waterloo and Des Moines. The dispatch states that the Des Moines Inter-Urban company is behind the railroad scheme and that contracts for right of way are being made in their name.

Dr. Frank C. Hoyt, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Mt. Pleasant, died at Kansas City on the 21st. He expired shortly after reaching Kansas City while on his way home from Fort Worth, Tex., where he had been ill for the past month. Dr. Hoyt's wife was with him at the time of his death. The cause of death was a complication of diseases, but it is learned that tuberculosis was probably at the bottom of the superintendent's ill health.

The state board of medical examiners decided to admit to an examination the two students from Barnes' college of St. Louis, who were refused an examination by Dr. J. F. Kennedy, secretary of the board, a short time ago. Dr. Kennedy took the ground the college did not live up to the course prescribed by the Iowa law. Suit was brought to compel the board to admit the students to an examination. This suit was to have been tried in the district court, but the action of the board disposes of it. It is supposed nothing further will be done in the matter than to serve a notice on the college, pointing out in what respects it fails to come up to the Iowa requirements, if it is in any respect delinquent.

The board of control has taken measures to keep more closely in touch with the men in charge of the farms at the different institutions. Mr. Cownie said that the board was desirous of knowing whether the farms were being put to as good use as was possible. A weekly report will be required hereafter. A plat of each farm will be kept at the board of control office and the board will be kept informed as to the crops that are being raised on each field. In this way it will be enabled to determine whether there is proper rotation and to see to it that nothing is left undone to bring the farms to the highest state of productiveness. A careful account of the live stock will be kept also.

Louis Kesler, inventor of the new steam engine that it is thought will revolutionize the transportation of freight, has sold an undivided one-fourth interest in his patent to G. W. Marquardt, president of the Marquardt Savings bank. The consideration was $10,000 and included interest in both patents and in the model engines now constructed and in the five horse power engine being built for exhibition at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. Mr. Kesler claims that by the Kesler-Ellyson engine an ordinary train of loaded freight cars can be transported from New York to San Francisco at a total cost for power of less than $5. It would take but two barrels of crude oil and two barrels of water. With the money invested at present the invention will be pushed.

ALLEN FAVORS PRESENT PLAN.

Porto Rico's Governor Discusses the Question of Government.

Washington, May 23.—In the first annual report to the president Governor Charles H. Allen of Porto Rico expresses the belief that a scheme of colonial administration such as is found in Danish, French and English West Indies might be safely instituted on the island, but says that the form of territorial government adopted in the United States would not successfully apply.

Governor Allen believes that congress went as far as it could safely venture in the form of government existing on the island, and with good men devoted to the work it will develop faster under such a form. The people of Porto Rico, he says, will advance more rapidly in their knowledge of civic virtues under a guidance of present methods than could be gained any other way.

The governor says that the climate of the island is an incentive to idleness and urges the introduction of fresh blood and Angio-Saxon push and energy as a means of dispelling the lethargy and developing the riches of the country to their fullest emasure.

Bremer for Harriman.

Waverly, May 22.—A solid delegation for Senator Harriman for governor was chosen by the Bremer county republican convention.

Rejected Anti-British Resolution

Brussels, May 25.—The senate by a vote of 37 to 22 rejected a resolution introduced by M. LaFontaine, socialist, declaring in favor of the Transvaal, and regretting that Belgium was powerless to do anything in the matter. The foreign minister, M. De Favereau, replying to the accusations made during the debate, that British soldiers had massacred Boer women and children, and had otherwise ill-treated the Boers, said Great Britain had carried civilization to all the countries of the world, and had everywhere defended liberty of the person and of conscience.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

IOWA PROHIBITIONISTS.

Work of the Recent State Convention at Des Moines.

Des Moines, May 23.—At the prohibition state convention W. L. Ferris was chosen permanent chairman and O. T. Nichols of Pilot Mound and H. William Nichols of New Providence, secretaries. The following nominations for state officers were made:

Governor—A. U. Coates of Perry.

Lieutenant governor—A. B. Wray of Afton.

Supreme judge—J. A. Harvey of Perry.

Railroad commissioner—Wesley Suddith of Des Moines.

State superintendent of schools—Miss Ella Moffett of Marshalltown.

In addition a platform was adopted setting forth the fundamentals of the prohibition faith, together with resolutions endorsing Carrie Nation and opposing the use of wine in launching ships. The state committee reported a plan of work which was adopted. It includes the opening and permanent maintenance of headquarters in Des Moines. More than $2,000 was raised toward a campaign fund.

The platform declares for the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors; commends congress for the passage of the anti-canteen law; reaffirms the party's former position in regard to equal suffrage; disapproves of the Martin mulct law; and declares that "human needs as well as the divine law demand one day of rest in seven for the toilers and freedom of conscience in religious worship for all."

HAS GROWN MELANCHOLY.

Prosecuting Witness in the Peterson Rape Case Is Deranged.

Clinton, May 25.—Mary Block, who was the prosecuting witness in the sensational suit of the state vs. Frank Peterson, charged with rape, attempted to end her life at Miles by taking a dose of laudanum. The attempt was discovered and a physician was summoned, who arrived in time to save the girl's life. At the time of the crime Mary Block was but 15 years old. The trial was one of the most sensational ever conducted in the courts of this county. Peterson was found guilty and was sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. The case was taken to the supreme court and that body cut the sentence down to eight years. About ten years ago Peterson was arrested, charged with murdering Charles Wessels, near Teeds Grove, on New Year's night. The evidence was strong against him, but not sufficient to convict. Peterson is a wealthy bachelor farmer. At the time of the trial it was noticed that Mary Block was of a nervous temperament, and it is said since then she has been melancholy at times, especially if any reference is made to the crime.

M'PHERSON AFTER BANKRUPT.

Judge of Federal Court Scores Morris Glucklich of Perry.

Des Moines, May 24.—Judge Smith McPherson handed down an order and opinion yesterday in which he establishes a precedent in bankruptcy rulings that will tend to lessen the amount of fraud practiced in bankruptcy matters. In the case of Morris Glucklich, a Perry merchant, the court ordered the petitioner to turn over to the trustee $570.15 in money and 300 cans of canned goods within ten days, or go to the Polk county jail and stay there until the money and merchandise is placed in the hands of the trustee.

In this opinion the judge of the United States court charges the petitioner with "perfidy, dishonor, rascality and perjury." The case involves over $20,000. The referee at Perry ordered the petitioner to turn over that amount to the trustees, after his petition in voluntary bankruptcy had been filed. The defendant filed a written explanation of the disposition of the money, which the referee and the court refuse to credit, and a summary order for prompt action was the result.

ENGINEER G TS $400,000.

The Money Will Be Used to Start the North & South Railroad.

Nevada, May 23.—Word has been received from E. E. Hollider of Minneapolis, chief engineer of the North and South Railway company, which proposes to construct a railway from Osage, Iowa, to Des Moines, that he is now on his way from New York City, where he has been assisting in financing the bond issue of the company; that he has with him papers which give a bank in this city and one in Des Moines authority to accept drafts to the amount of $400,000 placed on deposit by the North American Trust company, as a preliminary fund to get the road started. R. A. Elzy of Marshalltown, who had the contract for building the road, will put a large force at work as soon as Mr. Hollider arrives here, which will be some time next week, as he will stop off at Minneapolis to attend to some business for the road there. This makes the building of the road a practical certainty and is received as very good news by our citizens, who have taken a great interest in the ups and downs of the project.

T. S. PARVIN IS VERY ILL.

Iowa Pioneer and Masonic Leader of the State Cannot Survive.

Cedar Rapids, May 23.—The family and friends of Theodore Sutton Parvin, secretary ofthe Iowa Masonic grand lodge, founder of the Masonic library and one of the pioneer lawmakers and educators of Iowa, are seriously alarmed at his condition, which has taken a turn for the worse within the past few days. It is now thought that he can live but a short time. Tuesday he suffered greatly and yesterday he was exceedingly weak. He is 94 years old and no man in Iowa is more honored than he.

Young Man Disappears.

Mt. Pleasant, May 25.—Emil Swanson, a young farmer residing in the county northwest of Salem, suddenly disappeared from his farm several weeks ago, and no trace of him has been found since. He lived alone, being divorced from his wife, who, it is said, now lives at Fairfield, and no cause is known for his going away. He leaves a good little farm and some personal property with no one to take care of them. During the past year he has made trips to Mt. Pleasant to see whether or not proceedings of any kind had been brought against him, but there were none, and the neighbors report him as a peaceable and well behaved young man. The case is a strange one.

Grinnell Won State Meet.

Des Moines, May 25.—Grinnell's athletes won the state field meet yesterday. Drake was second and Ames was third. Grinnell got 42 points, Drake 32, Ames 26, State university 17, Cornell 9, State Normal 8 and Simpson 2.

West Des Moines High School Wins.

Grinnell, May 20.—The State High School meet was won by the West Des Moines high school by the narrow margin of one point. The scores of the schools securing the first three places were as follows: West Des Moines, 27; Grinnell, 26; Correctionville, 25.

Insurance Agent Arrested.

Dubuque, May 21.—Nic Engle, insurance agent, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling $1,400 from Mrs. Mary A. Deuns. The late George B. Burch had $30,000 insurance. It is said the estate will foot up over three-quarters of a million dollars.

FILING FEES MUST BE PAID.

Extensions of Corporations Are Not Exempt Under State Law.

Des Moines, May 25.—Judge Conrad decided the case of Lamb & Sons company of Clinton against George L. Dobson, secretary of state et al. for the defendant. Lamb & Sons company is engaged in the lumber business at Clinton and about a year ago its corporate charter expired, it having incorporated for twenty years. The stockholders met and adopted an amendment extending the corporate period twenty years. The amended articles were brought to Des Moines to be filed with the secretary of state, who demanded that the incorporation fee as provided for the new law and which is a percentage on the amount of capital stock, be paid. The representatives of the company declined to pay it, contending that the law applied to new corporations and could not apply to companies renewing charters or increasing their capitals. The secretary insisted that it did and refused to issue the certificate. The plaintiff then brought suit to compel the secretary of state to issue the incorporation certificate by mandamus.

In his decision Judge Conrad interprets the new law to mean that all corporations renewing their articles or filing amendments extending the period of corporate existence must pay the filing fee provided for new corporations by the new law.

CAN CHARGE USURIOUS RATES.

Supreme Court Upholds the Building and Loan Associations.

Des Moines, May 26.—In three cases from Des Moines the supreme court upholds the usurious interest charges of the building and loan associations. The legislature in 1898 passed a curative act, legalizing usurious contracts by building and loan associations and in 1900 this act was repealed, members expressing regret that it had ever been passed.

Suits were at once begun on the theory that contracts which were illegal before the passage of the legalizing act were rendered illegal when it was repealed. Judge Charles A. Bishop of the Polk county district court held in favor of the associations, sustaining the contracts, and the supreme court has sustained this view. It is held that the legalizing act had created certain vested rights, which could be subsequently impaired by the legislature.

This decision has the effect of protecting and making good all building and loan contracts to the extent of 12 per cent interest that were made prior to the passage of the legalizing act.

THE GUBERNATORIAL NOMINATION

Bullet in Head 29 Years.

Mason City, May 27.—Twenty-nine years ago in a hazing episode at Knox college, S. B. Duffield, then a student of the school, but now auditor in this county, was shot by a fellow student. The bullet, fired from a 22-calibre Derringer, entered his skull behind the left ear and lodged there. The ball was probed for and could not be located. Soon the wound healed and he experienced no difficulty until a few days ago he began to feel a pain in the locality of the wound. He consulted a physician, who investigated with the aid of the X-ray and discovered the flattened bullet laying against the skull bone, and extracted it. Without the X-rays it would have been impossible.

Forty-eight Shorthorns for $15,390.

Des Moines, May 25.—One of the best Short-horn cattle sales of the season was the Martin Flynn sale at the fair grounds. There were forty-eight head sold for $15,390, the average per head being $320.60. The highest price paid for one cow was $1,030, by H. F. Brown of Minneapolis, Minn. H. W. Weise of Sutherland, Iowa, also paid $1,000 for a cow. There was a big attendance at the sale and the bidding was spirited throughout.

Finds His Son in a Well.

Hudson, May 27.—The 17-year-old son of James Murphy, a wealthy farmer of this vicinity, who disappeared several weeks ago and was thought to have been kidnaped, was found in an old well on the farm. He disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed him and a search of the premises failed to locate him. A reward had been offered for him.

Gored by a Bull.

Blairsburg, May 25.—The 11-year-old son of C. P. Holt, postmaster at Blairsburg, was gored by a bull last night while passing through a pasture. He was caught on the animal's horns and thrown into the air, after which the beast trampled over him until he was unconscious. His abdomen is terribly injured and it is thought his recovery is impossible.

Herriott Gets Guthrie.

Guthrie Center, May 24.—John Herriott was allowed to select the sixteen delegates to the state convention. His candidacy for governor was endorsed with strong resolutions.

Sioux County for Cummins.

Rock Valley, May 24.—Sioux county convention endorsed Ed C. Brown for railroad commissioner and Hon. A B. Cummins of Des Moines for governor.

Poweshiek for Cummins.

Brooklyn, May 25.—Poweshiek county republican convention instructed for A. B. Cummins for governor.

Jumped Into Iowa River.

Iowa City, May 23.—Mrs. Anna Horsky, aged 46 years, committed suicide at 1 o'clock by jumping into the Iowa river just north of this city. She was despondent over the death of her mother two weeks ago. She proposed to her sister that they both jump into the river. The sister treated it as a joke. Shortly after midnight she awoke her husband, kissed him goodbye and then lay down on her bed again. Half an hour later her husband missed her and aroused the neighbors to search. Tracks of bare feet led to the river. The body was recovered.

TAKE APPEAL TO PEOPLE

Senators Tillman and McLaurin of South Carolina Resign.

Columbia, S. C., May 27.—As the outcome of a spirited debate between United States Senator B. R. Tillman and John L. McLaurin at Gaffney Saturday, both of them put their resignations in the hands of Governor McSweeney, to take effect November 15.

They have resigned with the understanding that they are to go before the people in a joint canvass and the sentiment of the people is to be expressed in the vote in a democratic primary to be held in November.

Tillman was re-elected to the United States senate for six years and McLaurin has yet two years to serve. Should Tillman be sustained McLaurin's seat will be vacant. If McLaurin is successful he will succeed to Tillman's long term.

McLaurin had been invited to Gaffney and friends of Tillman asked him to come too. McLaurin accused Tillman of attacking him.

The latter declared that he would resign and meet McLaurin on the stump. McLaurin agreed to the proposition. Senator Tillman later submitted a written proposition which was acceptable to Senator McLaurin, except that the latter wanted the election to be held in October and November instead of this summer McLaurin stated that this was suggested by his poor health. There were several proposals submitted between the two. Senator McLaurin wanted the race to be confined to Senator Tillman and himself. The latter declared that he could not dictate to the state democratic executive committee when the primary should be held or how many candidates there should be. The duel resignation as finally forwarded to Governor McSweeney was accompanied by no conditions.

Under the election in this state, the state democratic executive committee will arrange a campaign and the candidates will speak in each of the forty counties in the state. At the primary election the candidates will be voted for directly. The general assembly merely confirms the action of the primary. The campaign will be pitched a year earlier than expected but there are a half dozen candidates in the field. Each must specify as to which term he is a candidate.

DISLIKES CARNEGIE'S WAY.

London Review of the Week Angered at Recent Gifts.

London, May 27.—"We trust in Scottish pride to rise in its wrath against this invasion of the Almighty Dollar," says the Review of the Week, commenting on Andrew Carnegie's munificence to Scotland's universities "Many of the oldest and best families in Scotland," continues the periodical, "send their sons to Scottish universities, where they pay the fees, like the sons of their humblest neighbors, neither more nor less. Is it to be believed that this will continue if the fees are paid for them by Mr. Carnegie? Imagine the Duke of Hamilton, Cameron or Lochiel, or MacDonald of the Isles allowing his heir to get education at the cost of an American iron-monger? We shall next hear of some Chicago pork packer proposing to buy up Oxford and Cambridge and dictating terms of admission and the subjects to be taught, or of Boss Crocker forming a lobby to control the London university, with the object of inculcating Tammany principles in the minds of the rising generation of cockneys."

MRS. M'KINLEY TAKEN HOME.

Physicians Decided She Could Make the Trip in Safety.

San Francisco, May 27.—The presidential party, after a sojourn of nearly two weeks in this city, left for Washington a few moments after 10 o'clock Saturday morning. The physicians in attendance on Mrs. McKinley had announced their decision that Mrs. McKinley was strong enough to endure the transcontinental journey, and preparations for departure were rapidly made. She was accompanied by the president, Dr. Rixey and a trained nurse.

Sacramento, Cal., May 27.—After leaving San Francisco the president's train ran through crowds at all stations. Minute stops were made at Pert Costa and Tracy, at each of which places the president shook hands with a number of people. Mrs. McKinley showed no ill effects from her journey up to the time Sacramento was reached, and Dr. Rixey believes she will be able to stand the trip to Washington without stopping for rest along the route.

FUNSTON ATE AN OCTOPUS.

To His Credit, He Says, Should He Enter Kansas Politics.

Lawrence, Kan., May 24.—Captain Adna G. Clark, who served as captain of Company H, of the Twentieth Kansas, and as head of the regimental organization that has been maintained since the return of the Kansans from the Philippines, sent a message of congratulation to General Frederick Funston on the news of his capture of Aguinaldo. He received the following letter from Funston, containing the following information:

"I did one thing, however, which I want put to my credit in case I should ever come back to Kansas and try to break into politics; I helped to eat an octopus. It was tough. It was the real thing, a devil fish with a number of arms, each about eighteen inches long, which we were fortunate enough to get where it had been left in shallow water at low tide. I cannot recommend octopus as steady diet."

AWFUL MINE HORROR IN WALES.

Nearly a Hundred Lives Lost in a Colliery Explosion.

London, May 25.—An explosion occurred at the Universal colliery at Senghenydd, in the Rhondda Valley. The rescuers are working with the greatest difficulty owing to lacking of aid. Five bodies have been recovered. The wreckage of the pit is complete, almost precluding hope that the imprisoned men can have survived. There are seventy-eight miners missing.

Dowie Held to Grand Jury.

Chicago, May 24.—The coroner's jury which has for two days been listening to the evidence in the case of Mrs. Emma Lucy Judd, wife of one of the officials of John Alexander Dowie's Zion, returned a verdict holding Dowie, H. W. Judd, husband of the woman, and Mrs. Sprecher and Mrs. Bratsch to await the action of the grand jury.

Kitchener Has 249,416 Men.

London, May 23.—A parliamentary paper just issued shows the total of British troops in South Africa May 1 to be 249,416. The total deaths were 14,978 and wounded 17,209. In hospital April 15 there were 1,797.

Carnegie's Gift to Universities.

London, May 21.—Andrew Carnegie has given £2,000,000 to establish free education in four Scotch universities, Edinburg, Glasgow, Aberdeen and St. Andrews. He stipulates that the beneficiaries be his "Scotch fellow countrymen" only, no English, Irish, colonials or foreigners. The fund will apply to medical as well as commercial education, and will be placed in the hands of trustees, who will pay the expenses of Scottish students benefitted under the scheme.

Between the ages of one minute and eighteen years a girl is always interesting.

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

CHAPTER IX.—(Continued.)

"You will find her the greatest coward of us all," she observed. "But if you really want to hear the horrible ound, open the door."

He did so. Every one was silent: and through the hall came plainly enough the rocking of the cradle and the low sound of the mother's song.

Mr. Crowley stood for a moment at the door; then he shut it, and came back to the fireside looking just a little pale.

"I wonder if it is a hoax," he observed, after a short pause.

"That can hardly be. For we all saw the room the first night we came, and there was no one there, though the cradle rocked all the time. Is it not horrible to have to live in the house with it?"

"Indeed it is; and I question if it is right for you to do so. You must make my uncle go as soon as you can."

"I am sure that it is easier said than done," sighed Mrs. Cowley.

"I know what I would do," observed Marjorie.

"What, my love?"

"Frighten him."

"But the cradle has failed to do that."

"Then I would give him something worse than a cradle. If hearing things would not scare him, I should be inclined to try what seeing things would do."

Rose clasped her hands delightedly.

"I have it, Cousin Charles. If you and Marjorie will help me, we can manage it easily."

"How?"

"You must be ghosts."

"What nonsense you do talk, Rose!" said Catharine.

"It is not nonsense. If you or I undertake to play the part, papa would see through it at once, because he would miss us. But he knows nothing of Charles' return, and he has never seen Marjorie. They would both make capital ghosts."

"There is something in it," observed Mr. Cowley. "And if you will leave it to us we will make my uncle very willing to go. But you must stow us out of sight before he comes."

"The turret-chamber is ready, and a fire is lit there," said Mrs. Cowley. "But that is the room said to be haunted."

"Oh, never mind! But what knock is that?"

"Good gracious! It is Mr. Cowley. Run, Rose! get your cousins up into the room before we let him in. Here take the cloak or he will be sure to see it. We will send you up some supper, Charles. Rose shall come; but for mercy's sake, be quick now!"

With much suppressed merriment and laughter, the two ghosts were got out of the way, and were safe in the turret-room long before Mrs. Macarthy had let in her master, and was fuming over what he termed her "stupid Irish delay."

CHAPTER X.

Mrs. Cowley looked exceedingly guilty when her lord and master entered; but he, being full of his own business, did not observe it. He laid aside his wrappings, called for hot water and the spirit case, and sat down by the fire with an air of a man who had earned his repose and meant thoroughly to enjoy it.

"Have you been alarmed in any way since I went, Mrs. C.?" he asked when his toddy was thoroughly mixed.

"No, my dear," she replied briskly; which was a gross fib, as we know, because the unexpected arrival of her nephew and his wife had nearly sent her into a fit of hysterics. But that was only one of the white lies that are perfectly allowable, and even praiseworthy, when the head of the household is in question. If British matrons hesitated long over a "taradiddle," there would be little peace, I fear, in many a British home.

"Not alarmed, eh!" said Mr. Cowley, sipping at his glass. "Well, I'm glad you are getting so brave. I have been to see the agent, and there is no reason why we should not rent the house for another year. Mr. Vernon will not want it, and the agent evidently looks upon it as one of the best speculations he ever made."

"Another year! Mercy preserve us!" said Mrs. Cowley, holding up her hands in horror.

"And why not, pray?" was the sharp reply. "If we go sooner we shall have done no good. People will think we are frightened away, after all; whereas if we stay for fifteen or sixteen months they cannot have the face to hint at such a thing."

Mrs. Cowley groaned.

"Besides, I have been talking with the agent about the drains, and he has given me leave to have them set to rights. A capital dodge that, isn't it, my dear?"

Mrs. Cowley only sighed.

"Don't you see? While the men are at work, I'll make them take up the floor of that pantry. Depend on it, there is nothing there but rats."

"Can rats rock a cradle, Mr Cowley?" asked his better half, severely.

"I dare say they could if they tried."

"And sing?"

"There are plenty of singing mice in the world; perhaps ours belongs to that breed, my dear. However, what I mean to say is this: That the house being old, is in all probability swarming with the brutes; and that, in some of their antics in the pantry, they contrive to imitate the rocking of a cradle and to make a sound which will pass muster as a human voice. So I'll have the floor up, and we'll put a stop to their fun at once."

"It was a human voice!" said Mrs. Cowley, indignantly. "The idea of trying to explain it in that way! I never heard of anything so absurd in all my life! Did the agent offer you any refreshment, my dear?"

Mr. Cowley wagged his head good humoredly.

"I see what you are driving at; but I was never more sober in my life, Mrs. C. And we'll have the floor up tomorrow, and you shall see if, during the rest of the year, we hear anything more of the cradle."

Mrs. Cowley held her peace. Experience had taught her that argument in a case like this would be of no use. But if in her heart she had harbored any little sweet scruple as to the propriety of the plan by which the young people intended to dislodge her lord and master from the strange home he had chosen, it vanished from that hour and she stood as deeply committed to the ghost scheme as any one among them all.

"Where is Rose?" asked Mr. Cowley, looking up suddenly.

Mrs. Cowley blushed up to the eyes.

"She—she is upstairs, I think. Do you want her?"

"Yes; I have brought her a book. As she is so very fond of ghost stories I bought her the most horrible thing I could find in that way. It will serve to pass away her evenings very pleasantly this winter."

At that moment Rose entered, looking peculiarly well satisfied with herself, and everything in general.

"A book for me, papa? Now that is kind."

Mr. Cowley grinned to himself over his toddy.

"You'll be charmed with it. There is a picture on the first page, enough to turn any one's hair white."

"I'll look at it directly," said Rose, laying it down upon the table. "But papa, how could you leave us so long alone this evening? That cradle has been rocking so dreadfully all the time!"

"Rats, my dear. Nothing in the world but rats."

"I wonder what you would do if you saw a ghost, papa—a real ghost!"

"What I told you once before—I would pinch his nose with the tongs."

"I should like to see you tried!"

"Pah! It is all nonsense, my dear. Ghosts are an exploded theory. For my part, I have so little faith in them that I would not in the least mind staying here in the old house by myself all night long."

As he spoke the hall clock struck twelve, and Rose gave her mother a peculiar glance.

"Oh, how dreadful! This is just the time when ghosts go their rounds. Do let us all go to bed or we shall be sure to see one."

"Yes, let us go to bed at once," said Mrs. Cowley, rising from her chair.

As a matter of course, their end was gained, for Mr. Cowley was seized with a fit of obstinacy upon the spot. They knew well that nothing would induce him to stir from the spot till he had finished his gin and water and smoked his cigar.

"Go to bed, all of you," he said benignantly. "I'm not afraid to stop here by myself, and I shall come up before you are fairly asleep."

Mrs. Cowley and her two daughters left the room. The bright face of Rose was sparkling with mischief and laughter; and the instant the door shut behind her she caught her mother's hand and whispered joyously, "Mamma, you need be under no concern. He will not want to stop here long after tonight. You never saw two such horrible objects as Charles and Marjorie have made of themsleves with my help and Mrs. Macarthy's. Come and see them before you go into hour own room to wait for him.

Mrs. Cowley and Catharine followed her into the turret chamber. Though they had been warned to expect a ghastly sight, neither of them could help staring and well-nigh crying out when they saw the figures that stood in the center of the room.

One was a nun dressed in the flowing black robes of a Sister of Mercy, with her hands bound tightly together, and clasped above her breast. Her face was white as death—and from the right temple a deep crimson strain ran down toward the chin. The contrast between the pallor of her face and the bright blood stain were ghastly in the extreme. On her left hand stood a stalwart black man, clad in flowing robes of the purest white. Mrs. Cowley's best dressing gown had been pressed into this service, and about his swarthy brow was folded a turban, consisting of several yards of India muslin, on which she set great store. In his hands he held a rusted dagger, which Rose had hunted up in her exploring tours through the house. His height seemed almost terrific, a circumstance soon explained when she showed the false soles and heels he had managed to affix to his boots. His air stern and menacing; and, altogether the pair were by no means the most pleasant visitants that could be imagined to the gentleman sitting alone over his toddy in a haunted house.

"Shall we do, aunt?" exclaimed Mr. Cowley, as she entered.

"Do? You are perfectly dreadful! Who dressed you like that?"

"Rose."

"And where on earth could she have got such dreadful ideas from? You never saw a ghost, child?"

"No, mamma; but I have read about them often enough; and papa says book knowledge is not of the slighest use to us, unless we can apply it to real life. I hope he will be pleased with my application tonight."

"You are a saucy girl, Rose," said her mother, still eyeing the apparitions with some apprehension. "I wonder, now, what he will say to you? If it was me, I should go into a fit the moment you opened the door."

"My uncle is made of sterner stuff. Still, I hope we shall give him a start. One don't want to take all this trouble in dressing for nothing."

"Shall you go down to him, or let him meet you on the stairs?" asked Catharine.

"Oh, we will go down; we shall be seen to much more advantage in a room."

"Besides, he has threatened to pinch your nose with the tongs, and he cannot do it if he is on the staircase when he sees you," added Rose.

"That is a consideration," replied Mr. Cowley. "Now, will you ladies betake yourselves to bed? It is nearly half-past twelve—the very hour when two orthodox ghosts would be most likely to set out upon their travels. Good-night, aunt; we will send him up to you in a very short space of time."

The ladies retreated. Mrs. Cowley, in order that she might not be suspected of any complicity in the plot, if by any means it should be discovered, undressed and retired to bed as usual. But Rose and Catharine sat down beside their chamber door and waited the result of their operations with great impatience.

Meanwhile, Mr. Cowley, sitting over his cigar below, little dreamed how his nearest and dearest were conspiring ruthlessly against his peace of mind. The ghostly cradle was silent at last; his cigar was a fine one, and his toddy was grateful to the taste. Sitting here, monarch of all he surveyed, he thought over the events of his visit to the agent, and the promise which he had drawn from him about the drains.

"A clever dodge that!" he mused approvingly to himself. "Nothing can be easier than to set the men at work among the pipes in the cellar, and to take them on till they are under the pantry, and be banged to it! I'll stop that noise or my name isn't Cowley! People shall not have it to say that after laughing at every one else for the belief in ghosts, I went to get frightened at one myself! Ghosts, indeed! Suppose there actually is one about the premises; of course, the poor thing cannot rest in his grave till something he's got or omitted to do on earth, has been done for him. Very well! What could be easier than to say to the troubled spirt, 'Make yourself quite easy; I will attend to it at once! Don't stay out of your grave a moment longer, for fear that you should take cold, my dear sir?' Of course, any sensible ghost, being addressed in such a sensible manner, would immediately return to his grave and stay there. That is what I call common sense kind of dealing with the citizens of another world. They would appreciate it—I am sure they would—Oh, Lord, what's that?"

He might as well ask the question; for his flow of self-congratulation was suddenly checked by a low, hollow groan outside the door. He listened intently. The groan came again, but louder than before.

"There is a noise!—I'm not dreaming!" he mused, while his hair stood on his head "like quills upon the fretful porcupine." "What on earth can it be? Mrs. Macarthy walking in her sleep, I suppose!" he said, with trembling lips, and a face white with the fear he was ashamed of, which he could not control.

The door swung open—a gigantic black man entered, leading by the hand a bleeding nun.

EATING AND BODILY HEALTH.

Two French Medical Investigators Believe We Eat to Die.

Doubt as to whether we eat to live or eat to die has been dispelled by certain French medical investigators, who have proved to their own satisfaction that we eat to die. One of these scientists recently read a paper before the Academy of Medicine, in which he advanced the theory that appendicitis is often the result of intestinal poisoning caused by influenza. Another investigator in discussing the same subject declared that the disease is caused by worms or other parasites that are swallowed with raw fruits and vegetables and in impure water. Two other French investigators have discovered by test that rabbits which have been compelled to fast for a week are proof against the attacks of bacilli injected into their systems, while rabbits that have received their regular rations quickly succumb to disease. This is probably explained by the theory that the digestive agents of the body when not employed in the assimilation of nourishment from food will be in fighting trim for the task of "doing up" any microbes that may enter their bailiwicks. Prophylactic action in line with this theory would destroy the business of the butchers, grocers and bakers during times of epidemic, but it would also destroy the fasters in the course of time, and thus prove the converse of the dictum that we eat to die. There is no doubt as to the ill-effects of over-eating; and opinion is general that humanity is inclined to eat too much. The investigations of the French scientists have neither removed doubt as to the real cause of appendicitis nor made it clear that humanity can escape the omnipresent microbe by habitual fasting.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

TELEGRAPH ACROSS AFRICA.

Survey for Line Has Reached Heart of Continent.

The telegraph line which Mr. Cecil Rhodes is extending from Cape Town to Cairo is making excellent progress. The line, stretched on short iron poles, has now reached the neighborhood of the Zambesi river, and the surveyors who are selecting the route are far in advance. It has been decided to run the line up the east coast of Lake Tanganyika as far as Ujiji, whence it will be carried northeast to the south coast of Lake Victoria Nyanza, then it will be built along the east coast of that lake and into the little known country west of Lake Rudolf, and finally will skirt the western frontier of Abyssinia and descend the Nile. Some people may wonder how a telegraph wire can be pushed through a barbarous country and be kept in condition for business. It is a comparatively simple matter. The scheme for safeguarding the wire is that which Stanley suggested long ago. Native chiefs all along the route are subsidized to keep the wire in proper position. As far as it extends through their territory they must see that the wire is kept off the ground and in its proper place on the poles. They are well paid for their services if they fulfill their duty, but of course receive nothing if they neglect their charge. It is therefore to their interest to keep the wire in good condition. This system has been found to work well on the Congo and in other parts of Africa where it has been tried.—New York Sun.

FEEDING CHILDREN.

Juveniles Like Vegetables and Pudding If Properly Prepared.

Sir Henry Thompson says that "few children like that part of the meal which consists of meat; but prefer the pudding, the fruit, the vegetables, if well dressed, which unhappily is often the case. Many children manifest great repugnance to meat at first, and are coaxed and even scolded by anxious mothers until the habit of eating is acquired. I am satisfied that if the children followed their own taste in this matter, the result would be a gain in more ways than one. Certainly if meat did not appear in the nursery until the children sent for it, it would be rarely seen there, and the young ones would, as a rule, thrive better on milk and eggs, with the varied produce of the vegetable kingdom. Never allow children to go to bed hungry at night. A slice of bread and butter, a few crackers, a glass of warm milk, and a cup of warm beef tea are beneficial and conducive to restful sleep. All physicians concur that it is better to go to sleep on a moderately full stomach than an empty one. For this reason a short afternoon nap is extremely beneficial, especially if the heaviest meal of the day is eaten at noon. This allowing the processes of digestion to go on quietly is natural and healthy—resting the body and relieving the brain."

African War Drains Australia.

The war in South Africa has drained from Australia more than 10,000 workers; has lessened the inflow of British capital for the development of new mines, and, combined with the remarkable industrial boom in Europe, has fully stopped emigration to Australia.

The amateur violinist is continually bowing and scraping.

Raymond had just been over to the hall with his basket of flowers, mostly, from the woods and fields.

Decoration day always found him on hand; and although his contribution was simple, he was glad to be able to do even a little toward furnishing material for this touching memorial service.

Raymond was the grandson of a veteran of the civil war, and this year he wanted to do something more than usual, to let the old friends of the grandfather whom he had never known understand his loyalty, both to his grandfather's memory and the country that he had died for.

Suddenly he remembered an old tattered flag that stood in a corner in the attic, and beside it a musket, rusty and time-stained. Then he looked at Rover.

"Can you do it, Rover?" Raymond's eyes asked the question. The soft brown eyes of the dog answered, "Try me."

"All right, Rover, I will."

Rover's tail ceased its impatient tattoo upon the floor, and with a yelp of delight he followed his master up the attic stairs. Half an hour later the boy and the dog sat side by side upon the door-step. The boy held a flat piece of wood in one hand, and his jack-knife in the other. Occasionally he lifted a faded flag, and slipped the end of the worn stick through a hole which he was whittling in the new piece of wood.

At last he sprang to his feet, saying, "All ready now, Rover! Do you think you can hold that in your mouth?"

Rovers' eyes said, "Of course I can!" as his tail gave three excited thumps. Good, faithful Rover! Raymond knew that he could be depended upon to be his color-bearer. Now

"I Followed Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Now I am Well."

A woman is sick--some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds back something, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and this completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it a wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician. This is the reason why hundreds of thousands of women are now in correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can give every symptom, so that when she is ready to advise them she is in possession of more facts from her correspondence with the patient than the physician can possibly obtain through a personal interview.

Following we publish a letter from a woman showing the result of a correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. All such letters are considered absolutely confidential by Mrs. Pinkham, and are never published in any way or manner without the consent in writing of the patient; but hundreds of women are so grateful for the health which Mrs. Pinkham and her medicine have been able to restore to them that they not only consent to publishing their letters, but write asking that this be done in order that other women who suffer may be benefited by their experience.

Mrs. Ella Rice, Chelsea, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with falling and inflammation of the womb. I suffered very much with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and was not able to do anything. What I endured no one knows but those who have suffered as I did. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I doctored with the physicians of this town for three months and grew worse instead of better. My husband and friends wished me to write to you, but I had no faith in patent medicines. At last I became so bad that I concluded to ask your advice. I received an answer at once advising me to take your Vegetable Compound, and I did so. Before I had taken two bottles I felt better, and after I had taken five bottles there was no happier woman on earth, for I was well again. I know that your Vegetable Compound cured me, and I wish and advise every woman who suffers as I did to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Believe me always grateful for the recovery of my health."—MRS. ELLA RICE, Chelsea, Wis.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing, we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—LYDIA E. NEWS IN GENERAL

JOHN E. TANNER DEAD.

Former Governor of Illinois Dies Suddenly of Rheumatism of Heart.

Springfiedl Ill., May 23.—Former Governor John Ripley Tanner died here suddenly in his room at the Leland hatel at 2:40 yesterday afternoon from rheumatism of the heart. Governor Tanner had not been feeling well for nearly two weeks. He had contracted cold when hunting in Clay county, his old home, a few weeks ago, and from that resulted a bad attack of rheumatism, and it is believed that rheumatism of the heart caused death, though Dr. J. N. Dixon, the attending physician, says he is unable to give exact cause of death. Says he had no organic heart trouble or kidney disease.

Governor Tanner has held various positions besides that of governor, the principal being a member of the Illinois house, United States marshal of the Southern district of Illinois, state treasurer and assistant at the United States sub-treasury at Chicago, and he was for many years a member of the republican state central committee chairman of the same. He was a candidate for United States senator this year against Senator Cullom. He leaves a widow, one son, Colonel J. Mack Tanner, Springfield, colonel of the Fourth infantry, I. N. N., and one daughter, Mrs. John A. Barnes of Chicago.

CADETS GET ASPHALT JOBS.

Dismissed West Point Cadets Fall Into Easy Berths.

Washington, May 24.—The five West Point cadets dismissed from West Point—Bowlby, Cleveland, Keller, Linton and Mahaffey—will not appeal for clemency to the war department. They have entered the service of the New York and Bermuedez Asphalt company. This came about through General Francis A. Greene, one of the chief officials of the trust. He communicated with the war department and informed Secretary Root that the five young men had called upon him in a contrite and repentent state of mind asking for his advice and assistance in shaping their future. They stated that no turpitude was involved in anything that was charged against them, and General Greene apparently was of the same opinion, for, after hearing their story, he proposed to Secretary Root to employ the young men in the service of the asphalt company. Secretary Root promptly responded that the war department had no objection, and that it was true there was no charge touching the integrity of the boys, but only a technical violation of discipline. So one of the young men will go immediately to Venezuela, General Greene having taken them into his service, and the others will be disposed of according to the engineering needs of the company.

ANOTHER REPORT IS SUBMITTED.

Cubans Endorse Platt Amendment but Append Explanation of Action.

Havana, May 27.—The majority of the report of the constitutional convention's committee on relations was withdrawn Saturday but there was substituted for it a report drawn up by five delegates—Senors Giberga, Berriel, Quesada, Tamayo and Villuendas. The report is signed by the last three named, constituting a majority of the committee on relations. It accepts the Platt amendment, adding an appendix including Secretary Root's explanation which is quoted as being official and explanations from Governor General Wood, authorized by Secretary Root, with additional explanations of clauses three, four, five, six, seven and eight, as previously cabled. It refers to clauses one and two and states that the stipulations contained therein are international constitutional limitations which do not restrict the power of the government of Cuba to freely celebrate political and mercantile treaties with any nation, nor in its power to contract loans or debts, except with regard to being bound to subject itself to what is established in the constitution and what is laid down in the two clauses.

AGUINALDO MAY COME.

Desire Expressed to Spend the Winter in Washington.

New York, May 27.—A special to the Tribune from Washington says: "Aguinaldo is likely to come to the United States next fall and spend the winter in Washington. This information reached the war department in mail from Manila. He has informed General MacArthur of his desire to visit the United States for the purpose of studying American institutions and meeting American statesmen, with a view of being more useful to his own people in the future."

DROWNED IN LAKE HURON.

Twelve Men Lost Out of a Crew of Fourteen.

East Tawas, Mich., May 25.—The wooden steamer, Baltimore, foundered in Lake Huron near Au Sable and twelve of her crew of fourteen were drowned. Two men washed about in the lake for several hours, lashed to a piece of wreckage and were finally taken up by the tug Columbia and brought in here. George McGinnis, a deck hand, one of the rescued, went crazy from his experience. The other survivor, Thomas Murphy of Milwaukee, second engineer, was able to tell the story of the disaster.

CERVERA FEARS DIVISION.

Spanish Admiral Thinks Spain May Be Broken Up.

Madrid, May 27.—Speaking before the naval congress on the subject whether or not Spain should be a naval power, Admiral Cervera expressed fears of the disintegration of Spain into a number of small states. "I do not wish," he said, "that the interests of the navy should predominate at the expense of the other interests of the country, but, observing, as I do, what is going on at the present day, I am afraid Sp in may become like the Italy of the middle ages."

FITZ JOHN PORTER DEAD.

Outlived Enemies Who Secured His Expulsion From the Army.

New York, May 23.—General Fitz John Porter, formerly major general of the United States army, who was cashiered during the civil war and afterward restored to his rank by act of congress, died at his home in Morristown, N. J., Tuesday. He had been a sufferer from diabetes for many years, but in spite of that fact and his extreme old age his hearty constitution enabled him to enjoy life almost to the last and to live until every one of his ancient enemies had passed away.

Botha Wants to See Dewet.

London, May 27.—"General Botha has asked General De Wet to meet him," says the Pretoria correspondent of the Daily Mail, "to discuss the situation."

Phenomenal Shooting Record.

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—The world's record in the live bird contest was broken Tuesday at the Illinois Gun club grounds in this city in the Dupont smokeless powder championship trophy shoot, for a cup and $1,000. The shoot was at 25 live pigeons, entrance fee $25. In the first match and miss and out shoot off, Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake and W. R. Crosby of O'Fallon, Ill., members of the all-American team, and H. J. Sconce of Danville, Ill., member of the Illinois Gun club, killed their one-hundredth bird and the match was postponed until Wednesday.

FILIPINOS HAVE A GRIEVANCE.

Discrimination in the Appointment of Judges Is Charged.

Manila, May 26.—The discontent among the natives at the appointment of American judges and alleged discriminations in the civil service in favor of Americans is finding expression, encouraged by some of the native judges, who are aware that the reorganization of the judiciary will result in the loss of their positions.

Judge Ner of the Court of First Instance of Tondo, one of the leaders of what is beginning to be called the radical wing of the federalists, declares that if such things continue there will be a second revolution. Some of the prominent federalists ridicule the prediction.

The Philippine commission's selections of judges were thoroughly considered. It is undeniable that most of the native judges lack the competence required. One of them has been removed for malfeasance and others are suspected of irregularities. The classifications of the civil service avoid discriminations, but native and Spanish qualifications are not equal to those of capable Americans. Some departments are employing natives at the risk of temporary inconvenience.

After a conference with General MacArthur, General Trias has undertaken negotiations at Lucban for the surrender of General Cailles, which is daily expected.

GOVERNMENT WINS CASE

Supreme Court Says Constitution Does Not Follow Flag.

Chicago, May 25.—A special to the Record-Herald from Washington, D C., says:

The decision of the supreme court of the United States is that the constitution does not follow the flag.

The decision, the most important that great tribunal has ever made, will be handed down next Monday. The decision is in favor of the government, but a divided bench. There will be at least five individual opinions, but some of these are concurring opinions, expressing the views of the writers more fully and particularly than is done in opinion of the majority.

The decision goes back to the period when the republic was formed and constitution framed and endeavors to ascertain what was the intent of the founders of the nation.

The opinion of the majority of the court disposes of the uniform taxation clause of the constitution, which has been invoked by all the appellants in these cases, in the following manner:

The framers of the constitution, in writing that clause, had no thought of its application to territorial possessions. No such question as is now presented had arisen in their minds. The clause, "all duties, imports and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States" the court holds, was placed in the constitution as a result of the jealousies of the states which united in forming the nation. It was intended to prevent any state or combination of states securing advantage over another or others; to prevent the ports of one state gaining preference over those of another in the importation of goods.

This rule of uniformity was made primarily for the states united, the court holds, not for territories then possessed or afterward acquired, and the constitutional requirement is satisfied as long as all duties on imports are uniformly imposed on all the ports throughout the United States. The advantage of this uniformity may be extended to territories and possessions not states and not members of the American union, but that is for congress to determine under the authority of the constitution.

TO TIE UP RAILROADS.

Machinists May Be Ordered Out on All Lines of Road.

Washington, May 25.—President James O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists announces that he will recommend in his annual report to the next annual convention of machinists at Toronto, beginning June 3, that a date be set for a nine hour day without reduction in wages on all the railroads in the country. On railroads that fail to comply with the demand a strike will be ordered. Mr. O'Connell says that such a strike would involve probably 100,000 men, including 40,000 machinists, the others being boilermakers, paternmakers and semi-skilled workmen who work with the machinists in the shops. His policy will be to enforce the demand by tieing up practically the entire mechanical service of the company.

Mr. O'Connell will doubtless fix a date when the nine hour day must be in operation on all roads, and he believes this date should be some day in autumn. Mr. O'Connell said the outlook of the present strike was very gratifying. The headquarters of the strike has been shifted from Washington to Toronto, for which place he left last evening.

KING'S SLAYER ENDS LIFE.

The Assassin of King Humbert of Italy Hangs Himself.

Rome, May 24.—Bresci, the assassin of the late King Humbert, has committed suicide at the penitentiary of Santo Stefani.

Bresci recently had been suffering from extreme excitement, declared to be from remorse.

On the wall of Bresci's cell the word "Vengeance" was scratched with his bloody thumbnail.

Bresci's violence last week culminated in his attacking a jailer, in consequence of which he was placed in a straight jacket. Later the prisoner feigned docility in order to secure an opportunity to commit suicide, which he accomplished by hanging himself with an improvised rope attached to the ceiling. In the earlier days of his imprisonment Bresci resented orders to keep silent and threatened to kill himself.

HALL WAS EXONERATED.

The Officer Whom Minister Conger Accused of Cowardice.

Washington, May 25.—The report of the court martial in the case of Capt. Newton Hall, the United States marine corps, who was charged by Minister Conger with cowardice in connection with the defense of the legations at Peking, has just been received at Washington. Admiral Remey has promulgated the finding in a special order which completely exonerates Captain Hall from the charges and finds the only matter of substance sustained in the charges is an error of judgment in connection with the withdrawal of troops at a critical moment at the Tartar wall

Italy Threatens Turkey.

Constantinople, May 25.—In consequence of the arrest of an Italian agent at Preveza, the Italian charge d'affaires has demanded immediate reparation from the Porte. If this is not accorded Italy will send warships to Preveza to exact satisfaction

Boutelle Dies in an Asylum.

Boston, May 22.—Former Congressman Charles A. Boutelle of Bangor, Me., died yesterday at the McLean asylum, Waverly, Mass. Mr. Boutelle had been at the institution for many months for treatment on account of brain trouble.

Plans Great Russian Canal.

Berlin, May 23.—According to a dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Berliner Neueste Nachrichten engineers have laid before M. de Witte, the Russian minister of finance, plans for connecting the Black sea with the Caspian sea by a canal 550 versts long and costing 300,000,000 roubles.

The other day a Gordon Highlander invited his wife to visit him at the barracks in Scotland. She did so, taking with her their six-year-old girl. When they arrived, as it happened, the husband was engaged on sentry duty, and so they could not approach him. The child eyed her "daddy" with a rather sorrowful expression, as he paced up and down the square shouldering his rifle and wearing a kilt. She had never before beheld him thus arrayed, and for a few minutes the spectacle seemed to be quite beyond her; but for no longer could she keep silent. "Mamma," she said, in a voice that betrayed a trace of childish covetousness, "if daddy finds the man what stole 'ees trousers, will he gimme dat lickle frock?"

In the days when Barnum's museum was in the height of its popularity in New York, it was the custom of many people to bring their wives, children and lunch baskets and make a day of it. This was not in accordance with Barnum's view of a profitable way to conduct a museum. One Saturday, when the army of picnickers were overcrowding the show and keeping others out, a brilliant idea occurred to Barnum. On a huge canvas he painted the word "Egress" in immense letters of green. This he placed over a doorway, and immediately attracted the attention of the crowd, which was just about to settle down for lunch. "Egress, egress!" cried the visitors; "faith! that's an animal we haven't seen." "They found that animal," said Barnum, telling the story, "out in the street."

Andrew Carnegie is fond of quoting the witty remark made by an old friend of his in Pittsburg, who for some time held the record for fast horses, but was one day beaten in a brush by a young wan. The old gentleman disappeared for some time. He had gone to Kentucky to get a horse that would re-establish his supremacy. He was being shown over a stud, and had already gone past a long string of horses with their records on the stall and the victories they had won. Then he was taken through a long line of young horses with their pedigrees, from which the dealer was proving what they were going to do when they got on the track. The old gentleman, wiping his forehead—for it was a hot day—suddenly turned to the dealer, and said: "Look here, stranger—you've shown me 'have beens,' and you've let me see your 'going to-be's,' but what I am here for is an 'iser.'"

It is an undoubted fact that the human body is shorter at night than in the morning, and that is due to the weight of the body compressing the intervertebral cartilages, says Tit-Bits. During sleep, or while in a recumbent position, the pressure being removed, their natural elasticity enables them to resume their normal size, consequently the height of an individual will vary from three-eighths to half an inch between morning and night.

Living representatives of four generations of one family are not uncommon in the United States, but living representatives of four generations who all have the same birthday anniversary are surely not frequently met with. This is said to be true of the family of Mrs. Edith Ford, who live near Greensburg, Ind. She is the great-grandmother, was born in Scott county, Ky., and is 86 years old. Her daughter is 56 years old; the next representative of the family is 36 years old, and the fourth member is 3 years old. Their birthdays are all on July 9.

Verdict Meant Death.

Aldrich, Mo., May 27th.—Four of the best doctors in the vicinity have been in attendance on Mrs. Mollie Moore of this place, who has been suffering with a severe case of nervousness and kidney disease. Each of them told her that she would die.

Hearing of Dodd's Kidney Pills, she began to use them, and instantly noticed a change for the better. Her improvement has been continuous since then. She says that the disease first manifested itself by the appearance of dark spots floating before her eyes. Her nerves were so bad that many times they would collapse completely, and she would fall down as if shot.

The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills saved her after four doctors had given her up, has caused no end of talk in this neighborhood, and all are loud in their praises of this new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills—which is curing so many hitherto incurable cases, in this state and elsewhere.

A young man who had just entered the office of Jeremiah Mason, the great New Hampshire legal luminary, to study law, asked him where he should begin. Mason, pointing to the books on the library shelves, answered laconically: "Anywhere."

WESTERN CANADA'S DECEMBER WEATHER

Equal to That of May in Minnesota.

To the Editor:—Thomas Regan and C. Collins of Eden Valley, Minnesota, went out to Western Canada last December as delegates to look over the grazing and grain lands that are being offered at such low prices and reasonable terms. This is what they say:

"We arrived in Calgary about the 20th of December and although we had left winter in Minnesota and Manitoba, we were surprised to find beautiful warm weather at this point, quite equal to what we have in May in Minnesota. There was no snow nor trace of winter to be seen, and the climate was really splendid. Horses, cattle and sheep were running out, in prime condition, with plenty of feed on the prairie, and really better than that of ours stabled in the south. We are impressed with this country as one of the finest mixed farming countries we have ever seen. The immense tracts of fertile lands well sheltered and abundantly watered leave nothing to be desired.

"Leaving Alberta we returned east and visited the Yorkton district in Assiniboia. We drove out about ten miles at this point and were highly pleased with the splendid samples of grain we were able to see—wheat yielding 25 bushels, oats 60 bushels. Roots were also good specimens. From what we have seen, we have decided to throw in our lot with the Yorktoners—satisfied that this part of the country will furnish good opportunities for anyone anxious to make the best of a really good country."

"Any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in the columns of your paper will give you full particulars of the new districts being opened out this year in Assiniboia and Saskatchewan. Yours truly, Old Reader.

Why Not Go to California?

Here's a suggestion for a holiday trip:

Buy a round trip ticket to San Francisco at the reduced rates which will be in effect on account of the Epworth League meeting in that city in July—go west by way of Denver and Salt Lake City, past all the glorious mountain scenery of Colorado and Utah—spend a few weeks in California—come home via Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Billings, Mont.

If you have time, stop off and see Yellowstone Park. A month is sufficient for the entire trip. In that time you will see more than most people do in a lifetime.

And the expense is almost unbelievably small.

Write for a copy of the Burlington's Epworth League folder, which tells all about it—gives you just the information you need about rates, routes, through cars, scenery, stopovers, etc. J. Francis,

STORYETTES.

Two ladies contended for precedence in the court of Charles the Fifth. They appealed to the monarch, who, like Solomon, awarded: "Let the eldest go first." Such a dispute was never known afterward.

Henry J. Byron, one of the wittiest of English playwrights of a score of years ago, remarked on one occasion: "A play is like a cigar. If it's good, everybody wants a box. If it's bad, all the puffing in the world won't make it go."

John Lawrence Toole, the most popular low comedian of his day, once gave a supper to eighty of his friends, and wrote a note to each of them privately beforehand, asking him whether he would be so good as to say grace, as no clergyman would be present. It is said that the faces of those eighty men as they rose in a body when Toole tapped on the table, as a signal for grace, was a sight which will never be forgotten.

On one occasion the late Chief Justice Russell went into the English provinces to help the liberals in a certain campaign. He began his speech of set purpose with some very badly pronounced Scotch. After the confusion caused by his apparent blunder had subsided, Sir Charles Russell (as he then was) said: "Gentlemen, I do not speak Scotch, but I vote Scotch." Tremendous applause followed, whereupon Sir Charles proceeded, "and I sometimes drink Scotch." With this his hold on the audience was secured.

The youngest daughter of Mrs. Walter Damrosch was about finishing her prayers the other night when she abruptly asked her mother to "please leave the room," as there was something for which she wished to give extra and special thanks. Her mother wanted to know what it was, but the child let it be understood that it was of too personal and private a nature for even a mother to know about. Her mother accordingly withdrew; but the next night, when the same request was made, she insisted upon knowing just what it meant. "Well," said the little girl, after much persuasion, "I just wanted to give fanks for bein' 'lowed to steal some sugar the other day!"

Piles Cured While You Sleep

You are costive, and nature is under a constant strain to relieve the condition. This causes a rush of blood to the rectum, and before long congested lumps appear, itching, painful, bleeding. Then you have piles. There are many kinds and many cures, but piles are not curable unless you assist nature in removing the cause. CASCARETS make effort easy, regulate and soften the stools, relieving the tension, and giving nature a chance to use her healing power. Piles, hemorrhoids, fistula, and other rectal troubles yield to the treatment, and Cascarets quickly and surely remove them forever. Don't be persuaded to experiment with anything else!

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Shudders at His Past.

"I recall now with horror," says Mail Carrier Burnett Mann, of Levanna, O., 'my three years of suffering from Kidney trouble, I was hardly ever free from dull aches or pain in my back. To stoop or lift mail sacks made me groan, I felt tired, worn out about ready to give up, when I began to use Electric Bitters, but six bottles completely cured me and made me feel like a new man." Whooping Cough.

A woman who has experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

Somewhere in the country, perhaps on some poor farm where the father wrestles with the sterile soil and discouraging conditions, there is growing up a little towheaded, barefooted boy getting his education partly in the little red school house and more by using bright eyes and sharp ears as he drives the cows from the pasture, goes hunting and trapping in the woods and looks for birds' nests in the orchard and hedge row, who will 50 years hence be the president of this great republic. Another such boy now herding cattle on some western plain will ride over the country in his special car as the president of some big line of railway, while another one will be hanging on the brake beam of a freight car as a tramp. It all depends on the boy.—Rockford Register.

The shirt waist man and the net waist girl go hand in hand to-day, and the people year after year are throwing their clothes away. The coat and vest are laid to rest and where is the fleecy shawl? And clothes get fewer and thiner,—what will be the end of it all? Oh, what will the shirt waist man take next from the things he has to wear? And what will the net waist girl throw off from the shoulders now half bare? The shirt waist man and the shirt girl go rolicking down the way. Have we started a trend that's going to end in the old fig leaf some day?

A Perry girl who has evidently been there voices her sentiments as follows in the last issue of the Advertiser, and we are sure some of our Klemme girls can vouch for their correctness: "If there is anything that will make one feel like you had got into a bunch of unweaned calves, it is when you come out of church Sunday night and find a lot of idiots lined up on the sidewalk. They crowd along on the walks and compel women and children to elbow their way through. I'd like to see the girls arm themselves with a hat pin two feet long and give every fellow that stands in her way a good poke."

Teachers Institute.

The Hancock County teachers institute will meet this year on June 15th at the Garner high school building and continue two weeks. The following will be the instructors:

Pres. J. F. Hirsch, of Charles City, will have charge of the classes in didactics and physiology. Pres. J. D. Stout will have classes in grammer,, algebra and physics. C W. Thompson and M. F. Moine will have classes. Miss Bush will give lessons in methods.

This office last week and this week issued supplements, a full page in size, for H. J. Klemme, who is going to hold, on June 20th, an Auction Sale, at which time he will sell all the lots that belong to him and are in the town plat of Klemme. An accurate plat of the town is printed on the supplement and that will help to get your location.

Avaunt, go, get out with your shirt waists for men. It isn't necessary that man should become delicate and imposing with his arms and neck and wear a chiffon waist. It doesn't attract any attention anyway! Those plain 25 cent calico shirts are good enough for us. Father wore them and that settles it.

FARM FURROWS,

From IOWA HOMESTEAD.

So many people seem to take comfort in the tomato. It is fast growing away from the vegetable and assuming the fruit class.

The situation may become serious if there is not a stop to sending the best mares to market. Keeping inferior ones for breeding is only making matters worse.

It would be better to encourage the nesting of birds around the premises rather than kill them off. Encourage the boys to put up houses for birds and prevent robbing nests and killing birds. Too many of the farmers' best friends have been destroyed.

Bugs, worms and insects are on the increase and are enemies to the farmer. Birds are enemies of bugs, etc. The moral is plain.

A good garden on a good farm with a good gardner is a good thing for the family. The way to keep a garden is to keep it busy. As one crop matures put in another to occupy the ground. A little study will soon indicate what crops to employ in the rotation.

If the bank account gets small, if the acreage is not as large as one would like please remember that all have a large supply of weeds. This is a crop that is never disapointing. It is a crop that nobody cares to have in abundance and yet a good crop will come with little or no effort on the part of the farmer.

The pen is mightier than the sword; no one can sign a mortgage with a sword, neither can he sign it with a pig pen.

There is more or less fun in growing all kinds of crops. It is not always the fun that is in growing and harvesting the crops but the fun the grower gets out of it. When I was a boy I would not enlist in anything unless I could see some fun in it, and I am very much that way yet. Fun is amusement, diversion, re-action, relaxation and merriment, and I very much prefer these in the work of growing crops than lassitude, disgust and monotony.

Sciatic Rheumatism Cured After Fourteen Years of Suffering.

I have been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for fourteen years, says Josh Edger, of Germantown, Cal. I was able to be around but constantly suffered. I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured and I am happy to say it has not yet returned." Why not use this liniment and get well? It is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

Fought For His Life.

"My mother and sister both died of Consumption, writes J. T. Weatherwax, of Wyandotte, Mich., "and I was saved from the same frightful fate only by Dr. King's New Discovery. An attack of pneumonia left an obstinate cough and very severe lung trouble which an excellant doctor could not help, but a few month's use of this wonderful medicine made me as well as ever and I gained much in weight" Infallible for coughs, colds and all throat and lung trouble. Trial bottles free. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00 at Harr's drug store.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed, The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh. by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and exteral medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will recieve special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure" Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Immigration into Cuba continues te almost exclusively from the Spanish eninsula, 12,094 persons out of a total 14,578 in the second half of 1900 aving come from Spain. It is aston-ing to learn that in the same time ty seventeen immigrants to Cuba ere from the United States. The tuation reminds one of what the his-ian Froude said years ago: "What-er the eventual fate of Cuba, the panish race has taken root there, and visibly destined to remain. The electric street railroad is little ore than ten years old, and yet a an whose business it was to inves-gate all the lines which were first ut in, says that almost nothing of hat he then found is in use today. ractically all the appliances of elec-ic railroading of that time have one to the scrap-heap, so rapid have een the improvements in this new eld. There is always an experimental age in new inventions, during which hanges take place rapidly. Then ex-erience sits out the best, the forms of achinery become established, and fter that improvements are comparat-ely rare.

They can hardly con-ider the outlook encouraging. When he matter was laid before President Diaz he made this comment: "If prize fighting is too low and brutal for he United States, and is offensive to he best public opinion there, it is oo low and too brutal for Mexico. The nilitary forces of this republic will be nstructed to arrest every person con-nected with the proposed fight if found within our territorial limits;" and orders to that effect were promptly ransmitted to both civil and military uthorities on the frontier.

Queen Wilhelmina is about to leave her dominions with her husband for a yachting cruise in Italian waters, touching at Genoa, Naples, Palermo, Sicily and Venice, embarking at Genoa on board a yacht which has been char-tered for the purpose. The prince con-sort will not return with her to Hol-land, but will take his leave of her at Venice, or perhaps at Port Said, if she chooses to accompany him so far on his voyage, and will then proceed on board a man-of-war, escorted by two cruisers, to the Dutch East Indies, re-turning late in the autumn.

The Cunard steamer Saxonia reached Boston the other day with 2,172 pas-sengers from Liverpool—a whole town-ship of people—1,972 of them steerage. Scandinavians and Norwegians made up the largest factor of them, some 900 or so, with 826 Irish immigrants, 208 English adults—not reckoning in children and infants, some Finns and people of other nationalities. There were some 300 or more would-be im-migrants left waiting at Queenstown because the Cunard Company did not care to take them in the Saxonia.

The Dover Delawarean records the fact that Elias Joseph of Jerusalem, and Miss Mary Sheaby of Bethlehem were married at Holy Cross Church Sunday morning by Rev. Father Wal-dron. They will reside near Frederica, at a little village called Little Heaven.

Mantua, after nearly twenty centu-ries, has remembered that it is the birthplace of Virgil and set to work to erect a monument to its great poet. The sum of $20,000 has been raised and artists are called on to send in plans in competition.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

BIG BEET SUGAR COMPANY.

It Is Incorporated in Harrison County With $1,000,000 Capital.

Des Moines, June 1.—Advices from Missouri Valley are that articles of incorporation of a powerful beet sugar company have already been filed with the recorder of Har-rison county and will soon be filed with the secretary of state here. The company has a capital of $1,000,-000 and its articles will permit it to maintain branch offices anywhere in the state. Walter A. Smith is the president of the new company, and Representative James Kirkwood of Harrison county is its secretary.

This is one of the first and much the largest corporation to be orga-nized for the manufacture of beet sugar in Iowa since the enactment of the measure in the Twenty-eighth general assembly that exempted capi-tal engaged in the manufacture of beet sugar from taxes. Under this law, all the mills, buildings, and ap-pliances used in the manufacture of sugar in the state, including the land on which the buildings are located, not to exceed ten acres, all the per-sonal property used in connection with the business and the shares and certificates of stock are exempt from taxation until January 1, 1910. Under this also, no corporation fee can be charged for filing the articles with the secretary of state. The under-standing here is that the company intends to erect a large factory and engage in the business in earnest. Some months ago a company was or-ganized at Fort Dodge, but there was no manufactory erected.

NATURAL GAS IN POLK COUNTY.

Three Wells on Acton Farm, in Madison Township.

Des Moines, June 1.—Gas has been found in Polk county. Three wells have been sunk on the farm of M. A. Acton, a prominent farmer of Madi-son township, whose land abuts the county line on the west, is but one and one-half miles from the north county line and is about two miles from High Bridge. In each of these three wells the flow of gas is sufficient to create a perceptible current at the surface and burns when a flame is applied. The flow has not appreciably dimin-ished and creates an odor that can be detected for a considerable dis-tance. The first well was bored two weeks ago by J. W. Nash, a profes-sional well digger of Indianola. Gas was struck at a depth of ninety feet and existed in such a quantity as to cause the water to bubble in a man-ner similar to boiling water. An at-tempt to secure a better flow of water was made by sinking a twelve-inch well a short distance away and at a depth of 105 feet similar phenom-ena was experienced, the flow of gas being even more marked than in the first well. A third attempt was made and at a depth of 110 feet a larger flow of gas was encountered, but a satisfactory flow of water was ob-tained.

M'KINLEY CROSSES IOWA.

Announced That Mrs. McKinley Is Steadily Improving.

Cedar Rapids, May 29.—The trip of the presidential train from Omaha eastward yesterday across the state of Iowa was made over the Chicago & Northwestern. To avoid the crowds at the stations engines and train crews were changed a few miles from the end of each division. Few stops were made but the train was slowed up at the principal towns and cities and the president appeared on the rear platform. This is Secretary Wilson's home state and he shared the honors with the president. At Tama, where Mr. Wilson formerly re-sided, there was a big crowd to greet them both, but no stop was made. At Marshalltown the local G. A. R. post was lined up in the station.

Mrs. McKinley's condition has con-tinued to show steady but no rapid improvement since she left San Fran-cisco. She is gaining some strength and the president is much encourag-ed. She has not yet left her couch, however. Dr. Rixey does not desire to have her tax her strength, but he permits her to sit up in bed most of the day.

RIVALS A KENTUCKY VENDETTA.

Feud Breaks Out at a Small Settlement Near Fort Dodge.

Fort Dodge, May 29.—A feud has broken out in Skihagen, a small set-tlement here, that threatens to assume dangerous proportions. For some time malicious mischief, consisting in cutting animals and leaving them to bleed to death, destroying harness and machinery has been going on, and now that some of the aggrieved per-sons have made complaint, one has been shot at and narrowly missed be-ing killed. Sam Stauffacher is in jail, and a warrant is out for Arch West, both charged with malicious mischief. Doc Kelley, instrumental in securing the warrant for West, was shot at by an unseen party.

TRAGEDY IN A LIQUOR JOINT.

Woman Thrown Headlong Down a Flight of Stairs at Perry.

Perry, May 29.—Mrs. D. E. Daugh-erty, after swearing out a search war-rant for an alleged liquor joint ad-joining her husband's office and find-ing the proprietor had fled, was thrown headlong down the long flight of stairs by some unknown party. She was picked up unconscious, and found to have broken her right leg in two places, large pieces of bone pro-truding several inches. She is not ex-pected to live and excitement is run-ning high, indicating that the liquor joints may be Carrie Nationized.

Young Man Shot by Tramp.

Perry, June 2.—A. D. Daugherty, 25 years of age, was shot and instantly killed here by a tramp. Daugherty and two other Perry young men were at the edge of the city, when two tramps came along. The latter had some goods they offered to sell. A quarrel arose over the goods, and one of the tramps drew a revolver and fired, killing Daugherty instant-ly. The tramps escaped, but are be-ing pursued by officers. Young Daugherty's mother lies at the point of death from falling down stairs a few days ago.

Dedicate New Orphans' Home.

Waverly, June 1.—The new orphans' home of the Lutheran synod of Iowa and other states, recently completed at a cost of $35,000, was formally ded-icated in the presence of 5,000 people. Excursion trains were run from all directions, and upward of 1,000 came from Dubuque alone. The exercises were held in a large pavilion engaged for the occasion. The home is locat-ed on the western outskirts of the city and is a handsome structure, beautifully situated.

Man Dragged Two Miles.

Perry, May 29.—Luther Kinney, liv-ing near Jamaica, was thrown from his buggy on the highway east of that place and dragged two miles by the lines. He was dead when picked up, his body being terribly bruised.

Shooting Affray in Ringgold County.

Mt. Ayr, May 29.—Jacob S. Miller and R. W. Shaffer, two Middle Fork township farmers, engaged in a quar-rel over some cattle belonging to Shaffer which had been trespassing on Miller's farm, and in the hot words that followed Miller picked up a Win-chester rifle lying near and shot Shaf-fer in the right thigh. The ball passed through his leg, coming out near the groin. Shaffer will recover unless blood poisoning results. Miller has been arrested and placed under $1,000 bonds to appear before the grand jury. The two men were cousins.

OBELISK TO HIS MEMORY.

Monument to Sergeant Floyd Dedicated at Sioux City.

Sioux City, May 31.—With most im-pressive ceremonies, and in the pres-ence of a large crowd of people, a large obelisk of enduring sand stone was yesterday dedicated to Sergeant Charles Floyd, the only member of the famous Lewis and Clark expedi-tion who died during its explorations and the first United States soldier to be buried within the domain of the great empire of the trans-Mississippi country. His remains lie upon Floyd bluff, below Sioux City, and the 104 foot monument overlooks the entire Missouri valley.

The ceremonies were attended by a large number of distinguished men and women. Hon. John A. Kasson delivered the principal address, a magnificent study of the expansion of the republic in which he upheld the country growth.

Dr. James D. Butler, of Madison, Wis., discoverer of the Sergeant Floyd diary of the expedition, and Mrs. Elliotts Coues, widow of the his-torian of the expedition, were promi-nent also in the exercises.

The monument is the fruition of years of labor on the part of Presi-dent John Charles of the Memorial association. By dint of hard work he and several other pioneers re-discov-ered Floyd's grave in 1895 and organ-ized a society for the building of a suitable monument. Congressman Geo. D. Perkins secured a $5,000 ap-propriation from congress in 1899 and the state, city, county and private citizens have added enough to erect an obelisk at the cost of about $20,000.

HERRON AND WIFE SETTLE.

The Socialists Have Located on a Farm at Pompton, N. J.

New York, June 3.—Prof. and Mrs. George D. Herron have arrived at Pompton, N. J., and their honeymoon will be spent on the farm of the bride at that point. The farm was a gift to the bride from her mother, Mrs. E. D. Rand, of Burlington, Iowa. It contains thirty acres, and it is as-serted the pair propose to found there a socialist college along the lines of the peculiar beliefs espoused by the former clergyman and profes-sor of applied Christianity at Grin-nell college. Professor Herron denies that a colony is to be established. It is the intenton of the pair to plant potatoes and hoe corn during their honeymoon.

Preachers, lawyers and public in-structors pillory the socialistic bride-groom. One of them refers to him as a "violator of moral and civil law." They believe he intends to establish a community there which will defy the marriage laws of New Jersey.

FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR AMES.

One Man Killed and Another Badly Injured on the Northwestern.

Ames, June 3.—An accident, result-ing in the death of Earl Cline and severe injuries to George Kitsol, sec-tionmen, both of Sheldahl, due to un-familiarity with the new double track, occurred about two miles east of Ames.

Andy Olson, section foreman, had sent them to a nearby farm house for a pail of water, and they were walking down the south track watch-ing an approaching train from the west on the opposite track, when a lone engine from the east struck them, severing Cline's head from his body and injuring Kistol about the back and head, cutting off part of his left ear. Cline was about twenty years of age, while Kistol is fifty-two.

Trewin Carries Linn County.

Cedar Rapids, June 1.—The Trewin men won out in the caucuses last night in all the eight wards, the Cum-mins forces succeeding only in elect-ing a ward commiteeman in the Eighth. This gives Trewin seventy delegates to add to the twenty-one he already has from the rural pre-cincts. Cummins has the fourteen votes from Marion. Trewin will un-doubtedly win in the remainder of the caucuses.

Charged With Murderous Assault.

Cedar Rapids, May 31.—William No-ble was arrested, charged with an assault with intent to commit murder on the person of Wallace Noble, his nephew. Wallace Noble, the com-plaining witness, came to Justice Rall's court looking as if he had come from the shambles. His face was bleeding from half a dozen knife wounds, and his escape from death was narrow.

Woman Burned to Death.

Dubuque, May 29.—A frightful acci-dent occurred at Twin Springs, near here. Mrs. Henriette Groettinger, 72 years old, started a fire to cook break-fast. Somehow the house was set on fire and burned to the ground. A charred lump of flesh was all that was left. Her husband got away with the money and other valuables se-cured during the progress of the fire.

The Herron-Rand Wedding.

New York, May 28.—News of the marriage of Prof. George D. Herron, formerly of Grinnell, Iowa, and Miss Carrie Rand, of Burlington, Iowa, was confirmed last night by Franklin Wentworth and Dr. Charles Bhodie Paterson, two of the professor's close-est friends in the city. The marriage was performed at the home of Dr. Patterson, on West Forty-fifth street, Manhattan, on Saturday. Rev. Wil-liam Brown of Rochester officiated. He is pastor of the Universalist church, and is called the most liberal minister in the state. There were no guests, merely the friends mentioned and a few members of their families.

THE SALIENT POINTS.

What Supreme Court Decisions in Insular Cases Mean.

Washington, May 29.—Following are the salient points in decisions of the supreme court in the insular cases, undoubtedly the greatest decision ever made by that tribunal:

1. The constitution does not follow the flag ex propria vigore—of its own force.

2. The United States may enter up-on a colonial policy—has already en-tered upon it—without violation of the constitution.

3. This nation has all the powers that rightfully belong to a sovereign international state and may acquire territory without incorporating such territory as an integral part of itself.

4. The simple act of acquisition by treaty or otherwise does not auto-matically bring about such incorpora-tion; and incorporation is effected only by the will of the states acting consciously through congress.

5. Porto Rico is not a part of the United States, but "a territory appur-tenant and belonging to the United States." Tariffs established by con-gress upon goods coming from or go-ing to Porto Rico are valid and col-lectible. The Foraker act is consti-tutional.

6. Congress has full power over the territories, may regulate and dispose of them, may at its discretion extend the constitution to them, may admit them as states, or may hold them indefinitely as territories, colonies or dependencies.

7. Porto Rico is not a "foreign country" and therefore the Dingley law, which levies duties upon goods imported "from foreign countries," dose not apply to Porto Rico. Nor yet is "Porto Rico a part of the Uni-ted States." It is a domestic terri-tory, over which congress has "unre-stricted control."

DECISION IN INSULAR CASES.

May Necessitate Calling of an Extra Session of Congress.

Cedar Rapids, May 29.—The presi-dent and the members of the cabinet spent much time yesterday reading and discussing the published reports of the opinions of the supreme court in the insular cases. They were much interested in the way the court divided in the two cases. The decision in the De Lima case, if followed in the Philippine islands, as it is as-sumed it will be, might result in the calling of an extra session of con-gress. In the De Lima case the court decided that the duties collected on Porto Rican goods before congress enacted the Foraker law were illegal and must be refunded. It is pre-sumed that the court, following the same lines of reasoning, will decide that the duties collected on goods from the Philippines were also ille-gal, and were and are subject to free entry into the United States until congress acts, as it has already done, in the case of Porto Rico. Such a decision would mean not only the refunding of duties heretofore col-lected, but would open the ports of the United States to goods and mer-chandise of every description from the Philippines until congress meets in December. It is probable that im-porters might take advantage of this to ship goods into the United States through the Philippines and thus de-fraud the government of its revenues. Whether the danger from this source is great enough to warrant the call-ing of congress in extra session is one which will be decided only after full deliberation.

BRITONS ARE STIRRED UP.

Three Columns of Casualties Show Boer War Is Not Ended.

London, June 1.—The South African casualty lists, which fill three col-umns of the Times, recall forcibly to the unwilling British mind that the Boer war is still full of fiery action. These heavy losses in killed and wounded are chiefly the result of en-gagements that Lord Kitchener had not condescended previously to re-port, and they have let out a flood of indignant criticism, of which the anti-war party enjoys no monopoly.

Such stanch supporters of the gov-ernment as the St. James Gazette and the Daily Mail join in protesting in vigorous language against this "alarming policy of concealment." The evening papers teem with com-munications from citizens of all classes, complaining in a similar strain. They assert that "things have reached a pitiable point for old Eng-land," when suppression must be in-voked to distract attention from the endless unpleasantness in South Africa.

ON CONSTITUTION CONSTRUCTION.

Lengthy Message Sent Gen. Wood on Platt Amendment.

Washington, June 3.—Secretary Root was with the president for about an hour and a half Saturday, discuss-ing with him a cablegram which had been prepared to be sent to General Wood at Havana, relating to the ac-tion of this government on the Cu-ban constitutional convention. This message is long and has been for-warded to General Wood with the idea of having him communicate it to the constitutional convention. It will not be made public at this time, and probably not until the conven-tion takes action. It is officially stated that the United States will remain in control of Cuba until the Platt amendment has been "substan-tially" adopted. This was mode known to General Woods by Secretary Root and his action has been approved by the president.

SEE DEFEAT FOR M'LAURIN.

Washington Politicians Discuss the South Carolina Row.

Washington, June 1—Sufficient time nas elapsed since the resignation of Senator Tillman and Senator McLaur-in from the United States senate for public men at Washington to frame their opinions as to the outcome of the struggle which will come in Sep-tember, when the two South Carolina leaders will submit their differences to the people for vindication. The consensus of belief here is that Mc-Laurin will be defeated. In spite of this it is urged that he will surprise the country with the showing he will make at the polls. Already the dem-ocrats begin to realize that the bluff which was made by Mr. Tillman was called, and it means unusually hard work in the state. The power of the state democratic machine, of which Tillman is the head, will be used to the uttermost.

Thirty-one Dead Infants.

London, May 31.—A sensation has been caused at Birmingham by the discovery of the bodies of thirty-one infants in a cellar beneath an under-taker's establishment. The bodies were in various stages of decomposi-tion and huddled together in soap boxes. The establishment was con-ducted by a widow, who today was charged with causing the infants' deaths. The prisoner was remanded.

B., C. R. & N. Strike Settled.

Cedar Rapids, May 29.—The B., C. R. & N. strike, embracing about 300 blacksmiths, boiler makers, machin-ists, railway carmen and members of the Federated Union, has been de-clared off, after lasting nearly three months. The men resisted the intro-duction of the piece work system in the shops, but it is understood that no reference to this system is made in the terms of the settlement, neith-er side wishing to claim the result as a victory. Many of the men have found other employment and will not return to the shops. The others will return to work at once.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY AT HOME.

Arrived at National Capital—Mrs. McKinley Improving.

Washington, May 31.—The train bearing the president and Mrs. Mc-Kinley and the party accompanying them on the tour through the west ended its journey here at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning exactly on sched-ule time. Mrs. McKinley was imme-diately removed in a carrige in wait-ing and driven slowly to the White House. She looked pale and worn, the natural result of the grave ordeal through which she recently has passed. Secretary Cortelyou stated that she was bearing up splendidly. "She passed a comfortable night," he said, "and is feeling better today. She shows a gradual improvement."

ACTION UNSATISFACTORY

Cuban Convention Must Take Up Platt Amendment Again.

Washington, June 1.—The adminis-tration has decided that the action of the Cuban constitutional convention in accepting the terms of the Platt amendment with modifications and interpretations of their own is not "substantial" compliance with our terms within the meaning of the amendment and Secretary Root will convey this intelligence to the con-vention. The decision was reached at the cabinet meeting yesterday.

The meeting lasted over an hour and a half and had been preceded by an hour's conference between the president and Senators Platt of Con-necticut and Lodge of Massachusetts. As the author of the amendment the president desired to learn the views of Senator Platt and also those of Senator Lodge, who is one of the in-fluential members of the committee on foreign relations. At the cabinet meeting Secretary Root took the po-sition that the interpretation of the Platt amendment contained in the constitution adopted by the conven-tion and the whereases appended to it, went outside of a fair interpreta-tion of its meaning and was unac-ceptable. In this view the cabinet concurred. When asked as to what would be the next step of the govern-ment after the Cuban convention had been notified of the rejection of its action one of the members of the cabinet said that the government could do nothing further until the convention again acted, that as long as the conditions of the Platt amend-ment were on the statute book com-pliance with must precede our re-linquishment of control over the is-land.

DIXON'S LOSS SEVERE.

Killed and Wounded Number One Hundred and Seventy-four.

London, June 1.—On the anniver-sary of Lord Robert's entry into Jo-hannesburg the country has been startled by the receipt of the news of desperate fighting and heavy British losses within forty miles of the gold reef city. The battle at Vladfontein, on the Durban-Johannesburg rail-road, reported by Lord Kitchener yes-terday, is the most serious engage-ment since General Clement's reverse at Magaliesburg. It shows General Delarey is in no way daunted by the capture of eleven of his guns by Gen-eral Babington six weeks ago. The garrison of Vladfontein, apparently largely composed of yeomanry, had 174 men put out of action. That their assailants came to close quar-ters and suffered heavily is shown by the number of dead left on the field.

The dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, May 30, is as follows:

"General Dixon's force at Vladfon-tein was attacked yesterday by De-larey's forces and there was severe fighting. The enemy was eventually driven off with heavy losses, leaving thirty-five dead. I regret that our casualties also were severe. The killed and wounded numbered 174. Four officers were killed."

FOREIGN MINISTERS ARE PLEASED

China's Acceptance of Indemnity Figure Makes Task Easy.

Peking, June 3.—China's uncondi-tional acceptance of 450,000,000 taels as the indemnity to be paid the pow-ers has caused great satisfaction among the foreign ministers, as it only leaves practically a few minor details to complete the negotiations.

The phrase in the joint note "to the satisfaction of the powers," may cause some delay in the evacuation of Chinese territory, as the ministers fail to see how China can guarantee payment, and as all the ministers be-lieve it would be a mistake to have a large body of foreign officials col-lecting revenue. Were revenue thus collected, over 2,000 officials would be required and the aggregate salaries of these men would be very large, and amount to more than the ordi-nary Chinese "squeeze." The ma-jority of the ministers now favor raising the customs to 10 per cent and taking 5,000,000 taels yearly from the Ikn tax. This method would give, after the payment of interest on foreign debts now existing, about 23,000,000 taels a year. The ministers would agree to this system if China will discontinue the collection of all likin duties on foreign goods.

ARMIES MAY BE REDUCED.

European Powers Considering Advisability of Smaller Establishments.

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The re-cent success of the raw American troops over the skilled soldiers of Spain and the prolonged and success-ful resistance of the Boers to the well-disciplined armies of Great Brit-ain have brought the volunteer sol-dier into high repute throughout Eu-rope.

M. de Bloch, the great peace apostle and friend of the czar, who has been visiting in Europe, talked in an in-teresting way a few days ago in Vienna on the subject of M. Del-casse's trip to St. Petersburg. He de-clares that the French minister had three important points to discuss with Count Lamsdorf. These were: The further participation of Italy in the triple alliance, the transforma-tion of the French military service as a direct consequence of the Trans-vaal war and the affairs of China. He says that the present French cab-inet is inclined to follow a concilia-tory policy toward Germany and that the French populace now shows an amiable disposition toward Germans.

BOTHA IMPORTUNES KRUGER.

General Said to Have Asked "Oom Paul" to Sue for Peace.

London, June 3.—The Sun pub-lishes a sensational story to the ef-fect that General Botha has arrived at Standerton, and is communicating by telegraph with Mr. Kruger, through the Netherlands government, appealing to Mr. Kruger to sue for peace. Lord Kitchener is said to have given Botha permission to adopt this course.

The Sun further hears that 10,000 Zulus have gone on the warpath, ow-ing to Boer raids in Zululand.

Three Shot Near Sioux City.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 29.—Because he was called a "cheap skate" at a colored church social, Harry Baker walked a mile, procured a revolver, returned to the church and shot three other negroes, one of whom, Jim Askew, will die. The others, Charles Watkins and Louis Cloyd, are not dangerously wounded. Rival-ry for the affections of a colored girl, and the statement that he could not buy ice cream, caused Baker to com-mit the crime.

The woman who does not yearn for a new dress has not yet ap-peared.

SOLDIERS INDULGE IN A RIOT.

Wrecked a Saloon Just Outside the Presidio at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., June 3.—A mob of soldiers, numbering 500 or 600, in-dulged in a riot and wrecked Mrs. Powers' saloon, one of the many drinking places just outside of the Presidio reserve. There are a great many conflicting stories as to the origin of the trouble. The soldiers of the Forty-sixth volunteer infan-try were mustered out of service yes-terday and the men given their dis-charges and pay. Most of the men had several hundred dollars coming to them, and they did considerable drinking in the Presidio.

A man by the name of Morgan, of the Forty-sixth was found uncon-scious in front of Mrs. Powers' sa-loon. Two of Morgan's company mates took him to camp for treat-ment. The doctor pronounced it a case where drugs had been adminis-tered. The news spread rapidly through the camp and soon there was a dozen or more men running to Mrs. Powers' saloon. They de-manded reparation for the drugging of their comrade, but any knowledge of the affair was denied. Two or three ex-soldiers, lounging about the place, sided in with the woman and ordered the soldiers from the prem-ises. They went back for reinforce-ments and spread the report that two of their companions had been killed in this saloon.

A mob made up of members from the Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth regi-ments then rushed pellmell through the Presidio gates to the saloon. Stones were gathered on the way and then the place was stormed. Every window in the place was broken, and the interior demolished completely. The gas jets were snapped off and the coal lamps overturned. Mrs. Powers estimates the damages at $2,000. Not a thing was left intact in the saloon.

NEGRO BURNED AT THE STAKE.

A White Woman's Murderer Meets Retribution in Florida.

Bartow, Fla., May 31.—Fred Ro-chelle, a negro, 35 years of age, who at noon Tuesday criminaly assaulted and then murdered Mrs. Rena Tag-gart, a well known and respectable white woman of this city, was burned at the stake here in the presence of a throng of people.

The burning was on the scene of the negro's crime, within 100 yards of the principal thoroughfare of the city.

The assault and murder was one of the boldest and coldest-blooded crimes ever committed in Florida.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning Mrs. Taggart went fishing in a small row boat that she kept at the city bridge over Piaco creek. This is in full view of the public thoroughfare.

A few minutes before noon, desir-ing to return home, she rowed her boat to the bridge and made it fast. Mrs. Taggart started home and had only proceeded a few steps in the swamp toward the open prairie and thence to the street, when she was approached by Rochelle, who had been hiding in the swamp. He seized her and she broke loose, and, scream-ing, ran from the swamp into the prairie, where he overtook her.

After the assault, while she was prostrate, he held her with his hands and knees, and taking his knife from his pocket, cut her throat from ear to ear causing instant death.

FILIPINOS GET PASSPORTS.

State Department Decides They Are Entitled to Them.

Washington, June 3.—In answer to his application for instructions, Sec-retary Hay has directed Ambassador Choate at London to issue passports to the two Filipinos who appeared at the embassy "as residents of the Philippine islands, and as such en-titled to the protection of the United States."

The decision upon this point is of importance, as having perhaps some bearing upon the status of the people of the Philippines, Porto Rico and Guam.

The United States statutes prohibit the issue of a passport to any but American citizens. But those later acts, the Foraker act and the Spooner act, impose obligations in their turn which may be regarded as qualifying the original act, and may enable the government to avoid a de-cision upon the question of Ameri-can citizenship of the islanders.

At any rate the circular instruc-tions now in formulation which will be sent out to all United States dip-lomatic and consular representatives will direct them to issue, not certifi-cates, but genuine American pass-ports to the islanders.

CARE NOT FOR CUSTOMERS.

English Manufacturers Adopt a Policy Which May Lead to Ruin.

London, June 3.—Commenting on Lord Hamilton's letter replying to the attack of Sir Alfred Hickman, in the house of commons, May 23, of American locomotives and bridges, the newspapers are unsparing in their criticism of what the St. James Gazette calls the "you-be-damned" attitude of British manufacturers to-ward the customers. The St. James Gazette applauds Lord Hamilton's crushing, brutal frankness in com-menting on the "Micawber methods of British employers and the selfish idleness of British workmen," and, proceeding to censure the methods of trades unionists as "thoroughly and unscrupulously dishonest," the paper says it could almost wish Lord Hamilton had not given an undertak-ing to give preference to British firms where it is possible, as "it would be well for the future that our industrial classes learn the bitter lesson of their experience."

MANY SKELETONS DUG UP.

Five Hundred Found by a Canadian Farmer.

Toronto, Ont., June 3.—On the farm of Audrew Dean at Jordan, Ont., there has just been plowed up over 500 hu-man skeletons. No record in history accounts for such a find. There is no account of a battle in that neighbor-hood. Skulls are found from that of an infant to the fully developed one of an adult, so it must have been a whole village destroyed by some ruthless enemy.

There was no settlement of white people there to be destroyed, and be-fore the advent of the white men two great tribes of Indians— the Hurons on the west and the Iroquois on the east—had agreed by treaty to recog-nize this territory between the two great lakes from Niagara extending westward about forty miles as neu-tral territory.

Steamer Hits Snag and Sinks.

Burlington, May 29.—The steamer Dubuque of the Diamond Jo Line struck a snag and sank in shallow water eighteen miles north of Burl-ington. There were fifty passengers on board, but there were no fatalities.

Treasure in an Old Garret.

Eldora, May 31.—In reshingling an old house on his farm, Martin Fin-ster, living near Steamboat Rock, today discovered in the garret several hundred silver dollars. The money had evidently lain there for years, as many of the coins bear the mark of 1820. How they came there or by whom placed is a mystery.

Both Resignations Are Refused.

Columbia, S. C., June 3.—Governor McSweeney has rejected the resigna-tion of Senators Tillman and Mc-Laurin to give them time to con-sider their action.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, June 2, 1901.

Grain men of the city state that the acreage of small grain in Iowa this year will be about 25 per cent smaller than last year. Many of the farmers have cut down their acreage of wheat and oats and have planted corn instead. This fact is due large-ly to the high price that has been re-ceived for corn during the past year, and also to the high price that cattle and hogs have brought. Owing to the fact that the outlook for oats has been so poor in some sections the farmers have plowed up their oats fields and have planted them in corn instead. This will cut down the acre-age of oats to a greater extent than the first reports indicated. Mr. S. D. Wadsworth, a prominent implement man of this city, says that in his opin-ion the acreage of small grain will be smaller this year than even the grain men are aware. "We have been unable to supply the demand for corn planters this spring," said he, "and from what I have learned from the dealers in implements over the state the acreage of corn will be much larger this year than ever before, and the acreage of small grains will be correspondingly cut down."

According to a decision of the su-preme court druggists are responsible for the acts of registered pharmac-ists in their employ and the Sims Drug company of Des Moines will have to pay a judgment of $900 to Orin Burgess for a pharmacist's mis-take. Burgess brought action against the firm, consisting of W. D. and George C. Sims, for damages for in-juries alleged to have resulted to him from negligence on the part of the drug company in putting up medicine for the eye that caused the loss of an eye to the plaintiff. The defendants denied the negligence alleged and averred the prescription was filled by a skilled, competent and duly regis-tered pharmacist in their employ, and that they were not responsible for the acts of a pharmacist duly licensed by the state. They cited the example of a railroad, which is not liable for the acts of a surgeon in its employ, and that of a bank, which is not re-sponsible for the negligence of a no-tary public in protesting a note turned over to the notary by the bank. The court held these examples were not analogous and affirmed the lower court's decision, in which judg-ment for $900 was given to the plain-tiff.

Banks, who has spent nearly eighteen years in the saddle of a United States cavalryman, and who holds the record at the local recruit-ing station for the number of enlist-ments, has been recruited here for the sixth time, Captain Sweezey as-signing him to the Fourteenth cav-alry at Leavenworth.

By a vote of 90 to 63 the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church adopted the judiciary commit-tee's report with regard to an inter-pretation of article 15 of the creed. The action of the assembly is in effect to exclude members of secret orders from admission to the church. It is also interpreted to mean, by some of the delegates, the expulsion of mem-bers of the church who now belong to the secret societies.

The statement of the condition of the state and savings banks of Iowa at the close of business April 24, com-piled from free reports furnished in response to the recent call for that date, has been issued by Auditor Mer-riam. It shows a tremendous growth in the amount of money on deposit in the state and savings banks since the last statement was issued, based on reports at the close of business December 13. The increase in depos-its in the period from December 13 to April 24 was $14,493,931.69. Since June 30, 1900, the increase in the amount due depositors has exceeded $21,000,000. In the same period the number of state and savings banks transacting business in the state has increased from 448 to 472. The state-ment of the condition of the savings banks shows that at the close of busi-ness April 24 they had assets of $83,-642,085.25, and liabilities of the same amount. The sum due depositors in savings banks was $71,755,804.75. The total number of savings banks shown by the tatement is 255. There were 217 state banks at the close of busi-ness April 24, with total assets of $53,625,013.80. The amount due de-positors in the state banks was $46,-709,459.55.

The Rock Island road has a corps of engineers in the field surveying a cut-off on its main line between this city and Council Bluffs. It is pro-posed to build a direct route from Minden to Avoca. By the building of the line five miles of the distance between Des Moines and Council Bluffs would be cut off. At Avoca the line runs northwest several miles to the town of Shelby and then runs southwest to Minburn. The proposed cut-off will follow a route about five miles south of Shelby and will be about ten miles long as a distance of about sixteen miles the two points by the present route.

Secretary of State Martin has in-dicated his intenton to follow the law pertaining to the compensation of the state binder strictly. If this policy is followed out it will mean a saving to the state of several thou-sand dollars yearly. The secretary was recently called upon to pass a bill for binding the fire insurance re-port of the auditor. The bill sub-mitted was at the rate of $720 for the 4,500 paper bound copies called for by statute. The proper compensa-tion for the binder as Mr. Martin figured it according to law would be $297.10. Mr. Martin has refused to allow the bill presented at the higher rate and will insist on the low-er rate, making a difference of $432.90 on this single job of work to the state. As the life insurance report is to follow shortly and a number of others, there is no question the new policy will effect a saving of several thousand dollars a year to the state.

William Le Van, who was given a three months' penitentiary sentence by Judge Smith McPherson for con-viction on a perjury charge, has been conveyed to Fort Madison. Before sentence was passed the court gave the prisoner his choice of three months in the county jail. He chose the former, declaring that he would rather serve twelve months in the pen

SPORT IN WESTERN CANADA.

While the Farmer's Grain Is Ripening and His Stock Growing Fat He May Have Plenty of Shooting.

There is probably no country on the American Continent where the life of the farmer carries with it that assurance of comfort and success as does Western Canada. Nor is there to be found anywhere else such a pleasant combination. Game abounds everywhere and nowhere does it afford such perfect amusement. A noted sportsman writing of the favorite pastime says: "There is one particular spot where I saw a man drop seventy mallards one morning and bring them all to bag, too, for they dropped in open water or on flat prairie. At the right season of the year you can see black lines and triangles cut sharply out against the sky all round you, moving very swiftly, and you begin to wonder whether you have enough cartridges to hold out. You can hear the prairie chicken crowing like barn-door fowls, and a little to the northeast is a bit of marshy ground, cattle-poached and dappled with gleaming pools, where the snipe are nearly as thick as mosquitoes. A thin column of blue smoke curling up in the distance shows you where a few wandering Indians have pitched their camp, but there is no other indication of civilization in sight. Still, the neighborhood is well-settled, and a short drive will bring you to a farmhouse, where you can buy the finest butter and the freshest eggs for uncivilized prices.

A very short railway journey will bring you to a country full of deer and the lordly wapiti, the king of the deer tribe the world over, and down on the flat, boggy land by the lake shores the moose will stand knee deep in water on the summer evenings ready to lie down when the flies get bothering. All day you breathe the wild free air of the prairie, and at night you are lulled to sleep by the surge and ripple and splash of the waves on the beach, broken now and then by the wierd banshee-cry of strange water-fowl." Hollow Ash... Hall

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

Mr. Cowley's jaw dropped. His face would have been a study for a painter as he gazed at his unearthy visitants, with his hands resting upon his knees.

He had threatened such visitors with the tongs, it is true; but pinching their noses was the thing furthest from his thoughts at that moment.

With his heart beating almost to suffocation, he watched their movements. He longed to speak, but the words died upon his lips, and his throat felt parched and hot.

Slowly they advanced towards his chair—the lady's sad eyes fixed silently on his face—the outstretched hand of the black man pointing towards his heart.

He bore it manfully for a moment; but nearer, still nearer, they came—the hand almost touched his shoulder!

It was too much for poor flesh and blood to bear.

He gave a sort of stifled cry—threw himself back in his chair—evaded the shadowy grasp, and dashed headlong from the room.

Up the dark stairs he flew, and finding his own door, rather by instinct than by sight, he blundered in, upsetting two chairs, and startling Mrs. Cowley from what was apparently her first and sweetest nap.

"What is the matter, my dear?" she said, sitting up in bed and rubbing her eyes. "Have you hurt yourself?"

"Oh, don't talk to me!" groaned Mr. Cowley. "Not one ghost have I seen, but two; and we'll get out of this infernal place tomorrow!"

Rose and Catharine hearing this in their own bedroom, had a hearty laugh and then went after the two ghosts, who were putting out the candles down below, and making themselves in many ways extremely useful.

Before the clock struck one, all the house was still—each inmate wrapped in a sound and peaceful sleep, including Mr. Cowley, who had recovered a little from his fright, and was troubled by no black man or murdered nun in his dreams.

CHAPTER XI.

From that fatal evening a new life began for Mr. Cowley. He was no longer "monarch of all he surveyed," for in every darkened room, in every obscure corner of the haunted house, lurked something unseen and unheard by others, but full of mysterious life and motion for him. If a mouse squeaked behind the wainscot, it would send him scurrying along the passage at the rate of ten miles an hour; if a door shut suddenly it made him tremble and turn pale; if a light shone in a window, if a board creaked unexpectedly beneath his feet, he was apt to start, and exclaim, "Lord, bless me!" in a tone that did Mrs. Cowley's very heart good. In one word, the worthy banker, from a snug, good-tempered denizen of Mecklenburgh Square, had become transformed into that strangest of animals, a haunted man! His sleep was no longer peaceful, for he was perpetually dreading a ghostly visit; while Mrs. Cowley snored placidly and provokingly at his side. His coffee lost its relish; his tea its flavor, and his nightly glass of Holland and water was taken more to screw his courage up to the sticking point rather than for an actual pleasure it gave to him in the peculiar and unwonted state of his mind.

He was horribly frightened. He hated that house with shivering hatred; he told himself that if he saw another actual apparition there something dreadful would happen to him; he would have a fit—an apoplectic one, very possibly—or perhaps a stroke of palsy, which would leave him with his face awry! It was a horrible thought; but he kept it manfully to himself. He would have suffered those slow tortures of agonized fear a hundred times over rather than own to the wife of his bosom that he had erred in selecting such a place for his residence. He might have said as much to some gentleman friend, if one had chanced to come in his way; but his wife—never! That was a concession too great by far for the worthy Englishman to make. No, the husband, like the king, could do no wrong, and he was determined to uphold that doctrine to the last gasp in his own family circle!

Do you think that same circle, meanwhile, was unaware of the struggle—unconscious of his fear? Not a bit of it! Mrs. Cowley, as she awoke each morning from a refreshing sleep and saw him lying pale and uneasy upon his pillow, smiled grimly to herself and wondered how long he would take to come to his senses again. His daughters, too, were rejoicing in the pangs their own mischievous arts had caused, even when they asked after "poor papa's headache" in such mellifluous tones each morning at the breakfast table. And Mrs. Macarthy—deceitful old sinner that she was—laughed till she cried sometimes over the broths and jellies which she made each day and which she pressed upon his acceptance with a face as long as an undertaker's.

The whole house was in league against him, and the poor wretch knew it not. Yet he stood it out manfully; and there seemed some danger that between his uneasiness and his obstinacy he would grow seriously ill. Besides, Christmas was fast approaching and the girls wanted to dance the New Year in and the Old Year out, at their own house in Mecklenburgh Square. What was to be done with the banker to make him strike his colors, desert his ship and own himself soundly beaten?

It was Rose who formed a fresh plan, which she thought might be successful. She proposed it that evening when the conspirators met, as usual in the turret chamber, to hatch new plots against the peace of the master of the house. But at first, Mrs. Cowley had somewhat to say.

"I'm afraid we shall have to give it up as a bad job," she remarked, shaking her head dolefully.

"Why, mamma?" asked Catharine.

"Your father will never own he is afraid, my dear; and I can see that we are killing him by inches. He is getting so thin; and, really he does not eat enough to keep a sparrow alive. If we should worry him into a fever or a consumption, I should never forgive myself."

"No fear of that, aunt, while his obstinacy lasts," replied her nephew, cheerfully. "But I wish to goodness he would get frightened and give us a chance of seeing a little more of this round world than we can expect to see while we are cooped up here. For my part, I feel as if I was a kind of iron mask. You ought to make me a handsome present for undergoing this imprisonment, aunt."

"So I will, my dear, if it ever comes to an end."

"There's the worst of it."

"I wonder if he suspects," said Marjorie.

"My love, how should he?"

"True! If he was a woman, now, I should feel sure that he had discovered our secret. Being a man, I suppose there is not much fear."

"Well," said Rose, complacently, "I think I can set you all free."

"How?"

"By inventing a new ghost, which I shall patent."

They all laughed.

"You see he cares little for the cradle now. In fact, I think we are all getting used to it. But if you will only do as I tell you—we will bring this old room into use—and take the letter and the lock of hair we found here, and scare him so he will be ready and willing to go out of the house the very next day.'

Rose then entered into all the details of her plan, which was pronounced an excellent one by every body present. In obedience to her instructions, Catharine had a toothache and Mrs. Cowley a headache the next evening, which forbade them sitting up later than nine o'clock. Mrs. Macarthy and Rose also retired at that early hour, to wait upon the invalids, and Mr. Cowley was left alone in his glory, without even a cat to bear him company. He did not object to the solitude, however. He mixed himself some more grog, smoked one or two cheroots, and finally took up a book to keep himself awake. It was a volume of American tales, and this was the story which, by ill-luck, he happened to select:

"While I lay one night in the first distempered visions of my illness, I heard those who watched beside me telling an old tale of a family long since extinct in our settlement.

"An old and wealthy man had won a fair young girl for his bride, and brought her from her native England to this distant country that he might separate her forever from an early love—a cousin to whom her hand had once been pledged and—so said the gossips—her heart always given.

"Gold is no less powerful in the mother country than this; and for its sake the father of the lovely Ginerva took back his pledged word, and gave his daughter to a stern and moody man, who little knew how to value the prize he had gained.

"So for America he sailed and built a stately home for his pale bride, on the very place where our quiet little village now stands.

Nothing was spared that taste could dictate or lavish wealth supply. But luxury was not what the Lady Ginerva desired while love was offered to her. Swiftly as they sailed across the bright blue sea, one followed close upon their track, and Reginald, the deserted lover, soon found his lady's fair retreat.

CHAPTER XII.

"Beautiful she was, but frail. And forgeting all womanly honor and duty she fled from her beautiful home, and from him who had given it to her. The injured husband discovered her treachery too late, for their horses' hoofs were spurning the pavements of the outer court before he left his room; and when he hurried down the stairs and to the hall door, an iron glove lay there, defying him to the last. At this sight his strong heart gave way and the pitying servants bore him back to his room a raving maniac. For three long years they watched him—in the fourth he needed not their care, but was at rest. Of the lost lady, no tidings were ever received, and as years went by, and the old hall began to decay, some enterprising settlers tore it down, and from its ruins, Phoenix-like, sprang up our pretty village of brighter days.

"This, or something akin to it, was the tale I heard, and in all my feverish visions after that night, the English Lady bore a conspicuous part. They tell me that I called for her incessantly; that I fancied myself, now the successful lover, now the forsaken husband; and could only be pacified by the assurance of her speedy return.

"Be this as it may, I can remember well how often I saw her standing by my bed, an airy, impalpable shape, of which I could not possibly discover a single feature; but all seemed a glittering array of misty loveliness. And when, in a voice that I could understand (though on the duller ears of my attendants it fell like the whispers of the evening wind) she bade me seek her at the Hall, how could I disobey? I only watched my opportunity and counterfeiting sleep one hot summer afternoon saw them all leave the rooms with noiseless steps, and I knew that I was free.

"The glass door at the lower end of my apartment led into the garden. From that, the lonely road led over the hill, and to the site of the Hall was easily gained. I drew my dressing gown around me, thrust my feet into a pair of embroidered slippers and passed out.

"Oh, the glad thrill that shot through my veins at the first free breath of the summer air! Oh, the delight with which my parched lips quaffed the clear water in the fountain by the arbor! I spilled it over me in my feverish haste! I threw it over my hot face, and over my closely shorn head! Then unfastening the little wooden gate I ran swiftly, longing, but not daring, to shout aloud in my joy, till the hill road was gained.

"I climbed the hills and descended the valleys—I waded through the morass, not without a sickening fear when I saw the brown and black water snakes glide lovingly in pairs around me.

"At length I stood upon the brow of the last hill and saw what I had not before discovered—that a precipice lay at my feet, jagged and rough enough, it is true, to admit of a careful descent, but still a fearful thing to look at and attempt. Other way, however, there was none; and holding my breath and uttering an inward prayer to God, I began to descend. Slowly ten feet of the bottom. I looked back at the height I had descended, and with a gay laugh grasped at a bough which grew near, and swung myself from the rock on which I stood.

"But I was prematurely excited. The shrub to which I had entrusted my life and safety, though seemingly strong, was in reality decayed, and but slightly rooted. I felt it grinding up from the ground, and knew that in another moment I should fall below. I clutched frantically with my free hand. I shrieked aloud in my frenzy and despair when I found I could not hold my precarious footing. I looked beneath me at the rocky bed of the brook and thought how soon I should lie upon it, stunned and motionless; it might be dead! The shrub broke in my hand—I was gone!

"But at that moment of my fall, terror gave me strength, and with a tremendous muscular effort I threw my body out from the bank in a frantic leap for life.

"My presence of mind probably saved me; for in the place of falling directly below and upon the rocks, the impetus of my leap sent me far out into the stream, where a bed of soft sand received me, and the cool water, too shallow to engulf, rippled around me in separate streams.

"How long I lay there I cannot tell; but when at last I unclosed my eyes and looked up at the calm, blue sky, that seemed to bend close above me, the hot sun, though veiled behind a pavilion of fleecy clouds, dazzled my eyes and burned my cheek.

ALL TOO OBSERVANT MEN.

They Seem to See a Great Deal That Is Unpleasant.

There's a man known to this city who would be a most delightful companion if his powers of observation were not so well developed. He's an entertaining youth and a clever one; but, actually, before he has fairly entered his hostess' library he is apt to say to her, if he knows her sufficiently well: "Miss Marie, there's a rip in your sleeve at the shoulder," or "Your collar has become unpinned in the back. Can I give you any assistance?" He's entertaining, as was said before, but he's not at all popular, for even the neatest of maids feel uncomfortable in his society, and horribly aware that a basting thread hangs from the edge of her skirt in full view of the lynx eyes. There's a hereditary theory abroad that men do not notice women's dress, but the man of the twentieth century certainly does. He may not be able to describe the fabrics any more than his grandfathers knew by the same name the lute string, chintz and spriggled muslins worn by their sweethearts; he may call tulle "tully" and point d'esprit "dotted mosquito net," but he knows all about effects, says the Baltimore News. He recognizes the latest cry in hair dressing at a glance, and steers prudently clear of a maid who looks like an 1899 edition of the girl of today. That is how much the modern masculine creature knows about woman's clothes. Now a young woman is advocating a society for the suppression of a superfluous amount of observation. She would have her masculine visitors too interested in her conversation to discover that she had nibbled a tiny piece off the nail of the middle finger of her left hand. She would have her auditors too plunged in intellectual ecstasy by her fancy to observe that the bow of her right slipper hangs by a single thickness of cotton and is in imminent danger of getting lost.

The men who pride themselves on their powers of observation this young woman says do not see that the sanitary condition of their city is bad, they do not notice that their own hats are a trifle dusty, nor that their own coats do not fit as they should. All their energies are concentrated on finding flaws in the costumes of the feminines whom they meet.

SNAKE SAVES MISSIONARY.

Crawls Over His Feet, and Hostile Indians Run Away

Among the earlier colonists in New England was one, a most devout man, a preacher, whose zeal soon led him to go as a missionary among the red men of the forest. Although the Indians lived all about the little settlements of the whites, this man decided to go far into the wilderness and to live entirely among the rude people, to whom he wished to preach the gospel. So he took his tent and set it up at a place many miles from the nearest white man's town. He learned the Indian language and every day preached to the unlettered sons of the forest. At length the Indians became alarmed at the encroachments of the whites and decided to rise and massacre them. The lone missionary could hardly hope to escape. One night several Indians, with their tomahawks, started forth to kill him. They crept silently up to the tent and peeped in. There sat the good man, pouring over his Bible by the light of a flaming pine knot. The Indians raised their tomahawks to strike him, when their arms fell helpless to their sides. A huge snake, feeling the warmth of the fire that glowed near the missionary, glided out of his hole, crawled harmlessly over the missionary's feet and disappeared. The Indians turned and fled, feeling sure that they had witnessed a miracle. The Great Spirit, they said, was the friend of the good man and had preserved his life from the fury of the poisonous reptile. In the bloody war that followed the uprising of the red men the good missionary was left unharmed, no Indian daring to touch him. This story, said to be true, was told for many years afterward by the colonists of New England.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Preserving Deep-Sea Specimens.

Even in the tropics the temperature of the water at the bottom of the ocean is only about 40 degrees Fahr., and it does not vary at all from summer to winter. It follows, then, that the abyssal fishes, though residing in the neighborhood of the equator, are accustomed to an Arctic climate, and, being suddenly exposed to a warm atmosphere they quickly decompose. Thus it is very difficult to preserve them, and, in order to accomplish this, the tanks of spirits into which they are put are surrounded with ice, while the more delicate invertebrate specimens are placed in a cold room while absorbing the alcohol. The fishes are injected with alcohol by means of a hypodermic syringe, and so likewise are large shrimps and crabs. Deep-sea starfishes, sea urchins and small corals are first soaked in alcohol and then dried; large corals are sprayed with alcohol and packed in salt; jellyfishes are hardened in a solution of picric acid, wrapped in cheesecloth and kept in strong alcohol. —Pearson's Magazine.

New York's Improvements Costly.

Improvements already authorized or contemplated in New York city will cost the tremendous sum of $277,800,000. This includes $40,000,000 for a vast scheme of dock improvements along the rivers. Half a dozen enormous bridges are under way or being planned.

STORYETTES.

Over a century ago Benjamin Franklin discussed the property qualification for voting in Pennsylvania. A man owned a donkey of sufficient value to enable him to vote; but before the next election the donkey died, and the man's vote was refused. "Now," said Franklin, "who voted at the previous election—the man or the donkey?"

The question, "Who was Bismarck?" which was put by a German officer to his men, called forth some curious answers. Nine said that he founded the German empire, several thought he was an emperor, a great number pictured him as a general, one said that he was a poet and another that he translated the bible. The neatest answer was that he was "the Kaiser's greatest enemy."

An old Georgia negro arose in prayer meeting the other night and said: "Brederin' and sisterin', I been a mighty mean nigger in my time. I had a heap er ups an' downs—'specially downs—since I jined de church. I stoled chickens and watermillins. I cussed. I got drunk. I shot craps. I slashed udder coons wid my razor, and I done a sight o' udder things, but thank de good Lawd, bredderin' an' sisterin', I never yet lost my religion."

It is said that Gladstone one day said to the witty Father Healey: "When I was in Italy the other day, I saw a notice in one of your churches to the effect that a plenary indulgence could be had for a sum of about thirty shillings. How do you explain that?" "If" answered the father, "my church were prepared to give you a plenary indulgence for all the sins you have been guilty of for thirty shillings, I think you would be let off uncommonly cheap."

A few weeks before he returned to America, Mark Twain went to consult a well known West End dentist in London noted for keeping his patients waiting a long time, and for indifference to the age of magazines and papers left on his waiting room table to beguile their tedium. Mr. Clemmens was kept waiting for a solid hour, and when his turn came his patience had given out. But he contented himself, as he entered the consulting room, with the caustic remark: "I see by your papers, that there is prospect of war with the Transvaal!"

A few weeks ago, Eva, the daughter of Geronimo, the famous Apache warrior who is a prisoner of war at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, was taken ill with some skin disease, and was placed in the government hospital at the fort. A large boil appeared on her neck. Geronimo told the white physician in charge that it should be opened. The white medicine man told Geronimo that it should be not. When the doctor was not watching the old warrior pulled out a jack knife and opened the sore. The soldiers placed him in a guard house for three days, but the girl improved daily thereafter. Among the Apaches Geronimo is called an excellent doctor, and they will have no other.

An amusing incident occurred during the Easter holidays at Boulogne. The editor of a London weekly—a gentleman who bears a striking resemblance to Kind Edward—was enjoying his cigar in one of the principal cafes of the town when he suddenly became aware that his presence was causing unwonted interest and no little commotion. Presently an old gentlemen arose up and shouted: "Vive le roi l'Angleterre!" a sentiment which was heartily joined in by most of the people in the cafe. The conductor of the orchastra, not to be behind hand, immediately struck up "God Save the King," but this was too much for the journalist, who made a bolt for the door and escaped.

BACKACHE

SHOULD WARN WOMEN.

MISS LUCY ANNIE HEISER, OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Miss Lucy Annie Heiser, a graduated nurse of nine years' experience, trained and graduated from the Homeopathic Hospital of Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 8, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"Although my school does not believe in patent medicines, I have found it to be a fact that Peruna is a grand and valuable medicine. I have known it to cure Mrs. Sampson, suffering with an inflamed womb, aggravated by malaria, after the doctors had failed to help her. Another of my former patients suffered with a complication of female diseases; she was so thin, nothing but skin and bones, but Peruna cured her and she is to-day in good health and good flesh. Facts prove that Peruna revives lost strength and restores to the sick that most wonderful blessing of life—health.

Lucy Annie Heiser,

If all the tired women and all the nervous women, and all the women that needed a tonic would read and heed the words of these fair ladies who have spoken right to the point, how many invalids would be prevented and how many wretched lives be made happy.

Peruna restores health in a normal way.

Peruna puts right all the mucous membranes of the body, and in this way restores the functions of every organ.

From Mrs. Amanda Shumaker, who has charge of the Grammar Department of the Public Schools of Columbia City, Wash., also Past Grand of Independent Order of Good Templars, Dr. Hartman received the following letter:

Columbia City, Wash.

"I can speak only good words of repeated benefits I have had from use of Peruna.

"Too constant application to study last winter caused me to have nervous head and backache and dragging pains. I could not stop my work, neither did I fit to go on. Reading of the beneficial results from the use of Peruna, I purchased a bottle and within a few days after using it, began to feel better.

"I constantly improved and before the seventh bottle was completely used, all pains were gone, my strength was restored, and I now seem ten years' younger.

"If I get tired or feel bad, Peruna at once helps me, and I feel you deserve praise for placing such a conscientious medicine before a suffering public."

Mrs. Amanda Shumaker.

Mattie B. Curtis, Secretary Legion of Loyal Women, Hotel Salem, Boston, Mass., writes:

"I suffered for over a year with general weakness and debility, manifested especially in severe backache and headache.

Mattie B. Curtis.

"My physician prescribed different medicines, none of which seemed to help me any until a club associate advised me to try Peruna as it cured her of constitutional headache and stomach trouble. I at once ordered a bottle and before it was used, felt greatly improved.

"I have taken four bottles and two months have been entirely free from these maladies. Several of my friends are using Peruna with beneficial results, especially in cases of troubles with the kidneys and other pelvic organs, together with weaknesses peculiar to women."

Peruna is a specific for the catarrhal derangements of women.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

How You Can Make Money

In the Sheep and Cattle Business.

The Montana Co-operative Ranch Company is a co-operative company organized under the laws of Montana.

It has a capital of $10,000, divided into $1,000 shares of $10.00, but present price of shares is $11.00 each.

Its ranch now consists of 1,440 acres of very rich land in the famous Sweet Grass Hills.

It now has seventy-nine shareholders, some of whom are bankers, merchants, doctors, mechanics and fifteen ladies, scattered all over the United States.

Anyone can become a shareholder by buying one or more shares in the company. You are then entitled to put sheep, cattle or hogs on the ranch and the company guarantees to keep them, providing all feed, care and shelter for one-half of the increase.

Shareholders who had sheep on our ranch last year made over 30 per cent interest.

Dyspepsia

Most people eat more than is good for them. The stomach tries to digest all that's put into it, but if repeatedly overloaded, it goes on a strike. That's indigestion. Rich, over-sweet, indigestible food weakens the stomach and makes it unable to take care of the material put into it. More food taken into a weakened stomach than the stomach can digest, stays there, forms gases and rots, bringing on all the horrors of dyspepsia. The only way to cure dyspepsia is to clean out the digestive canal with CASCARETS. Keep it clean with Cascarets, eat light food sparingly, and give the stomach a chance to rest up and get strong again.

Be sure you get the genuine CASCARETS!

A PITTSBURGH FERRY MAID.

Girl of Sixteen Supports Mother, Brother and Sister.

Young in years, but full of vigor and buoyancy of youth, pretty Bertha Walz, a girl of 16, has a career as a ferry maid on the Ohio river that for the novelty of its features is rarely surpassed.

For months the young girl has been the sole support of her mother, younger sister and brother. Week in and week out, unaided and alone, she has plied her big ferry skiff back and forth across the Ohio to secure means for providing for her helpless mother and sister.

Bertha lives with her mother in an old, but neat appearing, houseboat on the banks of the Ohio river, near the Pressed Steel Car company's works in lower Allegheny, says the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph. The boat has been her home for the past six years.

The idea of running a regular ferry came to her through the suggestion of mill men, who cross the river at this point to the McKee's Rocks side to and from their work in the big mills.

Partly through the efforts of generous contributors a skiff was procured and the girl entered upon a new career. She found her task rather arduous at first, and her fair young hands were covered with many a blister at the end of a day's toil. But soon the muscles of her arms bade fair to rival those of the crack oarsmen of a 'versity crew. Now she thinks nothing of rowing six or eight stalwart men over the river on a single trip. Some days she makes as many as 40 trips, and has been known to take in as much as three dollars a day as the result of her toil.

The widespread popularity of her ferry, however, aroused the ire of less favored ferrymen living in shanty boats near by. First, her best skiff was stolen, and later a new one was turned loose on the river. Finally she was not permitted to land her skiff on the McKee's Rocks shore at the large landing, but was made to run her boat in at some obscure point. Considerable trouble arose over the ownership and use of a pair of wooden steps leading down the river embankment to the shore. The climax was reached one night. Richard Griffeths, a ferryman, tried to lay violent hands on her. Only the timely appearance of a mill hand and the presence of her faithful dog, which usually accompanies her for protection, saved her from serious injury at his hands. As a result suit was promptly entered against Griffeths on a charge of disorderly conduct before Alderman Lynch. At the hearing Griffeths was fined ten dollars and costs or 20 days in jail. The steps claimed by Griffeths as personal property were declared to be government property, and it was decreed that the fair prosecutor was fully entitled to their use.

CARVING BY MACHINERY.

Labor-Saving Device Now Applied in the Realm of Art.

Carving in wood and stone work are now to a large extent turned out by machinery—a method which permits of a number of copies being made both rapidly and accurately of any given model. A series of vertical steel drills, placed at regular intervals on a cross bar, are driven at a speed of 2,000 or 3,000 revolutions per minute. Below this is a table which can be raised or lowered at will, and on this the blocks of wood or stone to be carved are placed. The drills can move in every direction, following simultaneously all the movements of a short iron rod, which is manipulated by the workman. The latter has a model of the pattern or figure desired in front of him, and by running the end of the rod over its contours the drills trace identical lines on the blocks of material placed below them. A workman soon acquires sufficient dexterity to enable him to turn out faithful copies of his model, though, as can be imagined, says the New York Evening Telegram, the results have little in common with the productions of the sculptor.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderfu discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREEN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Whooping Cough.

A woman who has experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable. and will prove a good investment.

VOLUME VI. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1901. NUMBER 4

FASHIONABLE MILLINERY
At Special Cut Prices.

Your Purchase Must Be Satisfactory or Money Refunded.

MRS. JNO. JOSTEN,
THE KLEMME MILLINER,

We Save You Twenty-Five To Forty Per Cent.

. . . TO CLOSE OUT STOCK . . .

Prices have been cut regardless of cost or value.

After having done the largest volume of trade this spring since the existance of our business, we have decided to CLOSE OUT every bit of millinery merchandise in our establishment irrespective of former prices.

NOW IS YO R CHANCE to buy bargains in the very midst of the season, just the time you can use them to a good advantage.

EVERY ARTICLE IS A GENUINE BARGAIN and all are new, fresh, up-to-date goods bought for this season, not job lots bought for special sale, but our regular and well known fashionable millinery goods.

DO NOT DELAY, get one of our hats. It means a big saving for you and additional cash to your bank account.

Russia's bear is wading into trouble.

Pig tails and numb skulls are going at a discount in China.

This government is thinking some of constructing a canal.

Gen. DeWet is carrying on a soaking campaign—for the British.

Wm. Schneider, of Garner, will probably attend the Klemme celebration.

They still continue to have a "monkey and parrot time" down in South Africa.

It requires a wise man to know his own business. He will have to be much wiser if he attends to it and quits. Know thyself. This is a proverb that is as good now as when first uttered.

Sometimes an investment of five dollars more in the service of a stallion will make as much as fifty dollars difference in the price of the colt. This is something worth looking after.

Considerably over a million of dollars worth of American products were exported last year and sixty-one per cent of these were from the farm. Uncle Sam has his shingle hanging out in Europe and on it are placed these words, "Dealer In Everything."

There are two ways of looking at a farm. It may be worth only $60. per acre to sell and yet may be worth $100 to keep. It may not be a good policy to sell a good farm if the money is not needed. Should a person have no use for the money, why should he sell the farm?

The train that comes on time, leaves on time and keeps on time gets there on time. The man who farms the same way also gets there on time. It is doubly difficult to catch up when once behind time. Get up and keep up; work up and lift up; look up and go up.

In playing ball it is "three times and out." With many corn growers it is the same thing. Some of them would not plow oftener than three times if the corn is not knee high. Condiions should govern the number of times corn is to be cultivated. Know these conditions.

While cultivating corn give the matter of hay a little study. Study how the most hay can be put up in a day. Study to make the clover hay early and thus get a better quality of hay. Now is the time to get up to date. This is the first farming season of the twentieth century and why not be up to date.

Sometimes the "know how" is as valuable to a person as the time it takes to put it into action. The person who understands his business does what he has to do quietly, and those who do not know how wonder how he succeeds in doing it. Skill is a good thing to have and a farmer needs it as much as any other person of whom I know.

We had the pleasure on last Friday evening of attending the graduating exercises of the Belmond high school and of listening to an address by Sen. J. P. Dolliver on "the possibilities of young Americans" or words to that effect. He said that the most brains and practical common sense are found as a rule among the ambitious poor; that wealth turns more unlearned men than poverty ever was responsible for.

Now the political minds of this quarter of the state are directing their attention towards a future representative. Mr. Way of Britt, when elected, was put in for one term and with that kind of an understanding. It is now Wright county's turn to furnish a candidate. Wright county can, if necessary, turn out several good men for that position and foremost among them stands the Belmond man, E. L. Tiede.

It so happened that one of our proverbial witty Irish friends was arrested and placed under trial for tickling a maiden of sixteen summers under the arm. Upon having the Judge ask him what he had to say for himself, he calmly muttered: "In the good book it says mon was made out of the dust of the earth; women was made from a rib of the mon; be gorra Judge, can't Oi tickle me own ribs? His fine was 13 cents.

Klemme Will Celebrate.

Last week we gave one good reason why Garner should not celebrate this year. This week we can give another equally as good, Klemme has decided to celebrate in most ample form. It is to be no little one horse celebration. They have raised a purse of $300 and another hundred stands ready for their use if they want it. They will spare no pains or expense to make their celebration equal any ever given in the county. Klemme people have always been loyal to Garner, and when we celebrate have been here nearly to a man. They are large patrons of any deserving entertainment we may have. Now we have a good chance of returning their courtesies and showing them that we appreciate their loyalty.—Democrat.

Klemme people expect to see a large representation of Garner people here on the 4th. As a rule Klemme people always do honor to Garner when there is anything going on and now it is Garner's turn to give the reward and bring down a good delegation. The time will be something grand and well worthy of the attendance of Garner folk. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody.

Nearly all the young folks from here attended Uncle Tom's Cabin show at Garner Saturday night.

June roses and June brides go together. This township will have them both if we conjecture right.

Ernest Braund, Frank Patterson and Mr. Groves each have new riding cultivators. No more walking for them.

Eric Josten spent a few hours last Wednesday with his parents here and enjoyed a meal of mother's cooking once more.

Several of the ladies from here were attending the W. R. C. banquet at Garner Saturday consuming straw berries and cream and listening to a nice program.

During the storm last Wednesday the lightning struck the barn on the Katter place, (better known as the Patterson place,) burning it to the ground, aslo some hay, a wind mill and water tank. There was one horse in the barn during the storm but it was fortunately saved.

The Center school and the Gilbert school held a picnic at Josten's Grove last Friday. A nice picnic dinner was served. After dinner a good program was well carried out by the school with a little help from the patrons. Taking it all together it was a most enjoyable affair and a person would be hard to please who did not enjoy himself.

Joe Lawhorn's wife pleasanty entertained a party of young folks last Wednesday, the occasion being a surprise given in honor of the teacher, Miss Crae, who was taken entirely unawares. The evening was merrily spent in playing games and doing justice to the nice supper that the hostess had provided. It was a time long to be remembered by those present.

"Something New Under The Sun."
All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed, The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh. by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. CARNEGIE GIFT REVISED.

iversity Heads Thought the Proposed Plan Impracticable.

London, June 7.—The principals of e four Scotch universities—Glas- w, Edinburg, St. Andref's and Aber- en—to the free students of which rnegie munificently gave $7,500,000, ve decided that the scheme pro- sed for the utilization of the gift impracticable. So Mr. Carnegie has nsented to place his gift in the nds of Lord Balfour of Burleigh, ecretary for Scotland, who is now gaged in consultation with the prin- pals and drawing up a modified heme.

The money will now be applied ainly, if not wholly, to an endow- ent for scientific and technical in- truction, in which the Scotch univer- ities are far behind those of America nd the continent.

The principals would prefer to have he money given in a lump sum to ach university, leaving to the dis- retion of the governing bodies how t should be applied; but Mr. Car- egie does not take the same view.

ROUTS BEYER'S COMMAND.

olonel Wilson and Kitchener's Scouts in a Successful Attack.

Pretoria, June 7.—Col. Wilson, with 40 of Kitchener's scouts, has sur- rised and routed 400 Boers belong- ng to Beyer's command, thirty-four iles west of Warmbaths. The Boers esisted stubbornly, but finally broke nd fled, leaving thirty-seven dead, a undred prisoners and all their wag- ons and supplies, including 8,000 cat- le, in the hands of the British. The oss of the latter was three men killed nd fifteen wounded.

Later Beyer's main command ar- rived on the scene soon after the en- gagement, but failed in an attempt o recapture the supplies. Beyer was thus left practically without any transport or supplies.

MINISTERS DO NOT MEET NOW.

Germany, They Think, Should Have Said 450,000,000 Taels.

Peking, June 7.—The ministers have ceased to hold meetings while mak- ing inquiries as to the desires of their respective governments. The major- ity of the ministers hold that Ger- many should have told the Chinese that all the powers would agree to an indemnity of 450,000,000 taels at four per cent interest. They also think that the withdrawal of Count Von Waldersee and the German troops shows a desire to force the powers to acquiesce to Germany's demand which they are not inclined to do.

Hope is a star that buoys many a man to happiness.

Filipinos Elected to Parliament.

Madrid, June 4.—Among those who were recently elected to parliament are three Filipinos resident in Spain. They propose, during the course of of the debate on the speech from the throne, to bring on the question of the condition of the Philippines, al- leging that the situation is worse than before the war.

The Cummins forces claim Mar- shall's 25 delegates, besides scatter- ing delegates among the other unin- structed delegations, but the oppo- sition concede but 15 of the Marshall delegation.

METZGAR FOR COMMANDER.

Elected by Unanimous Vote of Grand Army Men.

Dubuque, June 5.—The most im- portant business before the state en- campment of the G. A. R. was the reading of the annual reports. Com- mander Davis's report covered a wide range of subjects. On the matter of pensions he was particularly caustic in his criticism of the construction placed upon laws by the pension de- partment. He also objects to the working of the civil service laws in compelling old soldiers to enter into competitive examination for official positions.

George Metzger was elected depart- ment commander by unanimous vote.

The report of Dr. George A. New- man, assistant adjutant general for the department of Iowa, showed the condition of the department during the year. There was a considerable loss in membership of the Grand Army in Iowa during 1900. At the beginning of the year there were 434 posts in good standing in the de- partment, according to the records, but during the year the number de- creased by 41, leaving 393 posts in the department. Two of the posts surrendered their charters and the rest of the decrease is accounted for by the fact that posts from which no report had been received for some years were dropped from the rolls. At the first of the year there were on the rolls a total of 14,718 members, and at the close of the year 12,952 in good standing. The changes were made as follows: Gain in member- ship by muster in 317; by transfer, 192; by reinstatement 519; and by re- instatement from delinquent reports, 2,308; or a total of 3,336. The losses for the year were: By death, 281; by dishonorable discharge, 2; by honor- able discharge, 50; by transfer, 178; by suspension, 937; by delinquent re- ports, 3,754; or a total of 5,102. There was expended in charity during the year $1,004,18, and there was relieved of members of their families 93, and of others persons not members 42. There remains at the close of the year a total of 2,149 members under suspension, and there were dropped during the year 259.

Dubuque, June 7.—The Grand Army encampment closed with the installa- tion of officers. Eighteen delegates and eighteen alternates to the na- tional encampment were chosen. These were appointed a council of ad- ministration: D. W. McElroy of Keo- kuk, Wm. Dean of Tipton, G. L. God- frey of Des Moines, G. H. Welsh of Boone and W. H. Barker of Sioux City. The state G. A. R. encampment today decided to meet at Des Moines next year.

SUSTAINS TAX FERRET CONTRACTS

Important Decision by Judge Wheeler in Pottawattamie County Cases.

Council Bluffs, June 7.—Judge Wheeler of the district court in his decision handed down in the "tax ferret" case of Frank Shinn against the board of supervisors and other county officers, held that the county board had the right to enter into a contract with F. M. Cunningham to ferret out personal property which had been omitted or concealed from assessment, and that the contract un- der which Cunningham was to receive a sum equal to 50 per cent of all mon- eys recovered into the county treas- ury through his efforts was valid.

The ruling also decides the case of Disbrow against Wellman in the Cass county courts, where injunction was asked to restrain Tax Ferret C. Well- man from operating under a 50 per cent contract.

Blew Up Merrill's Vault.

Ottumwa, June 8.—Within 100 feet of the police station the vault of the wholesale grocery of J. H. Merrill & Co. was blown open this morning by experts. There were two explosions, but no policeman heard it. But $2.94 was taken, which indicates that the robers were frightened away.

Killed at Home of Sweetheart.

Parkersburg, June 7.—Daniel Spen- cer, aged 26, was killed at the home of his sweetheart, Miss Mattie Archer, by her sister, Della, who was exhibit- ing a new revolver. "I will show you how it works," she remarked, as the weapon was discharged, and Spencer fell dead at her feet.

Teacher and Pupil Struck by Lightning.

Cedar Falls, June 7.—During a hail storm near Littleton lightning struck the school house and fatally injured Paul Roberts, a pupil, and the teacher, Miss Jane Harvey. Seven other pupils were seriously burned.

Stabbed in a Saloon.

Sioux City, June 8.—John Reese was assaulted in Wilt Ahren's saloon and stabbed behind the ear with a long knife, after being struck on the cheek with a brick. Reese's assail- ant, who fled, was instantly brought to bay in the yards of the Sioux Lumber company after having fired two shots at Mr. Ahren from a re- volver. After being taken to the po- lice station the stranger gave his name as Mulcahey of Waseca, Minn. His purpose is thought to have been robbery, as he had never seen Reese before. Reese is not dangerously in- jured.

DR. HERRON IS DROPPED

Formally Dismissed From Church and Ministry.

Grinnell, June 5.—The council called by the Congregational church of Grinnell to consider the case of George D. Herron yesterday, dis- missed him from membership in the church and from the Christian min- istry by a unanimous vote. The in- dictment was in three counts and the council found him guilty on each count.

After listening to the testimony, the council appointed a committee to draw up resolutions which should embody the findings of the council. The report submitted by the commit- tee was unanimously adopted and is as follows:

At a council held in the First Congre- gational church of Grinnell, on the 4th day of June, 1901, to consider the right to church membership and ministerial stand- ing of George D. Herron, the following findings were rendered:

First.—That the charge of immoral and unchristian conduct is sustained by the findings of the court, which at Algona, on March 21, 1901, granted a decree of divorce to Mary Everhard Herron from her hus- band on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Second.—The same charge is further sus- tained by evidence presented to the coun- cil showing that George D. Herron's man- ner toward the wife who consecrated her life to the effort to make him happy, re- lieve him of care and aid him in what she believed to be his high calling, has been that of unfeeling and selfish indifference and at least since 1896 of studied neglect, culmi- nating in a heartless desertion and the final tragedy of divorce.

Third.—The same charge is still further sustained by confession contained in the paper written by Mr. Herron in his own defense and read to the council. In this paper he denies the right of society to sanc- tion or undo a marriage tie between man and woman, presents a view of conjugal relation, of parenthood and the home which is abhorrent to enlightened Christian sen- timent and which confirms the council in the opinion that this action of George D. Herron is simply the criminal desertion of a worthy life and a devoted mother by a man who has deliberately falsified his marriage vows. In view of these findings it is

Resolved, That we recommend to the Grinnell association that the name of George D. Herron be dropped from its roll of membership.

Resolved, That we express our conviction that George D. Herron has forfeited all right to be known by the churches of our faith and order, to be known as a minister of the gospel, and that he is by vote of the council deposed from the Christian minis- try.

DES MOINES BOY HONORED.

Secretary of the Navy Does Young Mc- Carthy Proud.

Washington, June 10.—The secre- tary of the navy has approved the recommendations of the naval board of awards concerning medals of hon- or and letters of commendation to a number of officers and men of the marine corps who distinguished them- selves during the campaign in China. Secretary Long's action did not go outside of China recommendations and he will not pass upon the San- tiago medal until the return of As- sistant Secretary Hackett. The hon- ors approved by the secretary includ- ed Ensign A. H. McCarthy, U. S. N., of Des Moines, Iowa, who is to receive a very highly commendatory letter from the navy department for his skill, courage and good judgment in handling his vessel, the gunboat Cal- amianes, in the Agusan river, Minda- noa, February 26, 1901, and the suc- cessful carrying out of the object of the expedition.

The board "regrets that, under the law, no greater reward can be given this promising young officer. His ex- hibition of professional nerve and skill upon this occasion appeals most forcibly to its favorable considera- tion."

Burlington Man in Regular Army.

Burlington, June 7.—Captain Fred Goedecke of this city has been ap- pointed a first lieutenant in the regu- lar army. Captain Goedecke prior to the Spanish war served as regiment adjutant of the Second regiment, Iowa national guard, which later be- came the Fiftieth Iowa. He retained his rank and served with the regiment in Florida until it was mustered out. He was then appointed a captain in the volunteer army of the Philippines and was recently mustered out with that rank. His appointment as a first lieutenant in the regular army is con- sidered a promotion as a recognition of his ability as a military man.

Found a Big Iowa Diamond.

Humboldt, June 8.—Quite a little interest is being shown about here over the finding of a peculiar stone by Frank Butts of Humboldt, while digging post holes. The stone is about an inch in diameter and three inches long, and looks very much like a diamond. Mr. Butts has had sev- eral chances to sell the stone, but, being a poor man, he wishes to know its real worth before selling. He therefore has sent it to New York, where he hopes to find whether it is worth anything or not; and, if it proves to be the real thing, he will probably be the richer by several thousand.

Postmaster in Trouble.

Cedar Rapids, June 8.—Noble Whit- aker, postmaster of Harsh, who was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Healy on the charge of inter- fering with the distribution of the mail, was arraigned before Commis- sioner Stewart, waived examination and was held to the grand jury under bonds. It is alleged that Whitaker, who is a small merchant, with the postoffice in his store, has been sys- tematically sidetracking the adver- tising of the Brookman Bros. of Cen- tral City, as it came through the mails, to prevent competition.

Cigarette Law Constitutional.

Marshalltown, June 10.—Judge Burnham of the district court de- cided that the Iowa cigarette tax law is constitutional, and that the prop- erty of dealers in cigarettes and own- ers of buildings where they are sold may be attached and sold for tax. Similar suits pending in other counties have been awaiting the decision in Marshall county. The American To- bacco company, it is said, will appeal.

Boy Drops Dead.

Oelwein, June 8.—Willie Stowell, the six-year-old boy of W. H. Stowell of this city, fell dead while playing in the yard with the other children. He laid some time before any one knew what was the trouble and not until his mother called him was it realized that he was dead. The doc- tors pronounced the death caused by heart disease.

Stopped Escaping Burglar.

New Hampton, June 7.—Charles F. Johnson, charged with burglary, was shot twice while trying to escape. He got from behind the bars for a few minutes to consult an attorney, and saw an opportunity to escape. Sheriff Sherwood fired three shots at him, two of them taking effect. The pris- oner was returned to the jail.

Dowager Empress Postpones Return.

Shanghai, June 10.—An imperial edict issued June 6 announces that owing to the hot weather and the ad- vanced age of the dowager empress the return of the court to Peking has been postponed till September 1, which the astrologists predict a lucky day on which to begin a journey.

Babe Dies While Drunk.

Davenport, June 4.—Dora, the four- year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Schmidt, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. The child was given a small dose of glycerine and whisky for a cold. After the par- ents had retired it got up and drank a gill of whisky yet remaining in the bottle. Alarmed at Dora not awak- ening at the usual time, the parents went to her bed only to find her life had gone out while she slept. The coroner returned a verdict of death from acute alcoholic intoxication.

HEADS OFF A SENSATION.

No Inquiry to Be Made Into Blowing Up of the Maine.

Washington, June 10.—The govern- ment has made formal announcement of its purpose to resist the proposi- tion that the Spanish claims commis- sion take up the question of the re- sponsibility for the destruction of the battleship Maine, whch question is involved in a number of claims now pending before the commission. The contention will be made that the commission has no authority to go into the subject of responsibility. It is pointed out that under article 7 of the treaty of peace "all claims for indemnity, national and individual, of every kind, of either government of citizens or subjects against the other government are relinquished."

The government of the United States, by the last paragraph of the same article, undertook "to adjudi- cate and settle all claims of its citi- zens against Spain relinquished in these articles."

It is submitted that it was the in- tention of the treaty not to provide for, but to relinquish and leave in oblivion as settled in the tribunal of war the grievance referred to express- ly in the joint resolution of April 20 as "the destruction of a United States battleship, with 265 of its offi- cers and crew, while on a friendly visit to the harbor of Havana."

The destruction of Spanish lives and the loss of Spanish possessions atoned for and settled any supposed responsibility of Spain for the de- struction of the Maine and her crew. It is pointed out also that congress passed an act on March 30, 1898, for the relief of the sufferers by the de- struction of the Maine. That enact- ment expressly stipulates that the payments made under its provisions "shall be in full satisfaction of any and all claims against the United States."

MORGAN'S BILLION DOLLAR IDEA.

Wants an International Bank With One Billion Capital.

New York, June 10.—According to the London correspondent of the World, it is reported that J. P. Mor- gan is arranging for the establish- ment of a great Anglo-American bank with a capital of $1,000,000,000.

It is said that it is proposed to abolish all the principal financial agencies and banks engaged in the Anglo-American business.

The proposed institution, it is said, is intended to be the principal agen- cy for the already vast and rapidly growing transactions between Eu- rope and America.

Mr. Morgan is understood to have associated with him in the stupen- dous undertaking not only all the principal capitalists who aided in the organization of the United States Steel corporation, but all the Roth- childs. The World says that several times since the panic of May it has been reported in Wall street that Mr. Morgan intended to organize a bank with $100,000,000 capital. These re- ports have been invariably denied at the offices of J. P. Morgan and com- pany.

The creation of a bank with a capi- talization of a million dollars is an undertaking of a nature so colossal that nothing approaching it has ever been hinted at before.

The aggregate of the capitalizations of sixty-four national banks in Great- er New York is barely $100,000,000.

WHAT AILS MRS. M'KINLEY.

Statement in Detail Issued by the At- tending Physician.

Washington, June 10.—Mrs. McKin- ley's physicians were in consultation about two hours yesterday and sub- sequently a very complete statement of the true character of the illness from which she has been suffering was issued. Such a statement has been promised from time to time and while in San Francisco is was said that the president desired a full an- nouncement of the nature of Mrs. McKinley's illness given to the pub- lic, but for one reason or another it has been withheld up to the pres- ent date. The bulletin is as follows:

"Mrs. McKinley's illness has been blood infection resulting from prei- ositis of the index finger (bone felon), which began in Los Angeles and which was promptly treated by in- cision. The subsequent condition of exhaustion was due to the same blood infection asseverated with a severe diarrhoea. She recovered, how- ever, and was brought home in com- fort and without loss of strength. The principal causes of anxiety in her case since her arrival in Washington has been acute endocarditis (inflam- mation of the lining membrane of the heart) involving the mitral valve, the result of the same blood infec- tion. This does not appear to be progressive and there has been an improvement in the diarrhoea and in her general condition. Mrs. McKin- ley's case at the present time pre- sents a most cheerful aspect."

TOO DEEP FOR MINISTERS.

United States Wishes to Appeal to the Hague Tribunal.

Washington, June 10.—The United States government has again appeal- ed to the powers to submit the pres- ent issues at Peking over the indem- nity propositions to the arbitration of The Hague tribunal. Mr. Rock- hill, who has been watching for an opportunity, cabled Secretary Hay for permission to make a proposition and the secretary cabled him author- ity to do so. It is believed that the ministers at Peking have become in- volved beyond extrication in the pres- ent issues and this proposition may be the only way out.

Iowa Epworthians Choose Route.

A large body of Epworth Leaguers and their friends will leave Iowa on Monday, July 8, for San Francisco to attend the Fifth International con- vention of the organization. The Chi- cago, Rock Island and Pacific has been named by the state league offi- cers as the official route. The rate is a very low one and stopover privi- leges liberal. The Iowa party will leave Omaha on a special train at 7 p. m. July 8, stopping enroute at Den- ver, Colorado Surings and Salt Lake City. On the return trip arrange- ments have been made for a week's trip through Yellowstone park, and a large number will take advantage of this popular outing, as the trip can be made at an expense of about $35.00. Mr. C. B. Roberts of Adel, Iowa, is chairman of the state trans- portation committee.

Eighty Millions for South Africa.

London, June 8.—After a long and somewhat embittered discussion of the policy of the war office in buy- ing horses for use in South Africa, the house of commons by a vote of 159 to 60 voted the sum of £15,779,000 for transports and remounts.

Portest Against Land Opening.

Guthrie, O. T., June 4.—Chiefs De- tos, Lone Wolf and Quannah Parker and one thousand other Indians of the Comanche and Kiowa tribes are holding a council at Anadarko for the purpose of selecting a delegation to Washington to protest against the opening of the Indian reservations. It is asserted that if Col. Randlett allows them to go to the national capital a great many state secrets of how the allotments and the se- lection of the pasture lands have been made, will be dilvulged.

Never shun a duty, but proceed cheerfully to do it.

NOT AFRAID OF NEGRO VOTES.

Livingston of Georgia Says Disfranchise- ment is Carried Too Far.

Washington, June 8.—Congressman Livingston of Georgia says that he does not believe in wholesale disfran- chisement as a remedy for the evils of negro suffrage. He said:

"I think the people of Georgia are against any disfranchisement amend- ments to our state constitution. We are getting along nicely with the ne- gro in Georgia. The states which adopt the amendments already adopt- ed by Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, may see the time when congress will take the matter up with a view to affecting their rep- resentation in congress. If the mem- bership of the representations of such states as Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, reduced it would bring turmoil and strife and reopen the issues of the civil war."

SHERIFF REPULSES MOB

Kills One Man and Fatally Wounds Another.

Carrollton, Ga., June 8.—The nerve of a Georgia sheriff, whose name is Joseph Merrill, yesterday upheld the law of the state and saved the life of a negro from a mob. In protect- ing the negro, who was saved from the gallows only a few hours before through the efforts of his lawyers, one life was lost and two men were wounded. The arrival of the state militia averted threatened trouble last night, and at 9 o'clock a special train bearing the negro, whose crime was the murder of a little white boy whom he found fishing alone, was speeding toward Atlanta under guard. The man killed in attacking the jail was George Bennett of Car- rollton, and the wounded men are Thomas S. Word, father of the mur- dered boy, and an unknown man probably a farmer.

Williams, the negro who caused the trouble, was tried and found guilty of murdering Otis Word, January 1, 1901, and sentenced to be hanged yes- terday. He was only yesterday morn- ing refused a new trial by Judge Har- ris, but his attorneys filed a bill of exceptions and carried the case to the supreme court.

A large crowd of people had come to town to witness the hanging, and when it was learned that an appeal had been taken to the supreme court, delaying the execution, there was much excited talk, which crystalized soon afterward in the formation of a mob. At noon the mob made an assault on the jail. They battered down the outside door, and, despite the warning of the sheriff, entered the building. They made a demand on the sheriff for the key to the ne- gro's cell, but were refused. With the refusal, they began their advance upon the sheriff and the few depu- ties which he had been able to sum- mon to his side. They were told to stop or they would be fired upon, but the order was not obeyed.

As they advanced down the corri- most instantly. Thomas Word, the father of Williams' victim, who was in the front of the mob, was badly shot, as was also an unknown coun- tryman. The unexpected fight of the sheriff and his little posse frightened the mob and they retreated outside of the jail. Here they broke and ran and were soon divided into little groups discussing the event. Sheriff Merrill at once consulted Judge Har- ris, of the county court, and it was decided to call upon Governor Candler for aid. The governor was com- municated with by telephone, and said he would send two companies from Atlanta as soon as they could be assembled.

SOUTH CAROLINA INCIDENT.

Both Resignations Withdrawn, But Mc- Laurin Again Leads.

Columbia, S. C., June 6.—Senator Tillman, protesting against the gov- ernor's right to reject the senatorial resignation, last night withdrew his resignation. In his letter to Govern- or McSweeney, Senator Tillman says:

"My chief regret is that I am forced by your action to engage in what the outside world will consider a game of opera bouffe, by withdrawing my own resignation after Senator McLaurin's undignified and puerile action; but the purpose for which it was ten- dered has been thwarted by Senator McLaurin's precipitous acceptance of executive advice. Bob Acres has been outdone for once. I have already said I had no motive or purpose in resign- ing except to force McLaurin's resig- nation, and there is nothing for me to do but accept the situation and withdraw my own resignation, if it be lawful to do so."

Columbia, S. C., June 6.—With the governor's "last word" at Senator Tillman and the withdrawal of the senator's resignation all would seem to be over, but last night Senator Mc- Laurin, after speaking very bitterly of the senior senator, made the de- claration that if Tillman will now ten- der to the governor the unconditional surrender of his office, he (McLaurin) would consider this a direct challenge to him and would likewise resign and enter the contest for Tillman's place.

CYCLONE IN OKLAHOMA.

Thirteen Deaths, Many Injuries and Much Damage to Property.

Wichita, Kan., June 10.—The most disastrous storm which has ever vis- ited Oklahoma prevailed in Kay coun- ty Saturday night. A tornado struck Billings, Eddy and Tonkawa, and its influence covered a stretch of coun- try ten miles wide and thirty-six miles long, destroying towns, farm houses and crops. The financial loss will exceed $100,000.

Perry, O. T., June 10.—The storm which passed over eastern Oklahoma Saturday night was one of the most severe since the opening of the strip. A feature of the storm was the ex- tent of the territory covored. Sweep- ing down from the Kansas state line and covering about fifty miles in width, the rain, wind and hail swept over the country as far south as Old Oklahoma. The rain simply fell in torrents from early in the evening un- til about midnight. Four were killed at Blackwell, two at Eddy and seven at Billings.

Mrs. Botha in England.

London, June 10.—Mrs. Louis Botha, wife of the Boer commander general, arrived at Southampton on board the British steamer Dunvegan Castle, from South Africa. She refused to grant an interview, but a son of ex- Secretary of State Fischer, who ac- companied her, informed the Asso- ciated Press that Mrs. Botha was going straight to London and later would proceed to Holland and Bel- gium, but that the date for her de- parture for the continent had not been fixed. Mr. Fischer was unable to confirm or deny the report that Mrs. Botha had come to Europe on a peace mission. He was released on parole in order that he might accom- pany her.

WALDERSEE LEAVES PEKING.

Peking, June 4.—The departure of Field Marshal Count von Waldersee from Peking was marked by a great military display by the allied troops, the booming of artillery and the play- ing of bands. The entire diplomatic body escorted the field marshal to the depot.

Von Roech, the aide-de-camp, and nephew of Count von Waldersee, will remain to escort Prince Chuan, the emperor's brother, to Berlin, where he will formally apologize in behalf of China for the murder of Baron von Ketteler.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, June 8, 1901.

The state board of control has modified its order prohibiting the use of tobacco by convicts and hereafter the weed will be allowed in limited amounts to all first and second class prisoners the grade to be established by the behavior of the convicts.

At a meeting of the executive coun- cil it was decided to ask all county auditors for statistics that will aid the council in equalizing real estate taxation at the meeting to be held for that purpose the second Monday in July. The plan is to have fur- nished a list of real estate transfers on March 1, 1901, and the same dates ten, twenty and thirty years ago with the consideration of the transfer and the taxable valuation. Considerable criticism of the action of the council in assessing railroads has been made and the council is endeavoring to ar- rive at some arrangement whereby the assessments can be fairly and equitably considered.

The board of control has prepared a statement showing the sums of money expended at the different state institutions for music, musical sup- plies and instruction in the year 1900, and other facts of interest per- taining to music in the institutions. The total outlay on music in the year 1900 is shown by the report to have been $8,643.94. The board is thor- oughly converted to the belief that music is of formidable value in car- ing for the wards of the state, and that the expenditures for music are productive of good results. "Some of the patients in the hospitals," said Judge Kinne, "sit for hours listening to music and appear to be completely wrapped up and entranced by it. Strangely enough, the music must be of the best and the better it is the more they enjoy it. One might think that something like Yankee Doodle would be as serviceable as anything, but that is not the case. For the most part, the orchestra at the insti- tutions render nothing but classical selections and they are thoroughly appreciated."

Articles of incorporation of the Des Moines, Nevada & Eldora Railway company have been filed for record with the county auditor. The au- thorized capital stock is $50,000, with the right reserved to increase this later on, while provision is made for a bonded debt of $16,000 a mile against the property. The incorpo- rators are J. S. Polk, president of the Des Moines City Railway company; H. H. Polk, president of the Des Moines Interurban Railway company; Simon Casady, of the Des Moines Sav- ings bank; G. B. Hippee and A. G. Maish, of the Des Moines City Rail- way company; W. F. Swayze, a banker at Nevada; F. C. McCall and Park S. Davis, of Nevada, and Judge John Porter and Mark J. Furry of Eldora. H. H. Polk is president, Mr. Casady, treasurer, Mr. Swayze, vice president, and Mr. Hippee, superintendent.

The purpose is to build an electric road from a connection with the Des Moines Interurban road northeast through Nevada to Eldora, in Hardin county, and eventually to extend it north and east.

All of Polk county's 140 insane peo- ple will be taken care of at the county hospital north of Des Moines. The state board of control has consented to the removal of practically all the Polk county patients to the county hospital from Mt. Pleasant. This fol- lows a perfect understanding and agreement between the county board of supervisors and the state board of control, which resulted from a con- ference held at the office of the latter at the capitol. The board of con- trol insisted on two things: That the patients be bathed regularly and in unused water for each one, and the employment of additional attendants. To both the supervisors consented, after explanations had been made.

Governor Shaw has received from the governor of Colorado a copy of a proclamation promulgating regula- tions of the state veterinary board of Colorado regarding the introduc- tion of sheep into that state from any of the states of Washington, Ore- gon, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Cali- fornia, Nevada, Utah and Texas, or from the territories of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, or the republic of Mexico. A similar proclamation promulgating regulations of the same board regarding the admission of cattle from the state of Texas and California, the territory of Oklahoma and other states and territories and parts thereof south of the parallel of 36 degrees thirty minutes, is also received. Iowa is one of the few states that does not authorize its officers to take like effective measures for the protection of its live stock in- terests. Governor Shaw in discuss- ing the situation said: "The general assembly has repeatedly refused to enact needed legislation looking to that end, and as a consequence, its territory is open to invasion by the diseased domestic animals of all its neighbors. The statutory provisions that we have on the subject are only negative. What is wanted in Iowa is a positive requirement that such animals entering the state shall be healthy."

Dr. C. F. Applegate, first assistant superintendent at the Clarinda state insane hospital, has been elected su- perintendent of the state hospital at Mount Pleasant, succeeding Dr. Frank C. Hoyt, who died last month.

The populist party state central committee met in Des Moines and de- cided not to hold a state convention this year unless the democratic state platform shall prove unsatisfactory, and urged populists to participate in the democratic caucuses. After the meeting the following announcement was made:

"After discussing the political sit- uation it was decided in view of the platform as forecasted by the demo- cratic state central committee favor- ing municipal ownership of public utilities and other pressing reforms, not to call a state convention, pro- vided the platform of that party shall prove satisfactory to our people. It was the conviction of the committe forcibly expressed that it is the duty of every true populist, Jeffersonian democrat and Lincoln republican to attend the democratic caucuses and state convention and help secure such a platform as they can endorse and work for. S. B. Crane resigned as chairman of the state central com- mittee and John R. Calrk of Albia, Monroe county, was elected to the vacancy.

A good many people who are struggling for luxuries imagine that they are struggling for an exist- ence.

Fire in Forbidden City.

Pekin, June 6.—Lightning struck a building inside the gate of the Amer- ican end of the forbidden city, caus- ing a fire. Three buildings were burned. The American and Japanese guards did all possible to prevent a spread of the flames. A heavy rain saved the forbidden city. One of the buildings burned was a library con- taining many valuable manuscripts and numerous historical records of the dynasty.

Due care should be exercised that we offend no one.

What a blessing a contented state of mind is.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

ARRAIGNS THE PRESENT ERA OF PROFIT SEEKING.

Condemns the Methods of Speculation That Has a Tendency to Make Man- kind Overlook the Real Purposes of Our Lives.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

Washington, June 9.—In this dis- course Dr. Talmage arraigns the spirit of wild speculation and gives some ac- count of the financial ruin of other days: Proverbs xxiii, 5, "Riches cer- tainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven."

Money is a golden breasted bird with silver beak. It alights on the office desk or on the parlor center table. Men and women stand and admire it. They do not notice that it has wings larger than a raven's, larger than a flamin- go's, larger than an eagle's. One wave of the hand of misfortune and it spreads its beautiful plumage and is gone—"as an eagle toward heaven," my text says,though sometimes I think it goes in the other direction.

Wall Street Condemned.

What a verification we have had of the flying capacity of riches in Wall street! And Wall street is one of the longest streets in the world. It does not begin at the foot of Trinity church, New York, and end at the East river, as many suppose. It reaches through all our American cities and across the sea. Encouraged by the revival of trade and by the fact that Wall street disasters of other years were so far back as to be forgotten, speculators run up the stocks from point to point until innocent people on the outside suppose that the stocks would always continue to ascend. They gather in from all parts of the coun- try. Large sums of money are taken into Wall street and small sums of money. The crash comes, thank God, in time to warn off a great many who who were on their way thither, for the sadness of the thing is that a great many of the young men of our cities who save a little money for the pur- pose of starting themselves in business and who have $500 or $1,000 or $2,000 or $10,000 go into Wall street and lose all. And if there ever was a time for the pulpit to speak out in regard to certain kinds of nefarious enterprises now is the time.

Stocks rose and fell, and now they begin to rise again, and they will fall again until thousands of young men will be ruined unless the printing press and the pulpit give emphatic utterance. My counsel is to countrymen, so far as they may hear of this discourse, if they have surplus to invest it in first mortgages and in moneyed institutions which, though paying comparatively small interest, are sound and safe be- yond dispute, and to stand clear of the Wall street vortex, where so many have been swamped and swallowed. What a compliment it is to the healthy condition of our country that these re- cent disasters have in no way depress- ed trade! I thank God that Wall street's capacity to blast this country has gone forever.

A Street with a History.

Across the island of New York in 1685 a wall made of stone and earth and cannon mounted was built to keep off the savages. Along by that wall a street was laid out, and as the street followed the line of the wall it was ap- propriately called Wall street. It is narrow, it is unarchitectural, and yet its history is unique. Excepting Lom- bard street, London, it is the mightiest street on this planet. There the gov- ernment of the United States was born. There Washington held his levees. There Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Knox and other brilliant wo- men of the Revolution displayed their charms. There Witherspoon and Jona- than Edwards and George Whitefield sometimes preached. There Dr. Mason chided Alexander Hamilton for writing the constitution of the United States without any God in it. There negroes were sold in the slave mart. There criminals were harnessed to wheelbar- rows and, like beasts of burden, com- pelled to draw or were lashed through the street behind carts to which they were fastened. Their fortunes have come to coronation or burial since the day when reckless speculators in pow- dered hair and silver shoe buckles dodged Dugan, the governor general of his majesty, clear down to yesterday at 3 o'clock. The history of Wall street is to a certain extent the financial, commercial, agricultural, mining, lit- erary, artistic, moral and religious his- tory of this country. They are the best men in this country and there are the worst. Everything from unswerving integrity to tip-top scoundrelism— everything from heaven born charity to bloodless Shylockism. I want to put the plow in at the curbstone of Trinity and drive it clear through to Wall street ferry. And so it shall go if the horses are strong enough to draw the plow. * * *

Justifiable Speculation.

Again, I have to remark that Wall street is a type throughout the country of legitimate speculation on the one hand and of ruinous gambling on the other. Almost every merchant is to some extent a speculator. He depends not only upon the difference between the wholesale price at which he gets the goods and the retail at which he disposes of them, but also upon the fluctuation of the markets. If the m

Yields of Wheat in Which the Shocks Were So Thick It Was Almost Impossible to Drive Between Them.

To the Editor: A gentleman from Duluth made a trip through a portion of Western Canada last summer and writing of what he saw, says:

"Wheat, for instance, will average twenty-five or thirty bushels to the acre. I saw shocks so thick in the field that it would be almost impossible to drive between them. Winters, it is said are longer than near Duluth, but the Japan current, warm chinook winds and dry atmosphere make the winters comparatively mild."

Thousands of such testimonials are to be had from settlers who have taken advantage of the low-priced lands of Western Canada. During the present year new districts will be opened up in the Saskatchewan valley and advantage should be taken of this at once. Information can be had from any agent of the government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns. Yours truly,

Contrasting the ancient church with the modern, Phillips Brooks once remarked that the early devout tried to save their young men from being thrown to the lions. "Now," he added, "we are glad if we can save them from going to the dogs." A clergyman going abroad talked in jest of bringing back a new religion with him, "You might have some trouble in getting it through the custom house," some one remarked. "No," observed Bishop Brooks; "we may take it for granted that a new religion would have no duties attached."

The French courts were puzzled some time ago by the case of a man who lost a bank note under remarkable circumstances. Dining on the terrace of a Narbonne restaurant, he let the bank note fall into his soup. He laid the note on the table to dry, and a gust of wind carried it away. A passing dog swallowed it, and the gentleman detained the animal, whose collar happened to bear his master's name. The owned of the note sued the owner of the dog for a hundred francs, the value of the note. There was much legal hair-splitting, but at length the court arrived at a decision which surprised most people, ordering the owner of the dog to refund the hundred francs.

Couldn't Wear Shoes.
Sumpter, Ill., June 10th.—Mrs. J. B. Flanigan, of this place, had suffered with dropsy for fifteen years. She was so very bad that for the last three years she has not been able to wear her shoes. She had doctored all the time, but was gradually getting worse.
Last winter Mr. Flanigan, who was very much discouraged, called for some medicine at Mr. J. J. Dale's drug store in Carmi. Mr. Dale persuaded him to have his wife try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he bought six boxes. His wife used five out of the six, before she was entirely cured. She is now as sound and as well as ever she was, completely restored to health, and free from any symptom whatever of dropsy.
To say that Mrs. Flanigan is pleased at her wonderful deliverance does not half express her feelings, and she and Mr. Flanigan are loud in their praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and of Mr. Dale for recommending this wonderful remedy to them.
The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Flanigan of such a severe case of dropsy, after the doctors had given her up, has made them the most talked of remedy ever known in White county.

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

"I rose, pale and weak, and trembling, and gained the shore. Striking inland, the old Hall was just before me. I walked slowly up the long avenue and ascended the granite steps. As I reached the last step, I stumbled and fell upon my knees. Looking round to see the cause, I found an iron gauntlet, rusted and eaten away, and half buried in the moss that grew around it. I took it up with a strange thrill of awe. How many years had it awaited me, since the fiery lover hurled it, like a curse, back in the face of his pursuer? The door before me was of carved oak, but worm eaten and decaying. With a sudden impulse, for which I could not account, I struck upon it furiously with the iron glove. The frail fastenings, already half undone by the hand of time, gave way at my impetuous summons, and, amid a thousand echoes, the door swung slowly on its hinges and the castle was won. When the cloud of dust raised by my sudden entrance had subsided, I passed through the portal and stood upon the floor of the hall. There, where the lovely lady's flying footsteps had rested last; there, where the lover had thrown down the iron glove, in defiance of the wronged and deserted husband; there, where the feeble old man had sunk down in agony, when, hearing their horses' hoofs beyond the outer court, he learned the full extent of his dishonor and despair; there, where his menials had raised him, shrieking and cursing in impetuous madness; there, where they had borne him slowly up the long stone staircase that wound around and around and far above my head to the lonely room that was to be his prison and his tomb. The stone flags were no longer shoulder to shoulder, like firm friends and true. Time had come between them, as between all other things, and the dark, deep crevices on every side were only hidden by the long grass that sought to bridge them over.

"While I stood in the hall I thought I heard a faint, distant noise above my head, and looking up the staircase, I saw——"

"Yow!" yelped Mr. Cowley, flinging the book to the other end of the room. "I'll read no more of that. I've got to where the ghost comes in. I looked up and saw—Oh, yes, of course you did. But if you imagine you are going to induce me to read your raw-headed and bloody-bone rubbish, you are grandly mistaken. Strange that everything one takes up in this wretched place turns into a ghost story on your hands. I should not be surprised any morning to find the leading article in the Times turning into a tale of a haunted house right under my eyes. It's unbearable—positively unbearable!"

He finished his grog and looked at his watch.

"Eleven o'clock and the house as still as death! I wonder if they are all asleep. High time for me to go—Oh, Lord! what's that?"

The sound was in the room exactly overhead—a steady, continuous knocking that seemed to summon him to the place without delay.

"What room is that? The turret chamber! Rose said there was something there and that was why she moved her room!"

For a moment or two the worthy banker sat like one paralyzed, a cold moisture on his face and his heart beating a muffled march within his breast. At last his "British pluck" came to his aid.

"By St. George of England, I won't turn coward in my old age!" he exclaimed. "Man, woman or ghost—let it be what it may, I'll go and meet it!"

He took the candle and left the room. All was quiet on the stairs, in the hall, in the gallery above. The knocking ceased.

With trembling hand he opened the door of the turret chamber.

A tall and slender woman stood alone in the center of the room. Her face was hidden by a black mask. A full mantle, or robe of crimson cloth covered her from head to foot. It was girded at the waist by a cord of variegated silk, and the full sleeves were embroidered with threads of gold. Upon her breast something shone and sparkled in the shape of a star.

In one hand she held the casket and the tress of hair; in the other, a paper on which the astonished banker saw written in large letters:

"On that day, I, a child of three years, had lain speechless and senseless for more than twelve hours. The strange and sudden illness terrified every one around me—they thought me dead, and a veritable resurrection from the tomb could hardly have created more excitement than my recovery. I remembered the recovery perfectly, but all before it was a blank. Now, however, as I stood gazing on that picture, I seemed to remember dimly some other stage of existence, some lost life in which I had loved or suffered in this. It was the old mystery that had puzzled so many minds far stronger than mine—the mystery that we shall all, perhaps, see one day was but the dim working of a veiled and hidden truth."

Mr. Cowley read these words with an air of the utmost perplexity. His terror was gone, for he believed the mysterious old lady to be human and living like himself. But what she wanted of him—why she held that paper out so persistently, and what on earth its contents were all about, he could not say.

"Bless me! what a rigmarole it all is, to be sure!" he muttered to himself. "How on earth did she get here? and what can she want? I wonder if she can speak English? I'll try her, at all events. Madam, can I be of any service to you?"

The figure turned. The very movement struck a sudden chill to the worthy banker's heart. What if she was not alive, after all! Gracious powers! what if he had been calling a ghost "Ma'am!"

The figure moved. It made no noise, and yet it came nearer and nearer. He put out his hand to arrest its progress and an ice-cold touch met his own. He turner faint and sick. He would have fled, but his feet seemed rooted to the floor.

"Go—go from the house and bring my husband back!" said a hollow voice; then the veil fell aside, and a white, hideous face glared upon him. He uttered a loud shriek, and fainted.

The next instant, Mrs. Cowley, Rose and Catharine were in the room, and Cousin Charles stole out of the cupboard, where he had witnessed the scene.

"I hope he is not hurt," whispered Mrs. Cowley. "I shall never forgive myself for the trick if he comes to harm."

"Make yourself easy, aunt, he is recovering," said Mr. Cowley; and, snatching his uncle up in his strong arms, he laid him upon his own bed, and vanished before the banker had seen him.

There was not much danger, after that, of Mr. Cowley's remaining in the haunted house a day longer than he could help.

CHAPTER XIII.

It is strange how ultimately scenery becomes connected with some of the strongest emotions and passions of the human mind. We gaze out upon a fair and sunny landscape in midsummer, as we lie beneath the trees, and a vague sadness steals over us, because the eyes whose beauty has sunk into our hearts cannot look upon it too; we look up at the moon as she floats serenely through the deep blue sky and sigh, thinking of the days that are no more. Nay, even the storms that roar loudly over land and sea, set us brooding over the past, and our tears fall with the rain.

So thought Rose Cowley, as she sat alone in her dressing room one gloomy morning. Poor Rose! she had been washed in many a shower of tears, in spite of all her present gayety.

Her father would as soon have believed that Gog and Magog would come down from their pedestals and fall in love, as that his merry Rose had fallen a victim to the little urchin with the bow. Yet it was true. A year after she left school, she had paid a visit to one of her mother's relatives—a genuine, old-fashioned, hearty English squire. It was at his house that the mischief was done—under his protection that she met the man who was to be at once the blessing and the torment of her future life. She had first seen him at church, where, I am afraid, his blue eyes and regular features and golden hair had attracted more of her attention than she gave to her prayer book. And when, at the end of the service, her host came up to her and introduced the handsome stranger as the son of his oldest and dearest friend there were not wanting those who marked the shy smile, the slight blush, and the bashful drooping of her eyes as she greeted him. Rose was a free, wild Rose no longer. Love, even at first sight, will be lord of all; and there is no time on earth, I think, where he plays so many vagariees as during the visit of a pretty city girl to an old-fashioned English country-house.

Mr. Vere became a constant visitor at the house of his friend, and Rose entered upon a new phase of her life, and that sweetest, happiest and most foolish of times, when a young girl's heart first finds out that it has other work to do besides beating. She would sit for hours, when her lover was absent, recalling every trivial circumstance of their last interview; and then with a blush at the thought of her employment, welcome another idea, touching in its tenderness, to her heart, and weep for joy that she had reserved the first fond love of her young spirit for him.

In such musings—such happy companionship—a month passed rapidly away. No word of love had been spoken between the two; yet enough had been said (though something always seemed to check the avowal upon his lips) to leave her happy in the belief that she was very dear to him.

True, he had never asked her to be his—had never told her definitely that he loved her. But he had kissed her hand; and a lock of that beautiful golden hair rose and fell with every pulsation of her happy heart.

Alas for that first sweet, innocent joy! Ere long that sunny curl was wet with bitterest tears, and hidden carefully away—the first of the lost treasures which she, like every other woman, was to gather around her as she went through life.

It was her own folly that first came between them. She was young and childish; perhaps vain and trifling at times. She loved him dearly, and yet, secure in her possession, she was at times very cruel to him. For when a man loves a woman truly, she has it in her power to hurt and torment him in a thousand different ways.

Rose took the heart that had been given her; and, half carelessly, half maliciously, wounded it very grievously.

Among the guests at Howlet House was one who had been seriously inclined to worship at her shrine before Mr. Vere had made his appearancce. That he loved her she could not help believing; that he was unhappy about her, she and every one else around her knew. And yet she allowed him to hang over her chair—to talk to her—to bring her ices—to hold her bouquet when she danced, giving him encouragement (in the countless ways a woman knows so well), without seeming to do so.

Mr. Vere looked on and said nothing. She was not engaged to him, and he had no right to interfere. It may be that he might have asked for such a right; but in his heart he disapproved so strongly of her conduct, that he preferred to watch the drama to its close before he committed himself in any way.

The crisis came at last. They were at a party one even—this man and Rose. Mr. Vere was absent, but was expected later in the evening—a proceeding on his part which did not please his wilful lady-love. But she would not show her displeasure. She listened to the passionate words that were breathed in her ear, and said to herself that she would not "wear the willow." Come what might with that thought, some chain that bound her spirit seemed suddenly unloosened, and she became the gayest of the gay. The band struck up a waltz—couple after couple glided easily away from the ground around them, till she was the only lady left.

"One waltz—only one!" breathed that voice in her ear.

She shrank back at first, well remembering in what terms Mr. Vere had expressed his opinion of the dance a few days before.

"Oh, I cannot!"

"Surely you are not afraid of Mr. Vere? He is not here—he will not know. Will you not grant this favor—perhaps the last I shall ever ask of you?"

The pleading glance of the sad, dark eyes prevailed. She rose from her seat. His arm was around her waist; his breath upon her cheek; his voice breathing passionate words of admiration in her not unwilling ear; and the absent lover seemed almost forgotten. People made a circle around the room to watch them; for both were young, and graceful, and beautiful, and they moved as if they had but one soul between them. Rose's vanity was roused by the flattering exclamations she heard on every side. Flushed and smiling and happy, she floated around; when, as she passed the door, she looked up and saw a gentleman standing there with folded arms, and his eyes fixed intently upon her face.

It was Mr. Vere.

She was proud—too proud to show how frightened she was, though her partner felt her trembling from head to foot. She said that she was tired, and they left the circle and sat down.

Mr. Vere did not come to her. She saw him talking to a lady near the door, as grave and calm as ever, only that he never trusted himself to look that way until the party was breaking up. Then he crossed the room and stood before her.

"The carriage waits," he said quietly. "Will you allow me?"

He offered his arm. He did not seem angry. No man could have been more courteous than he. He never spoke as they descended the stairs together; but at the carriage door he stopped a moment and looked at her very gravely.

DEER THANKED RESCUERS.

Singular Hunting Incident That Happened in a Maine Wilderness.

James Mayberry, a drummer for a Boston wholesale house, took a two weeks' vacation in March in the north forest of Maine. The weather was very favorable for crust hunting all through March. The snow was from three to four feet deep on the level and coated with a very firm crust. The drummer took a trip with a game warden and three guides to capture two living deer to put into a park near Waterville. During the hunt Mr. Mayberry and two guides were crossing the head of Schoodic lake one morning on snowshoes when a deer came out of the dense cedar swamp and made a dash to cross the lake. As long as the animal remained near the woods where the crust was thick it made good headway, but upon approaching the edge of the lake, where the sun had thawed the snow and made it soft the creature was buried to its neck at every leap. At times it fell on its side and made heroic efforts to regain its footing, kicking frantically and wounding itself with its sharp hoofs. The men, who were behind a small island at the time, were about to capture the deer, when four large foxes came out from the cedars and followed the path of the deer, nosing out its tracks with the accuracy of trained hounds. As this was something new to the party the men waited to watch proceedings. The foxes came on silently, wagging their bushy tails and winding in and out among the islands, keeping on the course the deer had made. As they came around the end of the last island the deer had turned end over end in its struggle to get along and was lying with its head toward the foxes. No sooner did the animal see its foes than it redoubled its efforts to get away, but the foxes were light and had large hairy feet that would hold them up on the lightest snow, and inside of five minutes they were on the deer's back biting at its throat to open an artery so the poor beast would bleed to death. The hunters, who had believed that no fox could kill a deer, and had not for a moment contemplated the outcome of the affray, took up their rifles and shot two of the foxes, thinking that the sound of firearms would scare the survivors away, but they continued to worry the fallen deer until the men had fired again, killing another fox, whereupon the fourth one walked off to the woods, casting regretful glances behind. On arriving at the scene of the conflict the deer, which was exhausted but not badly injured, seemed grateful for the rescue, lapping the hands of the men with its soft tongue and bleating out its thanksgiving in a way that any one could understand. This was one of the two deer that was able to withstand the severe strain of capture and is now doing nicely in a large park, where it has all the hay and grain it can eat, and where no harmful animals can annoy it.—Chicago Journal.

HOW HE SCARED THE TIGER.

Bluff Played Successfully by an Unarmed Traveler in India.

If not interfered with the tiger will generally run from, rather than attack, a man. A writer from India tells a story of how, having sent his guns and luncheon on before him, his attention was arrested by a rustle in the jungle, and looking that way, he saw a tiger crouched low, coming rapidly toward him. He says: "My first feeling was one of horror, for it seemed all up with me, the tiger being very close and in a rush. Of course, it was not me, but the pony, that he wanted, but had he knocked out the latter his own fears at finding a man under him would have made him maul me, too. There was but one thing to be done, namely, to put a bold front on it and try to frighten him, and I, therefore, instantly wheeled the pony's head toward him, shouting at the same moment. The tiger stopped short and stared at me, but he did not offer to retreat. I then moved the pony toward him, shouting loudly as I did so, and the tiger then turned his tail to me, and, having retired about thirty yards, he sat bolt upright on his haunches and stared at me. I was naturally desirous of withdrawing from an interview so unpleasant to me in my unarmed condition. I therefore rode straight in at the tiger, waving my arm and sternly ordering him off, and before I reached him he decided to move himself, this time somewhat hastily and in marked contrast to his previous orderly, not to say dignified, retreat, and, having at last routed him, I lost no time in cantering over the remaining portion of the jungle cart track until it emerged upon the high road.—Chicago Chronicle.

Provisions for 27 Months.

Evelyn B. Baldwin, the Arctic explorer, closed a contract recently with Armour & Co. for the largest quantity of food supplies ever taken on an Arctic expedition. They amount altogether to about 200 tons—ten carloads, and cost between $50,000 and $60,000. They were delivered in New York early in April and were shipped thence to Dundee, Scotland; Tromsoe, Norway, and Sandford, Norway. The expedition expects to be ready to start on June 1, and the provisions are intended to last the party twenty-seven months.

STORYETTES.

When the Duke of Wellington first went to the court of Louis the Eighteenth, the French marshals whom he had defeated turned their backs upon him. The king apologized for their rudeness. "Never mind, your majesty," replied Wellington; "they have got into the habit, and they can't get out of it."

In an address on the "Immunities and Privileges of Diplomas" at Yale recently, former Secretary of State John W. Foster spoke about the late Benjamin Harrison's amusing criticism of the custom of foreign governments in sending notices to this country upon the birth of a prince or princess, and the red tape the United States went through in formally recognizing the advent of such royal personages. Harrison believed that the most effective way to discourage such royal notices coming to this country would be for this government to send to all European courts the name of every youngster born in the United States as a possible candidate for the presidency, and require the foreign courts to send return diplomatic recognition of the affair.

Even the most serious occasions may have humorous incidents that can be appreciated after the period of anxiety has passed. During the severe illness of Mrs. McKinley in San Francisco a squad of policemen was stationed on all the streets leading to the house where she was staying, to prevent the approach of persons having no business there. A dignified gentleman residing on one of the quarantined blocks, when on his way home to dinner, approached one of these guardians of the peace whose Milesian extraction was unquestionably stamped upon his face. The policeman stopped him and asked where he was going. "Home," replied the gentleman; "I live at twenty-two twenty-two Blank street." "Four deuces, is it," said the policeman, with a twinkle in his eye; "that's a good hand. I lay mine down. You can go."

FOR SYSTEMIC CATARRH
Peculiar to Summer Pe-ru-na Gives Prompt and Permanent Relief.

Clem G. Moore, Editor of the Advocate-Democrat of Crawfordsville, Ga., writes the Peruna Medicine Company as follows:

Gentlemen—"After four years of intense suffering, caused by systemic catarrh, which I contracted while editing, and traveling for my paper, I have been greatly relieved by the use of Peruna. I gave up work during these years of torture, tried various remedies and many doctors, but all the permanent relief came from the use of Peruna. My trouble was called indigestion, but was catarrh all through my system, and a few bottles of Peruna made me feel like another person, noting the improvement after I had used the first bottle. Peruna is undoubtedly the best catarrh remedy ever compounded.—Clem G. Moore.

Captain Percy W. Moss, Paragould, Ark., says: "I think Peruna is undoubtedly the finest and surest catarrh cure ever prepared, and it has taken but two bottles to convince me of this fact."

Judge Wm. T. Zenor, of Washington, D. C., writes from 213 N. Capital Street, Washington, D. C.:

"I take pleasure in saying that I can cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna as a remedy for catarrhal troubles and a most excellent tonic for general conditions."—Wm. T. Zenor.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Three weeks more and Klemme will be decorated with flags bunting and stars and stripes. The anvil will boom, and things will take on a general happy go lucky appearance. Klemme is the place to celebrate your 4th.

Miss Lovering, after trimming a very successful season for Mrs. Josten, left Monday for Northfield, Minn. She received information Saturday that her younger sister of that place is very sick and went to attend the bed side.

The German M. E. Sunday school will hold services in honor of the Children's Day on Sunday June 16th. A program will be delivered in the Klemme church in the forenoon and in the Germantown church in the afternoon. A cordial invitation is extended.

The wind and storm of Sunday did some damage throughout this section. Aug. Lau's farm wind mill was blown over onto the barn and completely demolished; several out-building were turned over; lightning struck and killed three head of cattle for H. Priebe, and other damage was done.

H. E. Peitzke informs us that the farmers north of Clear Lake have that section of the country considerably interwoven with house to house telepone wire connections. For a radius of six miles square there is a telephone instrument in almost all of the farm houses. Thus it is that farmer Jones can "hello" to neighbor Brown and tell him to bring out a drag tooth, a corn plow shovel or a pound of tobacco if he goes to town in the morning. The women enjoy the same priviliges. It is a very useful idea.

One of our "smart alec" boys about 17 years old, under the influence of "booz" took upon himself the liberty to play the act "Jack, the hugger" on Saturday eve on some of the girls of this place. The boy was so foolishly drunk that he reminded one of a chicken without it's brains. His breath stunk like old paste and his eyes were dilated like these of a crazy cat. The marshall was out hunting for him early Monday morning with the intention of prosecution him but he had suddenly and without warning hied himself, freight and old clothes into the quiet timbers of fair Minneota. That is a better place for him; there is no room in Iowa It would have been a good thing for the town to have got about 30 days work out of him before he departed. Yea verily, a 17 year old boy looks "cute" when he is too drunk to walk!

Republican Primary Election.

The primary election of the Republican voters of German Township will be held in the Center schoil house on June 22nd 1901. Poles will be open from 3:00 to 8:00 p. m. F. W. LENZ.
Committeeman.

There are a number of things that people who come to celebrate in Klemme can rely on. The first thing of which we wish to speak is the grand industrial parade which will be fully three quarters of a mile long. Rev. G. F. Barsalou, D. D., a forceful orator, will give an elequent and inspiring address. A grand stand or auditoriom will be fixed up with a seating capacity for 3000 people. There will be no sitting out in the hot July sun in Klemme on that day. A ball game for a $40 purse begins at 2:00 and will be a battle royal from beginning to end. All manner of races for purses, such as horse races, foot races, egg and wheel-barrow races, etc., etc. The best display of fireworks ever shown in Hancock county will be here; a $300 exhibition piece such as a "sham battle" will illumine the darkness of the evening. A bowery dance hall will grace the grounds for the benefit of those who like to "shake their feet." In fact, there will be nothing missing; every thing that goes to make a glorious 4th will be here, from the little insignificant perfume bottle up to a balloon ascension. It is the first celebration the town has ever held and no labor nor money will be held back that will help to make all merry, happy and content. Come to this place; the elevated roads all stop here!

Read It In His Newspaper.

George Schuab, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon. Ohio is a constant reader of the 'Dayton Volkseitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me, I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.
All correspondence strictly confiential.

How To Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for childred and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

A Terrible Explosion

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable. and will prove a good investment.

Wonders of the Automobile

A Grand International Speed Contest for the Pan-American Exposition

THE Queen City of the Lakes, with her beautiful tree-embowered streets and parkways, will this summer be the Mecca of the automobilists of the Americas.

As a result of a conference held in Buffalo between William I. Buchanan, director general of the Pan-American exposition, and a committee appointed by the board of governors of the Automobile Club of America, consisting of Albert C. Bostwick, Percy Owen and J. M. Hill, all of New York city, together with Thomas M. Moore, superintendent of transportation exhibits, and the sports and athletics committee of the exposition, it was decided to hold a grand international road race of 200 miles from Buffalo to Erie and return as the culmination of a week of automobile sports at the Pan-American exposition.

To arrange and carry out the programme of the tournament Director General Buchanan has appointed a committee of automobilists to act in connection with the sports and athletics committee of the exposition.

Mr. Malcolm W. Ford will be chairman of the special committee, and his associates will be Mr. J. M. Hill, who will represent the electrical vehicle interests; Mr. Percy Owen, representing the gasoline vehicle interests, and Mr. S. T. Davis, Jr., representing steam vehicle interests. All four are members of the Automobile Club of America, and Mr. Davis is also president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers. The fifth member of the committee is Dr. Truman J. Martin, president of the Buffalo Automobile club.

Though the programme of the tournament, which will be held in the stadium, has not been arranged, it has been suggested that trials to test the mobility and economy of the various types of motor vehicles, obstacle and hill-climbing contests, brake contests and pursuit races be included in it.

The tournament will take place during the week beginning September 16. It is intended that the international speed contest over the famous Buffalo-Erie course shall rank with the famous long-distance automobile races held annually in France. This contest will be the feature of the week of automobile sports and tests, and will be open to self-propelled vehicles of all types and all countries. Large purses and valuable cups and medals will be presented to the winners.

During the week preceding that of the motor vehicle tournament at the Pan-American exposition the Automobile club of America will hold a tour or endurance test from New York to Buffalo as a practical demonstration of the utility of motor vehicles.

This run will not be a speed contest, as the object of the trip is to demonstrate the possibilities of the various types of motor vehicles under all conditions of weather and roads.

Automobilists of all countries are invited to participate, and valuable cups and medals will be given as prizes.

The course is to be up the Hudson to Albany and thence across the state to Buffalo, a distance of about 400 miles.

The route to be followed will be definitely fixed by a committee appointed by Mr. A. R. Shattuck, president of the Automobile Club of America.

He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns. and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me. I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties," He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. AMENDMENT IS ADOPTED

Cuban Convention Again Adopts Platt Amendment.

Havana, June 13.—The Cuban constitutional convention yesterday accepted the Platt amendment by a vote of 16 to 11. The resolution to accept was carried without discussion. Immediately after the opening of the session Senores Tamayo, Villuendas and Quesada, constituting a majority of the committee on relations, submitted a substitute for the committee's former report the Platt amendment as passed by congress, recommending that it be accepted and making an appendix to the constitution.

In the vote on the resolution the twenty-seven delegates present divided as follows:

In favor of acceptance—Senores Capote, Villuendas, Jose M. Gomez, Tamayo, Monteagudo, Delgado, Betancourt, Gilberga, Llorente, Quesada, Sanguily, Nunez, Rodriguez, Berriel, Quileze and Ferrer.

Opposed to acceptance—Senores Zayas, Aleman, Eudaldo, Tamayo, Juan Gualberto Gomez, Cisneros, Silvala, Fortun, Lacret, Purtuondo, Castro and Manduley.

Senores Rivera, Correnso, Gener and Robau were absent. The latter two voted against acceptance in the previous division. Senor Ferror voted with the conservatives, explaining his change of attitude by asserting that he believed acceptance would be the best solution of the problem.

The convention will now appoint a commission to draw up the electoral law.

Washington, June 13.—The news of the adoption of the Platt amendment by the Cuban constitutional convention was received with genuine gratification here. The administration all along has felt confident that its ratification would be accomplished when the Cubans realized that this government was firm in its attitude regarding the amendment and that its acceptance would be necessary before the United States would consent to withdraw its supervision from the island.

Now that the Cubans have demonstrated their good faith in the United States, it is expected that a fairly speedy evacuation of the island will follow, contingent only upon the establishment of a stable government in the island. Just to what extent the United States will require practical evidence of the fact is not definitely known, but the officials here think that such steps should be taken by the Cubans as will demonstrate their ability to maintain order and peace so that the interests of all the people, native and foreign, shall be adequately protected.

An effective police force and other measures necessary to the preesrvation of good order and sanitation are deemed as essential prerequisites in the formation of the new government. The mere physical question of the withdrawal of the American military from the island is an easy one and can be accomplished without much delay.

One cabinet officer speaking of the matter expressed the opinion that if the other requirements are met our withdrawal might be accomplished during the summer and that Cuban independence might be a reality by late autumn.

CORN KING PHILLIPS HAS A PLAN.

Offers Farmers a Method of Keeping Corn at 40 Cents or Above.

Minneapolis, June 14.—A limited number of members of the national farmers' alliance listened to a short address last night by "Corn King" Phillips of Chicago at the West hotel. The address dealt principally with corn and corn "corners."

"Let the government," he said, "tax the farmer a cent a bushel on his crop and with the money build elevators in which to store 100,000,000 bushels of corn and pay 40 cents, Chicago basis, for it and the world will pay the same price. There is not so much of it that we need worry about an extra large crop or two. With the government ready to pay 40 cents for it, the farmer can borrow 30 cents from his country bank if he needs the money and carry the surplus for seven years if need be."

CRUISER GOES TO COREA.

American Interests Call the New Orleans for Protection.

Washington, June 13.—Owing to fear of fresh trouble in Corea for Americans the protected cruiser New Orleans has been sent to look after the interests of citizens of the United States in the hermit kingdom. This action was taken in consequence of information sent by Horace N. Allen, minister resident at Seoul. Mr. Allen recently cabled the state department, stating that American interests would be endangered if McLeavy Brown, the financial expert of the Corean customs, was removed, and he protested against his removal. Mr. Brown is still in office. There are large American gold mining interests in Corea, the mines being owned chiefly by J. Sloat Fassett of New York.

Johnson Would Not Be Governor.

Hamilton, O., June 15.—The Hamilton Democrat published the following dispatch in reply to statements that ex-Congressman Tom L. Johnson would accept the democratic nomination for governor:

"Cleveland, O., June 13.—There is absolutely no truth in the statements referred to. I would decline the nomination. I would refuse to serve if elected. Is that strong enough? Nothing on earth could cause me to break my contract as mayor with the people of Cleveland for the next two years.—Tom L. Johnson."

Senator Platt to Retire.

New York, June 17.—The Tribune says: Senator Platt will retire from the United States senate at the end of his term in March, 1903. The information was obtained last night at the Fifth Avenue hotel. Mr. Platt is feeling better and stronger than usual, and his determination has not been hastened, it is understood, on account of poor health. It is expected by his friends that he wil make public some day this week his reasons for laying down his office at the end of the term.

Woodmen Award Prizes.

St. Paul, Minn., June 17.—At the head camp of the Modern Woodern of America Pontiac, Ill., took the first prize of $500 in the drill contests, having a percentage of 99 1-40. Rockford, Ill., with 98.9, is second, and takes $440; Kansas City, 98.85 and $300; Des Moines 98.5 and $200; Rock Island, Ill., 98.5 and $87.50; Topeka, Kan., 98.5 and $87.50; Dubuque, 97⅞ and $50.

Pittsburg, June 11.—Major W. H. Daly, surgeon general of the staff of Lieutenant General Miles in Porto Rico, committed suicide at his home here by shooting himself in the temple. No cause is known for Dr. Daly's deed, unless it be that insomnia drove him to temporary insanity. He gained international prominence during the Cuban war by giving testimony supporting the charges of General Miles against the commissary department.

Hope is a star that buoys many a man to happiness.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

OLEOMARGARINE POINT UP.

The Iowa Law Has Been Held Wholly Unconstitutional.

Des Moines, June 15.—Attorney General Mullan has under consideration the case of the State vs. James Cousins, citizen of Manchester, who was arrested upon complaint of Deputy State Dairy Commissioner Wright, charged with violating the dairy laws of the state by having in his possession oleomargarine. When the case came up for trial the defendant's attorney demurred against the indictment on the grounds that it was not constitutional and Judge Blair sustained it. This disposed of the case in the lower court and the dairy commissioner is asking that the case be appealed.

The papers have been submitted to Attorney General Mullan, who now has them under advisement, but it is the general impression that no appeal will be taken, notwithstanding the United States supreme court has several times upheld the section of the law under which the prosecution was brought. This law briefly described prohibits the sale or keeping for sale of any substitute for butter or cheese that is colored to imitate these products. The keeping of the product in one's house is sufficient, according to the legislature, to warrant prosecution, and action was brought against Cousins, although it is practically conceded that the imitation butter found was for his private use and that the defendant was not engaged in the sale of the oleomargarine. The Iowa legislature has passed a law prohibiting the manufacture, sale or use of oleomargarine that is colored to imitate butter or that is calculated to deceive in any manner, and the United States supreme court has held that states have the right to pass such laws. Cousins defended on the ground that the law affected private rights, and Judge Blair so held when the case was tried before him in Delaware county.

FIRE AT WOODWARD.

Total Loss Will Be in the Neighborhood of $30,000.

Woodward, June 13.—Fire broke out in Craft & Plumb's dry goods and grocery store at 3 o'clock a. m., destroying about $30,000 worth of property, most of which was uninsured. The flames were first discovered in the rear of the store, but before the fire department could get to the scene this building, the finest in the city, was almost in ruins. The fire swept west and destroyed more than half the block. The engine with which the flames were fought to good advantage when the fire started gave out and the department was compelled to fight it with buckets. The following losses are reported: Craft & Plumb, dry goods, loss $12,000; insurance, $4,000; W. W. Woodsley, $700; loss, $600; A. C. Mewell, groceries, loss, $800; George Thomas, building, loss, $600; Dr. Bookny, building; loss, $1,000; insurance, $800; Hartman & Nicholas, butchers, loss, $300; Hardy Giles, building, loss, $500; insurance, $400; Commercial hotel, loss, $1,500; insurance, $1,000; Read's livery barn, loss, $800; insurance, $400. Mr. Barlow is the owner of the Commercial hotel.

DES MOINES MAN SUICIDES.

S. W. Hazard, City Passenger Agent of Northwestern Road.

Des Moines, June 15.—Seneca W. Hazard, city passenger agent for the Chicago & North-Western Railway company, committed suicide by hanging himself in the basement of the company's office at the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets. No immediate cause for the deed is known. Temporary irresponsibility, resulting from brooding over purely private financial troubles, is given by Mr. Hazard's family and by the officials of the company for which he worked nearly forty years as the cause. What these troubles were is not known other than in a general way. It is known that he was in straightened financial circumstances, and failing to see his way clear to the advancement and financial success which he desired, he became despondent. It is also known positively that his official connection with the North-Western company had nothing to do with the cause of his taking his own life. His accounts were perfect. His domestic relations were ideal.

MISS SLAVATA WINS.

Only Successful Young Woman to Contest for Oratorical Honors at S. U. I.

Iowa City, June 15.—Commencement exercises at the University of Iowa closed with the graduating exercises of the College of Liberal Arts. Inasmuch as this is the last occasion when the graduates of the school will deliver orations, the rivalry for the honors was very keen. Miss Jennie E. Slavata of Iowa City was the only young woman in the class to be thus honored. The other orators were Benjamin Boardman of Portsmouth, Iowa; Thomas Andrew Kingland of Forest City, Iowa; James E. Gow of Greenfield, Iowa; Henry S. Arnold of Davis City, Iowa, and Clarence W. Soesbe of Greene, Iowa. The prizes for scholarship were awarded. Baccalaureate degrees were given as follows: Bachelor of philosophy, 48; bachelor of arts, 24; bachelor of science, 23; bachelor of science in civil engineering, 6. Two special degrees were granted in German and one in French.

DRAKE ATTENDS EXERCISES.

Governor Renews His Offer of $75,000 for Every $25,000 Raised.

Des Moines, June 15.—Drake university graduated sixty-nine students. General Francis M. Drake, founder of the university, was present at the commencement exercises and offers to continue his agreement to give $75,000 for every $25,000 the university can raise for the endowment fund. C. D. McGregor of Nora Springs succeeds T. W. Dehaven at the head of the commercial department. Professor Bruce Fink of Upper Iowa university was elected professor of geology and botany to succeed L. S. Ross. The receipts and expenditures during the year were about $160,000.

ROBBED BY A NEGRESS.

Traveling Salesman Robbed of $91 by a Colored Woman in Marshalltown.

Marshalltown, June 17.—A traveling salesman giving his name as S. B. Sheldon was robbed by a negress in this city. In all the woman took $91 from the man. Sheldon was on his way to the depot when he was accosted by the colored woman. He says he stopped to "chin" the woman a few minutes and then resumed his walk to the depot. On his arrival there he was surprised to find his pockets had been rifled of their contents. He complained to the police. A number of negroes were arrested but Sheldon was unable to identify any of them as the one who robbed him.

Convicts' Home Progressing.

Fort Dodge, June 11.—Work will be started on the L. S. Coffin home for ex-convicts as soon as the plans can be drawn and the contracts let. A local contractor and architect are now at work drafting plans which will be submitted to the building committee as soon as accepted and the work will be started. A site of eighty acres of land donated by Mr. Coffin has been selected. The new home will be pleasantly located on rising ground and the location has been pronounced an ideal one.

MURDERED HIS WIFE.

Villisca Man Knocks His Wife Down on the Street and Then Stabs Her.

Villisca, June 5.—Mrs. Ida M. Thiele was murdered at 11:30 yesterday morning by her former husband on one of the most public streets in the city, directly in front of H. Poston's residence. The work was done with a pocket knife. Her husband sneaked up behind her and knocked her down, then put his knee on her and stabbed her three times. When assistance arrived the murderer ran, but was caught before he got ten blocks away. When put in jail a knife with a long blade was found covered with blood. The officers took the murderer to Red Oak immediately to avoid a mob. About four years ago the husband ran away and left the mother with six children. On account of circumstances and poor health the mother was compelled to give the children away, and now the husband wanted to live with her again, but she refused and he took revenge in the above manner. The mother was a good Christian woman. He has been in town for a couple of days trying to find her and yesterday morning inquired at different places for her. He finally saw her walking down the street and ran after her like a wild man. She screamed and the neighbors and passersby hurried to the rescue, but too late to interfere with the deed.

COL. SWALM IN IOWA.

He Is in America on a Sixty Days' Leave of Absence.

Des Moines, June 13.—Col. Albert W. Swalm, consul of the United States to Montevideo, with Mrs. Swalm and their daughter, Miss Nina Swalm, reached Des Moines at 9:20 last night over the Rock Island. They have been absent from the state four years and expressed the greatest pleasure at coming back to Iowa soil once more, and getting a view again of the matchless and teaming prairies of the Hawkeye state. Colonel Swalm has been granted a sixty days' leave of absence and expects to return to South America July 20.

HEAVY VERDICT RENDERED.

The Great Western Railway Company Mulcted for $17,900.

Fort Dodge, June 17.—The verdict of the jury in the personal injuries case of Prowse vs. the Great Western railroad awards $17,900 the the plaintiff. The suit was brought for $40,000 as the result of injuries received by the plaintiff in an accident last August, which he claims are permanent. The plaintiff was a conductor on the road at the time of the injury. The jury was out seveateen hours.

Desperate Prisoner Escapes.

Osceola, June 17.—When the city marshal went to give John Monyham, a fellow who was captured some time ago with burglar tools and a quantity of clothing in his possesion, his breakfast, he was missing. After about two hours of examining and inquiry of Dutch Lowe, another prisoner who is awaiting trial for an attempt to murder his wife, it was found that while the marshal had gone after a bucket of water around the corner of the jail, Monyham succeeded in opening the door of the cage, which the marshal had neglected to lock, and made his escape. He then had about two hours the start, and that meant enough time to reach the brush. Sheriff Lubenkill at once started in pursuit with several deputies, but there is little hope of their being able to capture him. He had when captured the best kit of burglar tools and skeleton keys ever seen in this place and is no doubt a professional. He had inquired of Lowe a day or two ago the distance to the timber, and told him he was going to leave as soon as possible, as he was wanted in four states

Gunn Burned to Death.

Oskaloosa, June 14.—Frank Gunn, son of a prominent merchant of Fremont, was burned to death in the burning elevator, belonging to John Kennell of Fremont. The cause of the fire is unknown. Loss on building and contents is $10,000.

Waterloo Dedicates New Court House.

Waterloo, June 13.—The ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Black Hawk county hundred thousand dollar court house was celebrated yesterday, with the County Bar association in charge. H. B. Allen delivered the address.

Two Drowned Near Dubuque.

Dubuque, June 11.—A boat containing five persons returning from a fishing trip was upset during a storm on the Mississippi, three miles north of here. J. Guderian and wife and Mrs. Kallee were drowned.

Child Drowned in a Tub.

Cherokee, June 11.—A distressing accident occurred here, resulting in the drowning of the adopted child of W. L. Crawford. The little one was playing around the premises and fell into a tub of water standing in the yard and when discovered a few moments later was lying in the water. All efforts to revive it were futile

NUMBER OF DEAD UNKNOWN.

Frightful Ferry Boat Disaster Off Staten Island Slip.

New York, June 15.—The wooden side wheeler Northfield, which has been in service of the Staten Island Ferry company for the last thirty-eight years, was rammed last night by the steel hulled propellor Mauch Chunk used as a ferry boat by the Central railroad of New Jersey. The collision occurred just off the Staten island ferry slip at the foot of White Hall street, and in less than twenty minutes afterwards the Northfield, which was crowded with passengers, sank at the outer end of the Spanish line pier in the East river. The Mauch Chunk, which was badly damaged, landed two dozen passengers which were aboard of her.

Over a hundred of the passengers of the Northfield were dragged out of the water by people along the shore and the crews of the fleet of river tugs promptly responded to the ferry boat's call for help. A few of the Northfield's passengers were hurt in the accident and the police believe that some lives were lost. Captain Daniel Gully, of the boat Mutual, who saw the ferry boats crash together, says that immediately after the collision between twenty and thirty of the passengers leaped into the water and that many of these perished. Captain Gully also declares that he is sure over a hundred of the Northfield's passengers were drowned. The captains of other tug boats who were early on the scene however, are inclined to think that the disaster was not so serious, as regards loss of life. So far no dead bodies have been recovered.

The reason for such a difference of opinion as to the extent of the disaster is that the wildest excitement prevailed on the Northfield. The tug Mutual saved in all about seventy-five persons from the Northfield and the tugs Arrow and Unity saved between them 150 persons. Two policemen of the old slip station claim to have rescued nearly thirty people between them. As soon as the crowd, which had followed the sinking ferry boat along the river front, were able to render any aid, they worked with a will and in many instances men sprang into the water to save a life. The greatest service was rendered by the tug boats which, as soon as it was possible, circled around the Northfield and made a bridge to the Spanish line pier and men and women clambered over the tugs to the shore.

New York, June 17.—After more than twenty-four hours' search for dead bodies in the Staten Island ferry boat Northfield, after her collision with the Jersey Central ferry boat Mauch Chunk, only one was found. Six others are missing.

FILIPINOS AFTER THE PLACES.

Not Many Jobs Left for Americans in the Island's Civil Service.

Washington, June 13.—A letter received here from Manila by Chairman Proctor of the United States civil service commission indicates that the civil service examinations which were conducted recently under the direction of the local civil service board appointed by the Taft commission were entirely satisfactory. Mr. Proctor says the returns to the commission show that many of the applicants took the examination in Spanish, indicating that they are natives. Perhaps a third of them had seen service in the insurgent army under Aguinaldo. That fact was brought out in the answers which were filed in the question blanks submitted to each of the applicants in the examination. This fact in no way will prejudice the applicants, as they were required to take the oath of allegiance, and perhaps a majority of them already had complied with this requisite.

It hardly is possible that many of those who take the examinations in this country for the service there will get places. It is thought that only the higher salaried places will be filled by the applicants from the United States.

Chairman Proctor also reports that the class of teachers being hired for the Philippines service are far above the average in intelligence and attainment. In selecting them the recommendations of the heads of the different colleges of the United States were accepted. The government has been surprised and gratified at the high character of those who are willing to accept service in the islands.

HE WOULD TAX THE MINES.

Barbour Thinks They Should Help Pay for the War.

London, June 14.—Sir David Barbour, whom the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, sent to South Africa to investigate the source of revenue of the Transvaal and the Orange River colony with the view of estimating how much they should contribute towards the cost of the war, reports in favor of a 10 per cent tax on the profits of the mines, yielding, on the basis of the profits of 1898, 450,000 pounds sterling yearly.

After paying this Sir David Barbour considers the mines will be better off than before, as they will save 600,000 pounds sterling per year on dynamite, owing to the abolition of the monopoly in that commodity. The Orange river colony will be unable for some years to meet the ordinary cost of administration and pay its share of the cost of the constabulary. "It cannot, therefore," said Sir David Barbour, "so far as can be foreseen at present, pay anything toward the cost of the war."

The Transvaal, he thinks can, two years after the conclusion of peace begin out of its ordinary to pay part of the cost of the war. He is unable now to estimate how much.

Sir David proposes also to apply all revenues derived from the sale of lands or mining rights to the war liquidation.

DE WET SUSTAINS DEFEAT.

Loses Twenty Killed and Wounded and Forty-five Prisoners.

London, June 17.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office from Pretoria as follows:

"During the march from Vrede, General Elliott's column engaged De Wet near Reitz, June 6. After severe fighting they captured 71 loaded wagons, forty five prisoners, 58 rifles, 10,000 rounds of ammunition and 4,000 cattle. The Boers left seventeen killed and three wounded. Our casualties were three officers and seventeen men killed and one officer and twenty-one men wounded."

In the schools of Russia pupils are permitted to chose between learning French and German, and seventy per cent choose German.

The ratio of paupers in Minnesota in 1900 was 4,980 for each million of population.

Britain Forces Sultan to Pay.

Constantinople, June 11.—Although ten days ago the sultan authorized a provisional contract with the Armstrongs, the well-known British shipbuilding and ordnance firm, for a sister ship to the one ordered from Messrs. Cramp, the American firm, he refused to complete the contract until forced to do so by the energetic action of Sir N. R. O'Conor, British ambassador at Constantinople. The purchase of the cruiser covers British claims for indemnity amounting to £63,000 ($315,000).

DIVIDENDS BY PHILLIPS.

The Corn King Writes Checks for One Million Dollars.

Chicago, June 17.—Checks for approximately $1,000,000 have been sent out by the George H. Phillips company to points variously situated between Maine and Mexico. The disbursement was in the nature of a dividend on the celebrated May corn deal, the pool account having been written up to 48 cents, this being the average price which the leader of the campaign has been able to figure out up to this time. These checks go out to about three hundred individuals who had an interest in the pool of about 15,000,000 bushels of corn. The lowest man got in at 35⅞ cents. The average profit so far determined is 8 cents per bushel. This may be increased when the cash corn now on hand in various positions is disposed of, or there may be no further profit. It will depend entirely on the state of the market when the cash corn is sold. The largest individual interest in the pool was 900,000 bushels, and the smallest 5,000 bushels.

YIELD TO BRITISH PLAN

England and America Impress the Foreign Powers.

Washington, June 17.—The dispatches from Peking convey to the official mind there the belief that what is known as the British-American plan of settling the indemnity question, is making headway and that it will in the end be the only feasible settlement. The firm attitude of the United States in declining to enter into a joint guarantee of the enormons bond issue, is believed to have had its effect in inclining the ministers to accept the British-American proposal. It is certain that any movement toward the settlement of this indemnity question must result in unanimity to be effective. Although often mentioned, the details of the British plan have not heretofore been given, and they were learned today from an authoritative source to be as follows:

The Chinese government is to issue bonds to each of the powers to the amount of the indemnity due each. These bonds are to bear 4 providing ½ per cent for amortization. Certain of the Chinese revenues, not specifically designated in the proposition, are to be earmarks for the liquidation of the bonds. A committee appointed by the foreign powers is to take charge of the questions relating to the revenues thus earmarked, and the committee is to arrenge details by which the revenues are to be applied on the bonds. In case of default on the bonds, the default is to be to the committee and not to the several powers. The foregoing is in substance the entire proposition, but later it was proposed in addition that the period of the conditions be thirty years, and that they be issued in installments. In this form the proposition stood up to within a few days ago, but it is not known in what particulars it may have been modified by the ministers.

FASTEST OF HER KIND.

Battleship Illinois Is a World Beater, With a Record of 17.31 Knots.

Boston, June 13.—With the proud distinction of being the fastest battleship in America and the speediest of her class in the world, the new sea-fighter Illinois lies at anchor in President's Roads, after a most successful trial. Over the government course from Cape Ann to Cape Porpoise and return, a distance of sixty-six nautical miles, she raced yesterday under the watchful eyes of United States naval representatives and established a record by maintaining an average speed of 17.31 knots for four consecutive hours. Not only did she demonstrate that she was faster than any warship of her size afloat, but she proved her ability to turn upon an enemy with extraordinary quickness by describing a complete circle within 300 yards, or little more than twice her length, in three minutes and ten seconds, while ploughing through the sea at full speed.

CHRISTMAS IS SUGGESTED.

Probable Time of Completion of Cuban Independence.

Washington, June 14.—It is expected at the war department that Cuban independence will be an accomplished fact by next Christmas. The next step in order, now that the Platt amendment is adopted by the constitutional convention, is for that body to take up and pass the electoral bill, which will provide for the election of all officers necessary to set up an independent government in Cuba. It is said here that such a bill is already framed and is ready for submission to the convention at any moment. There is good reason for the belief that Secretary Root has seen this bill and has approved of its provisions if, indeed, he has not actually had to do with its construction. It is thought that the convention can dispose of this measure in a week or two, and that will complete the labors of that body.

A period of ninety days, it is said here, must be allowed for publication of the electoral act before the necessary elections can be had. It may be necessary, and probably will be, to maintain some United States troops in Cuba after the new officials are inaugurated, and until the Cubans have had time to set up a Cuban military force or gendarmerie, but the length of this stay probably will depend upon the wishes of the Cubans themselves.

HENDERSON MEETS LOUBET.

Speaker of House of Representatives Sees the French President.

Paris, June 15.—D. B. Henderson, speaker of the United States house of representatives, who was received yesterday, with Representative Gillett, by President Loubet, came away with the best impressions of his visit. Mr. Henderson said to the correspondent of the Associated Press: "The president received us most cordially. We felt as much at home as though calling on President McKinley.

"M. Des Chanel tendered me a standing invitation to attend any session of the chamber of deputies during my stay and invited myself and wife and Messrs. Gillett and Field to his reception on Saturday.

"I am going to London June 20, and thence to Scotland to revisit my birthplace in Aberdeenshire, which I left when a child. I shall afterward make a tour of the European countries, whose parliamentary institutions I am anxious to study on the spot. I hope to attend a session of one or two parliaments."

GENERAL CAILLES SURRENDERS.

Last of Important Filipino Leaders Submits to American Authority.

Manila, June 17.—Insurgent General Cailles has signed terms of surrender. General Cailles was the last of the important Filipino leaders to remain in insurrection. Several times peace negotiations have been opened with him, but heretofore they have been unsuccesful.

United States Has Not Protested.

Washington, June 14.—The United States government has not protested, and does not intend to protest under present conditions, against the maintenance of a large German garrison at Shanghai, which appears to be attracting attention in England. The German government has been very frank with the United States in responding to our representations in the past, and our government is content to place implicit confidence in the motives of Germany so far as the maintenance of a German force in Shanghai is concerned.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, June 17, 1901.

The state board of control expects to devote its energies to bringing about the change of the Anamosa penitentiary to a reform school modeled after that of Elmira, N. Y. Judge Robinson, in discussing the proposed change, said:

"The plan is in line with the theory of today that criminals should be reformed rather than punished. It is proposed to admit to the Anamosa institution only criminals between the ages of 16 and 30 years, and those sentenced to more than one year. The inmates are to be given their freedom at as early a time as is consistent with their good conduct. Their release is to be in the nature of a parole and after they have maintained their good conduct for a stated period, their release is made permanent. The records of the Elmira institute, which is conducted in this fashion, show that 80 per cent of those released on parole lead reformed lives. The Anamosa penitentiary has now about 450 inmates. The changes in system would not necessitate the construction of additional buildings, but only a new classification of inmates."

The board is also figuring on the establishment of a state colony for epileptics. There are 200 epileptic patients in the institute for feeble minded at Glenwood, and about 500 in all of the state institutions. The epileptic patient requires special treatment. What is good for other insane patients is not beneficial for the epileptic. He requires more exercise and a different diet. Colonies for epileptics are being established in many states, and they are recognized as the best means of treating this class of patients. The state board of control believes the time has come for Iowa to take this step, and will use its influence with the legislature in this direction.

An order has been made by the war department and sent to the adjutant general of state troops which is the first appraisement had of a change in the manner of apportioning the funds to the various states. The order is in the nature of a request that the state military authorities furnish to the war department the entire number of officers and enlisted men in the guard and upon this list the apportionment of the military funds will be made instead of in accordance with the number of congressional districts. Iowa has had in the past about the sum of $11,000 for the support of the guard which apportionment was made on the basis of the $100,000 military appropriation. The increase of this appropriation by congress to one million will make Iowa's share about $27,000, which sum will be sufficient to fully equip the guard for the first time since the state has had a military organization.

Jesse Hammond, a Des Moines cigar dealer, has been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of gambling and maintaining a gambling house. The indictment against Hammond is directly traceable to the efforts of Justice Tris, who started a crusade against the slot machine early in March. A number of other indictments have been returned against other cigar dealers who continued the operation of machine gambling after Justice Tris issued his first ultimatum.

At a regular session of the state executive council the question of leasing meandered lake beds, according to bids that have been received since Secretary Davidson was authorized to make the leases, was taken up. Five beds were leased in Hancock and Wright counties, two for $50 each and three for $25 each. The lake bed at Storm Lake was leased to the city of Storm Lake, which wanted the land in order that the summer resort at that point would not be spoiled by the land being put under cultivation. The land was rented to Storm Lake at a nominal sum. It was stated by a member of the council that when the state gets absolute and undisputed title to these lands, they will be disposed of to Storm Lake in order that a permanent park may be established in that city.

Referring to an interview given out by himself recently in which he alluded to the need for an epileptic colony, Judge Robinson of the board of control said there were at least 500 epileptics in the state institutions and probably more. There are at least 250 at Glenwood. "If the number keeps on increasing as it has," said Judge Robinson, "something will have to be done by the state. The epileptic and insane require different treatment. The general plan in case an epileptic colony was established, would be to have it in the country where the patients would have plenty of air and light and exercise. The insane can stand confinement much better than epileptics. They should have a different diet from the insane, and in particular should be given less meat. Where the epileptics and insane are together, it is impossible to discriminate in diet properly. In many other respects, too, the treatment should be different."

In the district court R. M. Richmond was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary at Ft. Madison at hard labor. Richmond is the man who represented himself to be an agent for a theatrical company and was pretending to book girls to sing in the chorus of an opera company at Buffalo during the Pan-American exposition. In this way he succeeded in getting possession of their money. He was sent up for larcency of $47 from Effie Sutley of this city.

ROCKHILL'S NEW PROPOSITIONS.

Affect Minor Matters and Are Being Considered by Peking Ministers.

Paris, June 15.—Dispatches received here from Peking say the foreign ministers are considering fresh propositions from Mr. Rockhill affecting the Chinese concessions looking to the payment of the indemnity. The propositions concern minor matters and may or may not be accepted, but until they are disposed of, the ministers will not pronounce a decision as to the manner in which China is to pay the powers, though it is virtually settled that the British proposal will be accepted.

All hope of the acceptance of the United States' suggestions to submit the matter to arbitration at The Hague seems to have disappeared.

McKinley Bulletins Cease.

Washington, June 15.—Mrs. McKinley's physicians held their usual consultation yesterday and decided to discontinue the issuance of bulletins. It is said that her condition continues to improve slowly and the doctors consider it useless to give out a bulletin each day under the favorable progress she is making. Should her condition grow worse the bulletins will be resumed.

Woodmen Reelect Northcott.

St. Paul, Minn., June 13.—At the encampment of Modern Woodmen of America yesterday Head Consul W. A. Northcott of Illinois, Head Clerk C. W. Hawes of Illinois and Head Adviser Dan B. Heard of Iowa, were re-elected. R. R. Smith of Brookfield, Mo., was elected head banker. After the election of Head Consul Northcott, who has served five terms successively, that official announced that he would not again be a candidate for the position, but would retire at the end of this new term.

With a smile on her lips, and a tear in her eye.—Scott.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE SEEN AND THE UNSEEN THE SUBJECT.

"Lo, These Are Parts of the Ways"—But How Little a Portion Is Heard of Him"—Job xxvi, 14—Workings of Divine Power.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

Washington, June 16.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage raises high expectations of the day when that which is now only dimly seen will be fully revealed; text, Job xxvi, 14: "Lo, these are parts of his ways. But how little a portion is heard of him? But the thunder of his power who can understand?"

The least understood being in the aniverse is God. Blasphemous would be any attempt by painting or sculpture to represent him. Egyptian hieroglyphs tried to suggest him by putting the figure of an eye upon a sword, implying that God sees and rules, but how imperfect the suggestion! When we speak of him, it is almost always in language figurative. He is "Light" or "Dayspring From on High," or he is a "High Tower" or the "Fountain of Living Waters." His splendor is so great that no man can see him and live. When the group of great theologians assembled in Westminster abbey for the purpose of making a system of religious belief, they first of all wanted an answer to the question, "Who is God?" No one desired to undertake the answering of that overmastering question. They finally concluded to give the task to the youngest man in the assembly, who happened to be Rev. George Gillespie. He consented to undertake it on the condition that they would first unite with him in prayer for divine direction. He began his prayer by saying, "O God, thou art a spirit infinite, infinite, eternal and unchangeable in thy being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth." That first sentence of Gillespie's prayer was unanimously adopted by the assembly as the best definition of God. But, after all, it was only a partial success, and after everything that language can do when put to the utmost strain and all we can see of God in the natural world and realize of God in the providential world we are forced to cry out with Job in my text: "Lo, these are parts of the ways. But how little a portion is heard of him? But the thunder of his power who can understand?"

God's Way of Doing.

We try to satisfy ourselves with saying, "It is natural law that controls things, gravitation is at work, centripetal and centrifugal forces respond to each other." But what is natural law? It is only God's way of doing things. At every point in the universe it is God's direct and continuous power that controls and harmonizes and sustains. That power withdrawn one instant would make the planetary system and all the worlds which astronomy reveals one universal wreck, bereft hemispheres, dismantled sunsets, dead constellations, debris of worlds. What power it must be that keeps the internal fires of our world imprisoned—only here and there spurting from a Cotopaxi, or a Stromboli, or from a Vesuvius, putting Pompeii and Herculaneum into sepulcher, but for the most part the internal fires chained in their cages of rock, and century after century unable to break the chain or burst open the door! What power to keep the component parts of the air in right proportion, so that all around the world the nations may breathe in health, the frosts and the heats hindered from working universal demolition! Power, as Isaiah says, "to take up the isles as a very little thing." Ceylon and Borneo and Hawaii as though they were pebbles; power to weigh the "mountains in scales" and the "hills in balances"—Tenerife and the Cordilleras. To move a rock we must have lever and screw and great machinery, but God moves the world with nothing but a word; power to create worlds and power to destroy them, as from observation again and again they have been seen red with flame, then pale with ashes and then scattered.

Workings of the Divine Power.

We get some little idea of the divine power when we see how it buries the proudest cities and nations. Ancient Memphis it has ground up until many of its ruins are no larger than your thumb nail and you can hardly find a souvenir large enough to remind you of your visit. The city of Tyre is under the sea which washes the shore, on which are only a few crumbling pillars left. Sodom and Gormorrah are covered by waters so deathful that not a fish can live in them. Babylon and Ninevah are so blotted out of existence that not one uninjured shaft of their ancient splendor remains. Nothing but omnipotence could have put them down and put them under. The antediluvian world was able to send to the postdiluvian world only one ship with a very small passenger list. Omnipotence first rolled the seas over the land, and then told them to go back to their usual channels as rivers and lakes and oceans. At omnipotent command the waters bounding upon their prey, and at omnipotent command slinking back into their appropriate places. By such rehearsal we try to arouse our appreciation of what omnipotence is, and our reverence is excited, and our adoration is intensified, but after all we find ourselves at the foot of a mountain we cannot climb, hovering over a depth we cannot fathom, at the rim of a circumference we cannot compass, and we feel like first going down on our knees and then like falling flat upon our faces as we exclaim: "Lo, these are parts of his ways. But how little a portion is heard of him? But the thunder of his power who can understand?"

The God of Abraham.

A tradition says that Abraham of the Old Testament was when an infant hidden in a cave because of the persecutions of Nimrod. The first time the child came out of the cavern it was night, and he looked up at the star and cried, "This is my God," but the star disappeared, and Abraham said, "No, that cannot be my God." After awhile the moon rose, and Abraham said, "That is my God," but it set, and Abraham was again disappointed. After awhile the sun rose, and he said, "Why, truly, here is my God," but the sun went down, and Abraham was saddened. Not until the God of the Bible appeared to Abraham was he satisfied, and his faith was so great that he was called "the Father of the Faithful." All that the theologians know of God's wisdom is insignificant compared with the wisdom beyond human comprehension. The human race never has had and never will have enough brain or heart to measure the wisdom of God. I can think of only two authors who have expressed the exact facts. The one was Paul, who says, "Oh, the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God, how unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out." The other author was the scientist who composed my text. I think he wrote it during a thunderstorm, for the chapter says much about the clouds and describes the tremor of the earth under the reverberations. Witty writers sometimes depreciate the thunder and say it is the lightning that strikes, but I am sure God thinks well of the thunder, or he would not make so much of it, and all up and down the Bible he uses the thunder to give emphasis. It was the thunder that shook Sinai when the law was given.

WONDERFUL GEYSERS OF YELLOWSTONE PARK.

No Other Region in the World Abounds in Such a Variety of Attractions.

The most wonderful scenery in the world is in Yellowstone National Park, the great natural curiosity shop of the universe. Nowhere else, within equal bounds, are found so many natural wonders grouped, almost as if by design, for the special convenience of sight-seers. The wonders of the Alps and the Himalayas, could they be gathered together and compressed into an equal space, could not hope to rival in grandeur, in variety nor in number, the attractions of the Yellowstone. Were all the attractions except the geysers removed, the region would still be famed world wide, drawing nature lovers from all countries to witness the exhibitions of unequalled power of these matchless giants, which, with a roar that may be heard long distances, spout huge columns of seething water high into the air, sustaining them there for varying lengths of time. Old Faithful, with a regularity that begot its name, at intervals of 65 to 75 minutes, sends up a huge column of water 150 feet into the air, remaining active for four minutes. Giant, with a deafening roar, spouts 250 feet every third day for 90 minutes, while Giantess, at longer intervals and with slightly less power, maintains activity for twelve hours at a stretch. Many others, at intervals ranging from five minutes to several days, spout water to varying heights, remaining active for periods ranging from one second to an hour or more. In all, there are thirty-three members of this interesting Geyser family of sufficient importance to deserve special mention. Twenty-eight of these are in Upper basin, and when several of them, with their rainbow tints, spouting at once, the scene is indescribable. Other scenes of grandeur that abound in favored mountainous regions pass in endless review before the enchanted tourist, all sense of fleeting time being lost in their admiration.

Travel to the park, following improved transportation facilities, has greatly increased in recent years. Leaving the Oregon Short Line at Monida, Montana, after a pleasant ride through changing scenes from Salt Lake City, comfortable stage coaches run to and through the park, making the trip at easy stages in five days, four of which are spent among nature's wonders, and the other among delightful scenery. Good hotels are conveniently located in the park for sight-seers, where one may stay indefinitely, at very reasonable cost.

Jealousy has been termed one form of insanity.

The agricultural department is sending to experimental florists a plant that is a wonderful novelty. It has been named the artillery plant. It grows to a height of twelve or fifteen inches and is covered with pale red buds. They do not blossom. When a shower comes or water is released by the moisture, the buds swell rapidly and explode loudly and a tiny ring of smoke rises. When a large plant, covered with hundreds of buds, is sprinkled, they all explode simultaneously and a considerable cloud of smoke can be seen. It might have been more appropriate to have named this strange plant the Rose-velt.

An anecdote is told of an Englishman, traveling through the interior of California in company with a resident of this state, that is characteristic of the racial difference in mental processes. The Englishman was deeply interested in everything he saw, and asked many questions. Espying a bush with bright red leaves by the roadside, he inquired what it was. "Poison oak," was the brief reply. "Bless me," said the Englishman, "but is it really poisonous?" "Well, a man had better not wallow in it," replied the Californian. The Englishman was silent for an unusual length of time, evidently in deep thought. Then he broke out: "But I say, you know, why should a man want to wallow in it?"

BOOK OF YELLOWSTONE PARK SCENERY.

Many of the beautiful scenes in Yellowstone National Park have been photographed and for the first time are presented to the public in a beautiful folder published by the Oregon Short Line Railway. In addition to the views, which would adorn any home, there is a great deal of information concerning the best way to visit the park that should be in the hands of all who contemplate visiting this storehouse of wonders. BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

"Words cannot express the pain you have given me tonight," he said; "but let it pass. You are free, and I have no right to reproach you. Good-bye, and God bless you, Rose!"

He kissed her hand, but she snatched it away and sprang into the carriage. She felt annoyed and out of temper. When she reached home, she went up into her own room and stood before the glass. It was a very fair face that she gazed at—he had often praised it, and she knew her power well.

"And he thinks I am going to beg and pray for forgiveness, does he?" she said, tossing her head wilfully. "We shall see, after all, what crime I have committed, that I need to tremble and shrink from his eye. Tomorrow I will not—tomorrow I will show him that if he chooses to play the part of a tyrant, I do not intend to take that of a serf. He had better fetter me at once."

In that mood she went to bed.

But ah! we should be very careful how we part with those we love, even though they only leave us for a few hours. Do they always come back? Of if they do come, do we always know just how we shall meet them? It may be as utter strangers, for aught we can say. I have known those who have loved each other dearly as they said good-bye, and yet within three months they stood face to face as coldly as if they had never met.

But the case of poor Rose was even worse than this, for Mr. Vere never came again.

She had preserved a discreet silence as to this episode in her history on her return home. No one had ever heard her mention Mr. Vere's name—not one of her own family ever knew that such a person was in existence. Her woman's pride came to her aid. She learned to live without him—to be happy without him; yet he was not forgotten.

And on this morning, when she sat in her own room, thinking of the past, she had a letter in her hand from him. It had been forwarded with others from Mecklenburgh Square. The simple words set her heart beating, so that she could scarcely see:

"Rose—I was too hasty and harsh with you long ago. Time has taught me that there is nothing so precious as your love. If I have lost it, I am coming home to try and gain it again. God grant I may not be too late.

"Ever yours,
"Stanley Vere."

Coming home, and to win here? But how, and when, and where?

CHAPTER XIV.

When and where, indeed? She could not hope for a meeting so romantic as that of her two cousins had been; and yet, in what other way could her lover seek her presence?

For you must bear in mind that the parent birds had no idea that their scarcely fledged nestling had tried her wings in so bold a flight. Rose in love! Rose, who had scarcely given up playing with her doll! The thing was simply absurd!

So the young lady sat alone in her room, and stared at the letter, and wondered what on earth she should do, and wished she had a confidante who would give her some advice as to the best way of extricating herself from the dilemma. It would not do to speak to her mother, and Catharine would only laugh at her. At last she thought of Marjorie, who had a romance of her own, and thereby would know how to sympathize with another.

She went.

She found the lady alone in the turret-chamber. Charles was smoking a cigar, in fear and trembling, in one of the empty attics, and at the same time getting a breath of fresh air. So Rose had her cousin all to herself, and told her tale without much loss of time. Marjorie listened silently.

"Well," she said, when Rose had finished, "the old fairy tale is true. The Princess Perfect may be shut up in the highest and most impregnable of towers, and guarded by the fiercest of dragons, yet in one way and another Prince Imperfect will continue to get up the stairs, and fall at her feet all the same. It is ocurious, and, at the same time, very edifying."

"But I am not Princess Perfect," said Rose.

"True."

"Nor was I shut up in a tower."

"If you had been it would not have mattered. But never mind that—do you want to see the Prince?"

"Ah, yes.'

"That is frank and to the purpose. Why did you let him go?"

"He thought I flirted, my dear," said Rose, firmly.

"Oh, indeed," replied Marjorie, with a little cough. "Men do take queer fancies into their heads now and then."

"Very."

"However, I will do all I can to help you—though, of course, you must promise to be very good, and never, under any consideration, to flirt again."

"I'll promise."

"Then the best way is for you to come to us."

"Where?"

"I don't know—I'll make Charles take a house in town. Now that we have scared your poor papa to death, I suppose that we are not wanted any longer here."

"Poor papa!"

"Yes! but it will do him good in the end. Is he up yet?"

"No ; he has had some gruel in bed."

"May it make him penitent and more inclined to obey the orders of his superior officer, your good mamma. Where would you like us to pitch our tent in town, Rose?"

"Oh, somewhere near Mecklenburgh Square."

"In it, if you like. Charley is rich, and can live where he pleases, thank goodness. Then that is settled?"

"Yes."

"And you will come to us?"

"With pleasure."

"When?"

"As soon as we can get him back to town."

"And the preux chevalier? By the way, what is his name?"

"Vere."

"Of what county.

Rose colored.

"Really I don't know."

"But where do his family reside?"

"I cannot tell you."

Marjorie elevated her eyebrows.

"Do you know nothing of him, then?"

"Very little. But General Grantham, with whom I was staying at the time, introduced him as the son of one of his oldest friends. And he moved in the best society."

"Well, time will show. At all events, we can soon find out all about him if we set to work the right way."

"Yes," said Rose; and leaning her chin upon her hand, she fixed her eyes upon the glaring coals, and fell to musing about the lover of whom she knew so little.

The door opened, and Mrs. Cowley entered, looking worried and perplexed.

"I don't know what to do!" she exclaimed.

"What is the matter, aunt?" asked Marjorie.

"I wish we hadn't played that fool's trick last night.

"Why?" Is papa worse?" asked Rose, looking up.

"No; I can't say that he is really ill; but he seems so nervous and frightened. If the door creaks, he jumps; and I know what that feeling is so well. I had it all the time when we first came to this horrible house."

"Oh, he will get over that!"

"Yes; but, after all, I begin to think it was not right to frighten him so. A great, strong man does not faint for nothing. I can't think how I came to let you do it."

"But as it is done, let us try to repair the mischief, if any there be. Get him up, and send him down to the village, shopping. He will come home as blithe as a lark."

"That is the worst of it!"

"What?"

"I can't get him up."

"What do you mean?"

"He won't move. He says the whole house is full of ghosts, and that he means to stay where he can't see any more; and oddly enough, I heard him just now muttering to himself that he wished Charles was here."

"My husband?"

"Yes."

"Then what can be easier than to tell him that his wish is granted."

"And that Charles is here?"

"Yes."

"My dear child, that would do very well with some men, but not with Mr. Cowley. He is as sharp as a needle; and if he found out that Charles had been in the house all night, he would guess at once where the ghost of the cabinet come from. And if he once found that out, I'm sure I should have a separate maintenance offered to—nay, forced upon me tomorrow."

"Oh, no; not so bad as that," was the cheerful reply. "I will manage it so that he need never know we have been here before. Rose, you have already lent me half your wardrobe! give me the other half—your out-door portion. He will not recognize your hat and cloak, I suppose?"

"No."

"Then bring them, and send Charles to me."

Half an hour later, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cowley left the house on foot, and walked away toward Banley. And as Mr. Cowley, senior, was partaking of tea and toast at six p. m. in the seclusion of his own chamber, a fly drove up to the door and a knock was given that nearly shook the house down.

Mr. Cowley dropped the cup and saucer, and spilt the tea all over the bed.

"Good gracious! what can it be?"

"I will go and see, my dear. Lie down and compose yourself."

Mrs. Cowley went, and returned with a well-got-up face of astonishment.

"Well, what is it?" cried Mr. Cowley.

"Such a wonderful thing."

"Out with it!"

"The most extraordinary——"

"But what?"

"In fact, I think the strangest circumstance I ever heard of in my life."

"Confound it, ma'am!" bawled out her husband. "Can't you say what it is, and not keep me lying here in a bath of lukewarm tea?"

"Well, Mr. Cowley, you were saying you wished your nephew Charles was here."

"So I do. I'd dig the whole place up if I had him to back me, and never think of feeling frightened."

"Well, Charles is here."

"Nonsense!"

"I assure you he is. He has just returned from Australia, and he came to the door in the Banley fly. He has been to our town house, and Mrs. Gray directed him here. And his wife is with him."

"Married?"

"Yes—to an English girl, though."

"If he had married a New Zealander, tatooed from head to foot, I should not care. Zounds! give me my clothes, Mrs. C.! This news is worth ten pounds, at the least. We'll rout the ghosts out now, or my name is not Cowley."

"Yes, dear," replied his better half, meekly, as she helped him to dress.

They went down to the drawing-room together. No more ghosts now—no suggestion of ghosts even. A bright fire blazed upon the hearth—four candles lit the table, which was laid for tea. Rose and Catharine, in pretty evening dresses, ran forward to meet their father as innocently as if they had never dreamed of scaring him half out of his senses. But he pushed by them unceremoniously, and rushed up to the hearth, where Charles Cowley was standing, like a true Briton, with his back to the fire.

"My dear fellow!" said the banker, shaking him by both hands. "You are as welcome as the flowers in May!"

"Why, so I hear," replied the nephew demurely. "You have been getting yourself into a bit of a scrape, I imagine, and want me to help you out. Oh, you naughty old boy! But let me introduce you to my wife."

CHAPTER XV.

Mr. Cowley shook hands with Marjorie—decided, after his first glance at her, that she was a nice sort of a girl, and then dismissed her from his mind entirely. He was burning for an uninterrupted ten minutes' conversation with his nephew, alone, that he might relate the wonderful things that had befallen him. Few men could boast of having seen three real ghosts, one after another! And Marjorie, like the other women, was sadly in the way just then.

However, there was no help for it. Tea was waiting, and Mr. Cowley, junior, fell to work upon the muffins and ham, and tongue, like a man who had fasted all the way from Australia. When the cloth was taken away, his uncle breathed freely again. The ladies sat gossipping together before the fire. The worthy banker rose, nudged Charles in the side, and whispered, "Come with me a moment." Charles followed him from the room, merely pausing at the door to give a nod and a wink, expressive of great enjoyment, to the group he left behind.

Mr. Cowley seized his nephew by the arm when they stood in the hall, and dragged him up the stairs. A lamp was burning in the turret-chamber—a fire blazing on the hearth. Seeing this, as he opened the door, Mr. Cowley started back with a look of extreme surprise.

"Why, those born fools cannot think of putting you here to sleep!" he ejaculated.

"Why not?" asked Charles, looking extremely innocent.

"Why not? The jades! I'll have no tricks played off on people under my roof. I know it is the fashion to put the guests in the haunted room, to see if there really is a ghost there; but, by George! we want no such tests here! They shall give you another apartment—it is like their impudence to get this one ready.

OFFICIAL SURVEY OF CUBA.

Island Has Various Mineral Resources Not at All Developed.

A study of the mineral resources of Cuba is likely to be of much economic value to the island. No systematic investigation has ever been made, though Cuba teems with mineral wealth. The discoveries made have been almost haphazard. Cuba's mineral resources need only to be located and their importance fully ascertained to make the mining industry very prominent in the island. Some of Cuba's mineral wealth is of special value because not widely distributed over the earth. The mixed brown and red hematite, for example, which is found a little east of Santiago and is shipped from Daiquiri is the very best iron ore for steel making, and for this reason has been imported for years to steel works in Pennsylvania. The ore is 65 to 68 per cent pure iron, occurs in the white limestone that incrusts the seaward face of the mountains, and the shipments from Daiquiri have sometimes been one-fourth of our entire ore imports. Little is known as yet of the extent of manganese in Cuba. Rich deposits of this ore are known to exist in the Sierra Maestra range near Ponupo, and it has been exported in considerable quantities to Pennsylvania steel manufacturers. Manganese closely resembles iron and is valued as an alloy in the production of some kinds of steel. Our southern states mine about one-fifth of the manganese we use, and Russia, Cuba, and a few other countries send us about $600,000 worth a year. It is not a widely distributed mineral. For all that is known the eastern mountains of Cuba may contain a good deal more of it than has yet been discovered. Asphaltum of unusual richness is found near Villa Clara and beneath the waters of Cardenas bay, but it has not been turned to commercial account. Copper is found in many places and for three centuries it was mined at Cobre. Mining was supended in 1867. As with many other minerals in Cuba it will require careful investigation to ascertain what are the future prospects of copper mining in the island. The same may be said of gold and silver, which were mined in Cuba in past centuries, but for some reason have ceased to figure among the mineral industries of the island.—Chicago News.

Got the Best of Sandow.

One of the Chinese modes of punishment, especially when a confession is wanted from a criminal, is to place him where a drop of water will fall on one certain spot of his shaven crown for hours. The torture this inflicts is proved by an experience of Sandow, the strong man. When he was in Vienna a few years ago a school teacher told him that he would not be able to let a half-liter of water drop on his hand until the measure was exhausted. A half-liter is only a little more than a pint. Sandow laughed at the very idea. So the measure was procured and a hole drilled in the bottom sufficient to let the water escape drop by drop. The experiment began. Sandow chatted gayly at first. The school master kept count of the number of drops. At about the two hundredth Sandow grew a little more serious. Soon an expression of pain crossed his face. At the third hundred his hand began to swell and grow red. The pain grew more and more excruciating. Then the skin burst. Finally at the four hundred and twentieth drop, Sandow acknowledged his defeat.—Chicago Journal.

Marvelous Mechanism.

A crane, said to be the most powerful in the world, operated by electricity, has recently been built by the engineers of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, and it is to be used in the construction of warships at that port. The crane has a maximum lifting power of 150 tons, but this weight can only be handled within a circle whose maximum and minimum diameters are 147 feet and 88 feet respectively, but weights of 70 tons and under may be handled throughout the entire range of the crane's operation. One revolution of the crane describes the circumference of a circle 207 feet in diameter, but when the jib of the crane is at its highest point a circle of 88 feet in diameter is covered, thus permitting the crane to lift weights within these dimensions. The pinion wheels which effect the circular movement are driven by separate electric motors, each capable of developing 20 horse-power.—Chicago Journal.

Gypsies in Kentucky.

There is a band of Egyptian gypsies traveling through Kentucky. The leader, John Boswell, speaks the Egyptian language without his notes and can trade horses blindfolded. In the party are several lustrous-eyed daughters of mystery, who look into the future as though it were a little cup. Four tents shelter the company. The straw carpets in these furnish bedding for the tribe. The men go from house to house trading with the people, while the women hold afternoon receptions for those who care to "cross their palms with coin."

It is better to practically demonstrate instead of theorizing.

Our conduct at all times should be of such character that we would not have to apologize.

It is better to be honestly mistaken and own up than to blindly continue in the same course.

Once when the new bishop of Stepney, the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, was dining with Queen Victoria at Osborne, her majesty asked if it was true that he had so large a number of helpers. On being assured it was so, she asked whether it would not be wise to discharge three curates and marry. But the vicar replied: "Well, madam, if I disagree with my curates, we can part; but if I were to disagree with my wife, it might end in my having to leave my parish."

During the last year or two the craze for after dinner speeches at festive gatherings of well known authors in London has been a little overdone. So recently the New Vagabonds petitioned their committee for a dinner without speeches, and the evening was a huge success. As a solemn warning to intending speakers, there was printed on the programme the following quotation from a mysterious composite novel, by different members of the club: "'I reckon,' said the Sorrowful Stranger, as he sadly drew his revolver and eyed the Would-Be Orator—'I reckon to wrassle with this yer dinner in peace; and if so be you wants to make a speech, thar'll be a fun'ral tonight, and you'll be the corpse's nearest relation.'" There were no speeches.

A Pike County Miracle.

Velpen, Ind., June 17.—Wm. O. B. Sullivan, a farmer of this place, and who is a brother of ex-Representative Sullivan of Pike and Dubois counties, has had a remarkable experience recently.

Mr. Sullivan is 49 years of age, and has been a citizen of Pike County for 30 years. For two years, he has suffered much with kidney trouble and rheumatism. His shoulders and side were very sore and stiff, and his back was so bad he could hardly straighten up at all. He had palpitation of the heart, and a smothering which was very distressing. He used three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and is as strong and well as ever he was. He pronounces his cure a miracle. Mr. Sullivan's statement of his case is startling.

"A month ago I was a cripple. Today I can do a hard day's work every day, and have not a single ache or pain."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have done some wonderful cures in Indiana, but none more miraculous than that in the case of Mr. Sullivan.

An Effective Advertisement.

All successful business men agree that good advertising pays. Good advertising means interesting announcements placed in newspapers which reach a large proportion of the people. The Makers of Wetmore's Best—believe that the most men chew tobacco for the good of the tobacco and not for the sake of a premium. They are putting the value of the premiums all in the quality of the tobacco. The man who chews Wetmore's Best gets his money's worth in good tobacco. He notices the difference in flavor; in lasting quality; in satisfaction, and finds that all this goodness costs him less than cheap tobacco. Try a piece of Wetmore's Best and satisfy yourself that it's "all in the quality."

DEATH

begins in the bowels. It's the unclean places that breed infectious epidemics, and it's the unclean body—unclean inside—that "catches" the disease. A person whose stomach and bowels are kept clean and whose liver is lively, and blood pure, is safe against yellow fever, or any other of the dreadful diseases that desolate our beautiful land. Some of the cleanest people outside are filthiest inside, and they are the ones who not only "catch" the infections, but endanger the lives of all their friends and relatives. There's only one certain way of keeping clean inside so as to prevent disease and that is to take CASCARETS. Perfect disinfectant and bowel strengtheners. All diseases are

ALL DRUGGISTS.

NEVER SOLD IN BULK

CURE all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, headache, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow complexion and dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are getting sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It is a starter for the chronic ailments and long years of suffering that come afterwards. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS to-day, for you will never get well and be well all the time until you put your bowels right. Take our advice; start with CASCARETS to-day, under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded. 446

GUARANTEED TO CURE: Five years of the first box of CASCARETS was sold. Now it is over six million boxes a year, or more than a box for every man, woman and child in the world. This is absolute proof of great merit, and our best testimonial. We have faith and will sell CASCARETS absolutely guaranteed to cure or money refunded. Go buy today, two 50c boxes, give them a fair, honest trial, as per simple directions, and if you are not satisfied, after using one 50c box, return the unused 50c box and the empty box to us by mail, or the druggist from whom you purchased it, and get your money back for both boxes. Take our advice—no matter what ails you—start today. Health will quickly follow and you will bless the day you first started the use of CASCARETS. Book free by mail. Mr. Theo. Roths informs us that on Tuesday eve while he and daughter were away form home, someone entered the house and went through the bureau. A pocket book containing $5.00 was found and emptied. The light fingered population is now warned that a sorry time is in store for it if caught and heavy penalties can be executed.

Gossip has made many a home a hell on earth; gossip has parted husbands; gossip has sullied and blackened the character of many poor girls. One little misstep or one little indiscretion causes gossip to rise with a new strengh and start on its mission. A gossiper is about the lowest and meanest thing on earth.—Exchange.

To our exchanges: Britt wants a hook and ladder outfit. If any of our exchanges know of a good second hand outfit suitable for a town of 2,000 inhabitants it will be to their interest to write The Tribune. Towns sometimes out grow their outfit and we want one and no objection to it being second hand if in good repair.—Tribune.

We know of none.

An anxious farmer wants to know how to feed calves skim-milk. We would suggest that he have a surgeon perform an operation called gastrehtomy, which consists of inserting a tube into the stomach and thus allowing the milk to be poured in through a funnel. In this way you will avoid the deadly certainty of being butted half way across the cow pasture every few moments.

Iowa lands are advancing at a rapid rate this spring. Farms which last year readily brought from $50 to $60 per acre this season are selling from $10 to $20 higher, and the people are falling over themselves in their eagerness to grasp a few more acres of Iowa dirt at $70 to $80 per acre. Speculation in real estate, as well as other commodities has reached a high level. There is great danger that it may be carried to excess and many men ruined by loading up themselves with property at high water mark, which later will have a fall of prices paying a few hundred dollars of $2,000 or $3,000 down on the purchase price and borrowing the balance at a low rate of interest with the idea that present era of good prices and abundant crops are to continue for an indefiite period and they will be able to pay for the paoperty they have purchased. Perhaps they may, but the experience of the past is a safe criterion for the future. Things can not always go up.

The Fonda Times man pays his respects to the young man who hangs around the church door waiting for his steady, in the following style: "Mary had a little lamb; it followed her to church, and then it stood around the door like an owl on a perch Why don't the little lamb come in, the watchful people cried? Why, Mary told the silly thing to wait for her outside. So you each gentle maiden may one and all still find, some sheephead waiting near the door, if you admire that kind."

The Edison Famous Moving Pictures to be shown at the M. W. A. Hall Friday evening June 21st, under the auspices of some of the local churches should prove a great attraction. Fierce fighting of soldiers, firing of guns, charge of bayonets, bursting of shells, flying of trains, rushing of horses, dashing of fire companies will make some people feel nervous who sit on the front seats, also some views on China troubles, Paris Exposition, Our New Possessions, etc Admission 25 cents. Reserved seats 35c.

Kensett News: The board of Pardons of Minnesota has voted to parole the Younger Bros., now serving life sentances. This is in accordance with the provision of the new parole law which allows parole of life prisoners after about twenty-four years imprisonment, being thirty-years less time gained by good behavior. Paroles are usually granted by the prison managers alone, but in this case of life prisoners unanimous approval of the board of pardons is also necessary, and such paroled life prisoners cannot leave the state.

The game of ball Tuesday, of Garner vs. Goodell was the hotest ever played on the Garner diamond. The Goodell boys managed to "fall on" and get 4 scores by the eighth inning and the Garner boys were breaking their necks to get over the home plate. Garner didn't like the way the game was umpired, and became so completely discouraged that in the eighth inning they "cut their own throats" and pulled in their horns It was a complete shut out, with no scores to Garner's credit and 4 to Goodell's credit. The game was umpired according to rules and the Dar-ner boys touldt 'tand the the presure! Nice Dame.

Britt is the best advertised town in the United States and during the past year one could hardly pick up a daily paper without seeing the town mentioned in some respect. Our latest distinction is that Britt was selected as the place for God to visit Dowie and proclaim him Elijah. Of conrse it is natural that God should select the best town in the county for such a mission, hence his visit to Britt. In explaining when he learned that he was Elijah, Mr. Dowie the other day said:

It was three years afterward, during my trip in Iowa that God visited me one night in the hotel at Britt. I cannot tell about the visit but the next morning I wrote a letter to Mrs. Dowie saying that I was Elijah. This was to be read in the tabernacle It was the evening of my birthday that I was visited by God in the hotel Allison."

Dowie, (whose handles are John Alexander,) is the world famous faith curist, divine healer or Christain Scientist. He has been in Australia, South America, and Europe, but is now in Chicago, America. When in the foreign countries and among the heathens he endeavored to get his quack doctrines into play but nobody liked the game, so he decided to come to America. The result everyone can guess. All people know that success is surely found in North America no matter whether the profession be honest, dishonest, or otherwise! The fact that Dowie visited in Britt and became convinced that God had transformed him into an Elijah is due to a night horse, a day dream and a temporary mentel deficiency, and perhaps the immediate surroundings. Any person who can heal all the ills, aches, pains and blues of life; who can make a fractured arm whole by applying a little faith; who can raise a broken skull by prayer, who can turn a man's devils into the pig pasture and make faith so strong that to sit on a red hot stove would the greatest of pleasure had ought to be made an Elijah with a permanent residence in Britt. We move that Dowie be moved to pray incessantly for the rest of the towns in Hancock County. There is a fellow here who bet against the home ball team and lost a dollar. Dowie should pray for him to get his money back! He—Dowie—is a good 'preyer' both on the people and for the people. The ratio is about two ons to one for.

Fred Meyers, who has built a new granary, celebrated the event with a hop a week ago last Tuesday evening.

The Misses Hubbard closed their schools last Friday by holding a picnic in Welch's Grove with plenty of music, speaking and eatables. Anything pleasanter than a day spent at a picnic would be hard to find unless it was two days.

The W. R. C. spent last Friday with Mrs. Coutts. According to their beautiful custom the day was spent in visiting and talking about the good old times before the wah, but the crowning event was the supper. Straw berries with good rich cream served with other eatables was a meal fit for a King or the President or even one of the candidates for Governor. We hope they may enjoy many such times.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confiential.

"Will wonders never cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk, she writes, and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from headaches, backache, Nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Harr. Only 50c.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed, The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to sciente that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar. ache package containing internal and exteral medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease, It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Klemme's 4th.

Although the elements were somewhat in disfavor in the forenoon the afternoon was as nice and pleasant as one could wish for and the program was carried out to the letter.

The parade occured at one o'clock and was one of which the Klemme merchants need not be ashamed. Some handsome ideas were set forth which serve to do credit to the people for get-uped-ness.

The speech by Rev. Barsalou was excellant, and considerable favorable comment has been manifested by those who enjoyed listening to him. He gave some very interesting facts in reference to our Nation's general increase, welfare and high standing, and thereby won the applause of the entire audience.

The ball game came off as per arrangement with Klemme at the bat and Bailey Grove in the field. The score stood 14 to 2 in favor of Klemme at the end of the 7th inning when the game was called in order to watch and participate in the foot races.

The foot races were run according to program. Inasmuch as we were unable to get the names of those who won the purses we decline to print them.

The evening concert by the band was something fine. The boys have the art well learned and the people enjoyed the music very much.

The assembly taken altogether was a large one. Larger than was anticipated considering the difficulties that confronted the visitors. There was a number of Garner people here; some from Duncan and Britt, and the towns of Kanawha, Goodell, Meservey, Ventura, Clear Lake, Charles City and other places represented themselves and expressed their entire satisfaction of our first celebration.

The rain in the evening, of course, spoiled the fun for the night, but Providence wiled it thus and thus we had to stand it. Perhaps it is well that it did rain, had it not our celebration would have been so good that the other towns celebrating around would have been somewhat disgruntled at our success.

The business houses were all prettily decorated with 4th July trimmings which proved that expense to make things comely was a secondary feature. Old Glory 7 x 14 in size waved gallantly over main street and betokened and adequate amount of local patriotism.

We can all rest calmly with the assurance that a good crowd will be here when Klemme celebrates again. Universal satisfaction is paramount and pre dominent among visitors to a wonderfully satisfying degree.

Outside of the regular 4th of July program a few fancy turns were given 'free gratis.' Just the kind of a turn that some people call 'a la faute' or, as they always like to have it be. Yes! Each and every time it rained ed a little to much to be comfortable over head they made for the tents, wood sheds and back alley shelters to enjoy—keeping out of the rain! The boys of the day were feeling highly elated over the fact that the 4th of July had come. So were the girls! But there is no one thing that will stagger the boys and girls quite so much as the fact that it is once more the glorious 4th of July time, and they must enjoy it in all it's phases! Some of the boys were acting extremely happy;—likewise some of the girls that were here. It was not necessary to tie a bell on the latter to find them in the dark! But, Bless You, they did not belong to Klemme or vicinity. Those girls will be called upon some day to become women, when lo! there will be nothing left but the shadows of shattered character.

Postmaster Ellsworth, of Kanawha, has been making a great rustle for rural mail routes, and the probabilities are that there will be four started from that town in the near future. Britt should have one south to connect with the route from Kanawha north. It would be a great convenience in getting mail to and from the two towns. As it is it takes about two days to get a letter from Kanawha and an answer back.—Britt News.

While it may be possible to establish free rural mail routes in Hancock County it is very improbable. This county is thickly enough settled for general thrift but not enough to warrant rural mail delivery expenditures. It has been tried in several localities but the population is lacking according to government requirements. There are not enough people to be benefited by such a move. Of course, it could be done by private plan but is not sanctioned and backed by the government.

A writer in the July Cosmopalitan states that at the present rate of population increase the world will be so full of people in the year 2250 that every person will be entitled to a patch of land only 55 yards in lenghth on all four sides, or, less than two-thirds of an acre per head. This means a population of 1000 to every square mile of land. On this amount of land the farming, manufacturing and general traffc must be carried on! At present there is an average 21 persons to the mile in the United States while in Belgium the figure is 572! When it comes to having 1000 people on a square mile of land (one section) the world over, we may well say the world is full and hang out the sign: 'World full, A. D. 2250.' No room!

The man that does the most mischeif in a community is not the notorious criminal. He is the fellow who whispers lies in the ears of others in order to excite their prejudices and turn them against their friends; the tale bearer, the cunning twister of fact into exagerations, the unscrupulous purveyor of idle gossip, the man who is dishonest with himself and hence is unable to credit any one else with good motives; who tries to make himself solid with one person by exciting that person's mind against another and seeks to advance his personal interests by poisoning the minds of others. Every community has such creatures. They work in the dark and never accept responsibility for their lies. — Altoona Herald.

A drunkard's "last will and testament;" "I leave to society a ruined character, a wretched example and a memory that will soon rot. I leave to my parents as much sorrow as they, in their feeble state can bear. I leave to my brothers and sisters as much shame and mortification as I can bring them. I leave to my wife a broken heart and a life of shame. I leave to my children poverty, ignorance, a low moral character and the remembrance that their father filled a drunkard's grave.

Owing to the fact that there was no adequate accomodation on the railroads running out of Garner, but few of our citizens went to Mason City on the occassion of the corner stone laying of the Memorial University. —Garner Signal.

That's just precisely why all of Klemme's people did not go!

Among the changes recently made in the Masonic code is an amendment that provides that dancing and card playing cannot be allowed in any hall used exclusively for Masonic purposes, except by unanimous consent, and the objection of any brother shall be sufficieut against such practices.

We are not in the habit of making morbid excuses in reference to our paper but last week's issue was a poor one and we are 'willing to be forgiven.' But the 4th only comes once a year and we celebrated. However it ain't a going to be dry all summer.

Read It In His Newspaper.

George Schuab, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio is a constant reader of the 'Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me, I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties," He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. Great quantities of firecrackers are being received in this country from China, the merchants considering that there will be a big Fourth of July trade for them.

General Miles has long advocated a standing army which should consist of one man for every thousand of our total population, and that is substantially the size of the present establishment. The police force of our largest city consists of one officer to a population of about four hundred and sixty.

Hartford has adopted the automobile patrol wagon, and the chief of police says that it has proved successful in every way, resulting in a saving of time and money. An electric wagon was used pending the delivery of the electric patrol wagon, and the chief says that it did the work of four horses at the nominal expense of 18 cents a day for power.

The Maoris, the aboriginal inhabitants of New Zealand, have actually increased in number during the last decade, and great wonderment is expressed in European publications over the fact that a "subject race" should thrive and grow. Here is opportunity for somebody to suggest that the fate of such a race depends a good deal on the nation to which it is "subject."

A man in North Carolina was selling standing timber—walnut trees. The man who was buying came to one very handsome tree. He told the owner he would pay as much as $50 for that tree. The owner did not sell, but went for experts. He got $1,500 for the tree (curled walnut) as it stood. The man who cut it down realized $3,000 for it on the cars. It was shipped to New York and veneered one-sixth to the inch The sales were watched. The tree brought $60,000.

Queen Margaret of Italy has commissioned the architect Succoni, to construct a memorial on the spot where King Humbert was assassinated. It will take the form of a votive chapel. In front a cross in marble will be erected, and each side of the entrance will be flanked by a marble statue, one representing Sorrow, and the other Death. The first stone of the edifice will be laid on July 29, the anniversary of the death of King Humbert. Succoni is the designer of the monument to Victor Emmanuel, now in course of construction on the hill of the capitol.

Mrs. Elizabeth Burr Hamilton, said to be the last member of the seventh generation of the Burr family, who died at Bridgeport, Conn., last week, at the age of ninety, was the fifth cousin of Aaron Burr, third vice-president of the United States, who killed Alexander Hamilton, the lawyer and statesman, in a duel in 1804. Her death recalls the fact that, though the families of Burr and Hamilton were the most bitter enemies at the beginning of the last century, love found a way forty-two years after the famous duel to bring the families together again by the marriage of Elizabeth Burr and Alexander Hamilton in 1836.

America still has some things to learn from older countries, particularly in the way of economy. New York city pays about five hundred thousand dollars a year for the disposition of its garbage, while many English cities, by burning their waste matter in special furnaces, not only destroy it in the most effective way, but make a profit from it. Being dried out, it becomes fuel, and the heat which it generates is used to furnish steam for pumping water, operating city electric lighting plants, and grinding up such portions of the refuse as are capable of conversion into cement, tiles and paving blocks. This plan is in use in seventy or eighty of the smaller cities of England, and a million-dollar plant is in process of erection in London.

There is sometimes a wide interval between the conception of a mechanical contrivance and its practical accomplishment. The flying machine, with experiments with which are constantly reported, is an example of delay in invention. A few years after the landing of the Pilgrims, Dr. John Wilkins, who afterward married a sister of Oliver Cromwell, published a work in which he said it was possible to make a "flying chariot, in which a man may sit, and give such motion to it as shall convey him through the air. And this, perhaps, might be made large enough to carry divers men at the same time, together with food for their viaticum, and commodities of traffic." The suggestion of a trade route to air travel points to the remote possibility of a flying-machine combination which will control the "air-line" of the future. At present there is reason to be alarmed. The business opportunities of the region overhead are still open to all.

Dr. Steyn reports the completion of the excavation of old Buddhist cities in Chinese Turkestan, and states that the results are satisfactory. The excavators discovered a large number of fine stucco sculptures, closely resembling the Gracco Buddhist relics of the North-Western Punjab.

The army allows about 33,000 pounds of food a year for fifteen men, but in the Arctic regions people eat at least a quarter as much more. It costs $3 a month more to feed a man in Greenland than in New York.

M. Daumet of the French Institute, and a number of other French architects, have petitioned the senate against any interference with religious orders, on the ground that many of their buildings are the glory of France, and that they are likely to discontinue furnishing employment to the building trade.

Many French automobiles have a large piece of plate glass in a steel frame in front of the driving seat, to protect the operator from dust and wind during fast work.

An Italian adventurer, who was recently tried in Naples pleaded guilty and was convicted of sixty-four forgeries. The judge before whom he was tried figured up the penalties and officially sentenced the prisoner to 1,088 years of solitary confinement.

The French government has forbidden the production of a comedy entitled The Oil Question, because one of the scenes was laid in the precincts of the Chamber. A number of deputies, who accepted bribes, were in the play.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

BAD FIRE AT DALLAS CENTER.

Entire Row of Frame Buildings Is Destroyed by Fire.

Dallas Center, July 5.—The business section of Dallas Center lying north of the main street, was wiped out by fire last evening. The fire started in a furniture store, and, owing to the high wind, spread rapidly. The buildings were all frame, and burned easily, making the fire a most difficult one to extinguish. The fire department was, of course, inefficient, as in all small towns, and was able to do little. The store in which the fire started was completely destroyed, as well as nine or ten of those surrounding it. The fire was only checked after all the buildings in the row, excepting the brick bank building, were destroyed. This building acted as a wall to the flames, and prevented the destruction of the eastern part of the town, where two large lumber yards were located. These yards caught fire several times from flying sparks, but heroic work of citizens saved them. The buildings across the street from the burned row were damaged by the heat, but otherwise escaped injury. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

TWO POSTAL CLERKS KILLED.

Iowa Central Tender Jumps the Track and Derails Postal Car

Hampton, July 6.—As the Iowa Central passenger train was approaching the village of Geneva, four miles south of here, the tender to the engine jumped the track. The train was going at the rate of thirty miles an hour. The wreck which followed killed two mail clerks, fatally injured the express messenger, while the baggage master is in a serious condition. In the mail car Jud Kendall of Grinnell and E. C. McKenzie of Ottumwa were working in the north end of the letter case. S. S. Thomas, the helper, was in the south end and miraculously escaped death. The bodies of the two dead mail clerks when found were crushed beyond recognition. In the baggage car J. W. Mandan of Marshalltown was seriously injured but it is believed he will recover. In the express car Mort Heath of Ottumwa was fatally injured and it is believed he will die.

ANOTHER SUIT AT LE MARS.

Becker Commission Company Is Asked to Return Money Lost by Ward.

Sioux City, July 8.—In behalf of the stockholders of the defunct LeMars National bank suit is to be brought in Chicago against the Becker Commission company for $17,000, part of the amount which it is said the defaulting vice president of the bank, T. F. Ward, lost in speculations on the board of trade through the commission company The action is based on that portion of the federal statutes which allow the recovery of bank money fraudulently used by bank officials. Ward lost a total of $21,000 in bank speculations. Suit for the remaining $4,000 was brought in Sioux City some time ago. Ward is expected to arrive in Sioux City soon. He is now in custody at Dubuque, but he will furnish bonds at once.

TOM WARD IS NABBED.

LeMars Bank Wrecker Is Captured at Jersey City.

Washington, July 3.—Chief Wilkie of the secret service has received a telegram announcing the arrest of Thomas F. Ward of Jersey City, N. J. Ward was vice president of the LeMars, Iowa, National bank, and is charged with having used the bank's funds. He left LeMars in April and was not located until about two weeks ago, when he was seen by a former acquaintance to enter the Jersey City postoffice. He was located and arrested. He is said to have signified his willingness to return to Iowa without extradition formalities.

THREE MEN KILLED BY A TRAIN

Wagon Is Struck and Its Occupants Hurled to Their Death.

Waterloo, July 5.—Three men were killed instantly and a fourth fatally hurt by being struck by a passenger train on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern railroad. The accident occurred at what is known as Paper Mill Crossing. The dead are: Joe Golinvaux, farmer, aged 55; Ole Thorson, Dubuque, aged 25; Ollie Huffman, Waterloo, aged 18; and the injured is Jo Hurley, Waterloo. The train was two hours late and was running fifty miles an hour. A sharp curve prevented the occupants of the wagon from seeing the approaching train.

Burglars at Sioux City.

Sioux City, July 8.—During the absence from home of the family of Attorney W. H. Farnsworth, burglars entered the house. They planted a chair against the front door, drew down the curtains and ransacked the house. They went to the dining room, spread themselves a fine meal, uncorked several bottles of beer off the ice in the refrigerator, feasted and then sat around and smoked some of the lawyer's perfectos. The stumps were scattered over the floor. The intruders stole a gold watch, a revolver and a box of pennies.

Suicide Follows Murder.

Des Moines, July 6.—F. A. Brackett, a retired farmer from Atlantic, Iowa, shot and killed and wife and himself at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. O. Powell, yesterday morning. Insanity, resulting from despondency and physical disability, combined with the effects of the intense heat, are assigned as causes for the deed. Brackett had $5,000 in government bonds in his room at the time of his death.

Held for Attempt to Kill.

Ottumwa, July 6.—Fred Pryor, Henry Keistner and Foss Bloomfield were arrested and held for trial July 17 for assault with intent to kill Brakeman Harry Booth last Monday night. Booth is so badly slashed and bruised that fears are entertained he will not survive. The prisoners claim they acted in self-defense.

A Skyrocket Cost $12,000.

Marshalltown, July 6.—A skyrocket caused a destructive fire at State Center. Sargeant's livery barn and twelve head of horses, including a $3,000 stallion, were destroyed. Bishop's warehouses, containing paints, flour and other articles, was also burned. The loss is $12,000; insurance, $1,500.

Child Electrocuted.

New Hampton, July 6.—A young child of Sam Potes was killed instantly by an electric wire connected with a street lamp. The insulation had worn off. The child accidentally grasped the wire on the exposed spot and was electrocuted before the horrified gaze of hundreds. The body was fearfully burned.

Replace Burned Building.

Iowa City, July 2.—The board of regents of the University of Iowa has contracted with James Rawson & Son to erect a $2,000 structure which shall temporarily serve the purpose of a medical building. It shall be a frame building and will occupy the site of the old building destroyed by fire last March. It will amply provide for the medical students until the legislature orders a fine new brick building. The new liberal arts building, which is rapidly nearing completion, will be dedicated next fall shortly after the enrollment of students.

SMOOTH CATTLE THIEF.

Twenty-nine Steers Stolen From a Pasture and Sold.

Cedar Rapids, July 3.—The Cedar Rapids police department has just unravelled one of the boldest cases of theft that has occurred in this vicinity, and as a result a Bertram township farmer has recovered twenty-nine yearling steers that had been shipped to Benton county.

The cattle thief had been about the city for some time and had traveled under several aliases, among them Davis and Smith. Davis went to Vinton and offered twenty-nine yearling steers at $26 per head to J. W. Langhan. Finally he agreed to sell the bunch at $700, and on making inquiry of his acquaintances in this city Mr. Langham was satisfied that the deal was straight and made arrangements to pay for the steers as soon as they were on track in this city. Davis, or Smith, during the night went to the farm of Addison Berry, two miles from Bertram, where the twenty-nine yearling steers were grazing in a forty acre pasture. Whether he had help is not known, but at 5 o'clock in the morning he had the cattle at Sinclair's yards. There they were loaded onto B., C. R. & N. car 2033 and consigned to Mr. Langham at Vinton, Davis drawing his money and departing for other scenes as soon as the cattle had been shipped.

Mr. Berry came to the city and reported the theft to the police department and within two hours Marshal Kozlovsky had the plunder located, Sheriff Thiesen was notified and went to the farm of Mr. Langham, where the cattle were found.

BIG SALE OF LAND.

Ex-Governor Larrabee Disposes of 7,200 Acres in Kossuth County.

Des Moines, July 5.—William Larrabee, former governor of Iowa, has sold 7,200 acres of land in Emmet township, Kossuth county, to a syndicate of capitalists from Fort Dodge, Forest City and Lake Mills. The land sold for $30 an acre, double the amount Mr. Larrabee paid for most of it. He began to buy land in northwestern Iowa fifteen or more years ago, and still owns thousands of acres there.

The purchasers were represented by J. T. Thompson and J. F. Thompson of Forest City, E. H. Rich and George L. Rich of Fort Dodge and P. M. Joice of Lake Mills. They intend to lay out a town, which will be called Cortland, and claim they have assurance of a railway.

Ten Feet Around Her Body.

Des Moines, July 8.—Mrs. Anna Wolf, aged 29, died at Mercy hospital Saturday, where she had been taking treatment to reduce an abnormal growth of fat. At her death Mrs. Wolf measured ten feet around the waist, she was five feet in height, and weighed 512. A special casket had to be designed for her.

Think They Have Cattle Thief.

Cedar Rapids, July 5.—The police have received word of the arrest at St. Louis of Ed Stevens, said to be the man who stole twenty-nine head of steers from the farm of Addison Berry and drove them to cars, where they were loaded and sold at the Sinclair yard. Stevens has a number of aliases.

Child Killed by Train.

Fort Dodge, July 2.—Irene, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Thorpe, of Richards, twenty miles southwest of Fort Dodge, was struck and instantly killed by an Illinois Central passenger train. The child attempted to cross the track before the train and was struck by the pilot. The skull was crushed and the child never recovered consciousness, dying in a few hours. The train crew is not considered to blame, as the child's action could not be foreseen.

READY FOR FREE TRADE.

Porto Rican Assembly Passes Necessary Resolution.

San Juan, July 6.—In a joint session the Porto Rican assembly unanimously passed a free trade resolution. The assembly hall was crowded with people and cheers greeted the announcement that Governor Allen had signed the resolution. The free trade resolution begins with a preamble, in which reference is made to section 3 of the Foraker law. The resolution then continues:

"The Porto Rican assembly, in extra session and acting pursuant to the instructions of congress, does hereby notify the president of the United States, by virtue of the Hollander act and other acts, it has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of insular government, and it hereby directs that a copy of this joint resolution be presented to the president of the United States and it requests that Governor Allen deliver the resolution in question to President McKinley, to the end that the proclamation may be made by him, and if it shall seem wise and proper to the president of the United States, the assembly requests that his proclamation be issued July 25, as that day is being established a legal Porto Rican holiday to commemorate the anniversary of the coming of the American flag."

Governor Allen personally read a message before the assembly, in which he exhaustively reviewed the financial situation of the island, and showed that Porto Rico possessed abundant revenues for its needs without drawing upon its customs receipts.

PINGREE LAID TO REST.

Thousands Attend the Funeral of the Michigan Statesman.

Detroit, July 8.—When the beautiful strains of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" swelled through the Pingree homestead Saturday afternoon, the beginning of the funeral services over Hazen S. Pingree, former governor of Michigan, the house was crowded to its utmost capacity with those who knew and loved the dead man. In life Mr. Pingree's house was never closed to the public and it was so in death. All for whom room could be found were permitted entrance. The services were held in the east drawing room. A scriptural reading followed the hymn and then Rev. Reex Sturant, Unitarian minister, and Andrew Nehemiah Boynton, a Congregationalist, spoke on the life and works of the dead statesman. After a prayer the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light" ended the service.

Slowly and reverently the casket was borne from the house to a flag-draped caisson drawn by four horses, escorted by Governor Bliss and staff, the First regiment Michigan National Guard and the First battalion Michigan Naval Reserves, the cortege passed slowly down the broad avenue past thousands of members of various civic organizations who were drawn up at salute on one side of the avenue. As the caisson went by each organization fell in behind it, marching to the solemn tones of the dirge played by the bands. The interment was at Elmwood cemetery and the services there were in charge of the Scottish Rite Masons and the G. A. R.

KITTREDGE TO BE NAMED.

Sioux Falls Lawyer to Succeed the Late Senator Kyle.

Omaha, July 8.—A special to the World-Herald from Sioux Falls, S. D., says: Hon. A. B. Kittridge, a prominent attorney of this city and ex-republican national committeeman from South Dakota, will be appointed by Governor Herried to fill the vacancy caused by the death, a few days ago, of United States Senator James H. Kyle.

Mr. Kittridge is a resident of what is considered Senator Gamble's district and his appointment, it is said, will leave a clear field in the north portion of the state for the various candidates for the full term of six years from March 4, 1903. It is expected that Governor Herried will make the appointment within the next few days.

CHARLES G. DAWES RESIGNS.

Will Devote His Time to His Candidacy for the Senate.

Wahinsgton, July 6.—Mr. Charles G. Dawes, comptroller of the currency, has tendered his resignation to the president, to take effect October 1 next. In answer to an inquiry Mr. Dawes said:

"I have resigned because of my intention to be a candidate before the people of Illinois for the United States senate. It would not be possible for me, during the next year, to make a canvass for the senate and at the same time administer to my own satisfaction the important and responsible office which I now hold. I am influenced in this direction solely by what seems to me the plain proprieties of the situation." Mr. Dawes' term of office would not have expired until January 1, 1903.

PLACE MAY GO TO ROBERTS.

Iowan Mentioned as Successor to Comptroller Dawes.

Washington, July 8.—The only name mentioned here in connection with the office of comptroller of the currency to succeed Mr. Dawes is that of George E. Roberts of Iowa, the present director of the mint.

It is well known that Mr. Roberts has the full confidence of the president and the secretary of the treasary and that they regard him as a man of conscieuous ability and of the highest integrity. He has long been prominent in Iowa as an able and forceful writer on financial subjects, and it was in recognition of his ability on this line that he received the unsolicited appointment as director of the United States mint. At present Mr. Roberts is in San Fraicisco.

PRINCE HOHENLOHE IS DEAD.

Former Imperial Chancellor of Germany Passes Away.

Berlin, July 8.—Prince Hohenlohe, formerly German imperial chancellor, died at Ragatz, Switzerland, Friday evening.

Prince Hohenlohe's death was generally unexpected here, as he left Berlin several weeks ago apparently in good health, although his increasing weakness was evident. The prince arrived at Ragatz extremely exhausted. His death is attributed to the weakness of old age.

Carnegie Offers Increase.

Cedar Rapids, July 8.—Andrew Carnegie has offered to increase the donation of the free public library from $50,000 to $75,000, provided the project of improving Mays Island is carried out and public buildings are placed thereon.

Some are weatherwise, some are otherwise.

Columbia Beats Constitution.

Newport, R. I., July 2.—The Constitution was defeated by the Columbia yesterday by the small margin of forty-eight seconds in the first real race in which the new Herreshoff yacht has participated. Although the contest from start to finish was close and at times exciting, in the opinion of the majority of the yachtsmen in Newport, the Constitution lost through misfortune. However, the result of the contest is far from conclusive, and there is still much to be decided as to the relative merits of the two vessels.

MONTANA TRAIN HOLDUP.

Amount of Booty Secured By Bandits Is About $70,000.

Great Falls, Mont., July 5.—Train No. 3, westbound, on the Great Northern road, was held up about 2 o'clock a. m. at Wagner station, 196 miles east of this place, by three maskeu men, who blew open the express car, using dynamite, and secured the entire contents of the through safe, about $70,000. One of the robbers boarded the car a few miles from the scene of the hold-up. When the train reached the place where his confederates were lying in wait in a ravine alongside the railroad track, he pulled the bell cord, and as the train slowed up, jumped onto the engine, and presenting a rifle, forced the engineer and fireman to abandon their engine. As the passengers began to look out of the windows a fusilade of shots swept alongside of the coaches and was continued for several minutes. Dynamite was quickly exploded in the express car, tearing the car to pieces, and the through safe was blasted open and its contents removed, after which the robbers mounted good horses and rode away to the Bad Lands. A posse is in pursuit, but capture is improbable. The passengers who ventured to look out of the windows in the day coach were struck by bullets, but not seriously injured.

CHINESE TAKE CHARGE.

British and Japanese Troops Evacuate Peking Quarters.

London, July 5.—The British and Japanese sections in Pekin have been formally transferred to the Chinese, says a Pekin dispatch to a news agency. There is delay on the part of the Italians, French and Germans in transferring their sections in the Tartar city. The Germans have transferred their sections of the Chinese city, all of which is now under the jurisdiction of ten police centers. The British, Germans and Japanese retain some supervision over the city and are responsible for the settlement of quarrels between foreigners.

A thousand new Japanese troops have arrived here and nearly four thousand more are coming to replace the force in the province of Chi-Li. The Japanese, French and German commanders have consented to Yuan Shih Kai's troops coming within seven miles of the city. The British commander has not yet decided whether to consent or not. The British, French and Japanese say that they will not evacuate until the troops of the other powers have.

Arrangements have been made for the return of the court.

Orders have been given for the rebuilding of two of the large gates of the city. The cost of this work is estimated at 1,000,000 taels for each gate. The merchants in the ruined portion of the city are rebuilding, showing that they expect the court to return.

A London dispatch from Pekin says: The French propose to delay their evacuation of Peo Ting Fu until autumn. They believe that their presence their is a necessity as the disorders which have been wide spread are increasing. The society of allied villagers is replacing the boxer organization. This society was ostensibly formed for local protection, but it is really insurrectionary, as it resists the collection of the regular taxes because the villagers suffered heavily last year and object to the additional taxes for the expenses of the courts return and indemnity for the Catholic converts who greatly outnumber the Protestants. If these troops fail the foreign troops must interpose. Hence there is good reason for the French regime, as the converts are under their protection. The Germans intend to evacuate Pao Ting Fu on July 5.

BELLARMINO SURRENDERS.

Sorogon Province, Philippine Islands, Is Cleared of Insurgents.

Manila, July 8.—The official announcement of the surrender of the insurgent leader, Ballarmino, has been made. According to this account, Ballarmino, who has been operating in the province of Sorogon, surrendered Thursday last at Lagaspi, on Albay bay, with thirty-two officers, 315 guns and 3,000 pounds of ammunition. The insurgent presidents of that section of the country and many Filipinos accompanied Ballarmino, who gave himself up to Col. Theo. J. Wint of the Sixth cavalry. In all, since June, 1,082 insurgents have surrendered in the district. Colonel Wint's regiment came from Cuba with General Chaffee. Before disembarking at Legaspi, Colonel Wint went to General Chaffee and asked if he desired him to clean up that part of the country. General Chaffee replied: "Yes, but I do not command until July 4." In three weeks Ballarmino was cornered, in spite of the theory of many officers that cavalry could not be used in effective operations in such a country.

The insurgent general Cailles, who surrendered at Santa Cruz, Luguna province, July 24, and his friends have offered to negotiate with Malvar, the insurgent leader in southern Luzon, for the latter's surrender.

Former Filipino officers who belonged to Malvar's command report that fifty insurgents were killed and that many were wounded by the command of Lieutenant Manaci, during a recent two days' fight in the province of Batagas.

COMBINE MAKES TERMS.

Steel Trust Has Trouble Over But Two of Its Plants.

Pittsburg, July 8.—The United States Steel corporation has so far arranged terms with the Amalgamated association for the union mills of the National Tube company, the American Tin Plate company, one plant of the National Steel company, with a prospect of a settlement of its other plants in the Youngstown district.

The scale for the South Chicago and Joliet plants of the Federal Steel company have been arranged and can only be determined by one side giving notice of a desire for a change.

The other plant of this company, the Bayview works, is operated under a special scale and no trouble in reaching an agreement is anticipated. The only trouble the big corporation has with the Amalgamated association is with the American Steel company and the American Steel Hoop company.

Kitchener Captures Boers.

London, July 6.—Lord Kitchener telegraphs to the war office as follows: "Grenfeld, on July 1, at Howell, captured ninety-three Boers and a lot of supplies belonging to Beyers' commando."

A Dutch Heir Is Expected.

The Hague, July 6.—The accouchement of Queen Wilhelmina is expected to occur about Christmas.

Twelve Die by a Fatal Bolt.

Chicago, July 2.—Twelve men were killed and a boy probably fatally injured yesterday by a single bolt of lightning. The victims were fishing in Lake Michigan at the foot of Montrose boulevard, on the North Side. The fatal bolt struck the pier where they were seated, and all were thrown into the lake. Only the boy has been so far recovered.

"Oh, you cruel boy, to take those eggs out of the nest! Think of the poor mother bird when she comes—" "The mother bird's dead, miss." "How do you know that?" "I see it on your hat!"

TAFT GOES INTO OFFICE

Civil Government Is Inaugurated in the Philippines.

Manila, July 5.—Civil government in the Philippines has been auspiciously inaugurated. Commissioner Taft was escorted by General MacArthur and General Chaffee from the palace to a great temporary tribune just outside the Plaza Palacio. Standing on a projecting center of the tribune, William H. Taft, the new civil governor of the Philippine islands, took the oath of office, administered by Chief Justice Arellano. Governor Taft was then introduced by General MacArthur, the guns of Fort Santiago being fired by way of salute.

A feature of the inaugural address of Governor Taft was the announcement that on September 1, 1901, the commission would be increased by the appointment of three native members, Dr. Wardo Delavera, Denito Legarda and Jose Luzuriaga. Before the first of September departments will exist as follows:

Interior—Worcester.
Commerce and police—Wright.
Justice and finance—Ide.
Public instruction—Moses.

Of the twenty-seven provinces organized, Civil Governor Taft said the insurrection still exists in five. This will cause the continuance of the military government in these sections. Sixteen additional provinces are reported without insurrections, but as yet they have not been organized.

Four provinces are not ready for civil government. The speaker predicted that with the concentration of troops into larger garrisons it would be necessary for the people to assist the police in the preservation of order. Fleet launches will be procured, he said, which will facilitate communication among the provinces, as well as aid the postal and revenue departments. In connection with educational efforts, Civil Governor Taft said that adults should be educated by an observation of American methods. He said that there was a reasonable hope that congress would provide a tariff suitable, one that would assist in the development of the Philippines, instead of an application of the United States tariff.

According to the civil governor there is an unexpended balance in the insular treasury of $3,700,000, and an annual income of $10,000,000.

He said that any possible friction between civil and military subordinates should be discouraged. The patriotism of the leading Filipinos was commended. In conclusion Civil Governor Taft reiterated a hope expressed by the president that in the future the inhabitants would be grateful for the American Philippine victories, and that they would be indissolubly linked in ties of affection with the common country.

WANTS NO PRIVATEERS.

Kruger Said to Have Been Asked to Arm Vessels.

Brussels, July 8.—The Petit Bleu says that Mr. Kruger has lately refused to entertain proposals to arm privateers, but that the promoters are again urging the former president of the South African republic to notify the powers that unless they intervene he will issue letters of marque. In the event of Mr. Kruger's refusal the promoters propose to act without authorization.

Washington, July 8.—The report from Brussels that former President Kruger is being urged to notify the powers that unless they intervene in the South African contest he will commission privateers, is not treated seriously here.

It is well understood, as one outcome with the war with Spain, that the United States government will never again, except in extraordinary emergency, issue letters of marque, and the same reasons that impel the government to this course undoubtedly would prevent our government from recognizing any such warrants isued by any other nations, even were that nation in full standing.

In the case of the Spanish war both the belligerents by agreement refrained from issuing commissions to privateers, and it now has been many years since the flag of any respectable nation has flown over such a craft. In the case of Mr. Kruger it is extremely doubtful whether he would, if the issue were forced in this way, be recognized as a defacto president authorized to issue commissions to privateers. That point would have to be settled at the outset and each nation whose commerce was affected or was threatened by the privateers would determine for itself his competency. It is scarcely to be expected that they would decide against their own commercial interests so that Mr. Kruger's privateers would find it difficult to secure general recognition.

The threat to send out privateers without Mr. Kruger's consent is idle. It is pointed out here that such craft would be pirates pure and simple, and the civilized world would sweep them off the seas if they should begin operations against the commerce of the nations.

AMERICAN OARSMEN DEFEATED.

Leander Crew Was Too Swift for the Pennsylvanians.

Henley, July 6.—To the disappointment of all Americans at Henley the Leander Rowing club crew yesterday defeated the crew of the University of Pennsylvania in the final heat of the grand challenge up. There was bright sunshine and sufficiently cross winds blew from the Buck's shore, slightly favoring the Leanders' station. The followers of the British crew evinced the greatest confidence and Leander money was everywhere available, but this confidence never exceeded anything beyond even money. The Pennsylvanians' friends picked up several hundred pounds, and a Philadelphia occupant of a house boat is said to have invested 500 pounds in favor of his crew.

New Battleships for England.

London, July 8.—In the house of commons Arnold Forster, the secretary of the admiralty, announced that the year's shipbuilding proof a new improved class, six cruisers of the Monmouth class and ten improved torpedo boat destroyers.

The battle ships will be of 16,500 tons and twenty feet longer than those of the Formidable class. Their gramme included three battle ships indicated horse power will be 18,000 and their speed eighteen and one-half knots. The armor of the new battle ships will be a belt eight to nine inches thick.

Jessie Morrison Sentenced.

Eldorado, Kas., July 8.—Jessie Morrison, convicted of manslaughter in the second degree for the murder of Mrs. Clara Wiley Castle on June 22, 1900, has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary in close confinement at hard labor. Miss Morrison took the sentence calmly and returned to her cell with a steady step. She will be taken to Lansing at once.

New Capital for China.

Shanghai, July 2.—Marquis Tseng has received a dispatch from Sian-Fu to the effect that the empress dowager, fearing a trap to capture her, declines to return to Peking and has notified the grand council that the future capital will be Kei-Feng-Fu, in the province of Ho-Nan.

Lady Jane Ellice, the sole surviving bridesmaid of Queen Victoria, is 82 years old. Lady Jane was born the same year as the queen.

It's peculiar that the nearness of an alarm clock is most noticeable when it goes off.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, July 8, 1901.

The quarterly statement of the auditor of state with the state treasurer, which is also the settlement for the close of the biennial period, shows a larger general revenue fund in the state treasury than has ever been recorded at this time of year. The report just submitted shows that there is in the general revenue fund of the state $1,143,888.17. At the close of the last biennial period, June 30, 1899, there was in the general revenue fund $445,027.37, showing an increase of $698,885.80 in two years. At the close of the last quarter, March 30, 1899, there was on hand in the same fund, $830,061.97. The total amount now on hand in the state treasury is $1,836,864.98. There are agricultural college bonds to the amount of $648.100 and cash on hand to the amount of $1,188,764.98. In addition to the $1,143,888.17 in the general revenue fund there is in the agricultural college endowment fund $649,235.89, in the special agricultural college revenue fund $30,498.91, in the swamp land indemnity fund $9,778.95, in the special university fund $61,516.47, in the agricultural college college interest fund $1,883.25 and in the permanent school fund $63.44.

Mr. Cownie, of the state board of control, has returned from the insane hospital at Independence. "In a single day there the past week," said Mr. Cownie, "the inmates of that institution picked 3,700 quarts of institution strawberries. They have been having strawberries, during the season, three times a day. They picked steadily every day during the season, averaging about 2,000 quarts per day. The lowest picking in a day was 1,500 quarts. The institution farm is in fine condition, the finest they all say that it ever was in. The Iowa institution farms are in fine shape, they are models, and that is what the board of control wishes to make them." The largest number of patients ever in the hospital at Mt. Pleasant were enrolled last week, 1,001.

Judge Smith McPherson has written a letter to the United States commissioners under his jurisdiction, in which he calls attention to the practice of making arrests for the mere pittance which accrues to the officer from the fees. He condemns the practice and insists that it shall cease.

Dr. J. F. Kennedy, secretary of the state board of health, says the hot weather of the past two weeks has administered a crushing blow to the smallpox epidemic in the state and will be instrumental in preventing a serious epidemic next winter. Smallpox has died hard in Iowa, but Dr. Kennedy believes it is dying at last. "I do not think," said Dr. Kennedy, "that there is going to be the smallpox epidemic in Iowa next winter that was anticipated. There is a good deal in the theory that when it does not die out during the summer it is much worse the next winter, but the number of cases in the state already is diminishing and the hot weather is not giving it a chance to spread. I believe Iowa has seen the worst of its smallpox epidemic, and next winter there will be much less of it than there was this year. The large number of persons who have already had smallpox is one of my reasons for thinking so. This, together with the fact that the chance of new cases developing during the summer is small, makes me think that Iowa is not going to have much smallpox next winter."

S. R. Dawson, who was sentenced to Anamosa June, 1896, to serve a ten-year sentence for the murder of his son-in-law, Walter Scott, has been paroled by Governor Shaw. The application which led to the pardon was circulated about three months ago and signed by influential citizens of Des Moines. Dawson is the inventor of the celebrated Damascus steel. The secret which he uses in making the metal harder than any other metallic substance is known only to himself and has been locked up in the safety vault of the Des Moines National bank since his commitment to the penitentiary nearly seven years ago. Before his sentence a company was formed with a capital stock of nearly half a million dollars for the purpose of manufacturing the commodity, and it is understood to be the intention of the promoters to go ahead with the plans.

The discovery that a Des Moines milk dealer is using formaldehyde to decrease his ice bill has stirred the officials at the state dairy commissioner's office to renewed activity in preventing the use of the deadly preservatives. About a year ago there were four arrests made in Davenport on the strength of a statement made by a chemist there to the effect samples of the milk sold by these dealers contained a weak solution of formaldehyde. When the case was brought up for trial the chemist was intoxicated and had to be carried into the justice court and his evidence had little weight. The men were discharged, but the effect was beneficial just the same, as the authorities have had no trouble with Davenport dealers since that time. The supreme court decision in the Slinker case gives the dairy commissioner unlimited authority in suppressing adulterations of milk and the effect has been wide throughout the state in bettering the quality of dairy products.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt won the joint debate at Chautauqua park with J. A. Boatmar of Keokuk on "Woman Suffrage." About 3,000 people attended. The sympathy of the audience was evenly divided, but Mrs. Catt made much the better argument and impression. Dr. Boatman depended largely on the scripture, which enjoins wives to ask their husbands, and making the husbands the head and wives the foot, and insisted that suffrage will deprive the homes of the needed care of mothers and deprive men of their jobs and offices. Mrs. Catt said that women are now taxed without representation, that equal suffrage will give better and more moral government, and that if St. Paul said what Boatman says he said he was wrong.

The Deadly Cracker.

Chicago, July 6.—The Tribune presents reports from all over the country showing the number of persons killed and injured as a result of celebrating the Fourth of July. The number actually killed is less than last year, being nineteen, against thirty then, but the number of injured is considerably larger, the figures being 1,611, against 1,225. The real list of fatalities will, however, not be known until the number of deaths resulting from the lockjaw caused by toy pistol wounds come in Plotted to Kill Roberts.

London, July 5.—Lord Roberts testified before the royal commission which is considering the cases of foreigners deported from South Africa. The commander-in-chief dealt with the plots against his life and the deportation of the ringleaders. He said the officers and employes of the Netherlands railroad were so hostile to the British that many of them had to be deported. Every consideration was shown them. He personally investigated the great majority of cases and sanctioned none unless on adequate grounds.

LITERARY NOTES.

"A Sailor's Log," by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, U. S. N., is announced by D. Appleton & Co., New York. The book is filled with the recollections of forty years of naval life, and is really an interesting record of a very interesting man. The New York World says: "The story is so full of adventure as to make literally an 'every boy's book,' but it is every man's book also, and woman's as well. It is not only delightful in its immediate interest, but valuable for the personal sidelights which it throws on our national history."

After the ceremony the bridegroom moves the flower in his bride's hair from left to right, for in various parts of Spain to wear a rose above your right ear is to proclaim yourself a wife. Thus the rose takes the place of the ring.

A voter in Galway, Ireland, received from a candidate, just before election day, a rather strong-smelling hare. He objected to taking it, but the donor begged him to have no misgivings, as there was no possible question of bribery in the matter. "Shure, 'tis not bribery I'm fearin' at all," said Pat, "it's"—and he sniffed the hare—"just a matther of corruption."

CHAPTER XV.

It was a beautiful morning—almost as mild as if it had been autumn, rather than a December day. The sun had advanced just high enough in the heavens to pour down his mildest and warmest beams, and the near village and the distant hills we bathed in the golden light, as, cold, the fair Eden spread its bear forth for Adam's admiring eyes.

It was a blessed da The most careless heart could b drink in its beauty in a thankful mood; the fresh, sweet air brought a col to the most pallid cheek. It was hard to look out upon the glorious sce and realize that a world so love and so fair should be the home a haunt of all that was contemptibl and base—that the serpent Slander d the gaunt fiend Care, and the mon of Murder, with his red right hd, could fling a shadow over all this auty and cause each heart that had ved it once, almost to curse its emory in after years.

And yet, even th singing of the blithe birds on that lely winter's day seemed to say that th might be so—seemed to say that e little children sporting joyously in e village street might live to feel th blighting scorn which worldly spiritonly understand; that those pleasant istic homes scattered like visible ssings here and there, might be theaunts of fiends in human form, and e burial place of the heart's best affions.

For the singing the birds, in some strange way, seemd to speak that morning of one sore tried and tempted in her earthly pilgrimage, but now at rest where no ethly malice could disturb her—of on whose sweet eyes would have gazedn calm contemplation on that lovel scene, had no false words ever kindl the flame of love within her breast and then left it to go out in darkne, in bitterness, in tears and death!

Yet, on that lely day, a deed apparently unsuited to the sylvan loveliness of the scee, was about to be done. On that d the record of the past was to be rely searched—the grave made to give up its secrets and its dead.

Having undertain the task, Mr. Cowley was detained to accomplish it; and yet, he would have given worlds, as the fur drew nigh, that he had never midled with the matter—never come Hollow Ash Hall.

His nephew so seemed nervous and ill at ease As for the ladies, they scarcely spke, but sat huddled together over th drawing-room fire—all except Rose, ad she was wandering over the hse like an uneasy spirit, till at last they missed her entirely.

The morning was rapidly waning away, and at st Mr. Cowley rose from his easy-chir with the air of a man who had made up his mind beyond the power of a change.

"Come, Charle let us get it over," he said, gravely

They went ou into the hall. Rose met them there and by her side stood a tall and handome gentleman, with a foreign air an appearance.

"Father," said the girl eagerly, come back into the library for a moment. This gentleman knows the secret of the haunted huse, and is about to tell it to you."

Mr. Cowley arted, as well he might. "And who my this gentleman be?" he asked, somehat stiffly.

"A friend of he Vernons," was the quick reply. Let him tell you the story of the hanted room."

They went bck into the library together, and this was the substance of the story which he told them of the dead girl, the ruined family, and the deserted house

Marion Escott had been a favored child from the very hour of her birth. True, her young mother died that she might live, but a sister of that mother, good and pure as she, took the infant to her heart, and cherished it for the sake of the dead. Marion's aunt was one of earth's saints, and, under her loving care the child grew mild, and good and gentle—beloved by every one who knew her. Her father was an old man, and, being the possessor of great wealth, he chose to indulge his only and darling child in every wish she expressed. He seemed but to live that he might please her; yet, strange to say, in spite of all this injudicious fondness, she was quite unspoiled.

A slight touch of haughtiness there might have been in her manner, but she was no more to blame for that than that her eyes were so large and dark, or her form so reed-like and graceful. With the beauty of her mother, she had inherited the stately manner of her father, and though she moved among her friends with the stately dignity of a young princess, no one seemed disposed to quarrel with what became her so well, and was so sweetly tempered with modesty and gentleness, and all good gifts.

Years passed on and added the arch fascinations of girlhood to her other charms. Her playmates were forced to select their cavaliers from the list of her rejected lovers, and yet her heart seemed all untouched.

At last she made her choice. It surprised every one. Her second cousin, George Vernon, a graceless, drinking and dicing Oxford student, won the treasure for which so many had longed in vain. Won it almost without an effort on his part—won it without knowing of its value, or knowing how to appreciate it.

When by the advice of a dear friend she knelt at her father's feet and told him of her love, the old man burst into a storm of anger, threatened her with the loss of home and friends; threatened her also with his own curse; but it was all in vain! She was his own child. She inherited all his pride and haughtiness, though these qualities had been kept in the background by the gentle teachings of her aunt; and when he attempted to thwart her dearest wishes so openly and determinedly, her pride and will were aroused, and her soul opposed in all its native fierceness to his own.

That night she fled! The morning brought a letter from her, saying that she had chosen to share poverty with her lover, rather than enjoy wealth without him. At the same time she prayed her father not to cast her utterly from his heart, but to think of her in kindness and mercy, for the sake of the long and happy years they had left behind them forever.

Marion was by no means one to be discarded and forgotton where she had once been loved, and though at first her stern old father forbade all mention of her name and threatened to disinherit her at once, her memory, gentle, kind and loving as she had always been till that fatal night, gradually disarmed him, and by degrees they came to speak of her again around the home hearth, and to send many a loving wish and thought to follow her in her wanderings.

It may be that her father felt that he had driven her to desperation by his harshness, for as time softened the first sting of agony, he grew more kind and gentle, and often encouraged his faithful housekeeper to sit and talk for hours with him of her they had both loved so well. At that time, if she had returned, he would gladly have welcomed and forgiven her. But ah! as the poet says, "if only the dead could know at what hour

"To come back and be forgiven!"

They do not know, nor do the living, till the appointed time has gone by, and either the forgiveness or the time for receiving it has passed away. No tidings came directly from Marion—her father did not even know the exact place of her residence. A flying rumor reached him now and then; but all was uncertain and mysterious; and at last even this scanty information ceased, and her name was spoken softly and tenderly, as

"The household name
Of one whom God has taken."

Her father mourned for her silently, but sincerely; and all could see by the bending of the stately form and the silver threads that glistened in his jetty hair, how the estrangement, and silence, and separation were eating his very life away!

Her life should have been a happy gentleman who is supposed to be mixed up with the affairs of mortals, who must, I think, have laughed in his sleeve when chance sent a young widow to dwell in the vicinity of the newly married pair.

She was a woman of good birth and high family, though so reduced in circumstances as to be obliged to add to her scanty income by private tuition in the more genteel families around Banley. She was a fine classical scholar, an artist, an authoress, and, in addition, danced like a fairy, played and sunk like an angel, and rode like Die Vernon herself. Her tall, elegant figure, her deep mourning, the easy grace of her motions and the dignity of her manners had already moved George Vernon strangely, and though she was a brilliant rather than a beautiful women, with her wondrous smile, her flashing eyes, her bewitching manners and easy grace, she placed him where she had so often placed his betters—at her feet!

The dusky gentleman of whom I have already alluded, having his implements upon the ground, lost no time in using them. Mr. Vernon and the governess met often, and it needed no spoken word to tell the enchantress all he was feeling. His words—his sighs—the long ardent glances of his handsome hazel eyes, told the story only too well, and smiling sometimes to herself at this new proof of her power of fascination, she gave him some slight encouragement from time to time. He did not love her, and yet, at last, he walked up and down his room at midnight, thinking, while she was sleeping quietly and would have laughed heartily at his employment had she known it. He was only doing what a thousand men have done before him—what a thousand more will do after him—flinging himself at the feet of a woman who would lead him through a tempest of passion and leave him at last bankrupt of faith, of feeling and honesty, and all else that to the noble heart makes life at all worth living.

CHAPTER XIX.

And all this time what was Marion doing?

This house was even more lonely then than it is now. There were few country seats around, and even with their tenants, Mr. Vernon had little or no intimacy. People did not quite understand him or his position. There were rumors afloat that touched his character closely; and even Marion was supposed to be—not a lady, a relative and his wife—but a person of inferior birth; some even thought her a servant, who had consented to reside with him without troubling herself about the formal ceremony of marriage. He must have known that this was the general impression, and yet he never contradicted it in any way. So no one ever came to the Hall, and Marion wondered a little—at the unsocial neighborhood and heard nothing for a long time of the dangerous intimacy her indifferent husband had formed.

At last the tale leaked out through the good offices of her own maid. She was shocked and indignant, but something impelled her to seek Mr. Vernon at once and know the truth. She went down into the study, where he was lounging in an easy chair, smoking a cigar, and thinking, probably, much less of Mrs. Vernon than of Mrs. Moore. He laid aside the cigar and she sat down beside him and began her hopeless task.

Hopeless—how hopeless every woman must know. For all men, even the best and bravest, and gentlest, are cowardly in their dealings with women, and will evade a downright inquiry if it is in their power to do so. It happened, therefore, as a mere matter of course, that Mr. Vernon told his wife an absolute falsehood, and made her believe at last that she had been slandered, by the reports she had heard—highly colored ones, let us own.

She believed him.

But the next day both he and Mrs. Moore were missing.

The had fled to Australia together.

The shock drove Marion mad for the time. And in her frenzy she destroyed the life of her infant, which was born before she recovered.

Discovered a Useful Secret.

Like many other useful inventions, the art of bottling beer was discovered by mere accident. It is attributed to Alexander Nowell, head master of Woodbridge school, England, who was noted for his erudition, his piety and his penchant for angling. His portrait in the hall of Brasenose college, Oxford, represents him with the bible before him and his fishing rods on either side, and bears the inscription, Piscator Hominum. It appears that once while fishing, as his habit was at Hadham, he mislaid his bottle of ale in the long grass on the banks of the river Ash. Stumbling upon it some time afterward he found it, in the quaint words of Fuller, "not a bottle, but a gun, such the sound of it when opened, and this, as casualty is the mother of more inventions than industry, is believed the original of bottled ale in England." Nowell was presented to the living of Great Hadham in 1562, and the date of his discovery must be about 1530.

TRAMP STEAMER'S CHANCE.

Big Trade Awaiting Development from America's Inland Ports.

In Leslie's appears a most interesting article upon the possibilities of Chicago as a seaport. The author, W. D. Hulbert, sums up his argument by remarking that, when all is said and done, the facts remain that transportation by water is almost invariably cheaper than by land, and that at least a portion of a cargo—say from 1,500 to 2,000 tons—can be carried through the Welland and St. Lawrence canals without breaking bulk. The latter point is of vital importance, especially in shipments of fragile goods which will not bear much handling. The delays in passing the canals will be counterbalanced to some extent by the delays which now take place in New York custom house. It is even claimed that, because of the length of time required to get merchandise through the crowded warehouses of New York, goods from Europe can be delivered at the lake ports more promptly by way of the St. Lawrence than by the present routes. As to the comparatively small size of the steamers, that may prove to be in some cases a positive advantage, for it will enable them, like the Wergeland, to visit lesser European ports which now have no direct communication with America—cities too small to absorb the cargo of a larger steamship, or to furnish her with a load for her return trip. Even if the traffic should not be as satisfactory as desired in 1901, it may succeed the following year. Just now marine freight rates are very high, and there is a great demand for steamers, especially on the ocean, but this condition of things cannot last always. Sooner or later a change must come, and the cargo no longer will be seeking a ship, but the ship a cargo. And then the owners and masters of medium-sized steamers will turn their attention to this fresh water route, stretching from Montreal 1600 miles into the very heart of the North American continent.

Preaches for Her Husband.

Wearied and almost ready to collapse from overwork, Rev. Mr. Clegg of Tannersville, Pa., on a recent Sunday evening permitted his wife to occupy his pulpit, and the congregation that listened to the discourse was greatly pleased. "Sin came into the world by my sex, and it is my duty to get all the sin out of the world I can," said Mrs. Clegg in her sermon. She conducted her entire service for her husband and her sermon was interesting from beginning to end. The announcement that the minister's wife was to preach brought out a very large congregation and late comers stood two deep in the corridor. Rev. D. W. Lecrone, the Lutheran pastor of the village, dismissed his evening service in order to hear Mrs. Clegg. He was invited to a seat on the platform and accepted. Pastor Clegg, who is an Englishman, introduced his wife to the congregation.

Done in Crepe Paper.

One of the cleverest designers of crepe paper novelties has outdone herself this year, and while not slighting the inevitable Easter lily she has made a real feature of the swan. A big swan, as immaculately white as any that float upon the little lake at the zoo, is made of white crepe paper, with touches of gilt along the edges. This swan is hollow and the ripply paper plumage on her back may be brushed aside, when it will be found to be only a new way of making a candy box. Another smaller affair is nothing so dainty nor wantable unless you desire a box that will shut. This one is in the shape of a green paper moss nest, Mme. Swan standing on guard at the top.

Limits of the Audibility of Sound.

An interesting matter, from a scientific point of view, in connection with the death of Queen Victoria, is the distance at which the sound of firing was heard when the fleet saluted as the body was conveyed from Cowes to Portsmouth. Letters in the English journals of science show that the sounds of the guns were heard in several places at a distance of eighty-four miles, and that at a distance of sixty miles the concussions were sufficiently intense to shake windows and to set cock pheasants to crowing as they do during a thunderstorm. There appears to have been but little wind to interfere with the propagation of the sound.—New York Post.

"House of the Sun."

On the island of Maui, a sail of 90 miles from Honolulu, there is the largest volcanic crater in the world. It is on the summit of Haleakala, which, interpreted, means the "House of the Sun." Few Americans have ever seen it. It is the crater of an extinct volcano, and not even a shadowy native tradition recalls the time of its activity. Still it is a young mountain, as mountains go, for its sides have not yet been seamed and broken into valleys by the action of wind and stream. Nor is it easy to realize that it is two miles high, for it raises its huge bulk from the level of the Pacific in smooth and gradual slopes.

Sapphire as Thermometer.

Dr. Sorby, the well-known scientist, had a wonderful sapphire, by means of which he discovered the nature of the liquid that is sometimes found in the cavity of a crystal. The sapphire had a tube-shaped cavity about a quarter of an inch in length and an eighteenth of an inch in diameter, partly filled with liquid. Its form suggested that it might be used as a natural thermometer, and the doctor found that, at 50 degrees Fahrenheit, the liquid half-filled the cavity, and completely filled it at 80 degrees. A study of the rate of expansion led him to the conclusion that the liquid must be carbonic acid.

Distributing Poison Samples.

A new law in Pennsylvania makes it a misdemeanor to place free or trial samples of medicines, dyes, ink, coloring or polishing compounds where children can obtain them.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.
Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the president, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the university, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course, intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. St. Edward's Hall, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-seven years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

Cardinal Pedro Gonzalez, who was a pious man and believed in the gospel of peace, once noticed that a priest in his train carried a weapon under his cloak. Whereupon the cardinal reproved him, saying that a cleric should not carry arms. "True," answered the priest, humbly, "but I carry the weapon only to defend myself should I be attacked by a dog." "In that case," said the cardinal, "and if I saw a dog running toward me, I should begin to recite the gospel of John." "That," returned the priest, "would be a wise thing indeed, but may it not be that there are some dogs that do not understand Latin?"

Hon. Joseph H. Choate is as celebrated as a post-prandial orator as he is as a lawyer. At one of the dinners of the New England society of New York, he once proposed the following toast: "Woman, the better half of the Yankee world—at whose tender summons even the stern Pilgrims were ever ready to spring to arms, and without whose aid they never could have achieved the historic title of the Pilgrim Fathers. The Pilgrim Mothers were more devoted martyrs than were the Pilgrim Fathers, because they not only had to bear the same hardships that the Pilgrim Fathers stood, but they had to bear with the Pilgrim Fathers besides."

Do not yell for help as long as you can assist yourself.

STORIETTES.

In the bottom of a strawberry box opened at Hutchinson, Kan., the other day the following note was found written on the smooth wood: "I am Cora Marsh, aged sixteen, of Logan, Mo. Never been kissed."

Some years ago when Bishop Potter of New York was traveling in Minnesota, a man approached him on the railway platform and scanned his features closely. "Excuse me," he said, finally, "but haven't I seen your picture in the papers?" He was compelled to confess that he had. "I thought so," continued the inquisitive one; "may I ask what you were cured of?"

The late Rev. R. S. Storrs was a very hard man to interview, for he resented the inquisitiveness of the press, and was icy to its agents. One evening a reporter attended a reception at his house, and, in the course of the evening, touched his arm and whispered: "Doctor, I'm from the ——; I want the names of guests and all the particulars." "Yes," Dr. Storrs whispered in return; "this way, this way," and, taking the young man's arm, he escorted him to the front door and put him out.

The day following the accident to Sir Thomas Lipton's cup challenger Shamrock II., King Edward the Seventh was talking to certain of his friends, when one of them happened to remark that the only things that escaped intact from the disaster were the boom and the staysail. "Was the boom all right?" quickly asked the king. "So I understand, sir," was the reply. "That makes the accident all the more extraordinary," remarked King Edward, reflectively; "for, if Sir Thomas Lipton's 'boom' has not suffered, how are we to account for the bringing down of his sales."

Julian Corbett may be said to have established himself as an authority on the history of the British navy. A while ago Mr. Corbett wrote to the admiralty to suggest that a new first class battleship then building be christened "Drake." A formal intimation that his letter had been received and should have due attention was followed, after a decent interval, by a dignified reply from My Lords, in which they expressed their regret at not being able to carry out Mr. Corbett's suggestion, and explained that it would be contrary to precedent to name a first class battleship after a bird.

When the Transvaal war was at its height, Paul Kruger sent a commissioner to England to find out if there were any more men left there. The commissioner wired from London to say that there were four million men and women "knocking about the town," that there was no excitement, and that men were begging to be sent to fight the Boers. Kruger wired back, "Go north." The commissioner found himself in Newcastle eventually, and wired to Kruger: "For God's sake, stop that war! England is bringing up men from hell, eight at a time, in cages!" He had seen a coal mine.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper and the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.
An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.

Harry, the 11-months old son of Harry Holk, suffered a distressing death Sunday, over which his parents are deeply mourned. The little child was at the barn with other of the children, one of whom became possessed of a bottle of horse medicine which had fallen from a rafter where it had been placed beyond such possible danger. The unfortunate child was given some of the contents, and as soon as known by the parents a doctor was sent for. The child lingered through the night and died Sunday morning.—Kanawha Record.

While attending services at Germantown church last Sunday eve some miscreant took the pains to untie Ben Kaste's team and start them without a driver. The team came to town on the dead run foaming and panting and almost dead. No harm was done to the buggy or harness. Ben came to town as soon as possible to see what the wreck might be. Some over smart, vindicative and perhaps jealous puppy of the human race perpetrated what he considered a big joke but which would pin him down to a ninty day job according to law.

Harvest has begun.

Wm. Hall is on the sick list this week.

Wm. Marshall is excavating for a cellar on his farm.

James Faila entertained friends from Duncan the 4th.

Miss Norma Post has returned home from her Garner visit.

Charley Quintus is building a new house on his farm in North Ell.

Wm. Temby, of Crystal Lake, is visiting friends here this week.

The Baack boys have fenced their hog pasture with a woven wire fence.

Tom Fatheringham, of Garner is building a large barn for John Stork.

Fred Gates and By Richards and families spent Sunday with Joe Lawhorn's.

Fred. Walker and Peter Josten have had the paint brush applied to their barns.

Frank Gallery and Mr. Glanville purchased new family carriages just before the 4th.

John London has erected a combined corn crib and granary with a drive way between.

This place was well represented at Klemme the 4th and undoubtedly they all had a good time.

Are we going to have a harvest home picnic here this year? If we are it is time some preparations were being made.

During the wind storm of a week or so ago the barn on the old Guth place was blown off the foundation damaging it considerable. John Zook is remodeling it and hopes to get it back into proper position again.

"INCIDENTAL" MUSIC.
William Gillette Gives for It a Very Satisfactory Accounting.

People who watch theatrical performances from below the footlights have often been moved to seek an explanation for the "incidental music" which is an almost invariable accompaniment of the scenes most conveniently described as "moving." Lay theories about the purpose of this music differ widely, but lay opinion practically agrees that it is more or less of a nuisance, and that its abolition would make easier both the enjoyment and the criticism of the work of the actors. The Washington Post gave utterance to some such view the other day, and either because of the severity of the Post's language, or for a reason easy enough to imagine if one is a cynic, and therefore, since cynics are numerous, not necessary to mention. Mr. William Gillette has written to the paper mentioned a letter in which he tells just why he makes use of the antique device. He admits, in beginning, that "incidental music" needs excuse; that it is an offense to refined taste. But he continues: "I find myself in the world, surrounded and to some extent harassed by its conditions. An audience, no matter how deeply interested or absorbed it may become, is unable to maintain absolute quiet. The individuals composing it must breathe; they must occasionally move or cough or gasp, or shuffle their feet, or rustle programmes, or make other involuntary disturbances. In the performance of my own plays I am in the habit of resorting largely to the effects of natural pauses, intervals of silence—of moments where few words are spoken and much mental struggle is supposed to take place. These methods I find especially effective at the most critical junctures. It is precisely at such moments that an intensely absorbed audience will be utterly demoralized by the least individual disturbance in its midst. Now a low, scarcely audible strain of music seems to prevent such a catastrophe. While it by no means drowns other sounds, it tends if in harmony with the situation on the stage to keep the attention from being diverted. I therefore resort to it. To speak in somewhat plain terms, if there is to be a noise during some of my especially critical scenes, I prefer to make it myself and have it somewhat, if not entirely, harmonize with the matter in hand." That, it must be granted, says the New York Times, is a pretty good explanation. It comes from behind the foot lights, at any rate, and therefore is of interest and possibly of value.

ULTIMATUM FELL FLAT.
Bland Ways of a Cook Gets the Better of Mrs. Blueyes.

My neighbor has blue eyes and brown hair, and those appealing child-like ways that cause every specimen of the stronger sex, from her strapping six-foot husband to the scrap of a boy who brings her the morning newspaper, to instinctively become her sworn protector and champion. But Mrs. Blueyes' sense of personal dignity is out of all proportion to her stature, and her vain attempts to properly impress the plump southern "mammy" who was specially imported to Milwaukee, says the Sentinel, from Louisiana to preside in her kitchen cover many months of fruitless effort. Mammy domineers the family as only a devoted negro cook can, and her mistress figuratively gnashes her teeth in rage. Matters came to such a state a day or two ago that Mrs. Blueyes decided it was time for the tyrant to abdicate in favor of a successor who should be more amiable to reason. Inwardly trembling with fear, but outwardly calm, she went to the kitchen and delivered her ultimatum. Mammy heard her to the end, composedly going on with her preparations for dinner.

"You're through?" she asked, as Mrs. Blueyes came to a breathless end. "If yu' is, jes' run away, honey. I can't bother with chillun when I'se makin' venison pate."

And with a large, black hand firmly laid to her shoulder, Mrs. Blueyes was escorted out of the kitchen, and mammy still reigns there triumphant.

New Use for Bagpipes.

A new use for the bagpipes has been found by a Scottish highlander who owns a sheep farm in a mountainous district of California and is in the habit almost daily of playing his pipes all over the ground. The skirling has had the happy effect of scaring eagles out of the locality, in which the birds of prey had formerly done considerable damage by carrying off lambs, and had even attacked grown sheep.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon oe yielding dividends. All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar. ache package containing internal and exteral medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. "Grapho" in The Adance, presents the following "Leaves from the Diary of a famous financier." The genial editor is evidently worried about J. Pierpont Morgan's recent triumphs, and this is the future he foresees:

11th. Reached London at 2. P. M. Went to see Westminister Abbey; disappointed. Too dead for me.

12th, Bought three Atlantic steamship lines today.

13th. Asked the Governor of the bank of England what he would take for his old concern. Said he would see me later on.

14th. Rothschild wanted an introduction, I declined—too small.

15th. Took $50,000,000 of the British loan; gave my check for it.

16th. Called on Lord Admiral of the Navy. He looked scared. Think he was afraid I was going to bag his Majesty's whole fleet.

17th. Went to church and heard a sermon on the Tenth Commandment. Liked it. It is wrong for men to covet.

18th. Have been talking today of taking over the Cunard line, the White Star, the Red Star, and several lines whose names I don't Remember.

19th. Reached out after all the German lines. Did not get them—the Germans are phlegmatic, and move slowly. It will take time.

20th. Went to the house of Commons. Members took off their hats.

21st. Received a delegation of capitalists who wanted me to go in with them to buy up all the cows in England and form a milk trust. Told them that I was afraid the cows would kick.

22nd. Cabled my agent at New York to buy the Pennsylvania, the Illinois Central, the Rock Isiand, and the Santa Fee.

23rd. Met Lord Salisbury as I was coming around the corner. He turned pale. Think he was scared of me.

24th. Didn't buy anything today. It is Sunday.

25th. Met King Edward on Rotton Row this afternoon. He stopped his carriage to speak with me, but I could give him only a moment. Poor fellow, I don't see how he gets along with only $1,500,000 a year!

26th. Cecil Rhodes' London agent talked with me about a gold trust. Rather liked the idea Don't think it would take more than ten billions.

27th. Heard that Texas is swimming in oil. Cabled agent to go down there and buy up the state.

28th. Another delegation of promoters wanted me to go into a potato trust in Ireland. Told them that I was afraid it would result in driving all the Irish over to New York, where they would go to raising politicians. Would rather have them stay over here and raise potatoes.

29th. Received a hundred letters from American Colleges. They all want a million. Haven't sent the money yet. A lot of churches also wrote for money to get a new organ, and some women wanted me to help buy a carpet. People are always wanting something. New York agent cabled about the speculating mania on Wall Street. People shouldn't speculate. The desire to get rich is dangerous.

30th. Paris agent telegraphed that there is opposion to our taking over the French steamship lines. The papers have raised the cry of "liberty, equality and fraternity." Wonder what it means, anyhow. His Majesty invited me to dine at Buckingham; couldn't go, too busy. Sent regrets. Reporter wanted my impression of London. Told him that I wonld have my secretary figure them up and see how much they amounted to.

Sunday—Went to church. Minister read the passage, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." Think the passage will have to be revised in about a year from now.

She was large and fleshy and course and more than all these she was fat. When she entered a Highland car yesterday all the passengers looked at her and fell to reckoning up the profits of a traveling show with her as the leading attraction. In less than five minutes every inmate but one had made himself a retired millionaire and was sitting on the piazza of his country residence, smoking fifty cent cigars by the mile. This one exception sat opposite the leading attraction and chewed tobacco, with a heavenly resignation on his face such as school boys who are having their milk teeth extracted are supposed to wear on an exclusive. Among that carload of awe struck mortals he sat and chewed the cud of narcotic content and spat upon the rug the living embodiment of the great and only undazzled.

The leading attraction gathered her skirts around her and cast a look at him that would have gone through a cow-hide boot and two pair of stocking and withered a cork leg.

Fellow, said she, you chew.

He nodded.

Why do you spit in my presence?

Because my mouth is full.

I will not endure it, I will at once call the conductor.

Pray don't disturb yourself. If madam wishes to get off I shall be pleased to stop the car.

She looked gatling guns and dynamite at him, but said nothing. He spoke again and she did not signal the conductor: she sat still and heard him.

If madam will listen I will be pleased to tell her why I am obliged to indulge in this habit that is so hateful to her. I do it to escape a worse, indeed a much worse fate. Madam, as you are now so once was I.

She started and said: What do you mean?

I was obese.

She looked scornfull.

I was polysarcous.

She looked interested.

I was sinquessent.

She seemed fascinated.

In other words, I was fat.

And mad was no name for how she looked. She tried to catch the conductor's eye, but he was busy staring at some girls in a window on Washington street, and did not see her. She made a frantic effort to get up, but the car was in motion, and she was firmly wedged, so she was obliged to listen.

Yes madam, I was almost as bad off as you are now. Like you I ate chalk and drank vinegar; I took arsenic in large doses but it did me no good, and in a few years I should have been as fleshy as you are if I had not got relief from tobacco. Every time I entered a street car they called for another horse; my picture was stuck up in all the local fairs, and labeled the "Prize Porker;" the soap boy used to yell "grease" and extra half hour under my window every morning, and one time when I was sick the boss of an clemargarine factory called upon my wife and tried to get a mortgage upon my remains. He said he had the promise of yours, and if he could get a claim on mine all the associated creameries might go to—hello! must you go so soon. Well goodbye. Take my advice and go to chewing. It will help you when everything else fails."

The great undazzled put in another quid and looked dreamily on the Common, and four old maids with paper parcels and band boxes came in and occupied the seat left vacant by the leading attraction.

The Chamberlains are not all brothers! The one in England furnishes the patients and the one in Des Moines supplies the "no cure, no pay."

As yet it is difficult to tell as to whether or no Cummins is nominated Aug. 7th. He could be nominated to some other office much easier!

Rudyard Kippling is a 'pretty fair' writer.' Guess he could handle the editorial department of the TIMES alright.

Read It In His Newspaper.

George Schuab, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio is a constant reader of the 'Dayton Volkseitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me. I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, July 13, 1901.

Attorney General Mullan has handed down an opinion to Governor Shaw respecting the right of this state to recover interest on the funds furnished by it in equipping troops for the civil war. He holds that such interest can be recovered by the state, provided its rights have not lapsed, a question of fact which can only be determined upon investigation of the while question. Attorney General Mullan holds also that the state cannot employ an agent to recover this money, but that that work must be done by the council and the law officers of the state. This suits Senator Lothrop, of Sioux City, out of a large commission, as it was he who raised the question and offered to recover the money for the state. About $300,000 is involved.

An opinion rendered by Attorney General Mullan to Secretary of State Martin determines unreservedly that companies incorporated in other states must pay the requisite filing fee demanded of Iowa companies in accordance with the capital stock if they transact business within the state the corn is reported to be attorney general by Deputy Hites of the secretary of state's office was prompted by the refusal of the American Grain Purifier Construction Co. of Pierre, S. D., to conform to the requirements of the statutes relating to the admission of foreign corporations. The company is capitalized at $250,000 and is making arrangements to open a branch factory at Davenport. Mr. Hites demanded a filing fee of $250, which the company refused to pay.

Justice Duncan has rendered a decision in the slot machine case, an action in which the state declared the slot machines operated by Jesse Hammond in his Fifth street cigar store three months ago to be gambling devices within the meaning of the law, sustaining the contention of the state and ordering them destroyed. The court's decision is based on the grounds that sections 4962 and 4963, in which it was claimed by the defense did not cover the slot machine, clearly encompassed that device in its reference to "other gambling devices." The court held that any device whereby there was no chance to lose, as in the operation of het Hammond machines, was gambling, and so condemned them. Counsel for the defense filed notice of appeal and will carry the matter to the supreme court.

The State Association of County Clerks elected the following officers: President, John C. Tate of Des Moines; first vice president, C. C. Pugh of Adel; second vice president, C. M. Soper of Nevada; third vice president, J. C. Leach of Bloomfield; secretary, Tom C. Meader of Eldora; treasurer, J. G. Marner of Iowa City. The president, secretary and treasurer, with J. H. Merckens of Fairfield, C. R. Graves of Osage, R. T. Ellison of Indianola and C. G. Strauchan of Mt. Ayr, constitute the legislative committee. It was decided to ask the state to give the counties 1 per cent of the collateral inheritance tax collected in each county to cover the expense of appraisements, blanks, clerk's services, etc. As the law now is, the counties have to pay all the expenses and the state derives all the revenue from this source. It was also decided to ask the legislature to determine definitely the amount of fees the clerks will be entitled to for services in probate matters. As the law now stands, the board of supervisors in each county, without respect to population, may allow $300 a year. Some boards allow the maximum and some do not allow anything. The association will meet in Marshalltown next year.

Captain R. B. Turner of the quartermaster's department of the United States army, charged with erecting the new cavalry post at Des Moines, says:

"We have now set aside in Washington $200,000 for beginning the construction of the army post here. I expect that we will erect first four barracks and officers' quarters. There is not enough money appropriated as yet to entirely pay for four barracks, but I expect that the money will be coming around by the time we want it. The four barracks will each hold 100 men. I expect to be able to open the bids for at least two barracks by the first of September, which will allow us to break ground by the first of October. This will allow us to get the foundations up by the time the snow flies. We cannot hurry the work along as if the buildings were being erected in the city, on account of the four mile haul for our brick and other materials. It will hustle a man and team to make two trips with a load of brick a day. After the street car extension is completed to the post the cars will be able to haul a good bit of the materials. The full plans for the post as I saw them in Washington contemplate twelve barracks, but their erection will cover some time."

TARS GET PRIZE MONEY.

Proceeds of Sale of British Steamer Adula Ordered Distributed.

Mt. Arey, Ga., July 15.—Judge Spier of the United States circuit court handed down his decree distributing the money arising from the capture of the British steamship Adula during the Spanish war. Judge Spier considerably reduced the allowances for the officers, made by the court to whom the question had been referred, and has ordered that the sum of $40,000 paid into the treasury of the United States be distributed as prize money.

The Adula was owned by the Atlas Steamship company and chartered to a Spaniard, Don Jose Solis. The capture was made by the Marblehead, Commander McCalla, while the Adula was attempting to run the blockade at Guantanamo bay during the Spanish-American war. The amount realized on the stipulation given by the owners for the Adula was $50,000, and this sum, less the costs and expenses of keeping the ship, expense of litigation, insurance, losses from salvage and the like, was distributed, one-half to the United States and one-half to the officers and enlisted men of the navy entitled to the prize money.

Kansas Wheat Fields Destroyed.

Great Bend, Kan., July 9.—Fifteen thousand acres of wheat went up in flames here yesterday afternoon. The fire was started by an unknown man throwing a lighted cigar into a field of wheat stubble. Everything was as dry as tinder, and soon a destructive fire was in progress. The inhabitants all left their work and exerted all the methods they knew for fire fighting, but to no avail, and it was late last evening before the fire was under control. Roughly estimated the loss in wheat will aggregate 300,000 bushels, nearly all of which was in stack.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

CUTS DOWN ASSESSMENT.

State Executive Council Lowers the Real Estate Valuation.

Des Moines, July 11.—The executive council yesterday concluded its work as a board of equalization. The sum and substance of its labors consisted in a reduction of the reported actual value of real estate in the state to the extent of $6,473,654.

The following is the actual value of the property of the state as adjusted by the council yesterday:

Telephone and telegraph property	$ 4,827,936
Express	979,880
Railroads	188,285,037
Real estate and personal property	2,050,364,451
Total	$2,224,457,299
Less exemptions	13,510,279
Total less exemptions	$2,230,947,020
Reduction in real estate.	6,473,654
Actual net value	$2,224,473,366
Taxable value	556,118,342
Taxable value, 1900	539,673,264
Taxable value, 1899	526,653,905

The council made no change in the reported valuations on personal property. It confined its work exclusively to lowering the realty assessment.

MANY "SHOVING THE QUEER."

Jefferson Is Deluged With Counterfeit Two Dollar Bills.

Jefferson, July 13.—A wholesale case of "shoving the queer" is reported from Carroll. It appears that a deluge of crisp new $2 bills suddenly appeared in town, many merchants taking them in the course of business.

Examination developed that the bills were bogus, though apparently issued by a state bank in New Jersey, long out of business, and bearing no signature. Three parties passing bills of this sort were apprehended, giving the names of Patrick Flahine, John Reiley and Con Sullivan. The alleged criminals were brought before Justice Lynch, who thought it proper to hold the parties until the grand jury could go more fully into the matter. It is the general impression that a gang of "green goods" men has been salting railroad hands with this stuff at a discount. The government agents have been notified and detectives will be placed on the case.

WAS IN TERRIBLE AGONY.

Waterloo Man Slides From Load of Hay Onto a Pitchfork.

Waterloo, July 15.—Chas. Zimmerman, who is employed at making hay on Ad Rebers' farm southwest of this city, met with a serious accident. He was sliding down from a load of hay against which a fork, been set up, tines downward. Mr. Zimmerman came squarely down upon the upright handle of the fork, the end of the handle penetrating his body a little in front of the rectum and cutting a terrible gash upward toward the abdomen. He remained suspended on the end of the fork handle until his fellow workmen rescued him from his position. The wound was dressed by a surgeon and the young man is now resting quite easily.

CARRIES POWDER FROM A FIRE.

Daring Deed of a Fireman at Clear Lake Loss Is About $40,000.

Clear Lake, July 12.—Fire which was discovered in the shoe store of W. H. Bromley at 1:30 a. m. totally destroyed four business buildings and much of their contents, the losses in all reaching nearly $40,000. The fire raged for five hours, being fanned by a strong east wind. When the fire was at its highest, Fire Marshall Joseph Hayden and Captain Perley Goodwin took from the basement of one of the burning buildings 150 pounds of gunpowder. A moment after they had left the burning building with the powder a five-pound sack which they had overlooked exploded.

STATE LEVY IS HIGHER.

It Is Fixed at 2.9 Mills by the Members of the Executive Council.

Des Moines, July 15.—The executive council fixed the state levy for the tax of 1901 at two and seven-tenths mills, one-tenth of a mill higher than last year. The levy of one-tenth of a mill for support of the State university and one-tenth of a mill for the support of the College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts was settled the same as last year, making the total state levy two and nine-tenths mills. The additional one-tenth mill is necessary this year because the last legislature increased the amount of appropriations from $1,400,000 to $1,500,000.

BOY IS BURNED TO DEATH.

Perished in His Home While Fighting the Flames.

Cedar Rapids, July 12.—Willie Gardner, 15 years of age, was fatally burned in a fire which destroyed the house of his parents and most of the contents. He was awakened by the blaze from a burning lamp about 3 o'clock and continued fighting the flames until after the arrival of the fire department. Then it was discovered that there was hardly an unburned piece of skin anywhere on his body. He died in a few hours.

Leaped in Front of a Train.

Menlo, July 13.—Mrs. Wood committed suicide by throwing herself in front of a Rock Island train. Mr. Jones, husband of the deceased, is a laborer, and moved here about a year ago from Casey. There have been no family troubles during the time of their residence here and the family has never been in such straitened circumstances as to drive Mrs. Jones to her desperate act. It is generally thought that the deceased was demented at the time she committed suicide, as on several previous occasions she has displayed signs of mental derangement. As soon as Mrs. Jones was seen by the engineer on the tracks, much effort was made to stop the train by applying the brakes, but without avail. The body was badly mangled and cut to pieces, presenting a pitiful sight. The deceased leaves a 1-year-old baby.

Two in a Fatal Runaway.

Pulaski, July 15.—Peter Sommer and wife, living three and one-half miles north of town, drove to town to do some trading. When returning home, about half a mile north of town, their team became frightened and ran away, throwing them both out and killing Mrs. Sommer almost instantly. Mr. Sommer is seriously injured. At this writing it is not known whether his injuries are fatal or not.

Smallpox Quarantine Raised.

Cedar Rapids, July 12.—The board of health has raised the smallpox quarantine. Stringent regulations have been in force since June 15, but are no longer necessary.

Two Die in a Vault.

Ottumwa, July 13.—Fred Smith, a scavenger, was overcome with sewer gas at midnight and fell into a vault while attempting to rescue his helper, Charles Garrett. The latter was drowned. Smith was rescued, but died later.

$50,000 Fire at Ledyard.

Leyard, July 10.—Two-thirds of this town was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The property loss will be about $50,000. No lives were lost. The fire is supposed to have been started by boys playing with matches.

BEGIN ARMY POST AT ONCE.

The Constructing Officer Arrives at Des Moines and Begins Work.

Des Moines, July 11.—Work on the army post will be begun immediately and will continue as rapidly as possible until completion, but no one need anticipate the actual location of a squadron of cavalry at the post short of 1903. When completed, Des Moines will have the model cavalry post of the army.

This much, in brief, was learned yesterday upon the arrival of Captain R. B. Turner, of the regular army, who has been sent by the government to superintend the construction of the post. He will immediately open offices in the Observatory building and in all likelihood will be stationed in this city for at least five years, superintending the work at the post. In an interview, Captain Turner said:

"The Des Moines post will doubtless be the model cavalry post of the United States. The other cavalry posts are among the oldest posts in the army, while the local post will have the advantage of all the latest ideas and equipment.

"Plans for buildings costing approximately two million dollars have been completed and were inspected by me at Washington last week. I have secured the services of one of the best engineers in the country to assist me and shall immediately make a survey of the grounds and locate the buildings. I shall then telegraph the war department and a special board of officers will be sent out to inspect and approve my action. The specifications will then be submitted to contractors and bids advertised for. Thirty days later the contract will be let. This whole program should not occupy to exceed two months and may be completed in a little more than six weeks. Work will then be rushed as rapidly as possible until completion. But this will necessarily require a long time owing to the greatness of the task."

INCENDIARY FIRE AT EDDYVILLE.

Second Disastrous Fire in Three Weeks at That Place.

Ottumwa, July 11.—The second incendiary fire in three weeks occurred at Eddyville yesterday and burned four business houses, entailing a loss of $10,000. The insurance is about half the loss. A second attempt to start another fire was discovered and thwarted. The culprit is known, but not yet arrested. The terrific conflagration three weeks ago wiped out eight business houses.

Robbed and Assaulted by Tramps.

Council Bluffs, July 15.—H. J. Van Hee, who was beating his way to California, was brought from Hillsdale and taken to St. Bernard's hospital. He was suffering from a shot through the groin and other injuries, which may prove fatal. The shooting was done by one of two men who were beating their way in the same car and who attempted to rob him of his money and did succeed in securing his watch and chain. Van Hee is a Frenchman by birth and says he has no relatives in this country.

Parvin's Successor Chosen.

Cedar Rapids, July 11.—N. B. Parvin, a son of the late T. S. Parvin, has been chosen as grand secretary of the Masons of Iowa. At a meeting held prior to the death of Parvin this step was decided upon, it being felt that Father Parvin would live but a short time.

Thrown Thirty Feet to Death.

Marshalltown, July 10.—Henry Knutson, a section hand, was killed here by train No. 11. Knutson had started to walk home, when he was overtaken by the train a short distance out. He was thrown a distance of thirty feet.

A NEW FLYING MACHINE.

Frenchman Has a Balloon Which He Can Steer at Will.

Paris, July 15.—M. Santos-Dumont's cigar-shaped balloon, driven by a motor, has just had a trial from St. Cloud, across Paris, around the Eiffel tower and back to St. Cloud. The papers say the trip was quite successful and that the balloon ascended and descended apparently at the will of the aeronaut.

M. Santos-Dumont says he first sailed five times around the Longchamps race course, then around the Bois de Boulogne and then around the Eiffel tower. He adds that one of the ropes of the rudder broke and he had a narrow escape from colliding with the tower, so he descended to the garden of the Trocadero to have the damage repaired and afterwards again around the tower and returned to St. Cloud. Today he will make an official attempt to win the prize of 100,000 francs offered by Henry Deutsch for a manageable balloon, in the presence of a committee of the Aero club, which includes Prince Roland Bonaparte, M. Deutsch and others.

M. Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, made the official trial of his balloon in the attempt to win the prize of one hundred thousand francs offered by Henry Deutsch for a manageable balloon, before a committee of the Aero club today. Starting from the Pare de Meudon, he reached the Eiffel tower in a quarter of an hour, and after sailing around the tower, started to return to the Pare de Meudon, but lack of motive power necessitated a descent at Boulogne-Sur-Seine. The trials will be resumed later.

MISSION PUPILS KILLED.

Riots in Quelpart, on an Island of the Kingdom of Korea.

Berlin, July 12.—The Cologne Gazette publishes a dispatch from Zeoul, Korea, dated July 6, saying that bloody conflicts, extending over a period of ten days, have occurred on the island of Quelpart between Roman Catholic missionaries and their pupils and the populace of the island. Fifteen of the natives and about 300 of the missionaries are reported to have been killed during the encounters.

The governor of Quelpart, according to the dispatch, says the trouble was the fault of the pupils and arose from their support of the tax collectors in levying illegal taxes upon the natives.

Upon hearing that two French missionaries had been killed in the island, a French warship proceeded to Quelpart and upon finding the missionaries in question alive the warship returned.

The Korean government has commissioned Haun Kian and an American court official to investigate the matter and is sending a company of Korean infantry with them to Quelpart.

Quelpart is in the Yellow sea, sixty miles south of Korea, to which country it is subordinate. It is a penal settlement.

OHIO DEMOCRATS.

Kansas City Platform Falls of Endorsement at Columbus.

Columbus, Ohio, July 11.—The following ticket was nominated by the democratic state convention: Governor, Jas. Kilbourne; lieutenant governor, Anthony Howells; judge of supreme court, Jos. Hidy; clerk of supreme court, Harry R. Young; attorney general, M. B. McCarthy; treasurer of state, R. P. Alshire; member board of public works, Jas. B. Holman. All the more conservative elements had combined in the preliminaries against the friends of Mayor Tom L. Johnson, but the combination was not maintained after the committees were selected, and during the all-night session of the committee on resolutions it was claimed that the McLean and Kilbourne men were no longer co-operating against the propositions of the Johnson men on the platform and organization. The contest was in the committee on resolutions and on both national and state issues.

The Johnson men won on their favorite views on state matters, and the others on national issues. There was no reaffirmation of the Kansas City platform. There is no mention of previous platforms or of Bryan.

DEMANDS NATIONAL UNIVERSITY.

National Editorial Association Takes a Stand for One.

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—Despite strong opposition on the part of those opposed to a national university, the National Educational association yesterday accepted a resolution reaffirming its former declaration in favor of such a university. The resolution, which was offered by President Jesse of the University of Missouri, read: "Resolved, that this association hereby reaffirms its former declaration in favor of the establishment by the national government of a national university, devoted not to collegiate, but to a true university education."

Dr. Butler of New York moved that it be laid on the table, but was voted down overwhelmingly, and the original resolution adopted. The report of the committee on nominations, which named Wm. N. Beardshear of Iowa college for president and C. M. Keyes of Hartford, Conn., for treasurer, was adopted, and Dr. Beardshear was led to the platform, where he made a brief talk. "All for one and one for all," he said, would be his sentiment of the association.

KANSAS CORN BADLY SCORCHED.

Reports Received of Great Damage by Hot Winds.

Topeka, July 12.—The corn crop in this state has been damaged almost fifty per cent according to the reports of some of the correspondents, but the impression exists here that the corn crop will be fully twenty-five per cent shorter than anticipated on account of the hot winds. The wind has been blowing from the south for three days and in some parts of the state boundaries. The appeal to the scorched so that it is hopelessly gone. Some fields are dead.

Reports received here indicate that in no county in the state are the crops damaged less than 50 per cent. Bourbon, Allen, Franklin and Miami counties report almost a total loss of the corn crop. Alfalfa is about the only product standing the dry period well. It is generally conceded that this is the worst drouth since 1860 in Kansas.

Governor Allen Quits.

San Juan, July 15.—Gov. Allen and wife, with their household effects sailed for New York on the Mayflower. Gov. Allen admitted he had no intention of returning to Porto Rico. It is semiofficially announced that he will enter the diplomatic service.

Parvin's Successor Chosen.

Cedar Rapids, July 11.—N. B. Parvin, a son of the late T. S. Parvin, has been chosen as grand secretary of the Masons of Iowa. At a meeting held prior to the death of Parvin this step was decided upon, it being felt that Father Parvin would live but a short time.

The Boston boat sailed an exciting race with the two Herreshoffs and led the Constitution at the outer mark, only to be beaten by her a little over two minutes on the run to the finish before the wind.

Thrown Thirty Feet to Death.

Marshalltown, July 10.—Henry Knutson, a section hand, was killed here by train No. 11. Knutson had started to walk home, when he was overtaken by the train a short distance out. He was thrown a distance of thirty feet.

Kittridge Made Senator.

Pierre, S. D., July 12.—Governor Herried has appointed A. B. Kittridge of Sioux Falls as senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Kyle.

BRITISH CONCEAL FACTS.

Said to Be Daily Making Overtures to Boers for Peace.

New York, July 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: Referring to the government's admission that they had information respecting the shooting of British wounded at Vladfontein so long back as June 11, the Daily Mail, whose correspondent was the first to make the news public, states that this is only a small portion of the policy of concealment now being carried on. It professes to have abundant evidence that almost the whole theater of war is in a worse condition than the public is allowed to know. The state of affairs in Cape Colony, in particular, is said to be of a most serious nature, due almost entirely to the belief among the Dutch that the efforts of the British to propitiate them prove that they are tired of war. While the government is constantly saying in public that the war will be fought to a finish, they are, says the Daily Mail, continually making offers of peace to the Boers.

TURN AGAINST KITCHENER

British Papers Are Now Severely Criticising Him.

London, July 15.—The Vlakfontein incident has come near to spelling Waterloo for the government.

An apparently unimportant incident, the censorship of one of the newspaper dispatches, has had the effect of crystalizing all the widely differing sorts of public disatisfaction concerning the conduct of the war in South Africa. This dissatisfaction concerning the conduct of the war has long been pent up, and now finds free vent, not strangely enough, through the columns of the opposition papers, but in the government journals.

For months past the public belief in and admiration for Lord Kitchener have been waning, and now he is openly and severely criticised.

A rumor, which cannot be substantiated, is current that he will shortly be succeeded in the command of the British forces in South Africa by General Sir Bindon Blood, who has been operating in eastern Transvaal. Should the change occur, it would be probably be due to the differences of opinion existing between Lord Milner of Cape Town and Lord Kitchener, and it would be announced in the form of promotion, accompanied by the statement that the operations in South Africa no longer justified the presence there of an officer of the seniority of Lord Kitchener.

There is little doubt but that Lords Milner and Kitchener have had several disagreements, and the high commissioner does not want to return to South Africa so long as the hard, high handed General Kitchener remains in control there.

Amid the storm of disapproval, resulting from the Vlakfontein affair, and which the government's supporters are pouring out upon the war office on account of the suppression of news and the flagrant vagaries of the censorship, the liberal party, through its hopeless differences of opinion, is obliged to sit silently and see the best opportunity probably ever offered to pass out of their hands.

The extraordinary spectacle has been presented of an advanced radical newspaper, the Daily Mail, patting the war office and Lord Kitchener on the back for suppressing the story of alleged Boer outrages to british wounded, while the Times, and other government, though less radical, organs, like them, say the feeling aroused in the general public, who have to this time blindly and enthusiastically supported the government's war policy, can scarcely be estimated.

Officials of the war department are more worried now than at any previous time during the war, and they are working strenuously to explain the mistake. The incident has awakened in the public mind an eagerness, most fortunate for the government, to know the details of the affair, and ever-increasing dissatisfaction with the progress of British arms in South Africa.

Prominent members of the conservative party believe that if their party had to go to the country now it would be defeated, provided a semblance of opposition could be mustered.

In this connection there is some talk of the possibility of a new liberal organization, consisting of a combination of the old liberal-unionists and the liberal imperialists, many of whom would like to see a cabinet including Lord Roseberry, the Duke of Devonshire (president of the council); Joseph Chamberlain (colonial secretary), and H. H. Asquith (leader of the imperialists), which some men believe may eventually be fensible.

TERRIBLE WRECK ON THE ALTON

Eight Killed Outright and Many Passengers Injured.

Kansas City, July 11.—One of the worst wrecks in several years on the Chicago & Alton railroad occurred yesterday morning at 6 o'clock near Norton, Mo., one hundred miles east of Kansas City, when passenger train No. 7, westbound from Chicago, collided head on with the second section of freight No. 88 going east. Eight people were killed outright, and about twenty-five more or less injured. In a fire that started from the demolished engines the dining car and one chair car were partially burned.

Kansas City, July 12.—A revised list of the dead in the Alton wreck makes the number nineteen, with a probability that two more will have to be added to the list.

OVER ONE THOUSAND LEPERS.

Gathering Material on Which to Base Recommendation for Segregation.

Washington, July 13.—The surgeon general of the marine hospital service is not ready to publish the results thus far obtained under his direction in the attempt to enumerate the known cases of leprosy in the United States, for the returns are far from complete. But sufficient material has already been secured by the experts who have been investigating for the last two years to indicate that there are at least 1,000 lepers in this country, most of them immigrants from abroad, and to warrant strong recommendations to congress for their segregation.

Oil Well in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, O. T., July 13.—The people of Granite, O. T., are wild with excitement over the discovery of oil near that town. The oil was found at a depth of 107 feet, and spouted to the surface in great quantities. A company that sank the well will go deeper in hopes of developing a gusher.

Columbia Again Wins.

Batesman's Point, R. I., July 13.—The Columbia won yesterday's race, the fourth of the series, beating the Constitution by a minute and a half at the finish, but by something more in corrected time. The feature of the day was the fine work of the Independence, which after losing her topmast at the very start, sailed a magnificent stern chase with her upper sails gone and then was beaten only ten minutes at the finish.

Texas, which enlisted only 1,965 soldiers in the union army, is now the place of residence of 8,100 pensioners.

Hollow Ash... Hall

BY MARGARET BLOUNT.

CHAPTER XX.

The stranger ceased to speak, and Mr. Cowley stared at him with much bewilderment.

"How did you know all this?" he asked at last.

"Because I am Stanley Vernon, the only brother of that unhappy man," he said, quietly.

Rose uttered a little cry of astonishment.

"Yes," he added, "this shameful family history made me almost loathe my name. I have borne that of Vere for many years. Under that name I met and loved your daughter, sir—under my own, I shall soon ask you for her hand! But for the present let it be my task to clear up this mystery.

"I came home from Italy as soon as I heard this house was let. It was a mistake upon the part of the agent; but I should be the last on earth to regret it. But I must take precaution against a similar event. This is no fit habitation for any one."

"Then it is really haunted?" asked Mr. Cowley.

"I fear it is. Rose, will you go to your mother, and, gentlemen, will you follow me."

They obeyed him without a word. He went straight to the butler's pantry and took up a spake and pickaxe, already placed there by Mr. Cowley.

My brother's wife died delirious, and no one ever knew where she had buried the child, which I was quite certain she had destroyed. I had my suspicions at the time, but I longed to hush the whole thing up as speedily as possible. Now, however, all must be made clear."

With a few vigorous strokes, he took up the floor of the room. A tiny skeleton, half-bedded in the moist ground, met their eyes, and Mr. Cowley turned aside to hide his tears.

"Poor thing!" he said sadly, "Charles, don't tell your aunt, or wife, or cousins, but get them away—take them to the town this very afternoon. Mr. Vernon and I will follow as soon as this poor little creature has been properly buried. There, go, my dear boy, and, above all, not a word to the girls of what we have found today."

* * * * * *

So Mrs. Cowley had her way, after all, and spent a happy Christmas Day at Mecklenburgh Square, surrounded by all the members of her family, and waited upon at table by no less a person than Mrs. Macarthy, to whom she clung as a kind of fellow sufferer from the whims of the head of the house.

Christmas and New Year's Day having passed gaily away, there only remained the wedding of Rose, and for that I need not hint that the greatest preparations were made.

The happy day came slowly on. The tidings of the romantic betrothal had awakened much curiosity among those to whom the pair were known, and the church was crowded when the carriage drove to the door.

Rose faltered slightly as she stood on the threshold of the church and gazed upon the concourse of people; but a glance from the dear companion at her side reassured her, and calm and happy she moved onward and took her place before the altar.

Not to the haunted house, however, but to a pleasant villa upon the seacoast, Mr. Vernon took his fair young bride.

And as they sat hand in hand in their new home—the doubts and follies of the past all forgotten and forgiven—the moon rose slowly above the water, and a bright path stretching out over the waves of life's sea, and waiting but for the footsteps, seemed lying there before them.

He put the fancy into words, and whispered it to Rose.

She looked up in his face with a frank, truth-telling gaze. Those were the very soft, clear eyes, clear and quiet as a mountain lake, yet with a slight shadow in their depth, that seemed to tell of stormier elements below, of which he had dreamed for years, and which he had only seen twice in his life—once in a picture of the Virgin by Murillo—once here!

Here was the only heart his own had sought—the only being for whom he had ever really suffered the pangs and pleasures of that mad fever which we call by the name of love. No other could claim her from him, no other could watch that bright young face in all its bewitching changes. No other could rest that pretty head upon his bosom, and play with those silky curls. No other kiss the broad, high forehead, the beautiful eyes, or the full, warm, loving lips! But still he murmured in her ear, as he held her closely to his heart that first evening in their common home, "Are you happy, Rose? Are you sure you are happy?"

There was no need to ask that question. A perfect stranger coming into that pretty cottage by the deep blue sea might well have answered it for him.

It was a pleasant spot: none the less so, that everywhere were traces of the presence of its pretty mistress. A spaking portrait hung over the piano, a smile lingering archly on its parted lips; her favorite books were on the table; her little dog played about the grounds; her horse neighed in the stable, and a fairy-like boat, bearing her name upon the stern, rocked at anchor upon the pebbly beach below."

Running down the graveled walk, with the little dog barking and leaping at her side, feeding her horse with snowy bread; presiding with all the grace of a woman, yet with the sweet, shy bashfulness of a child, at her table, or singing and playing, after the evening meal, sweet, low ballads and dear old songs such as she loved best, filling every spot with beauty and grace, and forming the delight of her husband's eyes, as well as the pride of his heart—is she not happy?

I assure you, dear reader, their home is one of the sweetest spots on earth. And full of content with the bliss of the peaceful present, and the promise of a cloudless future, they have quite forgotten the tragic and painful past, and have no wish to go back to their early years, or to visit that scene of a heart rejected and a slighted love avenged.

For Hollow Ash Hall is a ruin! Given up to the bats and the owls, and carefully avoided by everything human, it has fallen gradually into total decay; but the ground has been sold and an enterprising cockney talks of building a soap factory there—so it is within the bounds of possibility that the ghost may yet be exorcised by alkalies and noxious gases.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowley still reside in Mechlenburgh Square, with their nephew and niece; and Mrs. Macarthy now reigns supreme over the whole household. But Catharine is no longer with them; she is the wife of a dashing Guardsman, and goes to Court, and is so fine, generally, that so humble a pen as mine shrinks nervously from attempting to record her daily life.

George Vernon died penniless and forsaken in Australia soon after the mystery of Hollow Ash Hall was made clear.

THE END.

Susie: A Character Sketch

By Philip Verrill Mighels

CHAPTER I.

Down through the grey of the sagebrush, on a hill that was jeweled with patches of the melting snow of winter all but gone, shambling alone as lazily as the blear-eyed dog at his heels, a Washoe Indian of Western Nevada arrived at the edge of a hurrying brook. Removing a hat, all battered and fuzzy, that once had been of silk and proudly high, he gruntingly descended to lie on his stomach at the selvedge green of the water's brink and thrust in his lips for a short, eager drink. The dog lapped above him. Both resumed the march again, for the Indian school was near at hand and the way all a carpet of stubble.

To the kitchen door the Washoe slouched, and awed the young mahalas, who, with red in their faces from the glowing range, were up to their elbows in the arts of civilized cooking.

"Injun Jim, he's wants my Injun girl!" he announced.

"Lordee!" cried the teacher, jumping nervously, "you frightful object! You startled me dreadful. Now, what in the name of goodness do you want?"

The Indian maidens stood in attitudes of stoic amazement—one excepted. She, the brightest and the tallest, merely gazed at the visitor in dumb appeal, her hands going slowly, reluctantly back to the strings of the apron that hung about her waist.

"Injun Jim, he's wants my Injun girl!" the Washoe repeated.

"Want what?" screamed the teacher. "Want Susie? Nonsense, you dirty old thing! You're supposed to be dead; we have all believed you dead and buried for two long years. You go back to the sage brush. Here, I give you plenty biscuit-lahpoo. Your Susie go to school—she very smart girl."

"No biscuit-lah-poo. Heap ketchum girl, you sabbee? What's Injun goin' do at white man's school? He's don't learn nuthin' goot for us. He's heap Injun all same. Injuns can't vote; Injuns can't make no laws. Heap no goot, you sabbee?"

The woman was speechless. She started abruptly to run to the agent, but suddenly halted, remembering sharply that against the wishes of an Indian parent the government was powerless to hold a pupil.

A silence fell on the Indian maidens and the baffled teacher. A few quick words in the Washoe tongue delivered by the father to his child and Susie laid her apron on the table. Then silently she walked to her teacher, kissed her lightly on the hair and turned to follow where the man already shambled slowly toward the brush. Her head bowed submissively forward, her hands hanging listless at her side, she trod in his trail, and the dog shuffled patiently behind.

The sun was casting long, slender filaments of shadows. Into its ruddy glory passed the silent procession, out through the paths of the grey, lonely sage brush, over the flat and the ridges to the foothills far across the valley. Late in the darkness shone at length the dim red eye of the dark and smoky wigwam; and there at last, on the chilling earth, sat Susie in the night, and watching the greying of the glow to the death, her chin on her breast, her fingers idly toying with a rounded bit of pebble.

There in the morning Wanda, the mother, whined with her wrinkled mouth and bade the silent Susie stand and go to Chloride Hill, to beg at the rear of the cabins. Together they went, while her father wrapped his blanket about him and strode away, with his dog, in search of others in the mining camp, whose worldly possessions he hoped to win at the subtleties of "Pass the stick."

Winding through the stunted brush the women came to the outlying houses. A door at the back of one of these was standing awide. A man within was clattering dishes, cups of tin and iron knives and forks, to a clumsy pyramid on the table.

"Here," said he, when he found the mahala gazing in, "squaw, heap wash 'um dishes, sabee? Two-bits, plenty grub I give; mahala wash table, dishes, floor—hey?"

At the mention of 25 cents the woman was oddly alive. With many a grunt and with plenty of hybrid whistle-and-mutter, she impressed the girl to the service. The man made ready for departing to the mine that was on the hill.

"Come every day," he presently added, after glancing keenly at Susie, as he piled some food on a stool near by and brought up the money from a pocket. "I pay every week for wash 'um floor and dishes."

The girl, when he went, proceeded deftly to cleaning the table and placing utensils and dishes in order—the order they taught at the school. It gave her a pleasure, but of this and of other emotions there was never a sign.

Day after day she returned, not alone. Her mother went begging at other of the cabins. With hands caressful—and rounded hands of dimpled bronze they were—she touched these kitchen possessions fondly and with grateful dreams of the school across the valley.

"See here," said the man one morning, as he watched her at the labor, "you needn't scrub the floor, I guess. I hate to see a woman doing that."

"I thank you," she quietly replied, "but I like to do it. I like to see it clean."

He looked at her astonished. "Where in the world did you learn your English?" he rudely inquired.

She blushed beneath the softened bronze of her rounded cheeks, and the lashes drew her eyelids timidly down to curtain the wide-open orbs of dark and lustrous onyx.

"At the Institute," she faintly answered.

"Oh! Well, the dishes I like to have you fix, of course, but not the floor, please."

She reddened again, and shot him a glance that resembled the questioning gaze of a doe, not trained to fear, yet always shy.

"If you—care for—books—or anything here—you're welcome," he stammered, and walked away. He beat himself a blow on the breast, yet he knew not why, and shook himself in the breeze that blew.

The mine on the hill was a hundred rods from the trail to Greasewood Canon, but the forking path was well defined where his boots had scarred the near-lying rocks, and ground the sand persistently.

SURPERFLOUS ACTIVITY.

A Most Common Phrase Is "I Am So Busy."

The fact that the world—the world of women, at least—is too busy is now put forward so often that its utterance amounts to a truism, says Harper's Bazar. The most common phrase in our language seems to be that which proclaims the want of leisure. "I am so busy;" "If I can ever get time;" "Life is such a pressure these days;" "The complex duties of the moment;" "The busy modern public"—these are, all of them, most familiar sentences to us and are on our lips time and again in explanation of business, social and even moral shortcomings. It is not putting it too strongly to say that in the present rush of living we are losing some of our best characteristics and painfully dwarfing our lives. We are too busy to be neighborly, hospitable, to be sympathetic—a good many, indeed, of the finer tra

WHY LINEN IS CALLED LAWN.

A Recent Invention Which Will Make It Much More Popular for All Kinds of Clothing.

Very few women, probably not more than ten in 100, and a still less proportionate number of men, could answer off-hand the question why fine linen has for several generations been called "lawn." The child might answer, "Because it is made on a lawn," which is not only the simplest, but absolutely the correct answer to the question.

During the middle ages Holland was the seat of the bleaching industry, the season lasting from March to September, and the rough linen being sent from England, Scotland and other countries to be whitened. For the word bleach is from the German "bleichen," which means "to whiten;" the word in French being "blenchir," meaning the same thing. In those early days bleaching was a very slow process, consisting of giving the dark brown and rough linen, filled with impurities, alternate baths in alkaline and acid liquids, with long exposures between them to the sun and air. Some pieces were always selected for special attention, including the laying of them on well kept grass plots, or "lawns," from which custom comes the name. In 1749 the canny Scotch concluded that they could do their own bleaching considerably cheaper than the long and very expensive Dutch way. They introduced the use of sulphuric acid in place of buttermilk, and a few years later commenced to use chlorine. But the greatest step forward in that day was made by Charles Tennant of Glasgow, Scotland, when he introduced chloride of lime, which has been used ever since. But still the process, compared with the advance in other lines, is slow, requiring two weeks to properly bleach a piece of linen, and in bleaching it will lose one-third of its weight, while cotton loses but one-twentieth of its weight in bleaching.

The greatest advance of all, however, has been made very recently, in fact since the dawn of the twentieth century. This is in the discovery of a starch which, after the linen is properly bleached, will give it any degree of stiffness which may be desired without making it brittle. It has since being put on the market been called the "Defiance" starch. Why it was given such a name is not known, unless it was on account of its rendering "defiance" to old methods. The process of manufacturing this starch has not been patented, but is being kept secret by the inventors and manufacturers. One of the greatest objections to linen, whether used as shirts, collars, cuffs, or underwear, has been that in order to give it the required stiffness and finish, it has been necessary to also make it brittle. And in addition to being unpleasant, this fact has made the wearing of linen much more expensive than it otherwise would be on account of its breaking, particularly at buttonholes or wherever it was creased. With this newly invented starch the objectionable brittleness and the breaking is done away with, thereby making the linen last longer as well as being more pleasant to wear. Owing probably to the peculiar method of manufacturing it the starch does not require any cooking, but can be mixed to any degree of thickness desired in cold water and still be perfectly smooth and free from all lumps. It is strange, considering the many experts who have worked on the problem for years, that such a starch was not discovered long ago, but like many other things which are perfectly plain and simple after once being known, it remained for these latter years to bring forth something for which women especially, and men whenever they have found their shirts or collars full of rough edges and cracks, have been wishing for several generations

The telephone is in the Sandwich Islands; and as "Are you there?" in the native dialect is "Kalakaihoikauhaihaukoi?" you can imagine what kind of a time they have when they are speaking in a hurry.

Burglars in New Rochelle, N. Y., have adopted the scheme of ringing up residence telephones to learn if anyone is at home before proceeding to loot the house. Four dwellings were robbed in one night by that means last week.

Prof. W. M. Wheeler describes a species of ants which raise mushrooms for food. They first cut leaves into small pieces and carry them into their underground chambers. Then they reduce the leaves to a pulp, which they deposit in a heap. In this heap the mycelium of a species of fungus finds lodging, and the subterranean conditions favoring such a result, minute dwellings are produced on the vegetable mass. These are the mushrooms which constitute almost the sole food of the colony of ants that cultivate them.

The Kansas City Journal tells this story: "Frank Anderson was for years a well known commercial traveler who made Galena. He was passionately fond of honey, and the proprietor of the Galena hotel, at which he always stopped, always had some on hand for him. On one trip Anderson took his wife along, and as he approached Galena he mentioned to her that he was getting to a place where he could have honey. When the pair were sitting at the supper table that night no honey appeared, and Anderson said sharply to the head waiter: "Where is my honey?" The waiter smiled and said: 'You mean the little black-haired one? Oh she don't work here now.'"

Wonderful Case in Indiana.

Buck Creek, Ind., July 15th—Mrs. Elizabeth Rorick of this place had Rheumatism. She says: "All the doctors told me they could do nothing for me." She was very, very bad, and the pain was so great she could not sleep at night.

She used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and she is well and entirely free from pain or any symptom of the Rheumatism.

"Are you still using Dodd's Kidney Pills?" was asked.

"No, I stopped the use of the Pills some time ago, and have not had the slightest return of my old trouble. I am sure I am completely and permanently cured."

Many in Tippecanoe County who have heard of Mrs. Rorick's case and her cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, are using the Pills, and all report wonderful results.

It doesn't do a man any good to know the ropes if he doesn't have a pull.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

Document Opening to Settlement the Wichita and the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Reservations.

Following is the President's proclamation opening the Wichita and the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache reservations to settlement;

By the President of the United States of America:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, By an agreement between the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians on the one part, and certain commissioners of the United States on the other part, ratified by act of Congress approved March 2, 1895 (28 Stat., 876, 894), the said Indians ceded, conveyed, transferred and relinquished, forever and absolutely, without any reservation whatever unto the United States of America, all their claim, title and interest of every kind and character in and to the lands embraced in the following described tract of country now in the territory of Oklahoma, to wit:

Commencing at a point in the middle of the main channel of the Washita river, where the 98th meridian of west longitude crosses the same, thence up the middle of the main channel of said river to the line of 98 degrees and 40 minutes west longitude, thence on said line of 98 degrees and 40 minutes due north to the middle of the channel of the main Canadian river, thence down the middle of said main Canadian river to where it crosses the 98th meridian, thence due south to the place of beginning.

And whereas all of the conditions required by law to be performed prior to the opening of said tracts of land to settlement and entry have been, as I hereby declare, duly performed.

AUGUST 6 THE DAY.

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power vested in me by law, do hereby declare and make known that all of the lands so as aforesaid ceded by the Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians, and the Comanche, Kiowa and Apache tribes of Indians, respectively, saving and excepting sections sixteen, thirty-six, thirteen and thirty-three in each township, and all lands located or selected by the territory of Oklahoma as indemnity school or educational lands, and saving and excepting all lands allotted in severalty to individual Indians, and saving and excepting all lands allotted and confirmed to religious societies and other organizations, and saving and excepting the lands selected and set aside as grazing lands for the use in common for said Comanche, Kiowa and Apache tribes of Indians, and saving and excepting the lands set aside and reserved at each of said county seats for disposition as town sites, and saving and excepting the lands now used, occupied, or set apart for military, agency, school, school farm, religious, Indian cemetery, wood reserve, forest reserve, or other public uses, will, on the 6th day of August, 1901, at 9 o'clock a. m., in the manner herein prescribed and not otherwise, be opened to entry and settlement and to disposition under the general provisions of the homestead and town-site laws of the United States.

Commencing at 9 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, July 10, 1901, and ending at 6 o'clock p. m., Friday, July 26, 1901, a registration will be had at the United States land offices at El Reno and Lawton, in the territory of Oklahoma (the office at Lawton to occupy provisional quarters in the immediate vicinity of Fort Sill, Oklahoma territory, until suitable quarters can be provided at Lawton), for the purpose of ascertaining what persons desire to enter, settle upon, and acquire title to any of said lands under the homestead law, and of ascertaining their qualifications so to do. The registration at each office will be for both land districts, but at the time of registration each applicant will be required to elect and state in which district he desires to make entry. To obtain registration each applicant will be required to show himself duly qualified to make homestead entry of these lands under existing laws and to give the registration officer such appropriate matters of description and identity as will protect the applicant and the government against any attempted impersonation. Registration can not be effected through the use of the mails or the employment of an agent, excepting that honorably discharged soldiers and sailors entitled to the benefits of section 2304 of the revised statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of Congress approved March 1, 1901 (31 Stat., 847), may present their applications for registration and due proofs of their qualifications through an agent of their own selection, but no person will be permitted to act as agent for more than one such soldier or sailor. No person will be permitted to register more than once or in any other than his true name. Each applicant who shows himself duly qualified will be registered and given a non-transferable certificate to that effect, which will entitle him to go upon and examine the lands to be opened hereunder in the land district in which he elects to make his entry; but the only purpose for which he may go upon and examine said lands is that of enabling him later on, as herein provided, to understandingly select the lands for which he will make entry. No one will be permitted to make settlement upon any of said lands in advance of the opening herein provided for, and during the first sixty days following said opening no one but registered applicants will be permitted to make homestead settlement upon any of said lands, and then only in pursuance of a homestead entry duly allowed by the local land officers, or of a soldier's declaratory statement duly accepted by such officers.

BY DRAWINGS.

The order in which, during the first sixty days following the opening, the registered applicants will be permitted to make homestead entry of the lands opened hereunder, will be determined by drawings for both the El Reno and Lawton districts publicly held at the United States land office at El Reno, Okla., commencing at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, July 29, 1901, and continuing for such period as may be necessary to complete the same. The drawings will be had under the supervision and immediate observance of a committee of three persons whose integrity is such as to make their control of the drawing a guaranty of its fairness. The members of this committee will be appointed by the secretary of the interior, who will prescribe suitable compensation for their services. Preparatory to these drawings the registration officers will, at the time of registering each applicant who shows himself duly qualified, make out a card, which must be signed by the applicant, stating the land district in which he desires to make homestead entry, and giving such a description of the applicant as will enable the local land officers to thereafter identify him. This card will be at once sealed in a separate envelope, which will bear no other distinguishing label or mark than such as may be necessary to show that it is to go into the drawing for the land district in which the applicant desires to make entry. These envelopes will be separated according to land districts and will be carefully preserved and remain sealed until opened in the course of the drawings as herein provided. When the registration is completed all of these sealed envelopes will be brought together at the place of drawing and turned over to the committee in charge of the drawing, who in such manner as in their judgment will be attended with entire fairness and equality of opportunity, shall proceed to draw out and open the separate envelopes and to give to each inclosed card a number in the order in which the envelope containing the same is drawn. While the drawings for the two districts will be separately conducted, they will occur as nearly at the same time as is practicable. The result of the drawing for each district will be certified by the committee to the officers of the district and will determine the order in which the applicants may make homestead entry of said lands and settlement thereon.

Notice of the drawings stating the name of each applicant and number assigned to him by the drawing will be posted each day at the place of drawing, and each applicant will be notified of his number by a postal card mailed to him at the address, if any, given by him at the time of registration. Each applicant should, however, in his own behalf, employ such means as will insure his obtaining prompt and accurate information of the order in which his application for homestead entry can be presented, as fixed by the drawing. Applications for homestead entry of said lands during the first sixty days following the opening can be made only by registered applicants, and in the order established by the drawing. At each land office, commencing Tuesday, August 6, 1901, at 9 o'clock a. m., the applications of those drawing numbers 1 to 125, inclusive, for that district, must be presented, and will be considered in their numerical order during the first day, and the applications of those drawing numbers 125 to 250, inclusive, must be presented and will be considered in their numerical order during the second day, and so on at that rate until all of said lands subject to entry under the homestead law, and desired thereunder, have been entered. If any applicant fails to appear and present his application for entry when the number assigned to him by the drawing is reached, his right to enter will be passed until after the other applications assigned for that day have been disposed of, when he will be given another opportunity to make entry, failing in which he will be deemed to have abandoned his right to make entry under such drawing. To obtain the allowance of a homestead entry each applicant must personally present the certificate of registration theretofore issued to him, together with a regular homestead application and the necessary accompanying proofs, and with the regular land office fees, but an honorably discharged soldier or sailor may file his declaratory statement through the agent representing him at the registration. The production of the certificate of registration will be dispensed with only upon satisfactory proof of its loss or destruction. If at the time of considering his regular application for entry it appears that any applicant is disqualified from making homestead entry of these lands, his application will be rejected, notwithstanding his prior registration. If any applicant shall enter more than once hereunder, or in any other than his true name, or shall transfer his registration certificate, he will thereby lose all the benefits of the registration and drawing herein provided for, and will be precluded from entering or settling upon any of said lands during the first sixty days following said opening.

THE NEUTRAL STRIP.

Because of the provision of the said act of Congress, approved June 6, 1900, "That the settlers who locate on that part of said lands called and known as the 'neutral strip' shall have preference right for thirty days on the lands upon which they have located and improved," the said lands in the "neutral strip" shall for the period of thirty days after said opening be subject to homestead entry and townsite entry only by those who have heretofore located upon and improved the same, and who are accorded a preference right of entry for thirty days as aforesaid. Persons entitled to make entry under this preference right will be permitted to do so at any time during said period of thirty days following the opening without previous registration, and without regard to the drawing herein provided for, and at the expiration of that period the lands in said "neutral strip" for entry which shall have been made will come under the general provisions of this proclamation.

The intended beneficiaries of the provision in the said acts of Congress, approved, respectively, March 2, 1895, and June 6, 1900, which authorizes a qualified entryman having a claim on adjoining ceded lands, whose original entry embraced less than 160 acres, to enter so much of the ceded lands as will make his homestead entry contain in the aggregate not exceeding 160 acres, may obtain such an extension of his existing entry, without previous registration and without regard to the drawing herein provided for, only by making appropriate application, accompanied by the necessary proofs, at the proper new land office at some time prior to the opening herein provided for.

Any person or persons desiring to found, or to suggest establishing, a townsite upon any of said ceded lands at any point not in the near vicinity of either of the county seats therein heretofore selected and designated as aforesaid, may at any time before the opening herein provided for, file in the proper local land office a written application to that effect describing by legal subdivisions the lands intended to be affected, and stating fully and under oath the necessity or propriety of founding or establishing a town at that place. The local officers will forthwith transmit said petition to the commissioner of the general land office with their recommendation in the premises. Such commissioner, if he believes the public interests will be subserved thereby, will if the secretary of the interior approve thereof, issue an order withdrawing the lands described in such petition, or any portion thereof, from homestead entry and settlement, and directing that the same be held for the time being for townsite settlement, entry, and disposition only. In such event the lands so withheld from homestead entry and settlement will, at the time of said opening and not before, become subject to settlement, entry, and disposition under the general townsite laws of the United States. None of said ceded lands will be subject to settlement, entry or disposition under such general townsite laws except in the manner herein prescribed until after the expiration of sixty days from the time of said opening.

TOWNSITES.

Attention is hereby especially called to the fact that under the special provisions of the said act of Congress, approved March 3, 1901, the townsite selected and designated at the county seats of the new counties into which said lands have been formed can not be disposed of under the general townsite laws of the United States, and can only be disposed of in the special manner provided in said act of Congress, which declares:

"The lands so set apart and designated shall, in advance of the opening, be surveyed, subdivided and platted under the direction of the secretary of the interior, into appropriate lots, blocks, streets, alleys and sites for parks or public buildings, so as to make a townsite thereof: Provided, That no person shall purchase more than one business and one residence lot. Such town lots shall be offered and sold at public auction to the highest bidder, under the direction of the secretary of the interior, at sales to be had at the opening and subsequent thereto."

All persons are especially admonished that under the said act of Congress, approved March 3, 1901, it is provided that no person shall be permitted to settle upon, occupy or enter any of said ceded lands except in the manner prescribed in this proclamation until after the expiration of sixty days from the time when the same are opened to settlement and entry. After the expiration of the said period of sixty days, but not before, any of said lands remaining undisposed of may be settled upon, occupied and entered under the general provisions of the homestead and townsite laws of the United States in like manner as if the manner of effecting such settlement, occupancy and entry had not been prescribed herein in obedience to law.

It appearing that there are fences around the pastures into which, for convenience, portions of the ceded lands have heretofore been divided, and that these fences are of considerable value and are still the property of the Indian tribes ceding said lands to the United States, all persons going upon, examining, entering, or settling upon any of said lands are cautioned to respect such fences as the property of the Indians and not to destroy, appropriate or carry away the same, but to leave them undisturbed so that they may be seasonably removed and preserved for the benefit of the Indians.

The secretary of the interior shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations necessary to carry into full effect the opening herein provided for.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this 4th day of July, in the year of our Lord 1901, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-sixth.

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

By the President:
JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

IN THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Many Groups Deserve Greater Attention Than They Receive.

Among the most popular flowers of to-day are the lovely peonies in varied tints of rose, pale crimson and purple. The petals of some varieties are as large as saucers, and being of a satiny texture, and drooping in graceful folds, they attract a good deal of attention. It is pleasing to know that these tree peonies will grow in any good soil without much trouble, consequently the whole tribe should be found a place in every garden. They give a fine effect in beds on lawns, or may be grown in pots and taken into the conservatory at the present season when at their fullest beauty. Some of the newest kinds measure nine inches across the bloom. These peonies die down in autumn, and start growth with renewed vigor in spring. The gold-flowered Ethiopian lily is another beautiful thing that ladies procure as a fitting companion to the pure white variety. There is also quite a novel pink flowered form, but as yet quite rare; it was discovered recently in Rhodesia. Many dwelling houses are now adorned with the lovely climbing Wisteria sinesis, which is unequalled for the purpose when in flower. The fine pendulous racemes of a rich lavender color remind one of a bunch of grapes from the way they hang on the branches. They are produced so freely that at the present season there seem more blossoms than leaves. The Wisteria is quite hardy and its stems extend to a great length each summer. Young plants can be bought very cheaply, and we strongly recommend this elegant climber to those who do not know it. A group of pretty flowering plants that deserve greater attention than they receive are the double-flowered ivy leaved geraniums. Few plants compare with them for balconies or window boxes or to hang down from stagings in the conservatory or from baskets; the foliage alone is handsome, whilst the flowers which are produced so freely, right through the summer, are both bright and lasting. They look magnificent when trained along trellis work in sunny positions.

THE PRICE OF CHOCOLATE.

Much Cheaper in America than in Countries Where Grown.

When, on drinking your cup of chocolate at breakfast, you find a sediment deposited in the bottom of the cup, you may feel sure that this insoluble stuff is the adulterant with which the chocolate is cheapened to such a degree that the beverage far from its source of production costs less than it does in the place where it is produced. In South America the retail price for the better grades of chocolate averages about $1 per pound, while in Italy, France, England and in the United States the better grades sell at a much lower price. In America the ordinary chocolate sells for about one-third of the price that is charged for it where it is produced. The cause of this, the producers say, is that the original product is adulterated greatly before reaching its final market, a cheaper article than the cocoa bean constituting the large proportion of 90 per cent of the chocolates of commerce. The cocoa bean from which chocolate is manufactured is produced in its finest form in Venezuela, though various other parts of Central and South America grow and export large quantities. Two crops of the bean are gathered each year, and the manufacture consists simply in grinding up the beans into meal and then adding sugar and arrowroot, with the necessary flavor—usually vanilla or cinnamon. The mass is moistened until it is in a semi-fluid state, after which it is run into molds of the proper shape.—New York Press.

Maurice Barrymore's Witty Retort.

The clever wit of the recently demented actor, Maurice Barrymore, is still the foremost subject in the circle of the unfortunate man's friends. On one occasion, when Barrymore was visited by a number of friends, one of them dropped a 50-cent piece on the floor, and, search high and low, the money could not be found. "Wonder where it went to!" one remarked. "Went to the devil, I guess," said the loser. "Trust you for making 50 cents go further than any one else," said Barrymore.—New York Times.

MRS. CONGER DENIES IT

Writes a New York Paper She Had No Part in the Looting at Peking.

New York, July 13.—Sarah Pike Conger, wife of Minister Conger, has forced the New York Evening Journal to publish her letter denying charges of looting in China made against her. On June 26 the paper published a cablegram charging Mrs. Conger and Lady McDonald with ordering store rooms in the Peking palace broken open. Mrs. Conger at the time of publication was in Boston.

When her attention was called to the story she wrote a personal letter branding the charge as absolutely false, and demanding a prominent place in the paper for her denial. Her letter was entirely ignored. Mrs. Conger, after waiting, wrote again and receiving no attention, brought a libel suit for $5,000 damages. The papers were served yesterday, and in the most prominent place at the top of the page, with big headlines, the paper publishes her letter of July 28 with a profuse apology, ending with an insinuation that the articles referred to did Mrs. Conger a great injustice.

This is all Mrs. Conger desired. She will withdraw her suit. Mrs. Conger's letter says in part:

"The article thus concludes: 'Sir Claude refused to discuss the report that it was the wife of the American minister who had caused the store room to be broken open.' This is a subtle and most unfair way of charging me with looting, or at least of leaving as the only inference that I was the person who caused the store room to be broken open. This charge is absolutely false. I was not of the party, and knew nothing whatever of the affair, and was not in the remotest degree responsible for it. Moreover, it was well known to all at the legations that I was opposed to looting in any form.

(Signed) "Sarah Pike Conger."

AMERICAN TRADE WITH WORLD.

Exports Were Greatest of Any Year in the Country's History.

Washington, July 15.—The statement of the imports and exports of the United States for the fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1901, has been completed by the treasury bureau of statistics. It shows that the total imports of the year were $822,756,533, total exports $1,487,656,544, and the excess of exports over imports $664,900,011. The imports are $27,184,651 below those of last year, and the exports are $96,173,462 above those of last year. The excess of exports over imports exceeds that of last year by $120,358,116, and is $49,467,335 greater than the highest record ever before made, that of 1898. Under the new relations with Hawaii and Porto Rico the commerce with those islands is no longer included in the regular statement of foreign commerce of the United States. Had they been so included, as has been the case in former years, the total exports would have exceeded $1,500,000,000, as the exports to those islands during the year have aggregated $25,000,000.

Sioux City, July 15.—John F. Fitzpatrick, a lineman for the Sioux City Gas and Electric company, was almost instantly killed by a charge of 1,000 volts of electricity from one of the company's primary circuits. He was lifting wires over the top of a house that was being moved through the streets. A defective insulation is thought to have been responsible for the affair. The coroner is investigating.

CONFERENCE WAS A FAILURE.

Strike Ordered In the Mills of Three Steel Companies.

Pittsburg, July 15.—After a three days' session, the conference between the representatives of the American Sheet Steel company, American Steel Hoop company and American Tin Plate company, subsidiary companies of the United States Steel corporation, and the general executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, adjourned finally at 6 o'clock Saturday evening without agreement. In less than an hour later President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association had wired the following order to all the Amalgamated lodges in the tin plate, steel hoop and sheet steel mills of the country:

"Notify your men that the mill is on a strike and will not work on Monday, July 15."

For the present Mr. Shaffer says that only the three companies named will be affected, but later all the union men in the Federal Steel company, the National Steel company and the National Tube company may be called out, if it is found necessary to resort to extreme measures to win the fight. At the start, it is claimed 45,000 skilled workmen, 30,000 unskilled men and, indirectly, many thousands more will be affected.

LETTER FROM PAT CROWE.

St. Joseph Attorney Said to Have Received One Recently.

Kansas City, July 15.—A special to the Star from St. Joseph, Mo., says: A. W. Brewster, an attorney of this city, has received a draft for $250, sent to him by "Pat" Crow from Johannesburg, South Africa. The amount was sent to the lawyer to pay an attorney fee Crowe had been owing a number of years.

Crowe's name has been connected by allegation with the kidnaping in Omaha of the young son of Edward Cudahy, the packer, who paid a ransom of $25,000 in gold to recover his boy.

Several years ago Crowe was under arrest in St. Joseph on the charge of train robbery. He employed Brewster, who is a state senator, to defend him. The charge was finally dismissed, as the case was not a strong one.

In the Gold Country.

Seattle, Wash., July 13.—The steamer City of Seattle has arrived from Lynn canal with a Klondike treasure cargo of $630,000, all save $100,000 consigned by the Canadian Bank of Commerce to the United States assay office in this city. William Waechter, a cattle trader, and a Mr. Lee, a miner, had $50,000 in dust. The Klondike crowd left Dawson June 29. At that time nearly every producing claim in the district was being worked, and the government had 500 men employed in the construction of roads to the greatest gold producing streams in the district. About 1,100 people are said to have left the Klondike for Nome and the Koyokuk since the river opened.

Younger Boys Are Paroled.

St. Paul, Minn., July 11.—The state pardon board has approved the parole of Coleman and James Younger, who have been in the Stillwater penitentiary for the past twenty-five years for complicity in the robbery and murder at the time of the raid on the Northfield, Minnesota, bank.

Shanghai, July 1.—In a decree made public here the dowager empress of China orders the Chinese ministers now abroad to report to her the names of young Chinamen in foreign countries who have shown special abilities in the various professions, with a view of bringing them back to China at government expense, where they will be eligible for office.

USE CUTICURA SOAP ASSISTED BY CUTICURA OINTMENT THE GREAT SKIN CURE

For preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin of infants and children, for rashes, itchings, and chafings, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use Cuticura Soap in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. It unites in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap and the BEST toilet, bath, and baby soap in the world.

COMPLETE EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT FOR EVERY HUMOR.

Cuticura THE SET

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. The meeting in the town hall on Tuesday night for the purpose of organizing a fire company was a genuine fizzle. As the city now has the protection it is necessary to have someone to handle it. Henry Gruetzmacher's team ran away Tuesday. They became frightened and ran to the north part of town where Phil. Ell was doing some road work. Mr. Ell stopped the team; unhitched his own team and proceeded to take some of the friskiness out of the new comers. When Henry arrived on the scene his team was diligently at work scrapeing dirt. And then they smiled out loud.

A deal was made recently in which a farmer sold his farm to another farmer for $2,500, the terms of sale being $50. a year for fifty years with the privilege of paying any larger sums at any payment day or paying all of it at the same time. The former owner believes he got a good price for his land and besides he gave a deserving man a chance to own a farm. If more of the land rich would meet the land poor in this way, what a world we would have.

There was a dance in Klemme on last Friday night. Now, it is something like this. if we say something derogatory in reference to the dance we will have a howling congregation of young folks after us. If one says it is alright to dance one will discontinne about 25 subscribers by way of the "blamed fool" editor route. Why not say the dance is alright and the church ditto. That's "equal rights to all and special privileges to none" is it not? We will say no more about it!

HOW THEY DISAPPEAR.

Many Immigrants Annually Escape Vigilance of Uncle Sam.

The story of the disappearance of Isidoro Termini, an aged Italian immigrant, at the barge office, which came to light a few days ago, calls attention to a curious phase of immigrant affairs, says the New York Evening Post. Every year from one too two dozen steerage passengers in the custody of the United States authorities disappear some time between the date of their arrival at the steamship docks and what should be the date of their departure. A considerable number also drop out of sight at the docks while still in the charge of the steamship company. When this occurs the transportation company must locate the missing passenger or pay a fine of $1,000. The case of Termini is peculiar only in the fact that there is some mystery attached to it. In the majority of instances the immigrant merely takes French leave in order to escape the tedium of waiting for his vouchers or the uncertainty of an appearance before the board of inquiry.

A great many have every reason for dodging out of sight as soon as the steamer touches land, and it is curious that so few attempt to escape. America opens up a vast field of promise to the average immigrant. When he finds himself exposed to the rigors of a strict medical examination, a search into his past records and his pecuniary affairs, terror seizes him. He finds himself a quasi-prisoner under about as strict guard as may be maintained without military or police discipline. His mind travels fast to the conclusion that there is danger of his being turned back. Fear quickens his wits, and he sets to work to devise means for getting away; and getting away is ridiculously easy, partly on account of inadequate accommodations, and partly because he cannot be kept a very strict prisoner.

Curiously enough, it is not the healthy young men and boys who elude the officers, but more often old people, men, women and children. The young and robust immigrants usually pass inspection, and, consequently there is no reason for them to escape.

The hospital is on Ellis island, and offers good opportunities for making off, because the discipline has to be more lax there. When a soldier deserts, he does so at the risk of his life; but when an immigrant once gets away, he can snap his fingers at authority. Attempts are always made to locate them and to bulldoze them into coming back for examination, but there is actually no penalty which can be enforced for smuggling one's self into the country. Not in one case in a hundred is any report or inquiry made by relatives or friends of an immigrant who slips through the barge office. Detectives from the barge office who try to locate the runaways are usually told that they have not been seen, and that their relatives are in mourning. Italians show most skill, perhaps, in smuggling themselves ashore.

THE USUAL RESULT.

Story of a Dog Fight in Kentucky Told by an Outsider.

"The colonel and I sat talking under a shade tree in front of the town post office when a dog fight started down the street," said a traveling man, relating an incident of a recent trip to Kentucky.

"Come on!" I said, as I sprang up.

"'Come this way!' replied the colonel, as he seized my arm and drew me into a doorway.

"'But I want to see the dog fight,' I protested.

"'Yes, reckon you do, but you also want to keep clear of the shootin'."

"'Why should there be any shooting?'

"'Bekase one dog has got to lick t'other, and the owner of the licked dog ain't goin' to let it rest that way. There they go!'

"Ten minutes later we stepped out to find one man lying on the ground with two bullet holes in him, and some people carrying away a second with half a dozen.

"'Dog fights are bewtiful affairs,' said the colonel, as we walked away together, 'but the safest way to see one in Kentucky is to wait till it's over and the dead carried off.'"—Washington Post.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.

Information on Weeds-Desired.

The writer has under preparation a bulletin on the noxious weeds of Iowa. It is my intention to record some experiments on the extermination of the same as well as notes on distribution. In order to get as much information as possible on the subject of weeds, I desire to have farmers send to me the worst weeds in their neighborhood with comments on their experience in destroying them. Also give me information on the following points:

How long have weeds been in your neighborhood?

How were the weeds introduced?

Do special crops favor certain weeds.

Does mustard accompany the growth of flax and in this way make it's appearance in grain fields?

What proportion of the grain fields consist of mustard? What can you say concerning the vitality of mustard seed. What would you suggest in regard to the eradication of mustard?

Does the Canada thistle occur in your county? If so, send specimen.

Does the Bull thistle occur in your county?

What can you say of the large rag weed? How abundant. The vitality of the seed?

Is the la with references to weeds on roadsides enforced.

Does the Russian thistle occur in your county? If so, send speciman.

Is the law enforced with reference to the destruction of the Russian thistles and other weeds?

Are weeds largely introduced with seeds?

Name the weeds largely so introduced.

Name the worst weeds of pastures.

Hospital Habit, A Wonderful Machine, A no account Dog.

THE HOSPITAL HABIT.

A Queer Type of Character the Physician Sometimes Meets.

"Two queer metaphysical problems," said a New Orleans physician, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "are the hospital habit and the hospital horror. I have encountered any number of cases of both, and have always found them more or less of a puzzle. The hospital habit is well known to every institution in the country, and in speaking of it I have no reference to the scores of constitutional loafers and vagabonds to be found in all large cities, who would rather spend their time in any kind of shelter, even that of a jail, than go out and hustle for a living. The people I have in mind are of entirely different stamp, and are generally of rather superior intelligence. For some mysterious reason they become fascinated by the peculiar life in a hospital, and will resort, eventually, to all kinds of subterfuges to continue in it. It is clear they are not attracted by a prospect of idleness, for they are always morbidly anxious to curry favor by making themselves useful, and will work harder than the paid attendants, so the only way they can be accounted for is on the theory that they are really in love with their surroundings. One of the most singular cases of the hospital habit that ever came under my observation was that of an Englishman who spent a couple of years here in the latter eighties. He was a middle-aged man, well educated, well read and capable of earning a good living at his profession, which was that of an accountant; but he had fallen under the strange spell of the hospital, and apparently lost all other interest in life. I am satisfied he was in excellent health, but he pretended to be suffering from some obscure spinal trouble, and feigned the symptoms so closely that he had spent the best part of six or seven years in different institutions. Meanwhile he had become an excellent nurse, and was so far superior to the average hired help that the surgeons winked at his fraud for the sake of having him around. There are many curious phases of human nature continually in evidence in a sick ward, and I really believe this man derived an intellectual pleasure in their study. He evidently had a taste for the bizarre, and the place interested him as one might become interested in some morbid novel. We had many long talks, and what he said showed a high order of thought. Finally he drifted away, and, I dare say, he is in some hospital at this moment. Others I have encountered seemed to find some frightful, perverted pleasure in the mere spectacle of human suffering, and I have known one or two women who invariably tried to be present at surgical operations as volunteer assistants. Another habitue, also a woman, told me she enjoyed the peculiar smell of drugs that is always present in a sick ward.

"The hospital horror is a less cryptic emotion," the doctor went on, "but some of its manifestations are sufficiently queer. Viewed in the abstract, a hospital is eminently the proper place for anybody who is sick, and in future years I am sure no serious cases will ever be treated in private homes. Imperfect sanitation, incompetent attendance, danger of contagion and a score of other reasons suggest themselves immediately as against the practice, and statistics show clearly that the percentage of recoveries is very much higher in any well-conducted professional institution. It often happens that the very tenderness and oversolicitude of friends and relatives militates against a cure, and all these things are, or ought to be, perfectly apparent to anybody who gives the subject a moment's thought. Yet there are thousands of people who have an unconquerable dread and loathing of a hospital. They would rather be sick in some cheerless tenement, neglected, unattended and deprived of every comfort, than to occupy the best special room that a first-class institution can afford. They may be entirely isolated from the general wards and see nothing whatever of the internal workings of the establishment, but the mere knowledge that they are under the same roof preys on their nerves and retards progress. I was called in last winter to attend a man who had contracted pneumonia, and found him in a miserable gallery bedroom, with no facilities for heating and the most squalid and depressing surroundings I ever saw in my life. Some friends came to the rescue and arranged for his admission as a pay patient in one of our very best hospitals. I thought he would be overjoyed, but he turned livid with fright and aversion, and begged piteously to be allowed to remain where he was. 'My God, doctor,' he pleaded, 'don't let them take me there! I can't stand it!' I told him bluntly he would die unless he was moved, but that prospect had no terrors compared to thought of the hospital. He was an intelligent man, knew perfectly well he would get the best of care at the place suggested, but was simply unable to overcome an innate sense of repulsion. He died a few days afterward in his bleak little bedroom. On another occasion a patient of mine was taken to a hospital much against his will, and given every attention in a beautiful private room. His convalescence was very unsatisfactory, and I couldn't understand what was operating against recovery. One day he burst into hysterical tears. 'Oh, doctor!' he wailed, 'take me away! Take me anywhere out of this ghastly place!' He had no complaint to make; it was 'just the idea,' to quote his own words. He was sent home, and was soon well. It is useless to argue with such people; the prejudice is unreasoning, and they can no more help it than they can help the color of their hair."

A WONDERFUL MACHINE.

Some Remarkable Facts Regarding the Human System

The framework of the house in which we live is made up of 206 bones.

To perform the usual movements in our daily life these 206 bones are acted upon by 522 voluntary muscles.

In a normal head of hair there are 250,000 hairs.

The brain and spinal cord have 3,000,000,000 nerve cells.

In the average man there are 32,500,000,000 red blood cells and 53,900,000 white cells.

A German writer says, according to the New York World, there are all told 26,500,000,000,000 cells in the adult human body.

The heart dispenses blessings to the bones, nerves, muscles and organs through nearly 1,000 arteries. The arterioles and capillaries are innumerable.

Life is action. The nervous system makes action possible. The nerves are the avenues to the soul. There are more than 600 nerves engaged in carrying messages to or from the brain and spinal cord. Thousands of sympathetic nerves are kept busy at the same work.

The skin of an adult man spread out on a smooth surface would cover 15 square feet.

There are 2,500,000 sweat glands in the skin. These glands empty their secretions upon the skin through a spiral channel.

In the palm of the hand there are 2,500 pores to the square inch. If these pores were united end to end they would make a sewer nearly five miles long.

The breathing surface of the lungs spread out flat would cover 2,000 square feet, or an area equal to that of a piece of land 50 feet long and 40 feet wide.

The lungs are composed of lobes, the lobes of lobules, and the lobules of 1,700,000,000 are air cells.

There are 10,000,000 villi in the small intestines. These villi are the little structures in the mucous membrane that absorb the food after it has entered the small intestine.

In the optic nerve are 500,000 fibres.

The retina is made up of ten layers. The ninth layer is composed of rods and cones standing like bricks placed on end. It is estimated that there are 3,000,000 of these cones, and the rods are still more numerous.

The most interesting part of the ear is the organ of Corti, found in the spiral portion of the internal ear. It is especially concerned in receiving and transmitting sound. It consists of two rows of rods united at their upper ends, but each rests upon a broad case, with a space between them, called a tunnel. From a side view it looks like a harp, seen from above it is strikingly like the keyboard of a piano.

The inner row of the organ of Corti contains 10,000 cells, the outer part 16,000 cells. These cells rest upon a membrane made up of 24,000 fibres.

A Tardy Recognition.

Although it is some ten years since the city of East Saginaw, Mich., ceased to exist, the United States government has persisted in calling the customs station there the "port of East Saginaw," the protests of the people of the united Saginaws notwithstanding. At last, however, an official order has been issued changing the name of the port to correspond with that of the city.

Mr. Hughes Talks More Oil.

New Orleans Picayune, 7-6-1901.

Howard Hughes, whose mission as oil expert to the Baumont and other fields, in the interest of parties whose identity has not been disclosed, has kept him in Texas for some months, is in this city. Mr. Hughes gave the Picayune an interview sometime ago which was very interesting and in which he made a number of predictions that have since been realized in the field.

What is your final conclusion as to the field? asked the reporter.

"As to that, my opinion is two-fold. In the first place I believe the Spindle Top lands are good for years of fine production. I do not think there is any immediate prospect of any material diminuation of the flow of oil. In this I am sustained by experience in the Russian oil fields. There it has been six years since the first spouter was found, and there has been but little, if any, perceptible diminution in the flow, with a daily production actually marketed of something like 100,000 barrels. "The Baumont oil is almost exactly similar to the Russian product and the field is similar in almost every respect. In view of these facts I am of the opinion that the Baumont field will be found to be as permanent. There seems to be no good reason to think, as I hear so often intimated, that the field will soon play out, and I see no sense in the prediction. The second branch of my opinion as to the Texas field is that here is no sense in looking so close to the Spindle Top field for another. The many companies seem to think that there should be a continuous deposit of oil running in some direction from Spindle Top and connected with it continuously. I do not agree with this view. In fact I hold the opposite opinion. I am convinced that those who are looking for oil in the immediate neighborhood are doomed to be disappointed. They are too close to Spindle Top and none of them will find oil. The Paulhamus well, about which there has been so much talk, is undoubtedly a duster, and no amount of scientific drilling and mysterious bay lay will put oil into it. They talk about sand coming in and stopping the flow. and the well behaving in a mysterious manner, but it is behaving in just the manner that a dry hole in that kin of stratum should be expected to behave, and Paulhamus me a day since: 'We have plenty of sand, but no oil.' and that's what he will find to the end.

My opinion is that they must look farther away from Spindle Top for oil. I have looked over the ground all around there and am convinced that there is oil in large quantities about ten miles to the eastward and a little to the northeast of Baumont. I was was looking along the Neches River some time ago and saw fine indications in the bluff on this side of the river. There are well defined indications of asphalt showing on the bluff where the river has washed away the land and left the face of the bluff exposed. In one p t ten miles from Baumont. I saw a regular oil ulcer in the bluff where oil and asphalt are oozing out of the land. There is a good sized rise in the land there, and the indications are that there is oil in as good quantities as at Spindle Top, and of the same quality.

The idea seems to be to try for oil in spots where the machinery may be most easily taken, and the well be most accessible without taking into consideration the conformation of the land and the actual prospects for oil in the spots selected. This is a mistake that most of the companies have made which have been acquiring property in the so-called oil region. Their idea seems to have been 'as close to the proved land' as possible, while the fact is that close to the proved is the poorest place the could look unless they are actually in the charmed circle, which I take it is pretty clearly defined.

The place which I have indicated is the nearest to Baumont of any indications that I have seen, but as I have said it is very inaccessible, and there is little prospect of its immediate development. There are many other place still further from Spindle Top which have not yet attracted attention. These will in time attract prospectors and there will doubtless be a very large development of paying properties there in course of time. It is not possible at this distance and now to go into an enumeration of the points where these properties are to be found but they will be found and explored sooner or later, and the results will amply repay those who undertake the job."

The lands that the Proposed Iowa Oil and Pipe Line Co., propose to develop are on the Neches River in the locality that Mr. Hughes describes in the foregoing and have just such indications of oil as he describes.

France's new prison at Fresnes, some eight miles from Paris, is the largest in the world.

Andrew Carnegie intends to erect a monument to James G. Blaine at Pittsburg, probably in Schenley Park, near the Carnegie Institute.

A memorial of Rosa Bonheur, presented by Senor Gambart, the Spanish consul at Nice, has been unveiled at Fontainebleau, near which town she dwelt for many years. The memorial consists of a bronze bull, an enlarged fac-simile of one of her sculptures; the bas-reliefs of the pedestal give her portrait and representations of three of her principal paintings.

The women of the German city of Magdeburg will honor the memory of Queen Louise by the erection of a statue of the venerated queen. Johannes Goetz was intrusted with the task of creating in Carrara marble the figure of the beautiful queen. The figure stands on a massive cubical base, bearing on one side the inscription: "Louise, Queen of Prussia," and on the opposite side: "Dedicated by the women of Magdeburg."

State Geologist Dumble of Texas has disclosed sources of mineral wealth that are astounding. He says that in one county alone, that of Cherokee, there are 600,000,000 tons of rich iron ore in sight, and that in east Texas, as a whole, there are 3,000,000,000 tons. And by the side of this ore lies all the coal necessary to work the ore into shape. The geologist makes the flat statement that "no country in the world has cheaper material for smelting iron than east Texas."

In order to appreciate the extreme democracy of the people in the southeast of Europe, it may be mentioned that Mme. Karaveloff, wife of the prime minister of Bulgaria, continues to pursue her avocation as school teacher, and every morning when her husband leaves home to attend to his duties as premier she takes her departure for the public grammar school to fulfill her duties as one of the teachers. She is a very remarkable woman, and has been imprisoned and tried on charges of treason and of lese majeste while the political foes of her husband were in office.

Now that Rostand's play, "L'Aiglon," has aroused so much interest in the melancholy story of Napoleon's son, there will be some interest in the death of the last considerable actor in the abortive conspiracy to restore the empire with the Duke of Reichstadt in his father's place. This person was Varabowski, a Pole, who was a lieutenant in the grand army and fought at Waterloo. The conspirators in 1822 took possession of several towns in the west of France in the name of Napoleon II., but at Saumur the movement was stopped and the small force they had gathered rapidly scattered. Varabowski escaped and returned to Poland, where he has just died at Warsaw, at the age of 105 years.

The "brown-tailed" caterpillar has been officially considered by the Boston board of health, whose members are ready to acknowledge that this pest can produce the skin irritation complained of by some residents in the suburbs of that city. The insect is destructive of fruit trees. The hair of the worm is brittle and barbed, and its action on the skin is regarded as purely mechanical, rather than poisonous. It is yet to be determined whether actual contact with the worm is necessary to cause the irritation, or whether this may result through the blowing about of the hair or fur by the winds. The doctors incline to the latter belief. However produced, the irritation and resultant sickness are described as being severe.

King Carlos of Portugal has become passionately devoted to yacht racing, and has announced his decision to have a racing yacht built for the express purpose of enabling him to win back from the English Royal Yacht Squadron the Vasco de Gama Cup in the third international race, which takes place next year over a course extending from Southampton to Lisbon, that is across the dangerous Bay of Biscay. The king is now in consultation with naval architects with regard to the designs for his new racing yacht, and is disposed to have the latter built in the United States, rather than in England, the victories of the American defenders of the America Cup and the recent mishaps to the Shamrock inclining him to the belief that boats built on this side of the Atlantic unite a greater degree of strength, with lightness and delicacy of lines, than those of English construction and design.

It cannot be too often repeated that the secret of German success in so many branches of human activity is specialization. And it may fairly be asked whether in many cases they do not "pay too much for their whistle." The days are long gone by when Schiller could venture to condemn the exclusive pursuit of what he called "bread-and-butter" studies. Nowadays nearly every one in Germany keeps "bread and butter" steadily in view. The next generation of Germans will be even more specialized than their fathers.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

AUTO-MOWER AT WORK.

Exhibition Given on the Farm of Senator Dolliver, Near Fort Dodge.

Fort Dodge, July 19.—A demonstration that attracted a large crowd of people was given on the large farm of Senator J. P. Dolliver, just west of the city, yesterday, where an automower demonstrated its coming usefulness on a farm to the entire satisfaction of those who witnessed its work. The machine is the property of the Deering Harvester company of Chicago and the exhibition was the first that has been given in Iowa. The machine consists of a hand-built gasoline engine, which is saddled on to a common field mowing machine. The power is connected in such a manner that the machine can be taken anywhere that a team could pull it. At the farm when the field of forty acres of wild grass was reached the cutting fixtures of the mower were attached and the machine was put at work on the field. The easiness of motion, the ease with which corners were turned and the quick work and speed of the machine called forth many declarations of its future usefulness and the practical theory of attaching a cheap motive power to farm implements. Its field of possibilities is large and varied. Twenty-two acres of grass cut in nine hours with a five-foot sickle is the record so far made. The engine is of four-horse power and will furnish ample power to propel it and cut with an eight-foot sickle bar if wanted. The machine is not for sale, but the company hopes to have them on the market next season. The price will be from $200 to $300 complete. Many practical farmers viewed the work and all united in pronouncing it a grand success. The fact that the same power can be utilized for so many purposes on a farm makes it very valuable. Six gallons of gasoline will operate it for a day. With a pulley wheel attached it can be used to pump water, grind feed, shell corn, clean grain, run a creamery separator, churn and many other uses on a common farm. Senator Dolliver was highly pleased.

MAJOR CONGER SAILS.

Returning to His Post of Duty as Minister to China.

San Francisco, July 19.—Edwin H. Conger, United States minister to China, sailed for his post in the Orient on the Japanese liner Nippon Maru.

Speaking of the political situation in Iowa, Minister Conger said:

"I must confess that I'm a little sorry at what has happened. Things were not exactly what I had imagined them to be at home.

"You know I have never been a candidate for the office of governor of Iowa, but tentatively allowed my friends to use my name. I said when I arrived that if the nomination was tendered me I would not refuse it, but I would make no fight for the place.

"I meant I would accept the place if it came unanimously; if the party or state wanted or needed me. I have never been a candidate on account of the personal honors. There is not the unanimous desire that was represented to me, and I am sorry that even tentatively I have allowed my name to be used so much. I have many strong and good friends in Iowa, but the field is full of good men, and I have never wished to make a fight against any of them.

"I hope that in allowing my name to be used as it has I have not sacrificed any principle or lost any friends. Iowa does not need me, and there is not the unanimous desire that would have been the only reason for my accepting the nomination, if it was made."

FIRE AT RICEVILLE.

Town of One Thousand Inhabitants Almost Wiped Out.

New Hampton, July 22.—A disastrous fire originating in a butcher shop at Riceville, twenty-five miles north, in Mitchell county, nearly laid a town of one thousand inhabitants in ashes. The fire broke out about 2 o'clock p. m. with the thermometer at 107, with a slight breeze fanning. The tinder dried buildings on both sides of Main street to the depot were licked up, including two hotels, a bank, ten business houses, two lumber yards and a frame opera house. The town had just voted on a water works proposition, but it was not perfected. The loss is estimated at about $100,000. Fire companies from Alta Vista responded to the call by special train, but could do but little. Several fine residence buildings were burned, including also a church and parsonage.

AFFECTED BY THE HEAT.

Martin Johnson of Johnson Attacks His Wife While Demented.

Fort Dodge, July 22.—Martin Johnson, a prominent farmer living near Badger, seemingly crazed by heat and drink, attempted to kill his wife on the city streets while driving home with her in a buggy. Johnson had just started home and while yet in the busines part of the city commenced to beat his wife. Bystanders were attracted by her cries and the police were notified. Johnson started on and after he had gone a few blocks commenced again to cruelly beat his wife. When the police overtook him, a party of men had dragged him out of the carriage and angry threats were being made. The arrival of the police prevented mob violence. Mrs. Johnson was bleeding about the face and was quite badly hurt. Johnson is now under arrest.

Bad Collision at Onawa.

Onawa, July 20.—A collision occurred at the Illinois Central crossing of the Northwestern, two blocks north of Hotel Monona, in Onawa. Train No. 2, under Conductor Rounds and Engineer Kirkoff, bound south, struck the incoming freight of the Illinois Central, hitting the fourth car from the way car, smashing two cars of lumber into kindling wood and throwing the Sioux City & Pacific engine off the track on the west side. There was no loss of life and the passengers were not injured. Both parties claimed right of way. The Illinois Central freight only lacked four cars of being safely across when struck and had whistled first for the crossing.

Jail Delivery at Adel.

Adel, July 19.—The men held for the murder of young Daugherty of Perry made a desperate effort to escape at 10 o'clock p. m. and one of them, George McKay, succeeded. Jailer Henry Carl was giving water to the two prisoners when they made their break. Carl managed to hold Slavin, and while they were wrestling McKay made good his escape. Officers are now searching for McKay and Sheriff Haines offers a reward for his capture.

Clinton County Murder Mystery.

Clinton, July 17.—News comes from Cordova that another arrest is likely to be made on account of the murder of Carl Wendt, who was found dead in his boat with a bullet hole in his head. The Stiles brothers are in jail charged with the murder, but it is now believed the shooting was done by a young man residing in Princeton, who, it is claimed, told of the shooting the day before the dead body was found. It is said there is a motive for the crime, which will be developed after the arrest is made. There is a growing sentiment that the Stiles are innocent.

SECRETARY ROOT IN DES MOINES.

Inspects Site of Army Post and Says It Will Be Enlarged.

Des Moines, July 20.—Secretary Root, of the war department, arrived yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in his private car. He was accompanied by General George Gillespie, chief of engineers; General Wallace Randolf, chief of artillery, Colonel W. H. Carter, assistant adjutant general all of Washington. Arrived here the party was at once driven to the site of the proposed army post, which they inspected. In an interview the secretary said: "Capt. L. B. Turner has full power to make all arrangements preliminary to establishing the army post in this city. This includes contracting for a water supply, securing easement of a sewer, signing contracts for railway facilities, and, in fact, disposing of all questions which must be settled before actual work on the post will begin."

Another important fact which developed from the visit of Secretary Root is the evident intention of the government to buy several hundred acres of land around the post for the purpose of enlarging it. Speaking of this last evening, Mr. Root said: "It is the intention of the government to first construct the post here to accommodate one squadron of cavalry, gradually increasing it until it will accommodate a regiment. If this is done, it will be absolutely necessary to enlarge the post, as it is too small for the contemplated purpose. If the government can buy land around the post for a reasonable figure, it will undoubtedly do so. It would be hard, at present, to drill a couple of squadrons there without galloping into a wall or fence."

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Farmer Near Glenwood Thought to Have Killed and Burned Family.

Glenwood, July 18.—Three charred bodies, a shotgun and razor found in the ruins of the residence of Fred Fourheim by neighbors mutely described the tragedy enacted there. Fourheim, a young farmer residing twelve miles south of this place, had cut the throats of his wife and her 6-year-old child, set the house on fire and then taken his own life with a shotgun.

The true story of the tragedy will never be known, as no one was left to tell the tale. The coroner is investigating in the possible hope that it may be found a robbery was committed and that the robbers murdered the family and burned the house for the purpose of concealing the crime, but this theory is exceedingly farfetched and everything points to the theory first outlined.

It was 2 o'clock a. m. when flames were seen to shoot up from the Fourhelm home. A half dozen neighbors were summoned and arrived on the scene while the flames were at their height and could have rendered assistance had any living thing been found in the burning structure.

The fact that there were no cries for help, the position of the bodies and other circumstances all point to deliberate murder and suicide. The house was low and small, so that escape would have been easy. Fourhelm's body showed a bad bullet wound, though badly charred. The trunks of his wife and child were burned to a crisp and it was impossible to tell if they showed any marks of violence. Their heads were not so badly burned, however, and their necks had the appearance of having been hacked with a razor.

No motive for the crime is known to have existed, though there have been some rumors of domestic infelicity. It has been suggested that Fourhelm was suddenly driven insane by the excessive heat and committed the crime while irrational. One neighbor says he had heard Fourhelm remark that the heat made him feel dizzy.

SUES FOR GREAT FORTUNE.

E. W. Appleman Has a Large Claim Against Railroads.

Fort Dodge, July 20.—E. W. Appleman, a postal clerk running out of McGregor on the Milwaukee is about to bring suit against the principal railways of the United States for the infringement of the rights of a patent which he claims to possess which control what is known as the standard vestibule door used on passenger coaches and Pullman cars. Mr. Appleman applied for these patents in 1891 and the next year they were granted to him. They are familiar to all who have traveled and are for the purpose of widening the platform. These doors have been in use for ten years and during the latter part of the time have been turned out in great numbers and are now used on nearly all cars manufactured. They are proved practical beyond a doubt. By some means their manufacture has been going on without the payment of royalties to Mr. Appleman, who now brings suit to recover his rights. The case will be one of the most celebrated in the country and the amount of royalties involved will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Mr. Appleman is a brother-in-law of Governor Larrabee and is understood to be receiving powerful backing. Mr. Appleman is an inventor of considerable versatility, and has invented an airship for which he has applied for a patent. The case will be brought soon.

FIRE AT GRAND JUNCTION.

The Nina Hotel and Other Buildings Are Destroyed.

Grand Junction, July 20.—One of the severest fires in the history of Grand Junction occurred yesterday. Fire was first discovered in the rear of the Nina hotel. This building and the Grand Junction Wagon Works adjoining on the west, with the K. P. building, were burned. The Nina was a fine three-story building, one of the finest hotels in this part of the state, and was owned by Geo. C. Hillman. The Grand Junction Wagon Works was a fine two-story double brick building, owned by L. J. Matteson. The K. P. building was a two-story frame. The loss on buildings and goods is between $25,000 and $30,000, with but little insurance.

Judgment for $10,000.

Waterloo, July 20.—In the suit of Receiver Sherman of the defunct Equitable Mutual Life association against President Geo. W. Harbin and the Fidelity Guaranty company, Judge Platt rendered a decision giving judgment for $10,000 against Harbin and his bondsmen. The suit was for misappropriation of the mortuary funds.

Treatment of Drug Victims.

Sioux City, July 21.—This county is making an investigation to see if it is not cheaper to send cocaine fiends, drunkarks and other temporarily deranged persons to Keeley institutes for treatment instead of state hospitals for insane.

Early to bed and early to rise makes a man know when the baby cries.

Cause of Fourhelm's Crime.

Glenwood, July 20.—Authorities believe they have found the motive which prompted Fred Feurhelm to the recent double murder and suicide. It is said that a recent discovery that his wife conducted a house of ill fame in Glenwood prior to his marriage so preyed upon his mind that he was actually crazed. It is also believed that Feurhelm did not intend to suicide, but that when the neighbors were attracted by the confusion, killed himself without attempting to escape.

So many troubles are but merely imaginary.

NEWS IN GENERAL

RUSSELL GUILTY OF BIGAMY.

Sentenced to Three Months in Jail, But Jailors Will Make It Easy.

London, July 19.—Earl Russell was arranged at the bar of the House of Lords yesterday for trial on the charge of bigamy and pleaded guilty. The trial was carried on with all the quaint middle-age ceremonies. Both the Earl and Countess Russell (Mrs. Somerville), through their counsel, pleaded they did not know they were doing wrong, but had acted on the best legal advice obtainable in Nevada. The peers reported their decision after consideration of the case, lasting twenty minutes. Earl Russell was sentenced to three months imprisonment as a first class misdemeanant.

In anticipation of the arrival of Lord Russell the officials at Holloway prison have prepared for his reception one of the rooms formerly occupied by William T. Stead, the editor, and member of the Jameson raiders. It is a commodious apartment, in which his lordship can be supplied with his own food and wines.

After separating from his wife, Mabel, Countess Russell, more than a year and a half ago, Earl Russell disappeared from England and the next heard from him was that he had obtained a divorce in America and had there married Mrs. Mollie Somerville, the daughter of the late George Cooke of Comberhauld, Scotland. Mrs. Somerville had also been divorced in Nevada. Her husband was George J. Somerville. Earl Russell obtained the license to marry Molly Cooke April 14, 1900, and a judge in Nevada performed the ceremony the following day. The earl and his new countess returned not long ago to England despite the fact that the first countess was still in London.

Earl Russell's first wife was Mabel Scott, from whom he separated just before disappearing from England. Countess Russell threatened prosecution when it was learned that Earl Russell and Mrs. Somerville were living together in Reno, Nevada. The charge that was brought against him was that he feloniously married Molly Cooke in America when his first life was still living. It was, on the other hand, contended by counsel for Earl Russell that the prosecution failed to consider the divorce proceedings begun by his lordship in America.

The woman to whom he was married in America has been with Earl Russell during his trial and both have seemed in good spirits. It was on June 17 upon his return from the country that Earl Russell was formally charged. He was met at the station by detectives after an outing with his new wife and arrested on the charge of having contracted a bigamous marriage in the United States.

CIVIL RULE A FAILURE.

Military to Control Three Provinces in the Philippines.

Manila, July 19.—The United States civil commission has announced that after three months' trial of a provincial form of government in the islands of Cebu and Bohol and the provinces of Batangas, Luzon, control of those districts, owing to their incomplete pacification, has been returned to the military authorities, it having been proved that the communities indicated are backward and undeserving of civil administration. The provincial and civil officials of these designation districts will continue their functions, but are now under the authority of General Chaffee instead of that of the civil government as heretofore. General Chaffee has the power arbitrarily to remove from office any or all provincial or civil officials and to abrogate any section of the laws promulgated in these three provinces.

The residents of the island of Cebu have protested, but without success, against the return of that island to military control. Several towns on Cebu are still besieged by insurgents. The insurrection on the island of Bohol has been renewed, and insurgents in the province of Batangas are strong.

General Chaffee has ordered a battalion of the Thirtieth infantry to begin the occupation of the island of Mindoro. The province of Batangas will be occupied by the entire Twentieth infantry.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh, governor of Benguet province, who was recently ordered to Manila for investigation of certain charges against him, presented his case to the United States Philippine commission at their executive session today. Mr. Whitmarsh denied every charge made against him.

The result of the commission's action in the matter will be made known Saturday.

Around the World in Sixty Days.

Chicago, July 22.—Charles Cecil Fiztmorris, the 17-year-old Chicago school boy, who was one of the three lads sent out by W. R. Hearst, the newspaper proprietor, in an attempt to break the record for the trip around the world, arrived here Saturday in time which breaks previous records by George Francis Train and Nellie Bly. He was met at the union depot by his parents, Acting Mayor Blockl, Col. Wm. Cody, and numerous friends, but he tarried only a moment, as a carrige was waiting to whisk him to 214-16 Madison street, the point from which he had started. At this point it was said the boy had made the trip of 20,340 miles in exactly 60 days, 13 hours, 29 minutes, 42 4-5 seconds, winning easily from his competitors sent out from New York and San Francisco. The time given includes delays and stops equal to about six days.

Capt. Botha Killed.

London, July 19.—Lord Kitchener, commanding the British forces in South Africa, reports to the war office as follows:

"Elandsfontein, July 18.—Captain Charles Botha, son of Philip Botha, and field Cornets Human and Olive have been killed in the Orange River colony."

Americans Will Be Held.

Washington, July 22.—In response to the representations to the state department, the British government have declined to release any of the Amricans who were captured while serving in the Boer army. The only exception will be in the case of prisoners whose health is such as to make their confinement dangerous.

South African Casualties.

London, July 22.—The casualty lists received at the war office indicate that a party of South African constabulary was ambushed near Petrusburg, July 16, that two members of the party were killed, one was dangerously wounded,, and seventeen are missing and are believed ho have been taken prisoners by the Boers.

Mongolia Under Russian Control.

London, July 19.—"Mongolia is now Russian," says a dispatch to the Daily Express from St. Petersburg. "Urga, a Chinese frontier on the road to Peking, about 200 miles south of Kikhta, has been fortified and garrisoned by Russian infantry and Cossacks. Surveying parties, escorted by troops, have penetrated as far as the edge of the great desert to determine the route of a railway to Peking across the desert, and the point where it will join the mid-Siberian railway extension, now being constructed around the south end of Lake Baikal."

DROUTH AND HEAT CONTINUE.

Much Suffering From Protracted Conditions in Southwest.

Kansas City, Mo., July 22.—For thirty-one successive days the temperature in Kansas City has risen above 90 degrees each afternoon. On most of these days the temperature has reached or exceeded 100 degrees, and during the past twelve days the 100 degree mark has been reached regularly. Since April 5, there has been but one heavy shower, on June 22. Most of the thermometers register 110 in the shade early in the day, and if exposed to the sun would record 120. There have been few heat prostrations and not many deaths directly ascribed to the heat, but the mortality among feeble old persons and young children has been unusually large. The same conditions of heat and rainfall have prevailed all over the drouth stricken region of the southwest Kansas, west Missouri, Indian Territory and Oklahoma. Prayers for rain were offered yesterday in nearly all the churches in Missouri and Kansas, in the former state in obedience to the governor's proclamation. In some of the churches in this city special services were held.

EXAMPLE SET BY JAPAN

Gives Up Her Demand for Increase in Indemnity.

Washington, July 18.—In a spirit which has aroused the keenest admiration of the state department, the Japanese government has met the difficulty growing out of the preference of her request for an increase of her indemnity by withdrawing that request. The result is a substantial loss to Japan. She asked originally for $23,000,000. This figure was more moderate than any of the powers which played any prominent part in the Chinese campaign and represented the barest expense of the undertaking. It was fixed upon the idea that payment was to be made in cash by China. Confronted with the bond payment, the Japanese government asked that her allotment be increased to $27,000,000 in bonds to make good the loss she would suffer through the sale of the bonds.

As soon as some of the other nations found that the allotment, as originally fixed, was in danger of being disturbed, they came in with increased demands and thus it is that Japan, finding that insistence upon her demand would be to blockade the negotiations at this phase, has withdrawn her request for the present at least. It is safe to assume that the United States government will do what it can to secure compensation for Japan in some other way in the future.

It is understood to be the desire of the great powers that the disposition of Manchuria should go before the ministers at Peking and be finally determined by a joint agreement among the powers. Although no definite steps have been taken in that direction it is being discussed by foreign representatives stationed here, who fully expect that the plan will be adopted.

Russia, it is said, will be reluctant to agree to it. Attention has been directed to the latter by representation that Russia had assumed direct negotiations with China concerning Manchuria and also by Tuesday's cablegram stating that Russian proclamation was about to be issued establishing Nu Chwang as a Russian port.

As to the report that Russia will proclaim Nu Chwang to be a Russian port, it is pointed out in diplomatic quarters that Nu Chwang is a treaty port and as such open to the commerce of the world under the existing tariff regulations with China, and foreign merchants have the right to trade and to conduct establishments there. These rights of trade could not be diverted in the opinion of diplomatic officials by a Russian proclamation unless the powers had previously given assent. Thus far, however, there has been no request from Russia or China for any change in the status of Nu Chwang as one of the treaty ports.

Mr. Rockhill, our special commissioner at Peking has been instructed to give the assent of the United States to the discussion of the proposition to increase the Chinese customs duties in order to provide means for the payment of the international indemnity. Our government is still opposed to this project and the instruction is sent only in deference to the universal wish for a speedy conclusion of the negotiations at Peking. It is learned that the hitch in these negotiations, the most baffling that has yet occurred, is due entirely to the issue raised as to the increase of customs.

SIBERIAN CROPS FAIL.

Two Months of Drouth Has Caused Entire Crop of Cereals to Fail.

London, July 22.— A dispatch to the Evening Standard from Odessa says that, according to the reports from special agents, the Siberian crops appear to be nearly a total failure. In the great grain producing regions of Minussinsk and Krasnoyarsk almost the entire growth of cereals has perished as a result of the two months' drouth. The south Russian crop may bedescribed upon the whole as fairly average, yet there are popular districts in the Elkatrinoslaff government and an instance is cited of the utter destruction of about 40,000 acres of grain by hail storms and the Hessian fly.

The worst of all are the Volgo provinces. The peasantry of this vast region are already practically destitute. They have sold the cattle and horses they could not feed and have consumed nearly their whole scanty stocks of food and seed grain. The Russian minister of ways and communications is making active provision for the timely transportation of food, grain and other supplies from the south.

TARIFF WAR ENDING.

Former Russo-American Commercial Relations Soon to Be Resumed.

London, July 19.—The Odessa correspondent of the Standard says that the opinion is very general in official circles in St. Petersburg that the acute stage of the tariff dispute with the United States is now safely weathered and that commercial relations between the two countries will shortly resume their normal character. Although Mr. Witte, minister of finance, was throughout convinced of the justice of his resistive attitude, he was sufficiently wise and tactful to discern the expediency of not pushing his contension beyond a certain limit. He has now come to a frank and cordial understanding by such courteous and considerate means as not to leave the slightest after-soreness in Washington. This is patently obvious in the tone of the Russian reply to Secretary Hay's note.

Steyn Escapes in His Shirt Sleeves.

London, July 16.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated at Pretoria: "Broadwood's brigade surprised Reitsz, capturing Steyn's brother and others. Steyn himself escaped in his shirt sleeves, with one other man only. The so-called Orange River government and papers were captured."

Hill Admits His Candidacy.

New York, July 16.—Senator David B. Hill has confided to his intimate friends his intention to try for the democratic nomination for the presidency in 1904.

PRESIDENT STEYN IS DETERMINED

Says That the Boers Should Not Give Up at This Time.

London, July 19.—The war office has issued a dispatch from Lord Kitchener giving the correspondence between Mr. Reitz and Mr. Steyn that was captured with the latter's baggage near Lindley July 11.

Mr. Reitz, under date of May 10, wrote Mr. Steyn that a meeting of the Transvaal government had been held, attended by General Botha, General Viljoen and Mr. Smutz, to consider the national situation. He went on to catalogue the difficulties—the numerous surrenders of burghers entailing a heavy responsibilty on the government, the rapidly decreasing supply of ammunition, the disintegration of the government and the lack of any definite assurances of European intervention.

"In view of these facts," he said, "the government has decided to address a message to President Kruger pointing out the terrible condition. The time has passed for us to let matters drift as at present. We must take a final step."

Mr. Steyn, replying May 15, upbraids Mr. Reitz with weak-heartedness, saying:

"There is still sufficient ammunition to continue the struggle. You ask what prospect there is of a successful termination. I ask what chance there was for two small republics when they declared war against the mighty power of Great Britain. You will answer that we trusted in God and in foreign intervention. What reason is there now to place less trust in God?

"I have seen recent European newspapers, and I firmly believe that complications will occur in Europe in the course of a few months which will secure our good fortune."

Mr. Steyn also says the facts that Mr. Kruger and the Boer delegates remain in Europe convinces him that they consider the case not beyond hope. He adds that he has summoned General De Wet and urges Mr. Reitz to take no steps until he has heard further from him.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY SUSTAINED.

Secretary of the Navy Rejects History Criticising Maryland Man.

Washington, July 20.—The secretary of the navy has decided that the third volume of Mackay's history of the Spanish-American war shall not be used as a text book at the naval academy unless the obnoxious language it contains in characterizing the action of Rear Admiral Schley is eliminated. The secretary says that it would be manifestly improper to have a history containing such intemperate language as a text book for the cadets. He will inform both Commander Wainwright, who is in command of the naval academy, and Mr. Mackay, the author, of his decision. In this connection the secretary says that the proofs of the entire volume were not submitted to him by the historian. He received only proofs of the third chapter, that relating to the mobilization of the fleets, which contained a summary of the orders which he, as secretary of the navy, had issued in making the naval preparations for the war. That chapter was satisfactory, and he returned it to Mr. Mackay with an indication of his approval. He says he never saw the account of the battle of Santiago and the criticisms of Rear Admiral Schley until after the book was published. Mr. Mackay was appointed to his present position in the New York navy yard August 23, 1900, having been transferred from the lighthouse service.

STEYN'S VIEWS UPHELD.

Boer Leaders Contend That Reitz Is Unnecessarily Pessimistic.

Paris, July 22.—An official communication received from the Boer headquarters protests against the publication of the correspondence between Mr. Reitz, Transvaal state secretary, and Mr. Steyn, president of the Orange Free state, that was captured with the latter's baggage near Lindley, July 11. The communication maintains that Mr. Steyn's optimistic views are fully upheld by confidential reports from Botha, Delarney, Smutz Smutz and Beyer.

It is said that Mr. Kruger has received within a week a most satisfactory letter from General Botha, in which details of future plans and movements are given, everything going to show that the Boers in the field are as determined and confident as ever.

TO OVERTHROW FRENCH REPUBLIC

Conspiracy to Make Louis Napoleon Emperor Is Unearthed.

London, July 20.—The Pall Mall Gazette yesterday published a communication from its Paris correspondent, giving circumstantial details of an alleged republic to overthrow the French republic and install Prince Louis Napoleon as emperor. The correspondent is assured that September 14, upon which date the czar intends to promote Prince Louis to a full generalship in the Russian army, has been selected as the occasion for a demonstration to support the claims of this prince, who is such a close friend of their Russian ally, by all the elements opposed to the present regime. The names of M. De Roulede, the Marquis de Lur Saluces and M. Mariel-Habert are mentioned as the leading spirits of the movement, and several high functionaries of the present government are alleged to be assisting the movement with funds.

Water Famine in Jerusalem.

London, July 22.—"Famine threatens the Holy city," says the Jerusalem correspondent of the London Standard, "on account of the scant water supply, due to the insufficient rains of last winter. The sultan has granted permission to the municipalities to bring water from the pools of Solomon through iron pipes into the city along the line of Solomon's stone aqueduct. The new works were begun Saturday on telegraphic orders from the sultan. They will be finished in two months."

Alleged Anarchist Arrested.

London, July 22.—A special dispatch from Rome says a man named Narceeso Miotti has been arrested on the charge of being concerned in an anarchist plot to kill King Emanuel. He was betrayed by a letter to his sweetheart breaking off their engagement of marriage on the score that he had received an order to kill the king from a society of which he was a member.

Leyds Ordered to The Hague.

New York, July 22.—A dispatch from Paris says Dr. Leyds, the representative of the Transvaal, has been summoned in haste to The Hague, in consequence of the divulgement of the Peitz-Steyn letters, which were captured by General Broadwood at Reitz, in the Orange river colony.

The thinner a man's hair becomes the more particular he is in regard to combing it.

South African War.

Durban, Natal, July 22.—In consequence of the Boer raids into Natal and the support given the raiders by the republicans the military authorities have ordered all white men, with their live stock, food stuffs, and clothing to evacuate all farms between the Tagela and Sundeas rivers. Any white man remaining in this section of the country after July 31, will be subject to martial law.

Death of Mrs. Kruger.

Paris, July 22.—A dispatch from Brussels says former President Kruger has been notified by cable that his wife died Saturday at Pretoria.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, July 22, 1901.

Before starting for Yellowstone park, with the members of his family, Governor L. M. Shw issued a proclamation designed to aid in the Boer relief fund movement. This movement has been inaugurated in Iowa by H. D. Viljoen and A .B. Liebenberg. The former was in Des Moines Monday for the purpose of arranging for two lectures here.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"To the people of Iowa—Field Cornet Hercules D. Viljoen of Aliwal North, Cape Colony, South Africa, who comes to our state with proper credentials, is laboring in the interest of the Boer widows and orphans of that land. It is to be hoped that he and his colleague, Commandant A. B. Liebenberg, will meet with liberal and attentive audiences wheresoever their duties may call them in this state, and that the contributions to the relief fund which they are endeavoring to raise shall be worthy of our good state of Iowa, whose people are noted for their generosity in relieving distress.

"Leslie M. Shaw,

"Governor of the state of Iowa."

A collateral inheritance windfall of unusual proportions has just been handed into the state treasury by Emma L. Schwenker, executrix of the estate of W. F. Bruning of Henry county. The tax amounts to $5,827.22 and was paid on an estate amounting to $116,544.50, of which $110,000 consisted of personal property. It is not often that estates consisting almost exclusively of personal property are as resourceful to the state. Personal property, although it must be scheduled according to law, is much easier secreted than realty.

In an oral opinion handed down in police court, Judge Silvara ruled that palmistry is fortune telling, and fortune telling is vagrancy, and that Zera Rodigo and Jura Castello were guilty of both. Thereupon the judge fined the two bright-eyed Spanish women $10 and costs each. The defendants gave notice of appeal, and the case will be carried to the district court.

I. K. Wilson, secretary of the Des Moines & Northern Iowa road, which filed amended articles of incorporation a few days ago, authorizing it to build a line in Minnesota, says that his company will commence the work of construction north of Boone this year. Mr. Wilson would not say how much road will be built this year, but insisted that arrangements have been made for the construction of considerable mileage. He said that engineers are still at work in the field and that three preliminary lines have been run between Boone and Des Moines.

The state dairy commissioner has sent out circulars calling the attention of the butter makers to the liberal premiums offered this year by the state fair for exhibits of creamery, dairy and package butter and cheese. Last year the creamery butter pro rata was $350 and the minimum 94. This year's premiums amount to $505, with the minimum at 91½. It is expected that there will be a larger butter exhibit at the state fair this year than has ever been known in the history of the state. The premiums are better and conditions generally more satisfactory to the butter makers.

The state labor commissioner is compiling reports received from the wage earners of the state, in which among other things they tell what legislation would be of benefit to their particular calling. These reports are now being classified for the purpose of being embodied in the biennial report of the labor commissioner. The purpose in soliciting them is that they may be put before the legisiature as a fair showing of what the laboring people of the state want. While the statements have not been received in as large numbers as was desired, the leading trades are represented and it is fair to say that the report of the labor commissioner will show what legislation the wage earners believe is most necessary. It is a new feature of the labor commissioner's report and one which it is believed will serve to present the cause of the working men to the legislature in an effective way. The statements were received from the wage earners as a part of what is known as the individual wage earners statement, which the labor commissioner is required to solicit. The answers to the inquiries in regard to legislation will be used as a special chapter of the report and not embodied in the general statistical table.

Judge Smith McPherson of the United States circuit court for the Southern district of Iowa, has handed down a decision in the Des Moines City Railway tax case, in which the order restraining John McKay, county treasurer, from selling property of the street car company for back taxes, is continued in force indefinitely. The Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, holders of bonds of the street car company, secured the restraining order, on the ground that its securities would be impaired by the sale of the property. Treasurer McKay entered a motion to dissolve the restraining order. The court's refusal is based upon the fact that the case should be, and is, properly before the Polk county district court, and no sale of the road should be permitted until the case is decided. The court also holds that the county officers cannot rightfully be parties to the appeal of the street car company from the assessment of the city council sitting as a board of equalization. Finally, Judge McPherson leaves the case in the hands of the state courts, expressing "no doubh that the Iowa courts will take the proper action."

Aguinaldo Chafing Under Restraint.

Manila, July 22.—Aguinaldo is considerably irritated at his continued surveillance by the American authorities. Whenever he signs his name he must add the word "Prisoner." He has refused the request of his friends to write the insurgent General Malvar, still at large in Southern Luzon, advising him to surrender. He consented to sign a copy of his oath of allegiance with the understanding it shall be forwarded to Malwith the purpose of influencing his surrender, but under his signature to this oath he wrote "Prisoner in Malacanan prison."

Turkish Order Against Christianity.

Constantinople, July 20.—Following the graduation of the first Turkish girl at the American Girls' college, the Turkish government has issued an edict prohibiting Turkish children from attending foreign schools, the employment of Christian teachers in Turkish households, or the appearance of Turkish ladies in public accompanied by Christian women companions. This edict deprives hundreds of foreign governesses of the means of subsistence. It is intended to prevent the dissemination of liberal ideas.

NO COMPROMISE IN STRIKE

Morgan Declares Steel Corporation Will Never Yield

TO DEMAND OF THE WORKERS,

Out For Finish Fight—Arbitration Board Gives Up Hope of Securing Employers' Consent to Any New Negotiations—Shaffer Still Confident.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 22.—All hope of compromise in the steel strike seemingly is gone. J. Pierpont Morgan, in an interview in New York City, has declared there would be no concessions to the men, and that the combine was right in its stand, and the State Board of Arbitration has given up its attempts at mediation. President Shaffer, in discussing the situation, admitted he had no expectation of arbitration, but he declared a finish fight would result in victory for the men. According to a dispatch from New York J. P. Morgan, in giving denial to the rumor that the steel strike had been settled, made this statement: "There is not a word of truth in it. There has been no settlement, and there can be no compromise on such a question. The proposition of the operating companies is perfectly simple and well understood, and so far as I am concerned, has my unqualified approval."

Shaffer Talks of Situation.

President Shaffer has received a telegram from Joseph Bishop, secretary of the Ohio State Board of Arbitration, stating that he has been unable to make any progress in the matter of reopening negotiations with the officers of the steel combines. Regarding this and the declaration of Mr. Morgan, President Shaffer said: "I have read Mr. Morgans' statement about the strike. He doesn't seem to care much about the stock of the steel corporation, does he? If I had the time I'd like to reply to him and perhaps ask him a few questions. But now I have nothing to say. What's the use. Mr. Morgan says the position of the operating companies is simple and well understood. So is ours. We have prepared our plans after full deliberation as

A JUDGE'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH.

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. JUDGE MCALLISTER.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd st., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drug stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

We would therefore caution all people against accepting these substitutes. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR THE WABASH.

Effective July 10th. The Wabash is placing the first of the large order of equipment, consisting of two baggage, 8 combination pasenger and baggage, 30 coaches, 10 chair cars, 3 cafe cars and 2 dining cars into service. The trains running from Chicago leaving at 11:00 a. m., 3:03 p. m., 9:15 p. m. and 11:00 p. m., respectively, will carry this new equipment. Much comment has been made upon the elegant broad vestibule chair cars in this service. In addition to this extra equipment, the Pan-American Special, running between St. Louis and Buffalo, leaves St. Louis at 1:00 p. m., arriving at Buffalo 8:20 a. m. Returning, leaves Buffalo 1:30 p. m., arrives St. Louis 7:56 a. m. This train has been equipped with the large broad vestibule chair cars and cafe library and observation cars, something entirely new, an innovation in the passenger service.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY,
Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy, which appears in another column of this paper. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's, for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the same high standard as that of Vassar and Bryn Mawr, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher of St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of climatic conditions—all these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work in a spot favored by the Lord.

STORIETTES.

Archbishop Temple was once occupying a seat as an ordinary worshiper in a country church, his immediate left-hand neighbor being a country yokel, who kept turning angry glances toward the bishop—as he then was—in evident depreciation of his lordship's vocal efforts. The bishop, however, continued making what he described as "a joyful noise," until at last the yokel disgustedly closed his book, and, turning to the bishop, remarked: "I say, guv'nor, chuck it. You're spailin' the whole bloomin' show!"

In New York, the other day, a newsboy stood in City Hall Park with a bundle of newspapers in his arms, but he made no sound. Instead of greeting those who passed him with a shrill "Wextry, last 'dition, all about the murder!" he saluted gravely and pointed to his papers. People stared and wondered, then turned around and bought a paper. "The poor boy is deaf and dumb," said a woman, as she gave him a nickel and took an "extra." The boy was coining money, when one of his friends happened to come along. He nearly fell in a fit when he observed the grave salute and the silent tongue. "Say, Jakey, w'at's you givin' us?" he began; but the other boy did not notice, so he yelled out: "Come out of it, Jakey, or I'll tell the cop, and he'll pull you in for runnin' a fake game.' "Oh, h—l!" said the one who had been lately deaf and dumb; "I had a cinch on that keepin' quiet game, an' now you've spoiled it!"

In 1896, ex-Lieutenant-Governor David A. Ball, of Missouri, was trying to persuade the gold democrats that, notwithstanding the fact that they differed from the regulars on the financial issue, they agreed with them on so many points that they ought to vote for Bryan anyway. He wound up that part of his speech as follows: "How would a moss back Missouri democrat look voting with the republicans? I will tell you. Up in Pike county an old chap undertook to commit suicide by hanging himself with a blind-bridle. Just as he was about dead his son cut him down. The old man rubbed his eyes, and said: 'John, if you had let me alone a minute longer I would have been in heaven.' 'Yes, replied the boy, 'you would have cut a h—l of a figure in heaven looking through a blind-bridle, wouldn't you?' And that," concluded Mr. Ball, "is the way a Missouri democrat would look voting for a republican under any circumstances whatsoever!"

A gentlemen in the smokers' cabin of a Jersey City ferryboat was smoking a huge and rather rank cigar. He said to a fellow passenger who sat next to him: "I enjoy a quiet smoke." "Well," said the stranger, and moving toward the door, "you will never be troubled with crowds while you smoke cigars of that brand."

After a spree in Kokomo, Ind., Isaac Stevens of Greentown awoke in jail, minus his wooden leg. Investigation disclosed that Stevens had brought five wooden legs with him to the city, four of which he had pawned for drink at as many different saloons. The fifth leg he offered to the judge as security for his fine, but the magistrate refused to accept it.

Soon after her marriage, which took place about fifty years ago, Mrs. Hester S. Thorpe of Flushing, N. Y., made a vow that she would never pass beyond her front gate. She kept the vow, confining her strolls to her little yard. She never saw a railroad or a trolley car, although both are within a few blocks of her home. Her death occurred recently at the age of seventy-two.

After a revival service in Cardiff, Wales, the Rev. John McNeill announced that he would answer any question about the bible. In a few moments he received this query from a young man: "Kindly tell me who was Cain's wife?" The clergyman made this reply: "I love young men, especially young inquirers for light, and I would give the young man a word of advice: Don't lose your soul's salvation looking after other people's wives."

Susie: A Character Sketch

By Philip Verrill Mighels

Along the path at noon came a stunted man, a barrel-shaped miner, who "blazed" his track with a cut-off shovel used as a cane.

"Paper for Henley," he puffingly remarked as he opened the door of the shed above the shaft. "Paper 'dressed to 'Franklin Henley,'" and tossing it in by the side of the man who was eating his lunch on a box, he plodded ahead to return to the trail.

"Thank you, Billy," called the other; "much obliged."

He finished a bone, gave his fingers a wipe on the ragged trousers and slit off the wrapper of the "down-east" paper.

Sitting in the door, he read the news of the far-away home eagerly absorbing every line. Of a sudden he paused; a gleam of something wild came flashing in his eyes and the muscles of his hands and arms abruptly stiffened.

"Married, by the Rev. Richard Watson, Feb. 20, Miss Agnes Coles to Frederick Law." was all that he read.

The type swung a dizzy waltz, with the notice for their center—a thousand animated demon spots they were, dancing at his anguish.

He hurled the sheet, in a crunched-up ball, along in the brush; he grasped a pick and went where the paper lay—all crisply swelling to open again—and dug and gashed it to dirt-printed shreds.

"So that's the reason she hasn't been writing!" he fiercely hissed. "That's the game he's worked on the quiet shift! Undermined me!—tapped the vein!—robbed the pocket! Damn his cowardly heart!—damn the mine!—damn everything!" His voice was choked; he reeled to the shed, he sank—half flung—to the earthen floor, to lie where the door, like a flabby jaw, was vainly trying to close against his body.

His fingers gouged in the sand like hooks; his face was pressed to the chill, hard cheek of the soil. The wind swept through the hole of a window its vent, beating the door, in weak, squeaking blows against his back.

The day grew old; a drizzling rain descended; darkness obscured him as he lay, half within, half without. The night came down and found him motionless. The creak, creak, creak of the door was mingled at midnight with the distant howling of a lone coyote.

In the morning, when the Indian girl was come to the cabin, a wild-eyed man, mumbling and groping, haggard, unkempt, staggered out of the sage brush to fall over on the floor of the kitchen.

There on the boards she fashioned the couch whereon he tossed and rolled, fought and mined for fourteen nights and days.

Feebly he opened his eyes at length. It was Susie above him, laving his forehead; Susie preparing the food at the stove; Susie who sang him the lullaby of rest in Washoe music, soft and persuasive.

Wistfully his eyes remained on her round young face. He lay there helpless, feeling like a man of thewless cotton. Day by day she coaxed his pulse to its strong, quick thump of action. Night by night his energy crept in through his system again. Yet what was the use.

There came an hour when he tottered to his feet, got the gush of spring from the visiting breeze, and at length returned to the mine—to dig in the adamant, to work off the shadows of hatred and vengeance.

He dug out a pocket of gold, nearly pure, and laughed in scorn at its glittering spread on the salver of dross and porphyry. It lay where it fell—a pyramid of riches; and he striking sparks from his steel and the rock in the opposite end of the tunnel.

Susie remained—his shy little doe—adoring the air that haloed him about, thrilling unceasingly to hear him speak—lived in her womanly scheme of an earthly heaven.

The blossoms now presented their cheeks and lips in manifold petals for the sun's caress; the birds, wide-throated by gushing melodies, expressed throughout the day the joys of twining a nest in the branches. The Indian girl outspread her very fingers, to feel the current of love and life that sweetened the air.

At times, as the spring bud bourgeoned into summer, the girl and Henley roamed on the hills hand-in-hand, seeking the grass blades that smoothed the roots of the sage brush, hunting out the flowers, mocking the mellow lark—who sang of endless summer.

Now and again the man was fired by hot desire to honeycomb the mighty hills with drifts and shafts and tunnels. Yet, how sweet to wander "home" in the cool of the evening, stepping to the cheerful notes of crickets by the trail, to meet the day newborn again in the beaming face of Susie!

CHAPTER II.

Chloride Hill, the mining camp, was nothing to Henley, nothing to Susie. But out of its streets there came one day a tall, stalwart Indian, who stood aloft in the kitchen door and gazed in pleasure on the Indian girl.

"Mingo!" she cried in alarm.

"Yes, Mingo," he replied slowly and clearly, grinning like a wolf. "Mingo, big hunter."

She had backed away and stood there trembling. "What do you want?" she finally gasped, in the musical speech of the Washoes. "Why do you come?"

"Mingo, the hunter, comes for you," said he. "Mingo wants his mahala, his wife."

"What do you mean?" she cried aghast.

"Mingo's mahala is afraid like the chipmunk," he joyously announced. "Mingo will make her like the pool of the water. Mingo will take his wife; he has given her father his rifle and pony. She will go to the lodge of Mingo."

"Mingo is locoed" (crazed), she answered. Here is my lord. I am his mahala. This is Susie's wikiup."

"No," said he, growing dark with frowning, "you my wife—my squaw. Your father, he say so. He say you go with Mingo, go to Mingo's wigwam."

"But I can't go to your wigwam. I don't love you—don't you sabbee? I don't love you."

"Mingo, he loves you. That is plenty. I tell you come."

"Oh, you sneaking coyote! If my husband were here you would run like the coward. You would never come to the white man's wikiup."

"He is not your husband, mahala. Do you say to Mingo, the white chief here is your husband?"

She faltered, staggered and groped a little backward.

"You say it not," he quickly continued. "It is lying. No, the mahala is not the wife at his side. She has broken the Indians' law; she has broken the law of the white man. Mahala, you belong to Mingo. I tell you come."

He moved toward her; she recoiled in dread. Her searching hand came down on the table, fell on the handle of a knife, and she grasped it suddenly.

"Stand far away," she cried, displaying the blade, "you sneaking coyote! You come when women are alone—you, the great hunter! Keep away! Go! Let in the light! Take your bad coyote face to the sage brush, you coward!"

The savage blood of her nature was aflame. The Washoe flinched not at all, neither did he come. He was cunning, more than brave. The dull, banked fires were aglow in his eyes, his body was bent in a menacing attitude, his head thrown malignantly forward. Muttering threats of vengeance he glided backward, and she slammed and bolted the door. Then down on the floor she sank, to lie there breathing like a wounded animal.

On the hill, in the sunshine, Henley was gazing at the deep blue sky, that showed in a patch through a window in the shed above the mine. Along the path, down below, at his back, the squat, little barrel-shaped miner labored wheezingly upward.

"Letter for Henley," he called at the door, and threw in the missive and trudged along the hill.

Not an answering sound did Henley make. "A letter," he mused, not starting at all from his resting position. "Comes a trifle late, I reckon. Life-preserver to a corpse—so far as the world beyond is at all concerned." He gazed another hour at the sky, while the light moved slowly athwart the earthen floor and lay at length, a brilliant finger, across the face of the upturned envelope.

Turning, he saw the white and placid invitation. His eyes began dissecting its features. Presently the writing, round and straight, made him move by stages involuntarily toward the light.

"Hers," he whispered.

His jaw grew square and firmly set; his eyes grew hard and glinted like flint. Yet he took up the letter and broke it open sullenly.

* * and my illness increased to such an extent that the doctor said I would have to go to the warm Bermudas. Every one about was quite alarmed—they neglected you, my dearest heart—and for many a week I lay like a shadow on the pillow.

* * * I enclose a notice, the funniest thing, that was printed in the Star.

"Married by the Rev. Richard Watson, Feb. 20, Miss Agnes Coles to Frederick Law."

Isn't it odd?—the oddest thing! Of course it ought to be Kolles; but such a laugh they have had on me, and on Agnes too. But bless her heart, she doesn't mind; she's got her Fred at last, and they are very happy——"

His senses were swimming crazily, the world was whirring wildly in space—he tottered in his walk.

Out he went, clutching his letter—out to the light—out and away up the hill, striding like an engine breasting the breeze, fronting the steep ascent, panting and straining to reach that upper isolation.

"Frank, oh, Frank," cried Susie when he came. "Mingo, the Indian—"

Be brushed her by. He looked at her blankly; his ears failed to focus the sounds of her voice; he merely comprehended that something was uttered.

"No, no," he answered, "no, not now—I'm dizzy—rattled."

She stood with eyes wide open and startled—dumbly appealing. "But Mingo," she said, "Mingo, the Indian, he came to-day—and he—threatened—threatened us."

"Mingo—Mingo! He's a coward—I'm tired—never mind him, Susie."

He stretched forth his hand. She leaped to place it on her neck, and kissed it wildly. He stood there truly, but himself was far away.

Pacing and pacing, he wore away the hours in the cabin. All through the night she watched his face with startled eyes, pain, doubt and yearning in her dumb, trusting look.

In the morning he bolted to the hill again; and she, like a doe that not anything but one who is master, followed him timidly far behind—followed till he threw himself down in the sage brush. She sank where she was, to wait there in patience.

In the grass-broken sand he lay and sat and lay again, thinking rapidly, incoherently the same things over and over. Under it all ran a current of echoes: "Saved my life—she saved my life—she saved my life."

At length his wandering attention was caught by a motley procession moving slowly along in the dust-wreathed road below. There were half a dozen Washoe Indians, more perhaps, approaching the town—men and women. They had two horses—jaded, hopeless creatures—that three old men were riding. Near them, walking barefooted, heavily laden, were three or four squaws, with time-furrowed visages. The loads were contained in sacks and in conical baskets, heaped on the shoulders and supported by heavy bands, which went across the foreheads of these camel-females. Forward the burdened ones bent, looking, as if in submission and patience, on the ground, leaning on sticks which they used with either hand. It was only a party returning from the mountains with the gathered supply of bitter acorns and berries from the red manzanita. For fifty miles they had traveled thus. Painfully the wretched caravan crawled around the hill and disappeared.

Henley watched them, strangely intent. "Saved my life," he muttered aloud. "Indian—same as those. Saved me. Yes, she'll wrinkle—be old. Why did I have to have the fever! Saved my life. Wrinkled, fearful old squaws."

Susie saw the squalid show. "Oh," she cried in anguish to herself. "Oh, the women—oh, the Washoe women! Were they young long ago? Were they part of the summer? Did they hear the larks and crickets? Did they love?" She threw herself forward where she sat till her face was buried in her curving arm. "Oh, love!" she cried; "there is nothing in the world for me but love!"

The thoughts of Henley finally crystalized in form and sequence. He knew he would leave her, knew he would certainly desert all things Western and go to the far-away East. How to do it gently, what to provide for her comfort, what he should say, how apply a balm with the caustic—these were matters to be planned and planned.

Early the following morning he went to his mine to gather the gold where it lay beneath the pocket. There, alone, he labored hour after hour. The mine was simply a hole in the ground, 50 feet in depth, with branching tunnels down below; and over the mouth a windlass stood, with a rope about it, supporting a bucket that rested on the bottom. Built against one of the perpendicular walls was a wooden ladder, for ingress to and egress from the lower levels.

In the afternoon, from the rocks on the hill, a crouching form came stealthily down through the scrubby brush. It was Mingo, the Washoe Indian. Noiselessly he crept to the shed—after scanning the prospect far and near for any living thing—there to lie full length on a plank at the edge of the shaft. His practiced ear was quick to catch the dull sound of blows that issued from the mine. Long he lay without moving a muscle. He could wait an hour; he could wait a day.

PAYING GOLD MINES.

Gold Fever Breaks Out Near the Nation's Capital.

Washington, the national capital, is having its little attack of gold fever, though with more apparent reason than usually is the case with most of the gold crazes in the east. The government geologists, it is said, have located eight distinct veins of gold bearing rock within easy walking distance of the city. The gold belt is about eight miles wide, and runs northeast and southwest, following the bends of the Potomac River. It is part of the auriferous deposits of the Appalachian Mountains, known in the Virginia section, particularly about Spottsylvania county, since colonial times. Between 1829 and 1854 the records of the United States mint show about $1,500,000 of gold to have been sent from Virginia mines. The civil war interrupted all mining operations. After the war there was an effort to reopen some of the old properties, but uncurbed speculation worked their failure. Since then it is said that hardly more than $15,000 a year has been sent to the mint from this region. Several senators who understand mining are now said to be taking an interest in some of these eastern properties, and there may be a revival of the industry here. Professor S. F. Emmons of the geological survey says that the conduit road, which leads out of Washington to Cabin John Bridge and part way to Great Falls, is macademized with quartz, most of it gold bearing, and much assaying as high as $16 a ton. The quartz was taken largely from the adjoining farms. Several stamp mills are working in this neighborhood with fair results. The assays run from $7 to 27, and average about $12 a ton. Nuggets of three or four ounces have been shown as coming from the bed of Rock Run, a tributary to the Potomac. In the civil war California volunteers, who knew gold when they saw it, are said to have discovered rich deposits near Great Falls, where they were encamped, and they planned, "after the cruel war was over," to return and work it, but they never did so. Perhaps those who made the find were killed in war.—New York Press.

Farm Wells.

The location of the well on the farm is one of the greatest importance. In many instances the farmer starts his well near the buildings and yards, an selects the lowest point as a location, with the idea that he will not have to dig as deep as he would upon higher land. This is often a mistake, as we know of several places in a village where the wells near the top of the hill are not as deep and are not as much affected by a drouth as those on the lower land at the foot of the hill, though there may be fifty or a hundred feet difference in this elevation But the chief objection to the well on the low ground is that it receives the surface drainage from the higher land and thus the water soon becomes so contaminated as to be unfit for use, either by the family or the animals, for to be healthy they must have pure water. In these days of driven wells a pipe can often be sunk on the highest gravel knoll or sand hill on the farm more cheaply than in the low land, and when water is reached it is pure and will continue so, because the surface water runs away from it and not toward it. If a windmill is erected the wind power is better, and by tank and pipes water can be brought to house, barn and yards, or carried to irrigate the garden and strawberry bed in a way to make it doubly pay for itself, first in savings of daily hard labor at the pump and next in increased crops by having a water supply when needed. We heard a market gardener near Boston say, a few years ago, that he put down driven wells, bought a steam engine and pump, built a tank and laid pipes, and the increased value of his crops paid the whole expense the first year, including cost of running the engine. Many a man who thought he could not afford to put in a new well has paid out more cash for doctor's and undertaker's bills than the well would have cost.—American Cultivator.

Enough to Eat at Last.

An old ex-slave of Tennessee went to Memphis recently to get his pension check cashed. After receiving his money, which amounted to $11, he sauntered down Front street to a produce house and bought three crates of cabbages. When they were delivered at the wharf late that afternoon the old man was there and received them with a mouth watering in anticipation of the good time ahead. "Whut yer gwine ter do wid dem cabbages?" inquired the negro drayman who delivered them. "Eat 'em," was the quick response; "I'se bin free 40 years, and dis is de first time I'se had de money to buy 'nu cabbage. I'se gwine ter eat cabbages till I furgit de way ter my mouf."

Henry Loses Two Hours a Day.

For two hours out of the twenty-four Duke Henry must play the second fiddle. Queen Wilhelmina once remarked that her husband should be her loyal and obedient subject two hours of the day, when she should be devoted to the affairs of state, but for the remainder of the time she would be his devoted and obedient wife.

Augustus Hare tells this story in his autobiography of a friend, who, in some way, was one of the most absent-minded men in the world. One day, meeting a friend, he said:: Hello, what a long time it is since I've seen you! How's your father?" "Oh, my father's dead." "God bless me! I am very sorry." The next year he met the same man again, and had forgotten all about it, so began with: "Hello, what a long time since I've seen you! How's your father?" "Oh, my father's dead still."

A white minister was conducting religious services in a colored church in North Carolina recently. After exhorting a bit, he asked an old colored deacon to lead in prayer, and, according to the Roanoke News, this is the appeal which the brother in black offered for his brother in white: "O Lord, gib him de eye ob de eagle dat he spy out sin afar off. Glue his hands to de gospel plow. Tie his tongue to de line ob truth. Nail his ear to de gospel pole. Bow his head way down between his knees, and his knees way down in some lonesome, dark and narrer valley, where prayer is much wanted to be made. 'Noint him wid de kerosene ile of salvashun and sot him on fire."

Johnson at Work Again.

Racine, Wis., July 22nd:—John Johnson of No. 924 Hamilton street, this city, is a happy man.

For years he has suffered with Kidney and Urinary trouble. He was so broken down that he was forced to quit work. Everything he tried failed, till a friend of his recommended a new remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Johnson used them, and the result surprised him. He is as well as ever he was, completely cured, and working away every day.

His case is regarded by those who knew how very bad he was, as almost a miracle, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are a much talked of medicine.

A CLEANLY AGE.

Twentieth Century Ideas Incline Toward Sanitation and Preventatives.

Nowadays scientists believe that in cleanliness lies the secret of prevention of diseases.

To prevent a disease, remove the cause. Just as unclean habits breed many diseases, so careless habits will breed dandruff. Improper use of another's brushes, combs, etc., will surely cause dandruff, and in time will just as surely cause baldness.

It's microbic infection, nothing more, nor less.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, and causes hair to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is absolutely free from grease or other injurious substances.

Kipling's Impressions of Yellowstone Canon.

Of the Grand Canon of the Yellowstone, Rudyard Kipling writes: "All I can say is that without warning or preparation I looked into a gulf 1,700 feet deep, with eagles and fish hawks circling far below. And the sides of that gulf were one wild welter of color—crimson, emerald, cobalt, ochre, amber, honey splashed with port wine, snow-white, vermilion, lemon and silver gray in wide washes. The sides did not fall sheer, but were graven by time and water and air into monstrous heads of kings, dead chiefs—men and women of the old time. So far below that no sound of its strife could reach us, the Yellowstone river ran, a finger-wide strip of jade green. The sunlight took these wondrous walls and gave fresh hues to those that nature had already laid there. Evening crept through the pines that shadowed us, but the full glory of the day flamed in that canon as we went out very cautiously to a jutting piece of rock—blood-red or pink it was—that overhung the deepest deeps of all. Now I know what it is to sit enthroned amid the clouds of sunset as the spirits sit in Blake's pictures. Giddiness took away all sensation of touch or form, but the sense of blinding color remained. When I reached the main land again I had sworn that I had been floating."

Mrs. Fred. Gruetzmacher and son Alfred, of Charles City, arrived Friday for a brief visit with relatives

While men do not approve of the shirt waist, in a general way, it seems to be coming more and more into style.

Henry Gruetzmacher drove to Lake Mills Wednesday. He has a large farm up there which demands his attention.

President Hirsch, of the Chas. City college, now one of the faculty of the Hancock County Institute: was down and delivered an able sermon in the M. E. church Sunday.

The youngsters went down to Goodell and played ball Thursday. Score: 13 to 8 in favor of Klemme.

Mrs. Geo. Elder, of Goodell, came up Tuesday morning to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. John Zook.

Otto Schultz, stopped off in Klemme Friday a few hours while on his way to Iowa Falls. He is now agent for a lumber firm of that place.

Threshing is now in order. The separator men have their rigs in order and many of them started the fore part of the week to pound out the small grain.

E. G. Ell has gone to work with Bert Crawford at the carpenter trade. Bert, with his men, is erecting a large barn for John Terhufen in German Township.

The editor was down to Belmond Friday night and saw the Ramsay Twins! They are doing a flurishing business. Have erected several new business enterprises.

Wm. Brower, the inventor of the Hill-Brower Separating Device, was in Klemme Thursday. He pulled our door knob and dropped a plunk into the till and made us feel happy some more.

The addition on the rear of G. W. Kluckhohn's building is 16 x 22 with 20 foot posts. The frame is now up. This addition will give Mr. Kluckhohn a much larger store and fill a great need.

Theae is nothing that will cool you quite so quick, during this hot weather, as a dish of ice cream, a glass of lemonade or milk shake. Drinks of all kinds served at all times at G. W. Kluckhohn.

The fact that Klemme merchants are always wide awake for the trade is again proved by the fact that Fred. Ramhorse, of Hayfield, was down Friday after repairs for his binder. He got them. Thus was it ever.

The Foreign Missionary Society of Germantown gave a program last Sabbath which, though good, was not patronized very largely on account of the intense heat. A collection was taken and $7.03 were realized.

We'll just wager that Henry Schoper has the fanciest letter head in town! A fancy design back ground over which is printed the letter head proper. In two colors. He didn't send out of town for them, neither. Just drop in and have him show 'em to you.

Section foreman Ericson is now laboring with but one man on his charge and that is himself. The farmers are paying such high prices for help during harvest that men cannot afford to work on the railroad. Help is scarce now.

That Messers Schuldt, Terhufen and Still believe in keeping up to date and furnishing the grain growers of this section the best the world affords in threshing machinery is evinced by the fact that they have added to the value of their rigs greatly by placing therein a new attachment known as the "Hill Brower" Separating Device."

R. M. Day of Klemme stopped over Monday night on his way home from a trip he has been making in South Dakota, where he has about a section of land. He says crops of all kinds are excellant in Dakota. That there has been abundance of rain until recently and that nothing is suffering the lack. While out there he was offered an advance of $9. per acre on a 240 acre tract he bought last spring, but he still owns it.—Wright Co. Democrat.

By oversight we failed to mention in last week's issue, that, as usual, they had a fine at the ice cream social of the Mystic Workers. The members were mostly all present and as the evening was one to be sought for and all enjoyed themselves immensely.

Attention is called to the new design adopted by J. H. Queal & Co., which will be found on the first page. Get them to show you the new Self-fitting Screens, cheapest and most convenient; American Wire fence; you cannot break it with stretching. New stock of Fence Posts.

Although the B, C. R & N. Ry now has three side tracks it sees the necessity of putting down another switch track in order to do the switching in less time than it now requires. The yard is always full of lumber, grain and merchandise cars which form a large train and make switching a tedious and protracted job.

In all probability the people do not realize in what condition Iowa is in at present in regard this year's crop. The dry hot weather has worked havoc in many localities. Over in Floyd county the pastures are dried up and farmers are cutting corn to feed their stock. Some of the farmers in this county are complaining of poor pasture saying they will soon be compelled to feed fodder. While this county has been a rather favored locality, other counties are suffering severly from the present extended drouth. Nineteen states are affected by the prevailing hot wave.

Last Sunday was the hottest day this section of the country has witnessed for centuries The heat indicators let the mercuric fluid run out over the top or cracked and gave up their contents by letting it down out of bottom. Those that didn't bust, tried hard to do so but were prevented because the heat presure surrotding them was so powerful that they could not crack; and they registered 110 in the shade. In the sun it was a whole lot hotter; it ran clear up to sweat, sick headaches and sun strucks The high wind that blew was like a house on fire—hot! and if there is anything that is hotter than hottest, that wind was it. To be in the shade with no wind was like taking a Turkish bath; to be in the shade and wind both was like trying to cook yourself, to be in the sun or in the open in the wind was like in steam pipe and to be in the sun with no wind whatever was like being in—well we never visited the place but it wasn't necessary to pass in your checks, go off and die, or get off this earth, to get warm. If it is any hotter down where the angels don't go than it was here last Sabbath we beg leave to join a cellar gang, live in an ice house and sleep in the bull-rushes. Many of our citizens wore only a collar button and that was mostly melted away before down. Those scientists who say the sun is cooling of and losing it's powerful rays are either mistaken or old Sol is losing strength on the further side, anyhow it doesn't people here. If they would have been here they wonld have ventured the assertion without fear of successful contridiction that the sun is dying by a very slow process and small inches, so slow on small indeed, that the paint which never cracked from the heat before has simply melted and run to the ground. Authority says it will take just 10,000,000 years for the sun to burn itself up. Well if it don't take 10 times that long you can cut out our north-east section line rib. Some one spoke, not long ago, of hatching eggs in the sun and it is easy to believe. But when you leave a box of marbles in the garden a 2:15 p. m. and come back at 3:17 p. m. and find a scad of little marblets eating up your sun burnt cabbage and withered sweet corn you begin to think it't warm! Well, that's all, only we hope those fellows who are always having a "h—l of a time" enjoyed it Sunday; that the corn ears will be three feet long with flaps on the left side and that the weather will cool off by the middle of next winter.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden. editor World-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper and the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

George Schuab, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio is a constant reader of the 'Dayton Volkszitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me. I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties," He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicanting liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithfull use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled pqysicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia.

Seven Years In Bed.

"Will wonders never cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease. of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk, she writes, and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from headaches, backache, Nervousness, sleeplessness, meloncholy, fainting and dizzy spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Harr. Only 50c.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open end bleed, The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh by removing the cause stoping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar. ache package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use. "SNUFFLES" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflmation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head. Catarrh when neglected "tends to Consumption—"Snuffles" will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will recieve special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept, A 295, EDWIN B. GILES & CO., 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

To become thoroughly acquainted with human nature, you should run a country newspaper a few years. Then you will not be surprised when a man whom you have befriended in a thousand different ways and times, while he was trying to get a foot hold in business life, gives you the "frozen look." Dozens of items benecicial to his business, hundreds of good words spoken for him, are at once forgotten because of some fancied injury. Instead of going to the editor with his grievance or complaint—give him a "cussing" if he deserves it, or take one if convinced of a mistake—he orders his advertisement dropped, and imagines himself avenged. We feel nothing but sorrow for such exhibitions of ingratitude and forgetfulness, but it is one of the many trials and tribulations that surround a newspaper man, and comes to be so much a part of the business that it is seldom noticed to the extent of an item like this.

Coal and Wood-A Plate Glass factory-It pays to till the truth-To preserve the Elk.

COAL AND WOOD.

Relative Heating Powers of the Two Kinds of Fuel.

The proportionate heating power of coal and wood, says the Rural New Yorker, in answer to an inquirer, has been settled by experiment. It has been found that one pound of charcoal heats 73 pounds of water from 32 degrees (which is the freezing point) to 212 degrees, which is the boiling point of water. One pound of anthracite coal heats 70 pounds of water in the same way, and one pound of dry wood heats 35 pounds of water the same, so that coal has just twice the heating power that dry wood has, and a little less than charcoal has. Of course, wood that is not dry loses a proportionate heating value corresponding to the quantity of water remaining in it, and air dry wood has on an average 12 per cent. of water in it. So that we reasonably estimate the value of one ton of anthracite coal to be equal to two cords of wood, and this, of course, is to be based on the fact that the coal is nearly a solid mass, while a cord of wood is very nearly if not quite one-half empty spaces and some of it is dark, which has much less heating value than wood. It might be interesting to note that the loss of heat of fuel burned in an open fireplace is three-fourths of it, this escaping up the chimney, and only one-fourth radiating in the room, while burned in a stove provided with proper dampers to control the current of air through the fire, the loss is not quite one-fourth.

A PLATE GLASS FACTORY.

Machinery Is Simple, But Ponderous and Expensive.

A plate glass factory is a large affair, covering perhaps 20 acres. Everything about the plant is designed and arranged with a view to facilitating the manufacture of plate glass without regard to any other branch of the business. The process is extremely simple, and the machinery ponderous and expensive; so much so that at least half a million dollars appears to be absolutely necessary to operate a plate glass factory successfully.

White sand, soda ash, charcoal and arsenic compose the ingredients, though the exact proportions is a guarded secret, varying somewhat in each factory. When weighed and mixed, a certain amount—about five bushels—is placed in a pot, the pot lowered into a furnace, where it remains for ten or twelve hours before it is melted and sufficiently homogeneous. It is then carried to an iron table, upon which it is poured and rolled out flat, the thickness being determined by strips of iron at the sides of the table. It is then wheeled into an annealing oven, where it is allowed to remain for a day or two, the heat being gradually lowered. When cool, it is trimmed, ground and polished, after which it is cut to size and carried to the stock room.

IT PAYS TO TELL THE TRUTH.

At Least in Switzerland—A Doctor and the Income-Tax Laws.

The income-tax laws are very stringent in the canton of Zurich. This often causes amusing complications. A short time ago a physician sold his practice to another for a certain sum of money. The buyer sued the doctor a few months later for exaggerating the value of the practice. In court the former practitioner showed by his books that he had had an income of $1,000 a year, which was all he had claimed. He won the suit, and great was his happiness. A few days later he received a summons to appear in court to answer a charge entered against him by a tax collector for defrauding the government by giving his income as $600 when it was lately proved to have been $1,000. He not only was obliged to pay a larger income tax for the future, but he also had to pay the difference between his stated and his real income for eight years back as well as the fines, which are very large in these cases, so that altogether his bill amounted to $5,850, which somewhat diminished his joy over winning the other suit.—Chicago Record.

To Preserve the Elk.

M. V. Gilmer, of Jackson's Hole, Wyo., seeing that elk were becoming scarce and having in mind the fate of the buffalo, has established a preserve of 20 acres, inclosed by a fence, in which he has a herd of 19 elk. He started four years ago with half a dozen, and, as these animals in their wild state are rapidly exterminated, he hopes that in a few years handsome return will come for his foresight.

A French conscript has just been discharged from three years' service because of ugliness. It was held that his appearance would make his comrades laugh and thus interfere with discipline.

Young lawyers have a fine field open to them in Texas. There are forty counties in that state which have to go outside their limits, as they have not a single attorney of their own.

The vestry of Christ Church in Philadelphia, replying to the many suggestions for memorial tablets at the grave of Benjamin Franklin, says: "It may not be generally known that the grave of Franklin, though simple, is that he himself, in his will, dictated it should be. The church has for past years maintained a policy of keeping the historic spot as it is."

Bozeman, and, in fact, the whole of Gallatin county, Montana, is afflicted with a scourge of dandelions. They are to be seen in every garden and in nearly every field in the county. In the summer the little globes of fluffy cotton-like substance, containing the seeds of the dandelion, float through the air and alight in every nook and corner. No matter how poor the soil the dandelion flourishes.

According to a paragraph which has been going the rounds of the French newspapers, M. Waldeck-Rousseau—the French premier—has all his dogs vaccinated to prevent them from having distemper, and has never lost one from that disease. Jenner, who introduced vaccination, proposed that all the dogs in England should be treated in this manner, but was laughed at for suggesting it.

Some curious botanical experiments made at a zoological laboratory at Naples are reported by Hans Winkler. A flowerless aquatic plant, that grows normally with its roots in the sand and leaves in water was inverted, specimens being placed with the leaves buried in the sand and the roots floating in the water in strong light. The roots changed to stems and leaves, and the buried parts becoming roots.

Within two years the Cherokee, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Creeks and Seminoles will cease to exist as an Indian people governed by tribal laws, and their territory will be broken up into allotments of land made to them as citizens of the United States. They have been known as the Five Civilized Tribes, but the government has decided that they have failed to live up to their name according to the American requirements of law and order for the Indian Territory.

Swiss military papers speak in high terms of the new revolver which has been adopted for the mounted troops of the Swiss army, and which is the invention of two Berlin engineers. The coil on firing brings a fresh cartridge from the magazine into the barrel. The pistol weighs one pound, thirteen ounces, and its center of gravity lies immediately over the hand of the firer. The magazine carries eight cartridges, and practiced shots can fire forty-eight rounds in from twenty-eight to thirty seconds. The calibre of the weapon is 0.32 in., and its range is given at 2,000 yards.

Young King Alphonso of Spain, when he attended his first bull fight in Madrid in full state, was received with unbounded enthusiasm. Unlike his Austrian mother, whose aversion to this form of sport is notorious, he appeared to follow the Corrida with the most keen interest and satisfaction, thereby showing himself a true Spaniard, and as possessed of what is known as "sangre torera," that is to say, "bull fighting blood." At the close of the performance, which was particularly sanguinary, eight bulls having been killed, and twenty horses gipped up, the young king presented handsome gifts to the leading toreros, Mazzantini, Bombitta and Fuentes.

One of the great packing houses of Chicago has prohibited profanity upon its premises. The primary purpose of the order was in itself excellent, namely, to protect employes against abuse by swearing foremen or overseers; but it cannot fail also to exercise a good influence over all those who work for the company, especially the younger men. In commenting on the order the Chicago Post truthfully says: "It is one of the better signs of the times that in these days the men at the head of affairs are presumed to be, if not, Christians, at any rate gentlemen. They find ways enough of making their wishes intelligible and effective without resort to bluster or swagger or the indecencies of blasphemy."

Mr. McAdie of the Weather Bureau has been studying the formation of fogs in the vicinity of the bay of San Francisco, which is famous for its earth-hugging clouds. He shows that the remarkable topography of this region makes of it a natural laboratory in which daily experiments in the cloudy condensation of water vapor are conducted. The peculiar juxtaposition of ocean, bay, mountain, foot-hill and level valley, and the prevailing westerly air-current with increased velocity through the Golden Gate, are the main causes of the phenomenal fogs.

Plutarch lived in a town so small that he would not move away from it "lest it become smaller still." The remarkable decrease in rural populations revealed by the recent censuses in Germany, France and Great Britain suggests that the popular "revival of Plutarch might acceptably be extended to this principles as a householder."

The late Lord Wantage ran a public house at Ardington. Soup was sold over the counter in winter, and it is stated that recently there was more money drawn for soup than for beer.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

IOWA COUNTY SALOONS CONTINUE

Judge Waterman Refuses to Dissolve the Writ of Supersedeas.

Davenport, July 27.—The Iowa county consent case was before Judge Waterman of the supreme court on motion to vacate the supersedeas granted by Judge M. J. Wade of the Iowa country district court. On June 29 Judge Wade decided that the statement of general consent under which the Iowa county saloons were being operated was insufficient. This resulted in closing the saloons. On July 12 Judge Wade granted an order superceding his own degree, pending an appeal of the case to the supreme court. The hearing yesterday was on a motion of the Anti-Saloon league asking Judge Waterman to vacate Judge Wade's order of supersedeas. Judge Waterman refused to entertain the motion, holding that he had no authority to review, in vacation and in chambers, the order of supersedeas issued by the lower court. The motion was submitted and formal order will be entered in the course of a few days in accordance with this decision. The saloon men and their sympathizers are jubilant, as this enables them to continue in business pending the appeal, and should the supreme court affirm the decision that the petition of consent is insufficient, they hope by that time to obtain a new and sufficient one.

WALKS OFF THE BOAT.

C. F. Penick, Banker of Chariton, Is Drowned in the River at Racine.

Milwaukee, July 28.—C. F. Penick, the cashier of the Penick Bank, of Chariton, Iowa, was drowned in the river at Racine. Mr. Penick, with H. F. Brown and O. A. Hoagland of Chariton, left Chicago on the steamer Virginia, for Milwaukee. They were unable to get berths and had to content themselves with sofas in the cabin. Messrs. Brown and Hoagland went to sleep and did not wake up until their arrival here. They then missed their companion and learned that he had plunged off the deck into the river while the boat was in Racine. Passengers who saw the tragedy say that Penick walked out to the cabin as though he wished to enjoy the cool air. At the rail he stopped and then climbed over and dropped over before any one could stop him. It is thought he was walking in his sleep. The three men left Chariton on the 22d for Chicago to sell cattle. After finishing their busines their they decided to come up to Milwaukee for a day's pleasure. A reward of $100 has been offered for the recovery of the body.

COWNIE ON THE DROUTH.

Urges Superintendents of State Farms to Diligently Cultivate Crops.

Des Moines, July 25.—John Cownie of the state board of control, under the auspices of the board, sent a circular letter to all the superintendents of the state institution, urging them to diligently cultivate the growing crops on the institutions' farms. "That is what the corn and vegetables need," said Mr. Cownie. "Active cultivation of the corn will save hundreds of thousands of bushels in Iowa this year. If all the farmers would heed the advice in the letter we have sent out I am confident that they would materially remove the loss they fear that they will suffer.

"The fields of Iowa are full of fox tail and weeds. Weeds grow whether there is moisture or not. The lack of cultivaton will permit them to choke out the grain by absorbing all the moisture in the ground. Stir up the soil and dig them up and the corn and vegetables will get the moisture out of the ground and out of the atmosphere both."

FIRE STARTED BY SUN'S RAYS.

Sioux City Dry Goods Store Burned and Two Persons Injured.

Sioux City, July 27.—Fire started by the sun's rays beating down upon the combustible material in the show windows resulted in the destruction of J. F. Phelan & Co.'s big dry goods store in the Davis block in this city. So rapid was the spread of the flames that the clerks and customers had narrow escapes, and two persons were injured in the rush for safety. John Phelan, the proprietor, had his arm broken and his face cut, while Miss Rose Dement, a clerk, had her head and face cut. Both jumped from second story windows. The loss is $50,000, nearly covered by insurance.

MISSING GROOM WAS DROWNED.

Body of James Kinkaide of Clinton Is Found in the River.

Clinton, July 27.—James Kinkaide was to have been married Wednesday evening, but shortly before the ceremony Kinkaide left the house of his intended bride and nothing more was heard of him until morning, when his hat and shoes were found on a raft. Search was made and the body recovered from the water. It is believed that he was suffering from temporary insanity, possibly caused by the heat.

To Open Starch Plant.

Sioux City, July 26.—Orders have been received at the local plant of the National Starch company to start in with a full force in two weeks and make a special brand of starch which has been patented by the company. It was intended to engage the plant at Nebraska City to manufacture the new starch and shut down the Sioux City plant, but plans were changed. The Sioux City plant closed down when the price of No. 2 corn went soaring, and the factory at Waukegan has been the only one in operation. Nebraska City will start at once also.

Burned a Grain Elevator.

Rippey, July 26.—Fire in the huge grain elevator of the Des Moines Grain company totally destroyed the elevator and corn cribs of the company, inflicting a loss of more than $10,000, fully covered by insurance. Several thousand bushels of corn stored in the cribs were destroyed. The origin of the fire is a mystery. The company is making arrangements to rebuild immediately.

Killed by a Train.

Perry, July 26.—Martin Munson, a painter living in this city, was run over by a Milwaukee freight train in the yards at this place. He was attempting to board a car and fell under the trucks. His body was cut in two at the waist line. Death came instantly. Deceased was a single man, about 25 years of age.

Cattle Fall Over a Bluff.

Dubuque, July 25.—A drove of sixteen head of cattle while being driven to market became unmanageable, owing to the excessive heat, and ran over a bluff, falling eighty feet. All were killed.

Farmer Burned to Death.

Fort Dodge, July 23.—T. O. Wangdahl, a farmer near Badger, was burned to death today while defending his home from a fire which started in the neighboring fields from the sparks of a passing engine. Wangdahl was alone, and when he saw the fire approaching his home, attempted to fight it off without assistance. In some way his clothing caught fire, and when assistance attracted by his cries and groans reached him he was beyond help. His skin was burned to a crisp. He lived a few hours after being found and expired in the greatest agony.

COSTLY DAVENPORT FIRE

Twenty City Blocks Swept by an Awful Conflagration.

Davenport, July 26.—Fire laid waste an area of saw mill and residence property in Davenport last evening equal to twenty ordinary city blocks.

The flames started at 2:30 o'clock in piles of kindling wood belonging to the Island Fuel company on the levee. A brisk breeze was blowing, carrying the names directly across the immense lumber yards of Weyerhauser-Denkmann, which were soon a seething mass of flames. The spread of the fire was so rapid that workmen barely had time to desert the yard. The flames pushed their way into the adjoining residence district, closely settled with middle class houses.

The average value was a few thousand dollars each. The occupants escaped only with their lives and clothing on their backs. Over fifty homes thus burned, some tenements, resulting in 100 families being rendered homeless.

The fire was fought heroically by the fire departments of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline, Ill., the latter cities responding promptly to appeal for aid.

Efforts to check the flames were unavailing until they spread on the north of the spacious grounds of St. Katherine's hall, a boarding school for young ladies, which was saved after the tower burned off. Gradually the battle was waged on the edges of the flaming district. By 10 o'clock the conflagration was under control.

The mill of the Weyerhauser-Denkmann and yards were totally destroy. Loss, $400,000.

The other losses will aggregate $300,000 or more. The U. N. Roberts Sash Door factory, the Red Jacket Pump company, the Standard Oil company, the Riverside mill and the Davenport Woolen mills had narrow escapes, the flames being checked just before reaching them.

It is believed there were no fatalities.

Not a drop of rain having fallen here in three weeks, the lumber yards furnished food for the flames that quickly put the conflagration beyond the control of the firemen.

Had the breeze blown from the east the entire business portion of the city would have been swept away. Fortunately a southwest breeze carried the flames towards the bluffs, and as soon as they were out of the thickly settled district the efforts of the firemen and hundreds of volunteers finally brought the fire under control.

The entire district from Federal street to Bridge avenue and from the river to Seventh street was swept clean.

The heat was intense, and two ambulances were kept busy hauling away persons who were prostrated by it. In a few instances persons living in the burned district have not been located by their relatives, but it is believed that they escaped.

Probably 100 families were rendered homeless by the flames, and homes and hotels were turned over to them for the night. Hundreds of others moved temporarily from their homes, and vacant lots over a large portion of the town were filled last night with household furniture and the refuges from the burned district.

It is believed the fire was caused by boys smoking on the levee.

LARRABEE GIVES $25,000.

Upper Iowa University Receives Another Big Gift.

Clermont, July 26.—Ex-Governor Larrabee has announced a donation o. $25,000 to Upper Iowa university at Fayette. The money will be used in building buildings for the university. This donation following closely after the donation of $25,000 from Andrew Carnegie, secured at the instance of Speaker D. B. Henderson, an alumnus of the university, places the university in good condition. Upper Iowa university is a sectarian school under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church. It has been in existence for over half a century. Its president at the present time is Guy H. Benton. The work in Upper Iowa university has always been maintained to the highest degree.

Fatal Accident to a Farmer.

Fort Dodge, July 29.—B. J. Skinner, a prominent and wealthy Webster county farmer, was instantly killed in the presence of his two children by a falling hay fork. Skinner was loading hay into a mow. His son was in the mow and his little 6-year-old girl was watching from beneath. In some way the fork became loosened and fell, the point striking Skinner in the neck and penetrating for about six inches in the direction of the heart. The little 6-year-old girl pluckily pulled the fork from the wound, but the man was dead by the time his son reached the ground.

Killed By Lightning.

Creston, July 27.—Leo Lininger was killed during an electrical storm by lightning. His parents were away over night, and they found the body of their son in the morning in a watermelon patch. His parents were away from home during the night, leaving Leo to do the chores. He was not to be found when they returned and the chores had not been done. Later the body was discovered as indicated.

Richard Rowe Killed.

Atchison, Kan., July 29.—Richard Rowe, 44 years old, a railroad switchman, was killed in the Missouri Pacific yards here. In 1894 he was accused with his brother, Chester Rowe, treasurer of Poweshiek county, Iowa, of stealing $20,000 from the county. They were arrested in Mexico. Chester Rowe served in the Mexican penitentiary.

Gang of Hoboes Hold Up a Train.

Boone, July 25.—A gang of tramps numbering nearly 100 held up a northbound freight train and tried to force the trainmen to allow them to ride. Part of them were put off and the remainder hid between the cars. The police had a running fight with about fifty of the gang, but made no arrests.

Wife Dies, Husband Suicides.

Dubuque, July 25.—Mrs. William Kraus, living near Garnaville, died and an hour later her husband, overcome with grief, and for the time being, thought to have been insane, took strychnine, and died in terrible agony a few minutes later. There will be a double funeral.

Child Burned to Death.

Keokuk, July 29.—Children playing with matches destroyed the building and burned to death Earnest, 4-year-old son of T. A. Hersey, now in the restaurant business in Chicago. The family was preparing to join him there Thursday.

No More Smallpox at Waterloo.

Waterloo, July 24.—Quarantine has been removed from the last case of smallpox that existed in this city. For the first time in nearly a year the city is free from the pest, although at no time was there any danger of the disease becoming an epidemic, but the knowing that it no longer exists here is a great relief to the citizens. With the extra precautions taken by the city authorities and the hot weather the disease has been gradually stamped out and there is every indication to believe that the city and vicinity will be freed from all further attacks of the plague.

PORTO RICAN PROCLAMATION.

It Establishes Free Trade Between the Island and the United States.

Washington, July 26.—The president yesterday issued his proclamation establishing free trade between Porto Rico and the United States and declaring the organization of civil government for the island. The proclamation is purely formal and only in the body of the resolutions adopted by the Porto Rican legislature (heretofore published) does it appear that the island is set free commercially today in commemoration of the planting of the American flag on the island. The proclamation is headed, "Cessation of Tariff—Porto Rico."

It recites that the act of April 12, 1900 (otherwise known as the Foraker act), provided that whenever the Porto Rican legislature has enacted and put into operation that system of local taxation to meet the needs of the government and by resolution so notified the president, the latter shall issue a proclamation and all duties on goods passing between the United States and Porto Rico shall cease. As the legislature has complied with that requirement of the act in terms set out in the resolutions, which are quoted in full in the body of the proclamation, that document says:

"Therefore, I William McKinley, president of the United States, in pursuance of the provisions of the law above quoted and upon the foregoing due notice, do hereby issue this, my proclamation and do declare and make known that a civil government for Porto Rico has been organized in accordance with the provisions of the said act of congress.

"And I do further declare and make known that the legislative assembly of Porto Rico has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the government of Porto Rico.

"In witneess whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 25th day of July, year of our Lord 1901, and of the Independence of the United States the 126th.—William McKinley.

"By the president—David J. Hill, Acting Secretary of State."

STRIKE IS NEARING AN END.

Much Progress Made at a Conference in New York.

New York, July 29.—Formal negotiations for a settlement of the great steel strike were opened here Saturday at a conference between President Shaffer and Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated association and J. P. Morgan and a group of his associates of the United States Steel corporation. The conference and the movements of the conferrees were secret and no information of the result of the deliberations has come from any one in authority. It is believed, however, that substantial progress toward an agreement was made and that formal announcement of the compact for peace will come within a few days. There has been much speculation as to the terms of peace, but much of it has been pure conjecture. It was said that the strike would be called off and that there would be a resumption of the negotiation of general labor questions at the point where they were broken off at the Pittsburg conference. In financial circles, however, the opinion was general that the prospective agreement would go further than that and in itself dispose of the serious questions at issue. The conference of Saturday resulted from several days of preliminary discussion, all of which were kept secret.

SAYS KANSAS CAN STAND IT.

Paul Morton of Santa Fe Road Talks of Crop Conditions.

New York, July 26.—Vice President Paul Morton of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway is here and talks freely on crop conditions and the business outlook with special reference to the interests of the great system with which he is connected.

"It is true," said Mr. Morton, "that the corn crop in Kansas and Missouri has been seriously damaged by hot winds, but I think the reports of damage in Nebraska and Iowa have been very much exaggerated. Corn in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio is looking well and with rain ought to make an average crop. The loss of the corn crop in Kansas and Missouri to the railroads is not anything like the serious matter which it used to be. Take, for instance, the Atchison road. It has diversified its tonnage to such an extent that corn is not now the all-important factor as it used to be in making earnings.

"There are many things that can happen to make up the loss of the corn crop and the people of Kansas and the railways are to be congratulated on the prosperous condition they are in to meet this loss. The people of Kansas never owned as much and owed as little as they do today."

WANTS PALMA FOR PRESIDENT.

General Gomez Says He Is the Most Available Candidate.

Havana, July 26.—General Maximo Gomez, in the course of an open letter setting forth the objects of his recent trip to the United States, asserts that he went to New York with a view of impressing upon T. Estrada Palma the necessity of the republic. "Senor Palma has shown capacity for governing as witness his course course in the war of '68, and also as chief of the delegation during the last war," says General Gomez. "His official purity while occupying those positions places Cuba under obligations to him. Not one of us has such a standing as he has with the American people. Taking into consideration the relations which the Cuban republic will bear to the United States, Senor Palma is the logical candidate. As real Cubans we ought to make him accept. I shall turn all my energy toward this end, and when it has been accomplished I shall keep apart from politics.".

BRITISH SUFFER DEFEAT.

Column Retreats Sixteen Miles Before the Boers.

London, July 29.—Telegraphing from Pretoria, under date of July 26, Lord Kitchener reports to the war office as follows: "A detachment of the Steinacker's horse, occupying Bremersdorp, was forced to evacuate July 24 by a superior force of Boers, probably the commandoes from Amsterdam and Pietretie. The detachment fought its way to Lembobo, a distance of sixteen miles, losing about ten killed or wounded and a few missing."

Most people have the church instinct in their blood.

Edward's Title.

London, July 27.—In the house of lords, Lord Salisbury, the premier, introduced a bill authorizing King Edward to assume by proclamation within six months of the adoption of the bill, such title as he may think fitly recognized his dominion beyond the seas.

The premier added this title would probably be as follows: Edward the Seventh, by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland of British Dominions beyond the Sea, King, Defender of the Faith, and Emperor of India."

SENATOR M'LAREN TURNED OUT.

South Carolina State Executive Committee Repudiates Him.

Columbia, S. C., July 26.—The state democratic executive committee late last night adopted a resolution ruling Senator McLaurin out of the democratic party. The action was totally unexpected.

Senator Tillman supported the resolution, which was as follows:

"Whereas, the Hon. John L. McLaurin, junior senator elected to represent the state of South Carolina in the national congress, has by his affiliations and votes in that body ignored the national democratic platform, and thereby misrepresented his state and his democratic constituents who elected him;

"Therefore, Be it resolved that it is the sense and conviction of the democratic state executive committee that Senator John L. McLaurin, from the standpoint of honesty and self-respect, should tender his unqualified resignation immediately."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 25 to 5.

BRITAIN MUST END WAR

Influences at Work on Continent to Bring About Peace.

New York, July 29.—Following information cabled that rumors of an important step toward enforcing peace between England and the Boers had pervaded the house of commons for several days came a speech by Gibson Bowles, conservative, that caused a profound sensation, says a London correspondent of the World. Mr. Bowles gave the government solemn warning that unless peace was made in South Africa before spring extremely grave complications would confront England and Europe.

The speaker declared further that he knew that negotiations were proceeding on the continent within the last six months, and were still active, with the object of inducing or enforcing peace.

In view of these conditions, he said, England could not persist in outraging the feelings of the great powers without paying a heavy penalty.

A ministerial contradiction of the statement made by Mr. Bowles was looked for but none came.

Upon inquiry in the lobby of the author of the warning, a World correspondent learned that Mr. Bowles, who though a conservative is somewhat disaffected and more or less antagonistic to the ministry, referred in his speech to a movement set on foot by Premier Dekuper of Holland, aided by Queen Wilhelmina, by which he had succeeded in interesting the Emperor of Germany and the czar of Russia so far that their negotiations were fast approaching a point where England could no longer safely ignore them.

Edmund Robertson, member of the recent liberal parliament, corroborated what Mr. Bowles had said and declared that he spoke from his own knowledge of the situation.

These public utterances, uncontradicted by the government, taken in conjunction with President Kruger's return to The Hague, and with the repeated journeys of Mr. Leyds, diplomatic agent of the South African republics in Europe between Berlin, Brussels, The Hague and Paris, recently, point to important developments at an early date.

As previously cabled it is said that the kaiser is to enter the role of peacemaker, having been empowered by Kruger to act for the Boers; that the kaiser is willing to take the initiative in order to popularize his relations with the German people, who disapprove his friendship for Great Britain.

MACLAY MAY BE OUSTED.

Secretary Long to Consider the Matter of Dismissing the Historian.

Washington, July 27.—An effort has been made to secure the removal of Edgar S. Maclay, the author of this history of the Spanish war containing criticisms on Rear Admiral Schley. Maclay is a clerk in the Brooklyn navy yard. Representative Sidney E. Mudd of Maryland, a member of the committee on naval affairs in the last house of representatives, called on Secretary Long and represented to him the impropriety of Maclay continuing an employe of the government in view of the language of which he made use in referring to Admiral Schley. The secretary promised to give the matter his early attention.

KAISER IN ROLE OF PEACEMAKER

Rumored That He Is Empowered to Act for the Boers.

London, July 26.—"The rumor as to early peace negotiations which has pervaded the house of commons for some days," says the Daily Express, "has taken the more definite form that Emperor William is soon to assume the role of peace maker. Mr. Kruger and his advisors are represented as having empowered the kaiser to act for the Boers, and he is considered willing to take the initiative in order to popularize himself with the Germans who disapprove of his course with Great Britain."

Mr. Kruger's arrival at The Hague is connected, the Daily Express thinks, with the rumored peace suggestions.

AGUINALDO AT THE HEAD.

New Party Looks to Ultimate Independence of Philippines.

Manila, July 25.—The Libertad is authority for the statement that Senor Paternos will leave the federal party and will organize what he calls the nationalists on a platform resembling that of the conservatives with General Aguinaldo and former insurgent military officers and former members of the federal party as leaders. The purpose of the new party will be the ultimate independence of the Philippines. This coincides with Senor Paternos' policy, as he has been making efforts to induce Aguinaldo to unite with the new party.

Sampson a Wreck.

Washington, July 27.—The navy department people who are on Sampson's side are stirred up over the report which comes from Boston that Sampson is mentally and physically wrecked. He would have been detached from duty at the navy yard before this were it not for the sympathy which is felt for him in his present condition. He is greatly broken in health and does little work, the most of his duties consisting in signing papers which are presented to him. He has an infirm hold on the public business which comes to him as commandant of the Boston yard, and the officers there say that Sampson shows plainly the effects of the nervous strain which he has undergone. He recalls important matters with great difficulty and is in a generally shattered condition.

Three immense battleships will be built by Great Britain this year, at a cost of $6,250,000 each.

Turks Halt Greece's Ships.

Constantinople, July 26.—The Turkish government has arbitrarily refused to permit the Green squadron to visit Smyrna, Salonica and Mount Athos. Greece sent the usual notification of the projected cruise, but the Porte declined to entertain the proposition on political grounds. Diplomatic officials regard the attitude of the Turkish government in this particular as illegal.

"A financier is a man who makes lots of money, isn't it, father?" "No, Freddy; a financier is a man who gets hold of lots of money other people have made."

LONG'S PRECEPT.

Secretary Issues Official Instructions to the Schley Naval Board.

Washington, July 27.—The official precept of Secretary Long was issued yesterday afternoon and governs the matters to be investigated by the Schley naval board of inquiry, and is as follows:

"While the department relies upon the discretion of the court to make its examination into this matter full and complete, as requested by the officers at whose instance it is convened, the report should show the conclusions reached upon certain points to which attention is specifically directed as follows:

"First—His conduct in connection with the events of the Santiago campaign.

"Second—The circumstances attending, the reasons controlling and the propriety of the movements of the flying squadron off Cienfugos in May, 1898.

"Third—The circumstances attending the reasons controlling and the propriety of the movement of the said squadron in proceeding from Cienfugos to Santiago.

"Fourth—The circumstances attending the arrival of the flying squadro off Sanntiago, the reasons for its retrograde turn westward and departure from off Santiago and the propriety thereof.

"Fifth—The circumstances attending and reasons for the disobedience by Commodore Schley of the orders of the department contained in its dispatch dated May 25, 1898, and the propriety of his conduct in the premises.

"Sixth—The condition of the coal supply of the flying squadron on and about May 27, 1898; its coaling facilities; the necessity, if any, for, or advisability of, the return of the squadron to Key West to coal, and the accuracy and propriety of the official report made by Commodore Schley with respect to this matter.

"Seventh—Whether or not every effort incumbent upon the commanding officer of a fleet under such circumstances was made to destroy the Spanish squadron, as she lay anchored in the entrance to Santiago harbor May 21 to 31, inclusive, and the necessity for, or advisability of engaging the batteries at the entrance to said harbor, at the ranges used, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises.

"Eighth—The necessity, if any, for, and advisability of withdrawing at night the 'Flying Squadron' from the entrance to Santiago harbor to a distance at sea, if such shall be found to have been the case; the extent and character of such withdrawal; and whether or not a close or adequate blockade of said harbor to prevent the escape of the enemy's vessels was established, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises.

"Ninth—The position of the Brooklyn on the morning of July 3, 1898, and at the time of the exit of the Spanish vessels from the harbor from Santiago, the circumstances attending, the reasons for and the incidents resulting from the turning of the Brooklyn in the direction in which she turned at or about the beginning of the action with the said Spanish vessels, and possibility of thereby colliding with or endangering any other of the vessels of the United States fleet, and the propriety of Commodore Schley's conduct in the premises.

"10—The circumstances leading to and the incidents and results of the controversy with Lieutenant Albon C. Hodgeson, U. S. N., who on July 3, 1898; also the colloquy at that time between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant Hodgeson and the ensuing correspondence between them on the subject thereof and the propriety for the conduct of Admiral Schley in the premises."

"The foregoing specific directions are given primarily for the information and guidance of the court, but do not limit or restrict the scope of its inquiry.

"Rear Admiral Schley has been informed of his right to be present either in person or by counsel to cross examine witnesses and to offer evidence before the court should he so desire. The court may at any time grant to others interested and entitled thereto like privileges.

"The investigation will be held in open court.

"This employment on shore duty is required by the public interests.

"Given under my hand, at navy department, Washington, this 26th day of July, nineteen hundred and one.—John D. Long, secretary."

NEW MAINE CHRISTENED.

Successor of the Wrecked Ship Takes the Foam at Cramp Dock.

Philadelphia, July 29.—The battleship Maine, designed to be bigger, stronger and faster than her namesake, whose shapeless mass still lies in the harbor of Havana, were successfully launched from the yards of the Wm. Cramp Ship and Engine Building company lately. One of the largest crowds that has ever seen a warship take the way at Cramps was on hand and ptriotism ran wild as the ship left her cradle.

Kensington, wherein the ship is located, took a holiday and attended the launch. Thousands of persons from other parts of the city were on hand and the yard was thrown open to the public, every vantage point in the confines of the place swarmed with humanity. The weather was beautiful.

The state of Maine was officially represented by Gov. Hill and members of his staff. From Washington came Rear Admirals Bradford, Melville and Walker, Lieut. Commander Bailey, Capt. Leary, former governor of Guam, and a number of bureau chiefs of the navy department.

NEW RULE FOR CHINA.

Five Men Supersede Tsung-Li-Yamen and Outrank Board of Regents.

Peking, July 28.—A new imperial edict has appeared. It announces the appointment of a new foreign office to supersede the tsung-li-yamen and having precedence over the board of six regents recently appointed to manage the affairs of the empire.

The new foreign office will consist of Prince Ching as president, Wang-Wen-Shao, vice-president; Chu-Sung-Chi, a member of the cabinet; Hsu-Shou-Peng and Lien-Fang. All five members of the new board are men of the very highest intelligence.

The appointments, taken in connection with recent events, indicate better intentions on the part of the empress and render the situation more hopeful.

Boiler Explosion Is Fatal.

Ridgedale, July 25.—Bert Schiffer was fatally scalded by the explosion of a thresher engine boiler. He was so badly burned that death resulted in a few hours. He leaves a wife and one child.

Kitchener to Give Up Command

London, July 27.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Standard, confirming rumors which have been in circulation for a fortnight in London, says:

"Mail advices say it is reported in Pretoria that Lord Kitchener will give up his command August 31 and proceed to England, where I remain five months, then taking over the supreme command in India, and that Sir Bindon Blood is expected to succeed him in South Africa."

Belgium, according to the census just taken, has 6,800,000 inhabitants.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, July 27, 1901.

Judge Holmes has decided the case of B. F. Granger vs. Treasurer McKay and Polk county, in which he holds that the ferrets cannot collect taxes on personal property for the year 1896, the five year limit having expired. This decision puts a bar to collections on personal property for the year 1896.

Dr. Patterson, statistician for the state board of control, proposes to call the attention of the legislature to the need of reforms in the laws of the state pertaining to the management of jails and poor houses. Institutions of this kind do not come under the jurisdiction of the board of control, but Dr. Patterson, who has been looking into the conditions of jails and poor houses on his own account, has obtained a great deal of valuable information. He will submit this to the board of control when his statistical report is made and hopes to call the facts to the attention of the legislature in such a way as to insure improvements in the laws. The needed improvements relate not only to the unsanitary conditions of jails and poor houses, but also to the present system of feeding prisoners, whereby the jailer or sheriff receives a stated allowance per meal. Under the present system the profits to the jailer from meals depends on the number of prisoners he has and on this account the influence of the jailer is likely to be extended to keeping the jail population at as high a point as possible. Members of the board of control are impressed with the need of improvements along this line, though officially having no jurisdiction in the matter.

W. H. Hanson of Luanna, Clayton county, has written to the management of the state fair asking to be allowed to exhibit a herd of buffalo on the grounds. Mr. Hanson is said to have the only herd of buffalo in the state. Inasmuch as these animals are becoming rare, it is not improbable the fair management will give Mr. Hanson permission to display the herd here. It is understood the herd consists of eleven fine animals. There is some question whether they shall be exhibited free of charge or kept in an inclosure and an admission fee charged. If this question can be settled, there is a strong probability this unique exhibit will be secured.

The first filings in the noted murder case of the state of Iowa vs. Margaret Hossack of Warren county have been made in the supreme court. A certified copy of the indictment, the record entries, the motion to set aside verdict, grant a new trial and for arrest of judgment and an amendment thereto have been made matters of record. No abstracts or arguments have yet been filed in the appeal. The case promises to be one of the most interesting of the approaching October term. The attorneys for the defense, Henderson and Berry and W. F. Powell, are said to be thoroughly convinced of the innocence of the defendant, Mrs. Margaret Hossack, now in prison at Anamosa, and they are prepared to make a desperate legal fight in her behalf. Attorney General Mullan will be drawn into the case on behalf of the state. The motion for setting aside the verdict and for a new trial is a lengthy one and sets forth thirty grounds on which the new trial should be granted. These relate mainly to alleged errors of the court in ruling on objections and in giving instructions to the jury.

The new rule of the supreme court for admissions to the bar has been issued in accordance with the provisions of the law passed by the twenty-eighth general assembly and which went into effect July 4 of this year. The new rules which will be used for the first time at the examination before the court at the next October term contain many radical changes from the rules under which the examinations have been conducted in the past. The principal change is requirement that the general educational qualifications of the applicants for examination shall be determined before allowing them to enter as to their legal attainments and for this purpose it is required that the applicants shall pass a satisfactory written examination in orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, United States and English history, elementary algebra, elementary physics, elementary economics and civil government, and on such other subjects as the board appointed by the court shall deem necessary. The board may accept, in lieu of such examination, proof that the applicant is a graduate of a collegiate course in any university or college of good standing in the United States, or is a graduate of a three years' course in any high school having a course of study which prepares for admission to the state university, or in any school or academy prescribing an equivalent course.

GOOD PROGRESS IS MADE.

Foreign Ministers Accept Chinese Indemnity Proposition.

Peking, July 27.—The ministers of the powers after yesterday's meeting dispatched a note to the Chinese peace commissioners formally accepting the recent Chinese offer, which was in anticipation of the ministers' plan for the payment of 450,000,000 taels as indemnity, at 4 per cent interest, the final payment to be made in 1940. The total assessment of principal and interest will be 1,000,000,000 taels.

The portions of the Chinese revenue that are now applied to foreign debts previously occurred will be devoted to the payment of this indemnity whenever those debts are extinguished.

Unless China in the meantime incurs other obligations, she will be free from debt in 1940.

The ministers of the powers are signed in a fortnight.

signed in a fortnight.

The subjects of punishment and examinations were practically closed yesterday, the ministers accepting the Chinese statement of what has been accomplished as the best settlement obtainable, though not satisfactory.

TO INVESTIGATE NAVAL CONDUCT.

Secretary Long Names the Members of the Court of Inquiry.

Washington, July 26.—Secretary of the Navy John D. Long has selected Admiral Dewey and Rear Admirals Kimberly and Benham as members of the Schley court of inquiry in the Santiago controversy. The secretary also tendered to Captain C. Lemly, judge advocate general of the navy, the position of judge advocate of the court. Captain Lemly will possibly accept the appointment.

Russian Demands on Turkey.

London, July 24.—"Russia demands of the porte two coaling stations on the Persian gulf," says the Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Mail, wiring Saturday, "and she is using the strongest pressure to induce the sultan to yield. One or more stations have been demanded in Asia Minor. Up to the present the porte has not yielded, but it is doubtful whether the Ottoman government will be able to hold out. These demands are regarded as serious by the British.

STORIETTES.

A certain wealthy benefactor of Harvard humorously complained of President Eliot's treatment. "He comes to me," he said, "for my money and my advice; and, like the women in the scripture, the one is taken and the other left."

Senator Bailey of Texas has a face like a cherub. It is round and soft and full of color. One day, in the corridor of the senate, he was approached by a giggling young woman, who asked, rapturously: "Oh, senator, where in the world did you get your pretty pink complexion?" Bailey was embarrassed only for an instant. Looking straight in the eye and tapping her lightly on her slightly rouged cheek, he very gravely asked: "Where in the city did you get yours?"

Rev. Dr. John Watson ("Ian Maclaren") and others recently dined with W. S. Caine, M. P. Mr. Caine offered to give fifty pounds to a hospital fund through the man who would make the best pun on his name within five minutes. Brains cogitated for awhile, and then, just as the time was about to expire and Mr. Caine thought he was to escape, John Watson said: "Don't be in such a hurry, Caine." If this story be true, that two hundred and fifty dollars was about the easiest money that Dr. Watson ever earned.

The speech in the house of lords of the bishop of Hereford on the subject of gambling recalls a story told of Bishop Potter of New York. The bishop, traveling through Louisiana some years ago, addressed inquiries to his fellow passengers with a view to obtaining information regarding the orchards and fruit interests of the state. "Do you raise pears in Louisiana?" inquired the bishop. "We do," replied the Louisianian, who was a better authority on poker than on horticulture, "if we have threes or better."

It is said that when President Polk visited Boston he was impressively received at Faneuil Hall market. The clerk walked in front of him down the length of the market, announcing in loud tones: "Make way, gentlemen, for the president of the United States. The president of the United States! Fellow citizens, make room!" The chief had stepped into one of the stalls to look at some game, when Mr. Rhodes turned round suddenly, and, finding himself alone, suddenly changed his tone, and exclaimed: "My gracious, where

BEYOND THE HEAT BELT.

Mountain Breezes and Mountain Sports Available for Those Who Would Escape the Sizzling Heat.

Out beyond the plains of Kansas, where the snow capped peaks raise their heads, in Colorado, is the Mecca for sweltering residents of the Hot Belt. There has not been such a season of torridity for more than a third of a century, and it is beginning to tell upon the powers of the people. Their minds are less active, and their bodies are tired, and their systems debilitated. The best remedy is close acquaintance with nature, fair, and robed in cool greens, and swept by invigorating breezes and fortunately the opportunities are at hand and may be taken advantage of by everybody. The Missouri Pacific Railway with its system resembling a net work of lines in the great southwest, runs fine trains of palatial cars by a direct and agreeable route to Pueblo, and there connections are made with America's most popular scenic route, the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, in whose cars the public are carried into the very heart of the great mountain range, through canyons of dizzy depth and along the busy sparkling waters which came from Snowland and brought its coolness with them. There are very many delightful places in the Rockies and plenty of sport for the hunter and fisher. He displays excellent judgment who steals some time from his business and uses it in the pursuit of a favorite sport and for the benefit of his health. The Rio Grande Western is a natural connection of these two systems already mentioned, carrying their passengers still further toward the western outposts, into still more remote sporting country, and where forest and canyon wear their natural beauty the longer, and so, to the Desert City by the Great Salt Lake. There is no more delightful short tour and it can be accomplished with comparatively small expense. Sizzling over a desk in the heat of summer is unprofitable and unremunerative self sacrifice and should not be endured when coolness and health are so near at hand. These railway systems make travel a pleasure, and nature, ever kind, is the great restorer. If you have not yet decided to take a summer trip, decide now to do so, and get out of the heat into the coolness of Colorado and Utah.

A ripple of laughter is worth a flood of tears.

Kipling's Impressions of Yellowstone Canon.

Of the Grand Canon of the Yellowstone, Rudyard Kipling writes: "All I can say is that without warning or preparation I looked into a gulf 1,700 feet deep, with eagles and fish hawks circling far below. And the sides of that gulf were one wild welter of color—crimson, emerald, cobalt, ochre, amber, honey splashed with port wine, snow-white, vermilion, lemon and silver gray in wide washes. The sides did not fall sheer, but were graven by time and water and air into monstrous heads of kings, dead chiefs—men and women of the old time. So far below that no sound of its strife could reach us, the Yellowstone river ran, a finger-wide strip of jade green. The sunlight took these wondrous walls and gave fresh hues to those that nature had already laid there. Evening crept through the pines that shadowed us, but the full glory of the day flamed in that canon as we went out very cautiously to a jutting piece of rock—blood-red or pink it was—that overhung the deepest deeps of all. Now I know what it is to sit enthroned amid the clouds of sunset as the spirits sit in Blake's pictures. Giddiness took away all sensation of touch or form, but the sense of blinding color remained. When I reached the main land again I had sworn that I had been floating."

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR THE WABASH.

Effective July 10th. The Wabash is placing the first of the large order of equipment, consisting of two baggage, 8 combination pasenger and baggage, 30 coaches, 10 chair cars, 3 cafe cars and 2 dining cars into service. The trains running from Chicago leaving at 11:00 a. m., 3:03 p. m., 9:15 p. m. and 11:00 p. m., respectively, will carry this new equipment. Much comment has been made upon the elegant broad vestibule chair cars in this service. In addition to this extra equipment, the Pan-American Special, running between St. Louis and Buffalo, leaves St. Louis at 1:00 p. m., arriving at Buffalo 8:20 a. m. Returning, leaves Buffalo 1:30 p. m., arrives St. Louis 7:56 a. m. This train has been equipped with the large broad vestibule chair cars and cafe library and observation cars, something entirely new, an innovation in the passenger service.

"DISCOVER NOT A SECRET TO ANOTHER."

Keeping One's Own Counsel — People Should Learn to Say Nothing of Others That Is Not of Good Import—Proverbs XXV: 9.

(Copyright, 1901, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

Washington, July 28.—A practical question which is asked in most houses, and for many years, is here asked by Dr. Talmage and answered; text, Proverbs xxv, 9, "Discover not a secret to another."

It appears that in Solomon's time, as in all subsequent periods of the world, there were people too much disposed to tell all they knew. It was blab, blab, blab; physicians revealing the case of their patients, lawyers exposing the private affairs of their clients, neighbors advertising the faults of the next door resident, pretended friends betraying confidences.

One-half of the trouble of every community comes from the fact that so many people have not the capacity to keep their mouths shut. When I hear something disparaging of you, my first duty is not to tell you, but if I tell you what somebody has said against you and then go out and tell everybody else what I told you, and they go out and tell others what I told them that I told you, and we all go out, some to hunt up the originator of the story and others to hunt it down, we shall get the whole community talking about what you did not do, and there will be as many scalps taken as though a band of Modocs had swept upon a helpless village. We have two ears, but only one tongue, a physiological suggestion that we ought to hear a good deal more than we tell. Let us join a conspiracy that we will tell each other all the good and nothing of the ill, and then there will not be such awful need of sermons on Solomon's words, "Discover not a secret to another."

Solomon had a very large domestic circle. In his earlier days he had very confused notions about monogamy and polygamy, and his multitudinous associates in the matrimonial state kept him too well informed as to what was going on in Jerusalem. They gathered up all the privacies and poured them into his ear, and his family became a sorosis or female debating society of 700, discussing day after day all the difficulties between husbands and wives, between employers and employes, between rulers and subjects, until Solomon, in my text, deplores volubility about affairs that do not belong to us and extols the virtue of secretiveness.

Outbranchings of Sympathy.

You sometimes see a man with no outbranchings of sympathy. His nature is cold and hard, like a ship's mast ice glaced, which the most agile sailor could never climb. Others have a thousand roots and a thousand branches. Innumerable tendrils climb their hearts and blossom all the way up, and the fowls of heaven sing in the branches. In consequence of this tendency we find men coming together in tribes, in communities, in churches, in societies. Some gather together to cultivate the arts, some to plan for the welfare of the state, some to discuss religious themes, some to kindle their mirth, some to advance their craft. So every active community is divided into associations of artists, of merchants, of bookbinders, of carpenters, of masons, of plasterers, of shipwrights, of plumbers. Do you cry out against it? Then you cry out against a tendency divinely implanted. Your tirades would accomplish no more than if you should preach to a busy ant hill a long sermon against secret societies.

Here we find the oft discussed question whether associations that do their work with closed doors and admit their members by passwords and greet each other with a secret grip are right or wrong. I answer that it depends entirely on the nature of the object for which they meet. Is it to pass the hours in revelry, wassail, blasphemy and obscene talk or to plot trouble to the state or to debauch the innocent, then I say, with an emphasis that no man can mistake. No! But is the object the defense of the rights of any class against oppression, the improvement of the mind, the enlargement of the heart, the advancement of art, the defense of the government, the extirpation of crime or the kindling of a pure hearted sociality, then I say, with just as much emphasis, Yes!

Secret Societies.

There are secret societies in our colleges that have letters of the Greek alphabet for their nomenclature, and their members are at the very front in scholarship and irreproachable in morals, while there are others the scene of carousal, and they gamble, and they drink, and they graduate knowing a hundred times more about sin than they do of geometry and Sophocles. In other words, secret societies, like individuals, are good or bad, are the means of moral health or of temporal and eternal damnation. All good people recognize the vice of slandering an individual, but many do not see the sin of slandering an organization. There are old secret societies in this and other countries, some of them centuries old, which have been widely denounced as immoral and damaging in their influence, yet I have hundreds of personal friends who belong to them—friends who are consecrated to God, pillars in the church, faithful in all relations of life, examples of virtue and piety. They are the kind of friends whom I would have for my executors at the time of decease, and they are the men whom I would have carry me out to the last sleep when I am dead. You cannot make me believe that they would belong to bad institutions. They are the men who would stamp on anything iniquitous, and I would certainly rather take their testimony in regard to such societies than the testimony of those who, having been sworn in as members, by their assault upon them confess themselves perjurers.

One of these secret societies gave for the relief of the sick in 1873 in this country, $1,490,274. Some of these societies have poured a very heaven of sunshine and benediction into the home of suffering. Several of them are founded on fidelity to good citizenship and the Bible. I have never taken one of their degrees. They might give me the grip a thousand times and I would not recognize it. I am ignorant of their passwords, and I must judge entirely from the outside. But Christ has given us a rule by which we may judge not only all individuals, but all societies, secret and open. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Bad societies make bad men. Good societies make good men. A bad man will not stay in a good society. A good man will not stay in a bad society. Then try all secret societies by two or three rules.

Influence on Home Life.

Test the first: Their influence on home, if you have a home. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great enterprises of reform and art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front doorstep and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic or lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art or literature or religion or charity is breaking her own scepter of conjugal power. I know an instance where a wife thought that her husband was giving too many nights to Christian service, to charitable service, to prayer meetings and to religious convocation. She systematically decoyed him away until now he attends no church, waits upon no charitable institution and is on a rapid way to destruction, his morals gone, his money gone and, I fear, his soul gone.

Let any Christian wife rejoice when her husband consecrates evenings to the service of humanity and of God or anything elevating, but let no man sacrifice home life to secret society life, as many do. I can point out to you a great many names of men who are guilty of this sacrilege. They are as genial as angels at the society room and as ugly as sin at home. They are genereous on all subjects of wine suppers, yachts and fast horses, but they are stingy about the wives' dresses and the children's shoes. That man has made that which might be a healthful influence a usurper of his affection and he has married it, and he is guilty of moral bigamy. Under this process his wife, whatever her features, becomes uninteresting and homely. He becomes critical of her, does not like the dress, does not like the way she arranges her hair, is amazed that he ever was so unromantic as to offer her hand and heart. There are secret societies where membership always involves domestic shipwreck. Tell me that a man has joined a certain kind and tell me nothing more about him for ten years, and I will write his history if he be still alive. The man is a wine guzzler, his wife broken hearted or prematurely old, his fortune gone and his home a mere name in the directory.

Evils of Bad Associations.

The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight, but years of fast living. The clergyman, for the sake of the feelings of the family on the funeral day will only talk in religous generalities. The men who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at the obsequies. They have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the coffin, will send their wives to utter words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come. Bring me mallet and chisel, and I will cut that man's epitaph, 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord?" "No," you say "that would not be appropriate.' "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his?" "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." Then give me the mallet and the chisel and I will cut an honest epitaph, "Here lies the victim of dissipating associations!"

Another test by which you can find whether your secret society is right or wrong is the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial success. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the secret society has advantaged you in an honorable calling it is a good one, but has your credit failed? Are bargain makers now more anxious how they trust you with a bale of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency A1 before they entered the society been going down since in commercial standing? Then look out. You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members, their fortune beaten to death with ball players' bat or cut amidships with the front prow of the regatta or going down under the swift hoofs of the fast horses or drowned in the large potations of cognac or Monongahela. That secret society was the Loch Earn. Their business was the Ville de Havre. They struck, and the Ville de Havre went under!

In the Last Hours.

Which would you rather have in your hand when you come to die, a pack of cards or a Bible? Which would you rather have pressed to your lips in the closing moment, the cup of Belshazzarean wassail or the chalice of Christian communion? Whom would you rather have for your pallbearers, the elders of a Christian church or the companions whose conversation was full of slang and innuendo? Whom would you rather have for your eternal companions, those men who spend their evenings betting, gambling, swearing, carousing and telling vile stories or your little child, that bright girl whom the Lord took? Oh, you would not have been away so many nights, would you, if you had known she was going away so soon? Dear me, your house has never been the same place since. Your wife has never brightened up. She has never got over it. She never will get over it. How long the evenings are with no one to put to bed and no one to whom to tell the beautiful Bible stories! What a pity it is that you cannot spend more evenings at home in trying to help her bear that sorrow! You can never drown that grief in the wine cup. You can never break away from the little arms that used to be flung around your neck when she used to say, "Papa, do stay with me tonight, do stay with me tonight!" You will never be able to wipe away from your lips the dying kiss of your little girl. The fascination of a bad secret society is so great that sometimes a man has turned his back on his home when his child was dying of scarlet fever. He went away. Before he got back at midnight the eyes had been closed, the undertaker had done his work, and the wife, worn out with three weeks' watching, lay unconscious in the next room. Then the returned father comes up stairs, and sees the cradle gone, and he says, "What is the matter?" On the judgment day he will find out what was the matter.

Oh, man astray, God help you! I am going to make a very stout rope. You know that sometimes a ropemaker will take very small threads and wind them together until after awhile they become a ship cable. And I am going to take some very small delicate threads and wind them together until they make a very stout rope. I will take all the memories of the marriage day—a thread of laughter, a thread of light, a thread of music, a thread of banqueting, a thread of congratulation—and I twist them together, and I have one strand. Then I take a thread of the hour of the first advent in your house, a thread of the darkness that preceded, and a thread of the beautiful scarf that little child used to wear when she bounded out at eventide to greet you, and a thread of the beautiful dress in which you laid her away for the resurrection, and then I twist all these threads together, and I have another strand. Then I take a thread of the scarlet robe of a suffering Christ, and a thread of the white raiment of your loved ones before the throne, and a string of the harp cherubic, and a string of the harp seraphic, and I twist them all together, and I have a third strand. "Oh," you say, "either strand is enough to hold fast a world!" No, I will take these strands and I will twist them together, and one end of that rope I will fasten, not to the communion table, for it shall be removed; not to a pillar of the organ, for that will crumble in the ages; but I wind it round and round the cross of a sympathizing Christ, and, having fastened one end of the rope to the cross, I throw the other end to you. Lay hold of it! Pull for your life! Pull for heaven!

ART IN FRONT DOORS.

Let Glazed Pictures Replace Blistered Paint and Graining.

How many thousands of expanses of blank nonentity are represented in London alone by that portentous emblem of respectability, the front door? Has it never occurred to anybody what a boundless field for the exercise of decorative art has here been so long neglected? With the exception of a very few made in polished mahogany and some with ornamental iron work, the artistic possibilities of what Dr. Johnson might have called "the ligneous barricadoe" is altogether neglected. If you knock or ring, and the servant is a long while "answering the door"—as if a door were in the habit of asking questions—you will find there is nothing to look at but blistered paint, or graining, which is never the least like any wood that was ever known, or possibly a bilious, distorted presentment of yourself in a brass plate. Now, why should this dismal state of things be allowed to exist? Every front door should be different from its neighbor, and every portal should be a joy to the waiter in the doorstep. Artists are plentiful, and plate glass is inexpensive. Let the panels be removed from the door and let glazed pictures take their place. It might take the form of landscape, figure, or decorative work, or anyone who wished to advertise himself might exhibit his own portrait to the passing public. If you could not afford pictures you might have black-and-white sketches, etchings and prints. In a little while you would get to know a man's house, not by the number, but by the picture. The only drawback I see to the idea is that, if you exhibited a specially fine work of art, you would have your steps blocked up by enthusiasts anxious to have a cheap look at it.—Lady's Pictorial.

ONE SHADE OR TWO.

Why are Some Things Gray and Others Grey?

Is there a difference between "grey" and "gray," aside from the matter of spelling? American lexicographers say there is not, but the Academy tells us that we must be careful if we would give each its "special application." And it adds very learnedly: "Who does not feel that some things are grey and others gray?" If anybody does not feel that way let him not be ashamed to speak up. Dr. Murray, the editor of the great new dictionary that is now only partly published, went about in 1893 making an inquiry as to usage and found that opinions in London varied. The replies to his questions showed that in Great Britain the form grey is the more frequent in use, despite the authority of Dr. Johnson and later lexicographers, who give the preference to gray. Many correspondents said they had used the two forms with a difference of meaning or application, the distinction most generally recognized being that grey denotes a more delicate or lighter tint than gray. Others considered the difference to be that gray is a warmer color, or that it has a mixture of red or brown. The Academy's own opinion is that gray has more of sentiment, grey more of color, which means that gray is a suggestion rather than a positive outline. After all this learned discussion people will go on pronouncing the word without reference to its vowel, and in saying that the shade is gray they will let any one with a fancy for the dispute spell it to suit himself. These fine distinctions may be ignored on the plea of the brevity of life.—Youth's Companion.

Be of Good Cheer.

No matter what occurs, keep up your courage. The man of hope is the man of valor. Never borrow trouble If it is in the future it will come soon enough. The burden of calamity you dread may never come. And if it should come it will find you better able to meet and bear it than you are today. As your days, so shall your strength be. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. The life and words of Jesus and Paul furnish some apt and forceful illustration of the uplifting, sustaining power of a joyous, loving hope. On the eve of his crucifixion, when the clouds were black and threatening, Jesus comforted his disciples with those ever-memorable words: "Let not your heart be troubled. In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Hope gives sanity and good health; it doubles the value of food and sleep, lightens every care, and gives the heart courage for all its tasks. Hope on. Hope ever.—Christian Uplook.

To live content with small means, to seek elegance rather than luxury and refinement rather than fashion, to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich, to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly, to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart, to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never. In a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious grow up through the common. This is to be my symphony.—William Henry Channing.

Susie: A Character Sketch

By Philip Verrill Mighels

The sun went down, the daylight waned. Exhaustion told the man below to cease and go to his cabin. Having loaded the bucket he labored slowly up the vertical climb on the ladder.

The Indian glided nearer to the edge. He could hear every step on the rungs of the ladder, could ever detect the sound of the roughened hands grasping the wood. Leaning far over, he saw the candle, fastened on the miner's hat. Nearer, nearer it slowly came, flickering, throwing goblin shadows against the somber walls, contending faintly against the encompassing gloom.

The shaft was now alive with hollow echoes of the labors of the man. On came the light. It was 10 feet away—it was five feet—two. The head and the light emerged above the yawning chasm.

With a movement swift, strong, snake-like, Mingo thrust out his powerful hand. It came across the miner's eyes and nose; then the head was wrenched quickly, violently backward. The hands, surprised, tried to cling, but failed. They loosened, waved wildly, clutched at the air, and then, with the body and head, were overtoppled. Headlong, twisting, turning, the man was hurled to the swallowing abyss. The light on the hat gave forth the sound of a flame in the wind and was gone—plucked off by the rushing darkness! A shriek issued forth from the mouth of the tomb.

"Susie! little Susie!" was the cry.

Sounds of a striking—a bounding back and forth, dully, against the jagged sides—a crash at the bottom—and silence deeper than stillness ensued.

The door swung open and Mingo, the Washoe, glided forth and away in the twilight, into the sage brush; and a rabbit would have made a greater rustle.

The stillness of midnight, a seeming attribute of masses of shadows that crouched from the waning moon, behind the rocks, the brush and every salient thing, was timidly broken. The creak in the hinges of the mine cabin door sounded weirdly clear—a wail, an omen, thought the Indian girl. An awesome darkness filled the silent shed. Susie, on her knees, went creeping, feeling with her hands for the edge of the shaft. There she clutched the windlass post, and leaned her breast against it.

"Frank," she cooed, in a low, sweet tone that wavered with the effort made to keep it cheerful, "Frank, my sunshine—Frank."

No sound save that a piece of rock, somewhere down along the pick-scarred walls of the shaft, loosened and fell, down and down, striking the sides with diminishing sounds, till a ghostly echo announced its bottom rest. Then deeper silence.

"Dear one, are you there?" she called again; but the sound of her voice, rebounding on herself, made her frightened and awed.

Pressing her heart against the post again, to still its audible thumping, she sat a moment in dread. Suddenly, then, strengthened by the thought that he might be there, wounded, perhaps, and needing her sadly, down in the gloom of the yawning mine, she groped her way to the ladder. Moaning of instinct, there in the darkness, she slowly descended, down and down in the mocking, echoing tomb.

In the utter blackness her hands discovered his face, and she cried aloud, till the shaft was full of anguish.

A boneless mass, inert and fitted to the jagged surface of the loaded bucket of ore, into which he had fallen, she found. His head hung limply athwart the bucket's edge; the eyes, which her fingers sought, were closed.

Beside him, kneeling, she sank, to moan and croon, combing the dark, curling hair with her fingers, kissing the face—and seeing nothing. She fancied that a beat, slight and feeble, lived in his breast. Calling his name, she coaxed and wooed, and then, despairing, stood up and prayed for help.

"God, if the Indians, too, have souls," she said, "give my aching soul to him—let him live! Give me something, Great Eternal Spirit—something of hope!"

With an esoteric summoning of a marvelous strength, she lifted the drooping form; the arms and head fell listlessly across her shoulders. Then to the ladder! And with all the power of arms and limbs, thewed by desperation against the giant task, she started toiling up and up, like one who shoulders up a crushing weight, to gain the air and freedom. Her palms were burning, her knees shook and trembled, her breath came in gasping lung clutches painful to bear; the darkness swam thickly about—she was stifling, smothered, congested with blood, yet she forced her way aloft.

Across the floor of the cabin at last she fell with the burden. The limpish arms went dangling at random about her neck in a ghastly embrace that thrilled her keenly with joy. Exhausted she lay, fondling the hands and face, trying to rub him back to life, till the chill of long-dead clay was come, and the face seemed carved in stone.

Through the night, bending above him, she poured out a fountain of her love and grief alternately with all the softness of her Indian cooings and cadence of her mellowed English syllables. Grey morning found her wooing still the smile on the dead man's lips, striving, yearning to warm the cold, white features.

The small, broad miner, passing the cabin when noon was high, delayed for a second. "Letter for Henley," he stolidly announced; but tossing it in, beheld the girl, beheld the miner, and fled the hill to spread the news of the sight he had seen, and to fetch away the coroner.

CHAPTER III.

In the sage brush wigwam the summer waned to autumn with dreary stillness. Grey already, the stretch of brush, relieved alone by the willow fringe of the wandering creek, was cheerless, dreary and oppressive to the girl. She sat alone, while the chilling wind was wantonly ripping the leaves from the branches, her head drooped low in hopeless despair.

A shadow, thrown by the setting sun, betrayed a presence. Dumbly she raised her eyes to look.

"Ugh," said a tall, grunting Washoe buck.

She turned away her head again.

"Mahala, do you wait for Mingo?" said the man. "Johnny Shag is bigger chief. Mingo shall never come."

She looked in silence on the ashes of the wood burned the day before.

"Mahala," he added, "one, two moons Jonny Shag come to take you the trail to my wigwam. Why not any talk? Too long, you sabbee? Mahala waits for Mingo. Better look out Mahala; Jonny Shag is warrior. To-day you better talk."

"One moon, let me think," she wearily answered. "Let me wait one moon."

"One moon, yet. Jonny Shag will wait. Many things come before the moon again." He glided away, and again her head sank wearily down.

Mingo, the Washoe, stealthily returning to Chloride hill, kept cautious ears and eyes awide, to learn the result of the murder at the mine. Susie, he rightly conjectured, would have guessed the truth. He avoided the wikiup, but remained in the town. Patience with many an Indian is a virtue.

On a crisp, cool day, while Mingo talked with a group of bucks on a corner, Shag, on a pony and armed with a rifle, rode up behind. Raising his gun, he deliberately shot Mingo through the body, and escaped to the hills.

The thoroughly astounded camp officials promptly gave pursuit, but all in vain. Friends and relations of the dead man assisting, the country was scoured, skillfully, cunningly. Canyons, valleys, the shoulders of the mountains, were traversed and searched, but nothing availed. Shag enjoyed every advantage.

Three Indian trailers, mounted, came at length to where the fugitive was lying in ambush. One of these escaped with his life and rode like a demon to tell of the two, lying grisly and stark, struck in the back by the bullets of Shag, their faces now twisted in the sun.

A stooping, stricken Washoe, the old Red Wolf, whose boys they were that had died in the sand, departed in silence, alone, on the path of war. The fued was his. In the night he found the man he sought, found him asleep—left him asleep—his knife standing firm, erect, buried to the hilt in the breast of Shag the warrior.

The year grew old; its days, like the hours of waking of an old and passing man, were dim and short; its nights long sleeps, that made it none the stronger.

And yet there came a day that was like an echo of what had been before the year began to age. Susie, wan but wistful of face, went from the hopeless wigwam and hurried away up the moaning creek. She went to a copse of alder trees, entered and was lost to view.

An hour later she slowly emerged and in her arms she carried a child, a little boy with fairest hair and the bluest of eyes. She seated herself in the sunlight and shivered as she nestled the infant and cooed it softly with Indian words. She was faint and weary, but strangely happy. Her baby resembled its father, young as it was. Her heart went leaping to it—embraced it—owned it! Her pain, her suffering, everything was forgotten.

All the afternoon she sat by the stream nursing her baby, cudling it closely, warming it ever in her throbbing breast. As the twilight approached, the air was the balm of the Indian summer.

Rising, she placed her baby in the rustling grass; deftly she beat the subtle willows down—masses of willow—and throwing the grass, leaves and twigs over all, made a roof to catch the frost. Into this with her child she crept, nestling it gently as before.

Night came down. Quite late the babe awoke and feebly cried. She smothered it and sang, in her sad-sweet voice, a lullaby:

I hear the crickets sing in the long grasses;
Many camp-fires of the braves shine in the sky—
They shine again in the little river;
The wind is small and gentle when it plays in your hair.
Lie in my heart as the pebbles lie in the little river;
As the crickets lie in the long grasses;
Shine in my heart as the camp-fires shine in the sky;
Sleep, little Fawn, till the sun comes over the mountain.

The little Fawn slept, but never to wake till a greater sun should top the mountains of darkness, misery and despair.

Singing and cooing, Susie weaved in the darkness—unconscious of the light—with the birds, toward the summer—of the new little soul. At midnight, bending forward to kiss the downy cheek, she was startled at its coldness. Hurriedly feeling the wee soft hands, the pulseless feet, the tiny body, she sounded the utmost depths of agony.

She rushed from the shelter, the cold little body in her arms. By the light of the stars, the "fires of the braves," she saw the touch of the grim visitor. Then on the air of night arose a pain-song out of a heart rudely broken. She sank unconscious to the earth. Away off hillward a gaunt coyote howled an answer back, dismal, long forlorn.

The sun glided the path to the heavens, and rose in purple mists of majesty; the beam-fingers played in the night-dark hair of the mother, and touched with gold the hair of the child.

Dreaming the present far out of vision, dreaming the past into present again, the wan mother smiled and nodded in her sleep. Awakening, she shivered; a sigh that had rested was also aroused. Yet peace and patience were come in her heart.

Kneeling, she yearningly extended her hands to the shimmering sun. "O God, O Great Eternal Spirit," she said, "they told me of the Christ who died—who died for sins—for souls in trouble! But oh, my God, He never knew of Indian souls—and so, Great Spirit, let Susie die for all the sins—the love—the happiness!"

Still with her look to the mighty sun, still with a murmur of passionate appeal on her quivering lips, she took up her baby, pressed it in eagerness close to her bosom, and glided ahead, to a pool of the stream, sobbing and sobbing, and was curtained from sight of the crystal waters.

When the body of the slender young Indian woman, clinging to a fair-haired baby, was found, a few wives and mothers said it was "pitiful," and other persons said she was "only an Injun."

Prevent Baldness

And Cleanse the Scalp of Crusts, Scales, and Dandruff by Shampoos with Cuticura

SOAP

And light dressings with CUTICURA, purest of emollients and greatest of skin cures. This treatment at once stops failing hair, removes crusts, scales, and dandruff, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of Women

USE CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour.

Copper, Lead and Zinc Stock as an Investment.

You can invest a small amount of money very safely and profitably in the shares of a good mining company. The shares of the largest and most profitable mining companies of the United States and ann Europe are held by small investors having a few shares each. These shares, too, were usually bought at par originally, but have grown very valuable through investors holding them a reasonable length of time as investments. Profits have been made by shares increasing in market value often many hundred times the price paid for them originally, and the great dividends which have been paid stockholders while they were thus carried as investments. The greatest profits have been made in low-priced stocks of mines in their developmental stage and before they have paid their first dividend. Owing to a great and ever-increasing demand for copper add the limited productiveness of the copper mines of the world, it will command a ready market at high prices for years to come, and large permanent dividends will be earned by copper producing mines. The St. Louis Copper, Mining and Developing Company's Mines are in an advanced stage of development, and will soon be yielding dividends. It's stock is one of the best of the low-priced stock now obtainable, and will prove a good investment.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4, 1900.

A number of our people were at Kanawha Friday attending the harvest festival. The days program passed off very nicely, and a good time seems to be the report.

Wm. Leach sold to W. R. Bloom last week 16 hogs that brought the snug little sum of $334.65. That is the kind of farmers we have in Hancock county.

The Institute at Garner is all over with and the teachers have gone home. Supt. Schell is credited with having conducted as good an institute gathering as was ever held in the county.

Theae is nothing that will cool you quite so quick, during this hot weather, as a dish of ice cream, a glass of lemonade or milk shake. Drinks of all kinds served at all times at G. W. Kluckhohn's.

Otto Frei had the bad luck on last Friday while driving over to Kanawha to lose his buggy horse. He was within three miles of Kanawha when it was overcome by heat and died within an hour.

John Zook's little babe which was reported as getting better last week has become worse, and now lies at death's door. The little child has been suffering severe pains for nigh unto two weeks and it is hoped it will soon be better.

The long looked for rain; the rain that was to save the farmers of this section thousands of dollars came last Saturday and did it's work well. It was a genuine old soakers, and freshened up the pastures and crops so that everybody is glad.

New oats will go about 40 bu. to the acre; machine measure.

The corn crop will be about three-forth of a regular crop.

The recent rain amounts to three and one inches down-pour.

W. R. Bloom shipped a carload of hogs Sunday and another Wednesday.

There is a movement on foot to start a farmers co-operative creamery at Corwith. That is the kind we have in Klemme and it is a prosperous one.

Mr. Fisher, representing the Nora Springs College has been in Klemme a few days this week distributing information and talking with the young folks.

The second oldest Ax boy had a serious accident happen to him Tuesday. The cattle got out of the pasture and he went after them on horse-back. The horse stumbled and threw him to the ground in such a that his collar bone was broke. This bone is one of the body's worst members to grow together, thus it will be some time before he is himself again.

Those of our readers who go to Meservey occasionally will perhaps take interest in the fact that Meservey people have been having considerable trouble for the past five or six weeks with scarlet fever. The Chris Enabnit Jr. family has been under quarantine for about four weeks and one of the children has gone to the grave yard for rest. This family and two others are now serving the black flag. It is spreading rapidly among the town people and if not properly cared for will get out into the country. No one but the immune doctor should be allowed to present himself on the premices as this disease is carried in the clothes. Meservey has the "scarlet fever" and people ought to stay away until they can go there with perfect safety.

We notice in a recent issue of The Klemme Times what purports to be the history of Ben. Kaste's adventures on Sunday Eve July 7. We note the statement that "some miscreant took the pains to untie Ben. Kaste's team and start them without a driver." That sounds as if eye witnesses had seen the whole performance. If there were witnesses to the act we should like to see the miscreant brought to justice and given his ninty days. To the best of our knowledge, there is absolutely no proof that the team was untied and we challange Mr. Kaste to prove the contrary. The team was tied to a single post when there were abundant oppurtunites to use a post for each horse. Who knows but that the horses became untied and came home? This supposition seems far more reasonable to us. To state without question that the team was untied when there is no positive proof is presumptuous to the extreme. The young people of Germantown are not a hard set, nor are they vindicative or jealous of Mr. Kaste; but on the other hand will compare favorably with the young people of other communities. It is unjust to them to circulate any such report as the above.

By one of them.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden, editor World-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

POLLY'S UNCLE JOSHUA.

He Does The Handsome Thing By The Wedded Ones.

They come to Klemme and fit Themselves out for Housekeeping—Josh gives them the Benefit of His Experience and Foots the Bill—All have a Gay Time.

"Miss Summers—Polly—I-er-dare I but the speaker took a header over bashfulness, only to hear a sweet "Yes Charley."

"Can I aspire to—er—to that is—what do you think I would say if I saw the Goddess of Liberty?

Why Charley, how could I know. What would you say?

'I'd say Stat-ue.'

'Oh you funny boy' remarked Polly, 'but what were you going to tell me?' A lapse of silence followed and then Charley was encouraged by a soulful appealing look from Polly's sweet blue eyes.

'If I might only hope to—er—to—"

Language failed him again. It was seemingly a hopeless case, and it might have been only for a demure.

'Charley, I've said yes, and you really mean it? I mean it too, and—and—'

And to this day the young man will insist that he popped the question!

All this happened away down east in a little town of Cicero, in Vermont, and it was not very long before there was a wedding. A letter from Polly to Uncle Josh at Klemme, announcing the marriage soon brought a reply, for Polly was as Uncle Josh declared, the only one left for him to care for. He wrote very effusively of his delight at her exhibition of what he called 'grit' and proposed that if Charley and Polly would locate in Klemme, he would bestow upon such a 'gift as would enable to have a nice home and live comfortably the rest of their days.

This, wrote Josh, will be my wedding gift to you. I don't know of any thing better for you to do, for this is the most profitable place for a young couple to start in life that I know of'

About ten days subsequent a travel worn party arrived at Klemme. Uncle Josh although sixty years of age was on hand at the depot to greet the couple, and he shook hands with both of them at once, his face once more showed the gleam of youth and his feet were spry as he gallantly directed the party to one of the busses near.

He drove immediately to the hotel. 'You know since your Aunt Jane died I ain't had no home but this, and I think I have had a nice place to live. Well here we are and you can meet the folks.

Tired out with travel, the little company soon broke up and retired for the night. In the morning after the usual greetings had been given and breakfast had been partaken of, Uncle Josh in his original manner said: 'Well, folks, I'm a thinkin' we'd better git a livery and be a lookin' out for a lot to build a house on.'

'Let me tell you' says Uncle Josh, 'where you can get the most stylish turnouts in the county. Its at Oscar Carlson's Livery Barn. You see, he's a practical man and knows his business. A rig was ordered at once, and as Polly seated herself in one of those new leather covered cushion seated spring buggies, she remarked. I little expected to find anything like this in the West, Uncle. Its a perfect luxury isn't it? Well I should say yes. Let me tell you right here you wont find many men who know their business better than does my old friend Oscar Carlson.

"By the way" exclaimed Uncle Josh with a paternal air, 'now that we have the lot bought I'm a guessin' the next thing to look after is limber to put into the house so you better drive over to the Queal Lumber Co. C. G. Bracher has charge of the business affairs of the company, and as I have known him for a good many years I'm sure he'll give us a square deal. I do no runnin' 'round when I get the best there is, They carry the most complete stock in this part of the country everything from sills to shingles, also brick, lime, stucco, cement. posts and fence wire. They have just finished unloading 20 cars of new limber and by gum! it all right, too.

"Well. now we've bought the perches for your cage, but we haven't seen a man to put them together, spoke Uncle Josh, what's the matter with going around to see Mr. H. A. Crawford. the architect, contractor and builder. Even with money we have to have a man who understands He is of draughting, building, etc. boys out a big barns for the Beier We'll drive Swantown this spring. time. As we drive see from some street I'll show you the house. residence that he put up. plans for a number of new buildings all different designs, and is erecting a large house for J. Griggs now, a so a barn and other out buildings south and east of town." After meeting Mr Crawford and getting the plans and figures a contract was made, and although Charley claims Polk tooth and toe-nail" Bert is putting up the house for her to live in.

'Now,' says Uncle Josh, 'come with me. I'll introduce you to the Gruetzmacher Bros., our leading hardware firm. I've known those fellows for the last ten years. They're the best there is.' After meeting the genial proprietors Polly was in a quandray as she could only use one stove and they had several different makes, all of such excellant quality, that she had some difficulty in making a selection, but decided to take a Peninsular range. On leaving Polly remarked 'what pleasant people to do business with. 'Oh' says Uncle Josh, 'I guess I know all about these Klemme people.

'Now we can't go to house-keeping without something to eat,' said Charley. Where do you think we can get the best deal on groceries?' 'Just go over to Lau Bros., said Uncle Josh, 'they have all kinds of provisions that are good to eat. They decided that Uncle Josh was right again, for they found a nice line of fresh fruits and groceries, canned goods, teas, spices and coffee, which Uncle Josh said were sold cheaper than at any other store in the county. "And such nice men to do business with' remarked Charley. 'Yes' said Uncle they have been in Klemme for years doing business and I note their customers always stay by them.

After locating in Klemme it was decided that Polly and Charley would also look after Josh's farms near town and would have complete control of them, Charley says to Josh: Who is the leading grain dealer of Klemme? Who has the best business and who pays the highest market price for all the grain he buys? Why, its my old friend Aug. Lau & Son, says Josh, the good old German stand-bys They are honorable in all their business dealings, and buy more grain than any two men in this part of the country They also buy stock and ship a carload once or twice a week "Is that right says Charley." "H—l, I should so, says Joshua.

While moving up the street. Uncle Josh said in his quaint way. See here Charley, we have not seen the line of buggies and farm machinery handled by H. W. Schoper yet, and as you will want these things on the farm we bought, lets drop in and see him. H. W. is one of my old friends, and a bully fellow to boot and I ken say one of the most trustworthy men in town. So they went in. looked over H. W's line and bought a nice buggy, and a full supply of farm implements. As Polly went out she remarked: 'That's a nice pleasant man to trade with. Uncle, and I intend to trade with him right along.' 'Law me," said Uncle Josh, the longer you know him the better you will like him. He is one of those jolly good Germans, has been here for years and made a name to be proud of. All the farmers now him and when they need any machinery they come to Klemme to get it of him.

About this time while driving down main street one of the horses had the misfortune of throwing a shoe. 'Now we're it,' says Charley, 'Oh no' says Uncle: 'We'll just drive down to H. E. Peitzke, the expert blacksmith of Klemme. I tell you he knows all about shoeing a first class driving horse.' 'That so?' You're blamed right what your Uncle says is square toed. And Charles if you want something fixed don't fail to call on him. Why, talk about mending plows and farm implements that fellow can fix them up so one can't tell where the break was. He is the blamdest best wood worker in this whole country and lays 'em all in the shade when it comes to doing work in his line.

Polly was good at reading signs, so as she was walking the street she noticed the Northern Lumber Co's shingle. Polly said she wanted to have some more buildings on the farm so they went in and met Mr. N. L. Palmer their agent at this place When I know I get treated right I don't go runnin' 'round They keep on hand an elegant stock; sills, sashes, door, etc

You see they carry a large stock and have new stuff coming in every twice in a while.. Oh! no there is no danger but the limber can be got all right when we need it. They seen N.A. and were much pleased with the deal they made.

They had almost finished their shopping when it was proposed by Uncle Josh that they all have their pictures taken. "Those cabinets made by Mr. Jno. Joster are just the thing and he is a dandy on taking group pictures, and while there I will leave an order to enlarge the picture of yours truly to be hung in the parlor when you begin keepin' house. I tell you it don't pay to patronize them travelin' portrait people when you know you can depend on the home man without being cheated or robbed" "Why," says Josh, "by gosh, before we go further we will go down to the State Savings Bank of Klemme and see Mr. F. A. Arnold, the cashier I want to transact a little business before the closing hour." So to the young couple's astonisment, upon arriving at the bank and being introduced to Mr. Arnold, Uncle Josh deposited $1 000 to their credit as an additional gift to begin life on. "I've done business with the State Savings Bank of Klemme ever since I came here," said Josh, "and I know they are reliable as they have been estalished for a number of years and have proved it. Yes, no mistake is made when one transacts his business at the Klemme State Savings Bank.

"Well" said Uncle Josh, after all this runnin' around, we have forgotten to buy any hardware. "How could we forget the most important things?" says Polly. Well, come with your Uncle, he'll take you to Koerner Bros. & Co., where you can get all kinds of iron. I've known Wm. Koerner since he was a little tot. As soon as Polly got inside she spied a fancy set of dishes, which she bought, also a gasoline stove, tinware, washing machine, and a set of cooking utensils. After walking around for some time Polly with an eye like an eagle, which is characteristic of a down-easter, spied a number of high class bicycles in one corner of the room. "Oh I must have one." Say, if you are going to live in these parts and be in line you'll have to have one of those wheels and Uncle bought her one. As Mr. Wm. Koerner has just been married he knew considerble about furnishing the kitchen and helped the couple nicely in their selection of hardware, tinware, etc. On leaving the store, Josh's niece remarked, "What pleasant people to deal with" "Right you are gal, says Josh.

Being satisfied with their shopping the trio started off for the hotel 'Hold on, said Uncle there two things we haven't got. Oh Uncle, we have bought all the goods we need. "No, you haven't subscribed for the KLEMME TIMES. You will want the home news every week and can get it in THE TIMES. It carries advertisements for all the leading business houses of Klemme, so whenever you want to make a purchase all you have to do is to scan it's column. It will direct you where to buy. I will git it, and when you want the other thing I will purchase the best one there is. Well, what on earth can that be? exclaimed the young pair almost in unison.. Its—a—ha carriage. Sally fallen into Charley's an infallible and all is well.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

SHERIFF ARRESTS HUMM.

Washington County Shooting May Not Result in Murder.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Sheriff Teeter was in custody Henry Humm, who shot William Buntenbach a few days ago. Humm did not attempt to escape. Buntenbach's condition is still uncertain, but there is some hope of his utimate recovery. Humm's bullet entered his breast and penetrated one lung. Buntenbach is 45 years old, while Humm, an old soldier, is 72. Humm was a sharpshooter in an Ohio regiment during the civil war. Both are prominent and wealthy farmers. As the details of the shooting become known Humm is not criticised. Humm alleges Buntenbach drew a revolver on him in a quarrel over turkeys a year ago. On the day of the shooting Humm's calf broke into Buntenbach's field. The latter, armed with a double barrel shotgun, rode over to the field and drove the calf back into Humm's pasture. He discharged both barrels of the shotgun at some of Humm's chickens that were digging in his field, killing several. It was then that Humm appeared on the scene and seeing Buntenbach with a gun, went back into the house for his own revolver. They had some words and Buntenbach rolled up his sleeves, lay his gun down and made for Humm. It was then the latter drew his weapon and fired.

QUARRELED ABOUT A CALF.

As a Result William Butenbach of Washington May Die.

Washington, August 2.—A serious and what may prove fatal shooting affray occurred here. Henry Humm, an old soldier about 60 years of age, shot his neighbor, William Buntenbach, through the right lung with a revolver.

The two men live on the same road about one-half mile from each other, seven miles southwest of the city. The dispute arose over a calf belonging to Buntenbach, which had strayed out of its pasture and wandered into Humm's field.

Sheriff John Teeter and deputy and Dr. W. Black started on the trail of the victim's cowardly would-be murderer, but up to the last report no trace of the man could be found and his whereabouts are unknown. Buntenbach is a wealthy and retired German farmer, about 40 years of age.

FARMER BADLY INJURED.

Wealthy Farmer of Dallas County Hurt in a Runaway.

Adel, Aug. 3.—T. F. Glenn, one of the wealthiest men of Dallas county, lies near death at his home, six miles southeast of Adel, as a result of a runaway. He was returning to his home accompanied by J. W. Chaney, when, in descending the steep hill at the approach of the wagon bridge, the hold-back straps on the shafts broke, permitting the buggy to strike the team. In the runaway which followed, Glenn lost his head and jumped. He struck on his head, sustaining injuries that have left him unconscious ever since and his recovery is doubtful. Glenn resides on a 600-acre farm.

PENICK'S BODY FOUND.

The general opinion now is that the victim fell from the boat while sleeping on the upper deck and that it was not a case of suicide.

Interurban Trolley Line.

Sioux City, Aug. 3.—The scheme of building an electrical line between this city and LeMars has advanced to the stage that the right of way is now being secured from the land owners along the way, a distance of twenty-five miles. The money for building the line has already been secured. The line will connect with the Leeds suburban line here, which is five miles long. The Leeds line belongs to the Sioux City Traction company, and this company, it is said, will be under the control of the new LeMars line. It is said the line will be completed this year.

Electrocuted by Live Wire.

Council Bluffs, Aug. 3.—Fred Robinson, a lineman in the employ of the Council Bluffs Gas and Electric company, was electrocuted while making connection from the main circuit to the McCormick implement warehouse on Main street. His right arm came in contact with a live wire, and the unfortunate man fell to the ground from the top of the pole and expired in a few minutes. His home was in Crete, Neb.

Killed During a Sham Battle.

Mason City, August 2.—Oliver Mitchell, a prominent young man of Rockford, was shot in the back during a sham battle, and died soon after. The accident occurred during the Sons of Veterans' celebration at Rockford, the young man being shot by a comrade. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Mitchell, old residents of Floyd county, and the accident cast a deep gloom over the community.

Slashed With a Knife.

Council Bluffs, Aug. 3.—W. H. Fox, trainmaster of the I. C. terminals, was stabbed in the abdomen by James Hughes, discharged employe. Hughes asked if he was to be reinstated, and when answered in the negative drew a pocket knife and made a vicious thrust at Fox. The latter will recover.

Deadlock Unbroken.

Sibley, August 3.—The Osceola-Dickinson-Emmet republican representative convention after casting 2,426 identical ballots, adjourned from Spirit Lake to meet at Sibley on Aug. 14. The candidates are Frank H. Locke, of Sibley, W. H. Myers, of Milford, and B. F. Robinson, of Armstrong.

Switchman Drowned.

Council Bluffs, August 1.—Peter Barlow, an old time switchman in the employ of the Illinois Central road, was drowned in the Missouri river while bathing. He was seized with cramps and swept away in an eddy before assistance could reach him. He leaves a wife and family.

Col. Thompson Out of the Race.

Sioux City, August 3.—Col. J. K. P. Thompson of Rock Rapids, has withdrawn from the race for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Run Over by a Train.

Fort Dodge, August 1.—Archie Pearsons, 17 years old, was run over and killed at Fonda by the Illinois Central passenger going west. Pearsons had been hunting, and upon returning, had fallen asleep on the roadbed. The entire train passed over the body, which was not found until several hours later.

Left Fortune to Hired Girl.

Dubuque, July 30.—Considerable of a sensation was caused when the will of John Platz, who died suddenly, was filed. He left his estate, valued at $20,000, to his servant girl, Elizabeth Gruber.

PLANS TO CHECK FARM LOSS.

Wilson Making Scientific Investigation of Crop Conditions.

Sioux City, Aug. 4.—Secretary Wilson, who is investigating crop conditions in the northwest, expresses the opinion that the situation is not quite so bad as reported. He said:

"The real object or my trip out here is to make a scientific investigation of the crop conditions of the middle west. By scientific investigation I do not mean an estimate of the financial loss, or the decrease of the crop product caused by the recent drought; but I want to see if something cannot be done to lessen the destructiveness of droughts. I am satisfied that by means of scientific study in the agricultural sphere, a way can be devised whereby the loss to the farmer can be materially lessened. I have not yet reached a conclusion os to how this can be done, but the results of my investigations will be given out upon my return to Washington.

"I first noticed the effect of the drought when I struck Indiana. From there west as far as I have been the damage is quite perceptible. I went to Omaha and Lincoln first that I might have an opportunity to see the condition of the crop in southern Iowa, as I had heard that they were hurt the worst. From what I have seen of the crops around Sioux City I think they are in much better condition than those in the southern part of the state. It is impossible for me to estimate the extent of the loss. That will be given out in the monthly bulletin which will be issued August 10th. I am going from here through Minnesota to St. Paul and probably will come back again to Iowa. It is possible that I will visit Missouri before I return to Washington."

Secretary Wilson left for St. Paul yesterday morning.

SHERIFF'S POSSE IN FIGHT.

Boone County Cattle Thief Is Captured Near Des Moines.

Des Moines, Aug. 5.—Sheriff Mattern and his deputies and Sheriff Garner of Boone had a desperate fight at a point south of Des Moines with S. E. Carter, a cattle thief, who escaped from the Boone county jail a few nights ago. Fifteen shots were exchanged, but Carter was at last captured by Sheriff Mattern in a field adjoining the scene of the fight. He attempted to get away, but the nervy sheriff shoved a big Colt's revolver in his face and ordered him to halt. The fellow was heavily ironed and placed in jail here until morning, when Sheriff Garner took his prisoner to Boone.

Carter, a cattle thief, and four other prisoners broke from the Boone county jail Tuesday night. Carter has a mother residing south of here, and it was supposed he came this way. Sheriff Garner located him and together with the local officers started out to make the arrest when the running fight took place. He gave the officers a merry chase, over ditches, through corn fields and fences.

PLAN TO ABSORB IOWA CENTRAL.

Minneapolis & St. Louis Will Exchange Stock for Iowa Central.

Marshalltown, Aug. 5.—The directors of the Iowa Central have decided on an exchange of the stock of their road for that of the Minneapolis & St. Louis. This contemplates the exchange of one share of the capital stock of the latter road for every two shares of the Iowa Cenfral surrendered. This step is considered to ... an absorbtion of the Iowa Cen... by the Illinois ... Central Co... control the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

Held for Wife Murder.

Sioux City, Aug. 5.—At the preliminary hearing of Ben McKnight, charged with murder in the first degree in the killing of his wife, June 14, the defendant was held to the grand jury by Justice Ferris on the charge of murder in the second degree, fixing his bond at $10,000, which he failed to give. The defense tried to secure an acquittal on the ground that there was no evidence against McKnight in view of the fact that her statements to witnesses who testified were not made in view of expected death, hence were not admissible in evidence. There were no eyewitnesses to the act of the alleged beating from the effect of which the woman died.

Famous Suit Compromised.

Centerville, Aug. 5.—The now famous $10,000 law suit between Charles Yates and the heirs of the Wash Hardin estate has been brought to a sudden termination by arbitration. Mr. Yates married the ward of Mr. Hardin some ten years ago and had lived with and taken care of the Hardin family, which consisted of Mr. Hardin and his aged wife, ever since. Mr. Hardin forgot him in his will and he brought suit for taking care of the aged couple. He was awarded a verdict of $8,000 and the heirs gave notice of appeal, but finally agreed to a settlement at $5,000, and the defendants to pay the costs, which will make the total almost another thousand.

Jealousy Causes Suicide.

Adel, Aug. 3.—The body of Wm. McKinney, a prosperous farmer, residing seven miles southwest of Adel, was found hanging to a rafter in his barn. The grewsome discovery was made by his wife, who became alarmed at his protracted absence about bed time. His act is supposed to have been the result of temporary insanity induced by his unreasonable jealousy of his wife. The latter bears a spotless name, but McKinney's jealousy caused him to brood so much as to produce frequent manifestations of insanity. He leaves a wife and three children.

Fourteen-Year-Old Boy Killed.

Washington, August 2.—Clay Brott, 14-year-old son of Al Brott, a brakeman on the K. D. division, was instantly killed in the Rock Island yards. A freight train was picking up some empty merchandise cars from the house track and young Brott ran in between two cars as they came together and undertook to connect the air. He failed to stoop low enough and his head was caught between the bumpers and crushed to a pulp. No blame attaches to the railway company, as he had just been warned by one of the employes not to meddle with the coupling.

Crushed by an Elevator.

Cherokee, July 30.—An unfortunate accident occurred at Lamont Bros.' implement house. Morris and Elmer Waldorf were playing on an elevator at the rear of the warehouse when the workmen suddenly raised the elevator, not thinking of the presence of the boys. Little Elmer, aged 8, had his head caught between the elevator and the floor. The bones of his face were crushed and his skull injured. Though he is still alive, no hopes of his recovery are entertained.

NEWS IN GENERAL

CORN KING PHILLIPS IN TROUBLE

Recent Order of Court Causes Embarrassment for the Operator.

Chicago, August 2.—Geo. H. Phillips, the "corn king," has transferred all his trades to McReynolds & Co.

He closed all his open trades Wednesday and said to a customer that up to that day he considered himself worth $500,000, adding: "Now I don't know that I am worth a cent."

The Phillips company is credited with having done the largest commission house business on the Chicago board of trade last year. The business is suspended today.

Board of trade and business circles generally were startled by the announcement that the George H. Phillips company, which became famous through its pool operations in the Chicago corn pit during the past year, had transferred all its open trades to McReynolds & Co.

Lack of facilities for the proper clerical needs of the concern, which had acquired an enormous commission trade, was, according to a statement given the Associated Press by Attorney John S. Goodwin, who as a representative of the law firm of Black & Goodwin, has taken charge of the company's affairs, the sole reason for temporarily suspending business. The tangled condition of books became apparent some time ago, when the board of trade directors ruled that the Phillips company should furnish to each member of the May corn pool a detailed account of the entire transaction.

A large force was then put to work on the books and in their efforts to disentangle the multitudinous trades it became apparent that every trade on the company's books since November, 1900, would have to be checked over, entailing an enormous amount of work.

As the firm's business kept increasing at a remarkable rate, the machinery of the house was found inadequate, and, at midnight July 31, it was decided to simply transfer all trades and for the time being throw the house into other hands, until a complete new set of books shall have been compiled. Mr. Phillips, while regretting the necessity of this action, said it was absolutely the only course open to him. "This does not mean we are quitting business," he said. "On the contrary, we shall execute all orders, but will have to ask that usual margins accompanying all orders until our books are checked over."

SOUTH AFRICAN WAR NEWS.

Boers Are Charged With Butchering Defenseless British.

Lorenzo, Marquez, August 2—A Boer commando with two guns has entered the Portugese territory, encamping at Gaunetz. Five hundred Portugese troops are already at Gaunetz, and artillery left here for that place this morning. Three hundred troops in addition are in readiness to proceed unless the Boers surrender.

London, August 2.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, yesterday, says: "French reports that he has received a letter from Kritzinger (a Boer commander), announcing his intention to shoot all natives in British employ, whether armed or unarmed. Many cases of cold murder of natives in Cape Colony have recently occurred." Another dispatch from Lord Kitchener, from Pretoria, dated yesterday, says: "On July 28, an officer of a patrol of twenty yeomanry and some native scouts followed two carts and a few Boers fifteen miles from the railway at Doorn river, Orange River Colony, where they were cut off by 200 Boers, and, after defending themselves in a small building, they surrendered when their ammunition was exhausted. Three yeomanry were wounded. After the surrender the Boers made the native scouts throw their hands up and shot them in cold blood. They afterwards shot and wounded a yeoman. The remainder were released. The Boers gave as a reason for shooting the yeoman that they thought he was a Cape 'boy.' Evidence on oath has been taken of the murders."

ALL CLAIMS ARE DRAWN.

Government Land Lottery in Oklahoma Is at an End.

El Reno, O. T., August 2.—The drawing of winning numbers in the United States land lottery was concluded yesterday, 13,000 envelopes having been taken from the wheels, 6,500 for each land district. The crowd about the platform on which the drawing took place was much smaller than on previous days. Beginning August 6, 125 names in each district will be called daily for sixty days for the filing of homestead entries.

The estimate is made by a government official that in each land district 1,000 of the 6,500 numbers will not be taken in the sixty dyys because of homesteaders who will be disqualified, or who will leave the country, believing their claims to be worthless. This will leave only 5,500 persons who will make entry in their respective districts.

Two thousand claims will be left for the wagon emigrants and others who have been in the country for months and failed to draw a number. At the end of sixty days those persons can go immediately to their land office and file, or, if they settle upon a homestead in advance of any other person they can remain thereon three months before filing their entry.

Homestead speculators who registered for the sole purpose of selling their prize, if winners, are already seeking to sell relinquishments of their claims.

CHANGE WILL NOT BE MADE.

Long's Precept in Schley Case Must Remain as It Is.

Washington, August 2.—The navy department has refused to accede to Admiral Schley's suggestion that the language in the fifth specification of the precept to the court of inquiry be modified.

The admiral in his letter challenges that specification, which states as a fact that he had disobeyed orders and suggested that it be modified. The department in its reply declines to make the suggested modification on the ground that according to the official records Admiral Schley himself acknowledged that he had disobeyed orders. The disobedience of orders was an established fact, whether unwillingly or willingly.

Boers Would Buy Independence.

Paris, Aug. 5.—In the course of an interview with Mr. Kruger published in the Figaro, the ex-president of the Transvaal said: "We have already proposed peace directly to Great Britain and we will not renew the propositions. All we are willing to give for peace is money if Great Britain asks it. No price is too dear to obtain independence and the right to live as a free nation."

CITY GROWS UP IN ONE NIGHT.

Ten Thousand People Locate at Lawton With Forty Business Houses.

Fort Sil, O. T., Aug. 3.—A town of 10,000 people to be known as Lawton, has grown up just outside the fort limits within a night.

Following the close of the land lottery at El Reno, thousands of homeseekers who drew blanks started for the three points picked out by the federal government for town sites in the new country, namely, Anadarko, Hobart and Lawton. A majority of the people favored Lawton, which is twenty-five miles inland, and thousands are now camped in and about the proposed town site awaiting the sale of lots on August 6.

Already Lawton has forty temporary business houses, including a grocery firm and a newspaper, and three streets have been laid out. Every form of gambling known on the frontier is being run wide open. A thousand Comanche Indians have pitched their tents nearby.

Chinese Christians Are to Be Impartially Treated.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The state department has received a copy of a remarkable proclamation issued by Governor Yuan of Shan Tung on June 7, defining the relations that must exist between the magistrates and the Christian natives. The proclamation deals with the subject in language so energetic as to make it evident that the Chinese magistrates will not allow the missionaries to exercise the same influence as heretofore in local affairs or in any other than religious matters in the future.

Governor Yuan states he has received many reports from Chinese officials that "unworthy members of the church were practicing their religion simply for the protection which it afforded them, and were lightly setting aside the law of the land and seeking occasions for quarrel and that such affairs were daily increasing in numbers."

In reply to appeals to have the foreign consuls and missionaries devise a method for checking the trouble, Governor Yuan demands to know why his sub-officials have not obeyed his previous instructions requiring them to administer exact justice without regard to whether offenders are Christians or not. He points out that "the missionaries are merely preachers of religion. They have not authority whatever to interfere in the affairs of the Chinese people, nor any power to exercise official functions, as everybody ought to know."

Therefore, the governor enjoins his magistrates to make no distinction between church and people, to let no one else presume to exercise his authority for controlling the people. Says he:

"The most important matter is that justice should be done to both sides. It makes no difference whether the people annoy the Christians or the Christians annoy the people; let there be a clear distinction made between the crooked and the straight and it will then be impossible that any occasion for interference should arise."

He concludes that should people insult the Christians because they practice their religion the officials must rigorously suppress the disturbance, while on the other hand should a member of the church drag in his religious when his suit is one that has nothing to do with church matters and the missionary force himself into the case should not hesitate to controvert and reprove, as the facts of the case may justify, and deal with the case according to right and reason.

ROOSEVELT WANTS A CLEAN FLAG

Vice President Delivers an Address at Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 3.—The principal feature of the Colorado quarto-centennial celebration in this city yesterday was an address by Theodore Roosevelt, vice president of the United States, on "The Growth of the West During the Last Quarter of a Century."

On his arrival, Colonel Roosevelt was welcomed by Governor Orman and staff, veterans, rough riders, school children and many others. At 10 o'clock he was escorted to North Park, where he spoke in the open air to an assemblage of 10,000 people who gave him an enthusiastic reception and frequently interrupted his remarks with applause. He spoke as follows:

"For the sake not only of ourselves, but of our children and our children's children we must see that this nation stands for strength and honesty both at home and abroad. In our international policy we cannot afford to rest satisfied until all our government can do has been done to secure fair dealing and equal justice as between man and man. In the greater part which hereafter, whether we will or not, we must play in the world at large, let us see to it that we neither do wrong nor shrink from doing right because the right is difficult; that on the other hand we have a due regard for the honor and the interest of our mighty nation; and that we keep unsullied the renown of the flag which beyond all others of the present time or of the ages of the past stands for confident faith in the future welfare and greatness of mankind."

Secretary Wilson Criticised.

Topeka, Aug. 5.—F. D. Coburn, state secretary of agriculture, has given out an interview severely criticising Secretary of Agriculture Wilson for th latter's recent reference to Kansas as an "arid region." Mr. Coburn said Mr. Wilson had defined the corn belt as composed of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri. Mr. Wilson is further quoted as saying that Kansas and Nebraska can never be counted upon. The Kansas secretary presents many facts and figures showing how, in his estimation, Kansas and Nebraska far overshadow the other states mentioned in the way of corn growing.

Boers Turn to the Czar.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—Herr Vanderhoven, one of Mr. Kruger's agents, has arrived here, carrying a letter to the czar from ex-president of Transvaal. It is not thought any attempt to interest the czar in Transvaal affairs will succeed. While officials and all classes of citizens here sympathize with the struggling Boers, it is recognized that the czar has no intention of meddling with the South African trouble.

Great Accumulation of Gold.

Washington, August 1.—The stock of gold in the treasury now is the largest in the history of the government, and is accumulating at the rate of $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 a month. Yesterday's figures are $504,... out of which $248,658,698 is free ... reserve, including the $150,000,000 ... of gold Since July 1, 1900 ... about $81,... on hand ... 000,000.

Rebels in Cape Colony.

London, Aug. 3.—The Cape Town respondent of the Daily Mail places the strength of the Boers in Cape Colony between 7,000 and 8,000 men, almost all of whom are rebels. The Daily Mail contrasts this with the official statement long ago that there are only 1,000. "The colonial authorities," the correspondnet continues, "have just awakened to the possibility that the last shot in the war may be fired in Cape Colony, and unless vigorous efforts are put forth there is nothing to prevent the Boers from holding out another twelve months."

Baron Lexa d'Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, it is true, denies that such an alliance exists; but Count Lamsdorff, Russian foreign minister, and General Kouropotkine, minister of war, are thoroughly informed as to all that is going on between Vienna and Bucharest.

The object of the alliance between Austria-Hungary and Roumania is to frighten Russia away from the Balkans and to prevent a Slavonic federation against Austria-Hungary and its allies.

It is expected that when King Alexander of Servia and Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria arrive here in September the federation of Russia, Bulgaria, Servia and probably Montenegro will be arranged and ratified.

London, August 2.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Budapest says: "In consequence of the agitation in Albania, Austria has ordered every garrison in Bosnia and Herzegovina to be immediately placed on war footing. Additional regiments leave Vienna this week for Serajevo and Banjaluka. All the officers on furlough have been ordered to rejoir their regiments.

Nothing has been received here to confirm the news contained in this dispatch, and, outside of Vienna, scant attention is paid to the alleged political intrigues which are asserted to be at the bottom of the present agitation in Albania. According to a sensational Austrian newspaper, Italy and Montenegro started the Mussulmans in Albania on their present anti-Christian campaign, with the view of obtaining an excuse of some kind for intervention, the object being to checkmate Austria's priority claim on Albania, in the event of its separation from Turkey. Italy has several times denied these alleged designs on Albania.

CATCH ROBBERS AND GET MONEY.

Akron, O., Detectives Capture Bank Robbers and Recover $15,000.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 3.—Private detectives, employed by an Akron, O., bank, made an arrest in a local gambling den and recovered between $15,000 and $16,000 in bills and gold coin.

The men captured rifled the vault of the Akron bank ten days ago and have since been shadowed. They were taken by surprise and made no resistence. In a few moments after being confronted they were hastened to the Lake Shore station and placed aboard a passenger train bound for Elkhart, where it was known they secreted their booty.

The men were under suspicion from the first, as they had made frequent visits at the bank windows several days previous to the burglary. The robbery was kept secret by the directors, who feared serious results had the loss become publicly known. Such secrecy was required that the local authorities were not notified, although they were aware of the appearance of the detectives.

At Elkhart the captured robbers were forced to act as guides and lead the detectives to the outskirts of the city, where they had buried their goods, which were dug up and carried to the Lake Shore station. Here the money was examined and every dollar accounted for. The detectives and robbers boarded the first train en route for Akron.

ATTEMPTED TO ROB EXPRESS CAR.

Five Masked ... Held Up a Baltimore & Ohio Limited.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The Baltimore & Ohio passenger train from the east, which was due to arrive in the Grand Central depot at Chicago at 9 o'clock last night, was held up by five masked men at ... o'clock between Edgmore and Grand Calumet Heights, Ind., thirty-one miles out of Chicago.

One of the mail cars, which contained no money, was dynamited and wrecked. The attempt at robbery was made after the two mail cars had been detached from the train and run a quarter of a mile ahead.

The failure of the robbers to make a rich haul was due to the fact that the express car, which contained the train's treasure, was in an unusual place. It was the third car in the train.

After wrecking the mail car and obtaining no booty, the robbers disappeared in the darkness without attempting to rectify their mistake. The only loot that they carried away with them as a result of the adventure was the gold watch of the engineer.

OUTBREAK IN VENEZUELA.

Five Thousand Rebels Said to Be on the Colombian Frontier.

Willemstad, Island of Curacoa, August 31.—Dr. Rangel Gardiras, at the head of 5,000 men has revolted against President Castro of Venezuela. The insurgents are near San Antonio de Tachira on the Colombian frontier. The Venezuelan government has sent 10,000 troops to the scene of the uprising. The situation is grave. Other outbreaks are expected. The whole country is ready to rise against President Castro. Constitutional guarantees have been suspended and complications with Colombia are feared.

AN ANTIPODEAN LUNCH IDEA.

The free lunch system of the United States is a thoroughly American institution, but, transplanted to Australia, it flourishes at least as luxuriously as its parent in the great republic, says a writer in Beverages. There a person purchasing a glass of beer at an inn or restaurant may supplement it, free of charge, with a cut from a joint or a choice of dishes.

Under more favorable conditions, Australian hotel keepers and publicans have brought the free lunch system to a point of excellence which fills one not only with an admirable meal, but also with the conviction that it will be impossible to go one better within the limits of profitable transaction.

The injury, therefore, that has been worked upon the ordinary caterer by the rapid extension of the free lunch business may be gauged from the fact that there are at present in Sydney several first-class hotels where, by purchasing a 12-cent drink, you may partake of cold luncheons the equal of which, if eaten in a restaurant, would cost several times the money—without the drink.

In these places there is no indiscriminate self-help by the patron, no spoiling of the symmetry of the sirloin by hungry and inexperienced carvers, no ruthless wrecking of the lobster salad by selfish selectors of lobster without the proper proportion of lettuce. You are attended to at a handsome cedar counter and whatever you may fancy, and as much of it as you care for, is served by the waiters in attendance.

"...ave you considered all that I have ...id, my boy?" asked the old gentleman the day after he had given his son a little fatherly advice.

"Yes, father," replied the young man meekly.

"You are getting near the age at which a young man naturally begins to look around for a wife, and I don't want you to make a mistake."

"I'll try not to, father."

"No butterflies of fashion, my boy, but a girl of some solid worth; one who has some practical accomplishments."

"Yes, father."

"Never mind the piano-playing and Delsarte lessons; never mind the dancing and the small talk. When you find a girl who can cook, my boy, it will be time to think of marrying. When you find a girl who can make up her own bed, knows how to set the table without forgetting something, is able to put up the preserves, and, above all, is good at sewing, go in and win her, my boy, and you will have my blessing."

"I have resolved, father, to seek such a wife as you describe," said the young man with determination. "I see the folly of seeking a wife in society. I will go to an intelligence office this afternoon and see if I can find ...

Of the Grand Canon of the Yellowstone, Rudyard Kipling writes: "All I can say is that without warning or preparation I looked into a gulf 1,700 feet deep, with eagles and fish hawks flying far below. And the sides of the gulf were one wild welter of color—crimson, emerald, cobalt, ochre, amber, honey splashed with red wine, snow-white, vermilion, rust and silver gray in wide washes. The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

INTRODUCTION.

Horam, King of Damascus, then at its glory as the zenith city of the east, bemoaned the coming of old age without prospective heir to the throne. In his younger days he had loved Helen, his queen, but fearing that she was disloyal to him had her cast into the black, swift flowing Phorpar. At the time the story opens Ulin, the daughter of Aboul Cassem, the king's prime minister, three times dreams that she has become the wife of the king and that a son being born to them is heir to the throne. Cassem tells the story to the king. The latter having long admired the many charms of Ulin, seeks an interview with her and on the sixth day following they are to be married. He thereupon abolishes his harem. Within the week Albia, the pretty slave maid-in-waiting to Ulin, tells the story of the tragic fate of Helen. The story makes a deep impression and preys upon the mind of the bride-to-be. But her father urges her on and she now deems it a sacred duty to become the queen. On the morning set for the wedding Ulin's mother dies. According to the laws of Damascus she must go into mourning retirement for thirty days. Horam agrees with her father that she shall pass the period of mourning in a secluded palace in the beautiful Valley of Lycanius. This valley is the sole possession of the king and can only be reached by one passage through a mighty mountain, capable of admitting but one person at a time. Thither Ulin goes with Albia, where they are placed under the protection of the attendants by the king and Ulin's father. Six days after their entering Horam returns unexpectedly. Ulin acting on the suggestion of Albia, treats him kindly.

CHAPTER I.

Julian the Scouge.

She asked if her father had come.

"No, my sweet lady," returned Horam. "He was busy. It may appear unseemly for me to come hither alone; but my great love and my deep solicitude for your welfare, must be my excuse. I hope you have found it pleasant here."

The maiden said she could not have asked for a more pleasant place of abode.

The king was charmed by her smiling speech—so different from what she had [illegible] before given him—and he fondly believed that she was delighted with his presence.

[illegible] fearing that the least sign of [illegible]s or reserve might excite the jealousy of the grey-headed-monarch, and bring down upon her some terrible evil, exerted all her powers of pleasantness, and wore the smile upon her face while a pang was in her bosom.

But Horam's visit was destined to be cut short. While he was, for the sixth time making excuses for his visit the door of the apartment was unceremoniously opened and a black entered—not one of those who had been on guard in the valley but a stranger to Ulin, covered with sweat and dust, as though he had been riding hard and fast.

"Ha!" cried the king, starting to his feet. "How now, Sadak? What is the meaning of this?"

"Pardon, sire. I knew not that you were thus engaged. They only told me that you were here and I stopped to inquire no further."

"Not that—not that Sadak. Why have you come from Damascus in such hot haste?"

"I came to inform you sire that Julian the Scourge of Damascus is approaching our city!"

"Death and devastation!" cried Horam starting back with alarm. "How know you this?"

"We heard from him by way of a merchant who was in a caravan that he had robbed."

"What caravan?"

"The caravan from Tadmoor, with the riches which were on their way from Bassora."

"Those riches were mine," said Horam.

"Aye, sire; and Julian took them—took all that belonged to you, but spared the poorer merchants. But that is not the worst. He sends word that he will lay Damascus in ashes. Aboul Cassem bade me hasten hither and give you warning."

The king was fairly beside himself with fear and rage. The name of Julian was a terror to him, and at the sound thereof he trembled exceedingly. And he seemed to fear more than the mere physical prowess of the Scourge. There was a mystic quality in his fear—a nameless dread of the avenger.

"Where is the demon now?" he asked, after he had gazed awhile in silence upon the messenger.

"He is not far from the city, sire. Somewhere to the eastward, we think. Your journey back, if you make haste, will be safe."

"I will return," cried the monarch, smiting his fists together; "and I will bring out an army and sweep this terrible Scourge from off the face of the earth!"

He bade Sadak go and make ready for the start, and then he turned to Ulin.

"You will be safe here, sweet one; and it will not be long before our happiness shall be complete."

His words of parting were few, for he was much excited, and his voice trembled as he spoke. He turned back once after he had reached the door, as though he would say something, but finally went away without giving the intended speech. From a window Ulin watched the royal cavalcade until it had disappeared within the narrow pass, and when the last man had gone from her sight she turned to her companion.

"Albia, what is it about this terrible robber—this Scourge of Damascus? I have heard something about him. I heard my father once speak of him; but my little knowledge of the world did not lead me to be inquisitive. Do you know anything about him?"

"I have heard a great deal of him, my lady. He has been a terror to Damascus for a great many years.

"How many years, Albia? I was thinking that my father said he had not been long known in this section."

"I may be mistaken," said Albia, trying to recollect herself. "I know that he is a terrible Scourge, and that men fear him; but I do not know how many years he has been so. It may not be so many as I thought."

"But who is he? Where did he come from?"

"Ah, there is a mystery, my dear mistress. Nobody knows where he came from; but it is said that he is one whose family has suffered some great calamity at the hands of Horam. He is alone in the world, so far as relatives are concerned, and Horam hath done it; and so he comes to seek vengeance. He has a large body of bold men under him, and twice has he met and overcome the forces which the king had sent out to capture him. He does not rob as common robbers do. He never troubles the poor, or those of the middle class; but the rulers and princes of Damascus he causes to suffer."

"Did you ever see him, Albia?"

"Mercy! no. I would not see him for the world. He must be terrible to look upon. I have heard one of your father's officers say that he could strike a blow with his fist to fell an ox. and that before the lightning of his eye brave men shrank in terror. O, I should be afraid to see him."

"It seems to me that I should like to see such a man," said Ulin, in a musing tone. "I have never seen such men. The man whose arm can strike down an ox, and whose eye flashes forth such power, could not harm a helpless maiden."

"Upon my life, you have a curious taste," Albia returned.

"Because," added Ulin, with a smile, "I never had my taste cultivated. Still, in all seriousness, it does seem to me that I should love to lean upon a strong, bold man. If I were to love a man with my whole heart, I should like him to be so strong and so powerful and so brave, that his very presence would be protection to me. Is that very strange?"

"It is so strange," replied the slave, significantly, "that I fancy the king would feel new cause for jealousy if he should hear you say so."

"When I am the king's wife I shall be true to him, and I shall honor and respect him. I will love him if I can. But, Albia, there is no need of saying more. We will have our dinner, and then we will walk out into the garden."

Suddenly a messenger appears asking for assistance from the guard. With 50 stalwart guards he hurries toward the gates.

"What can it be?" cried the princess, in alarm.

But Albia could not imagine. She could only beg of her mistress to take courage, and hope for no evil.

Ere long, however, another messenger came to the palace, who made his way to the room where the princess was sitting. He trembled with excitement.

"How now, Aswad?" demanded Ulin. "What is the meaning of all this disturbance?"

"Alas, my lady, an enemy is at our gates. The terrible Scourge of Damascus demands entrance into the valley."

"What does he seek?"

"I dare not tell you?"

"What seeks he?" cried the princess, authoritatively. "If there is danger, I would know what it is."

"There may not be danger for you, lady. We may beat the robber off. We will do so if we can."

"But the king told me that a handful of determined men could hold that pass against a thousand."

"But these are not ordinary men. This Julian is a very demon, and I verily believe that he hath more than human power. Still we will do the best that we can."

"You have not told me what he seeks. Answer me that question—answer it without further hesitation."

"He seeks the maiden whom the king is to take for a wife."

"Seeks me?" uttered the princess, with a start.

"Yes, my lady. Such is his avowal."

"In mercy's name, good Aswad, protect me. Let not that dreadful robber gain access to the valley."

"Hurry, hurry!" cried Albia. "Away to your companions, and bid them strain every nerve. If they suffer the Scourge of Damascus to gain passage hither they know what the wrath of the king must be."

"Powers of heaven!" cried Ulin with clasped hands and quivering frame "the demon must not find us.'

"You are not so anxious to see him as you were" remarked Albia. "I thought your whim was a strange one."

"Speak not of that" said Ulin quickly and severely. "I meant not that I would have him come to seek me, O Albia, what can he want?"

"Indeed, my mistress, I dare not think. But let us look in another direction. If he does not find us, we care not why he comes. Ha! See! Here comes Aswad again. He looks frightened."

Aswad entered the chamber with trembling step and seemed afraid to speak; but the demand of the princess opened his lips.

"Lady, I fear that the robber will prevail against us. He is accompanied by fierce, furious men, who fight like lions,and his own sword is irresistible. His body is covered with scales of finest steel and the blows of our men fall harmless upon him."

"But the dreadful man has not yet broken through?" said Ulin eagerly.

"No, lady. Our brave men fight as well as they can."

"Has the robber entered the pass?"

"Not far."

"Then you may hold him at bay yet. O, Aswad, if you would be blessed forevermore let not the Scourge gain the valley!'

"We will do our best, lady; but you must be prepared for the worst. If we are finally overcome you must hide yourself."

"Where? Where can we hide?"asked Albia.

"In the palace or somewhere in the gardens; or upon the mountains."

"There is no hiding place which a keen eye would not detect. I have looked in every direction. So, Aswad, save us by your stout arms."

"I fear the demons will prevail," said Ulin, in a tone of breathless suspense.

"I dare not hope otherwise," returned Albia.

"If they do come, we must find some place in which to hide."

"Alas, my dear mistress, there is no such place. If we go up among the rocks, we not only run the risk of being easily found, but we run the greater risk of starving."

"I would rather starve than fall into the dread Julian's hands," said Ulin.

"It would be a terrible death to starve upon those bleak rocks!" returned Albia, with a shudder. "But I will share your fate, my mistress, let it be what it may."

"And would not death by starvation be preferable to the fate which must meet us if that monster captures us? O, Albia, I cannot think of it!"

Before the slave could reply they saw Aswad again coming toward them; but he did not enter the palace. He struck off into a path that led to the westward, and fled with all his might. Directly afterwards a score of the guards came rushing from the pass, and when they had gained the open space, they threw down their swords and sank upon their knees.

"What means that?" cried Ulin. "Are they killed?"

"No," answered Albia. "They are overcome, and have surrendered. See! there come the victors!"

"Let us flee!" exclaimed the princess, starting to her feet. "O, we must find some place of refuge!"

Albia was more thoughtful. She saw very plainly that flight would be useless.

"My dear mistress," she said, taking Ulin's hand. "We must hope for the best. If we leave the palace, we shall be overtaken at once; for the way to the mountains lies only through the park of fountains. If we flee to the garden in the rear, we shall be surely found, and it may be worse for us in the end. If this dreadful Julian has the least spark of humanity in his bosom, he will respect you more in your own chamber than he would if he found you hiding in the garden."

"Spirits of mercy defend us!" ejaculated the princess, clasping her hands upon her bosom, and sinking back in her seat. "O, Albia, Albia, the presence of the king would now be a blessing!"

The faithful slave crept close to her mistress, and tried to speak words of comfort; but her own fears were too deep and intense to permit comforting power to her words. She could not be calm in view of the coming of that dreadful man, at the sound of whose name even the monarchs trembled.

Weeping Heroines.

Miss Charlotte M. Yonge, whose death has recently closed a literary career of amazing fertility, will principally be remembered by "The Heir or Redclyffe"—a mid Victorian novel, seldom read now. At one time, however, the whole feminine population of the United Kingdom was mingling its tears with those of Amy, whom a contemporary novelist might justly have called a "demd, damp, moist, unpleasant" sort of a heroine. Some ten years ago a reviewer, who was holidaying at the seaside, elected to occupy his vacation reckoning up the number of Amy's tears and arrived at the sum of 369 fits of weeping. Allowing half a gill for each weep it becomes obvious that this queen of midcentury heroines must have shed in round numbers, ninety-five quarts of tears in the course of her three volumes' career. It is computed, however, that Susan Warner's Ellen Montgomery, in "The Wide, Wide World," exceeded this record, as the American heroine's emotions made up in violence of hydraulic pressure what they lacked in relative frequency.—Freeman's Journal.

His Municipal Duty.

She stood at the corner of Clark and Madison streets, anxiously watching the passing procession of cars, says the Chicago Journal. Now she would dart to the middle of the street, and then quickly back to the shelter of the edge of the pavement. Then she would make another spasmodic sprint toward the other side, but nervously retrace her steps, wringing her hands the while. Finally a big policeman who had been watching her closely stepped quickly forward and was by her side. Catching her by the most convenient arm, lifting her bodily from the sidewalk, he rushed her across the street, dodging cars and wagons, and finally landed her safe on the other side. Then it was she turned an indignant face and flashing eyes upon her protector. Then she smiled and said sweetly: "Would you mind taking me back again? I wanted to catch a West Madison street car." A few minuates after a big policeman wandered down Clark street, kicking himself.

Dress in the Senate.

It is not always safe to judge a man by his clothes, but dress goes a long way in certain localities. If any one doubts our democracy let him spend a day in the gallery of the United States Senate, the least dignified "Upper House" of legislation in the world. "Befo' de wah" all members were clean shaven, wore black frocks and high stocks, beavers, peg-top trousers, and a solemn air of public importance privately expressed. They believed in their hearts that they were statesmen, and the world acknowledged them as such. Dignity was their chief quality, pride their most cherished possession. The old-timers, like Morgan, Teller, Cockrell, Berry, Proctor and Daniel, still wear their before-the-war clothes, dignity and pride, but the post-bellum regiment of politicians is uniformed in the sack suit or the cutaway.—New York Press.

Washington; Designed for Lawmakers.

According to the New York Herald Washington is the only modern capital (except St. Petersburg), that was originally designed and laid out as a capital city. Likewise, the federal capitol has the unique honor of being the first building in history erected simply to hold a legislature. The Roman Senate met in a temple, as did all ancient deliberative bodies. Medieval legislatures were convened in palace halls or in monastic or semi-religious establishments. Even the state houses of our colonies were designed to shelter the entire government—legislative, executive and judicial. But the capitol at Washington was planned to hold the lawmakers of the nation and for no other purpose.

The West Point of Mexico.

In Mexico experience has conclusively shown that officers and even soldiers cannot be improvised, and the very first care of General Diaz has been to establish a good school for instructing scientific officers. The military school of Chapultepec in its actual condition is the fruit of his efforts. Many foreign officers of different nationalities have visited that establishment and believe that it ranks among the first in the comprehensiveness and perfection of military instruction there imparted and in the severe but just discipline to which the cadets are subjected.—National Geographic Magazine.

Centenary of Hugo's Birth.

On Feb. 26, 1902, will be celebrated throughout France the centenary of the birth of Victor Hugo. By way of commemorating the event in a fitting manner M. Paul Meurice has offered the sum of 20,000 francs to the city of Paris, besides a vast collection of portraits, autographs, engravings, etc., illustrating the life and work and times of the great writer. He makes but one condition which has been accepted, the museum shall be established in the house inhabited for so many years by Victor Hugo in the Place Royale, now known as the Place des Vosges.

HE RULES HIS STATE.

HERE IS AN AUTOCRAT WHO RULES AS HE PLEASES.

Young Potentate Who is as Absolute as Czar or Sultan. He is Frederick Francis IV Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Frederick Francis IV., Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who recently upon attaining his majority assumed the reins of government, shares with the Czar of Russia and the Sultan of Turkey the distinction of being one of the three only absolute monarchs left in Europe. He rules his little principality without any restriction of constitution of Parliament. His word is law. He appoints all officials, levies just what taxes he chooses, and spends them as he wills, and there is no one to question his right. He has the power of life and death over his subjects; may fine them, imprison them, draft them into his army, cut off their heads or burn them, decorate them, ennoble them, or dower their daughters, just as the mood strikes him.

Mecklenburg-Schwerin has been ruled thus ever since the days of Prince Niklot, who died in 1160. The family claims to be the oldest reigning house in Europe, though there are several that dispute this distinction—no-

HATCHING ALLIGATORS.

Ten Inches Long When They Emerge from the Eggs.

The casual observer would be very much surprised if you were to ask him if he saw any resemblance between a bird and alligator. Palaentological evidence, however, demonstrates that our every-day barnyard fowl and the scaly denizen of the Florida swamps are descendants of identicalHy and the same progenitor. But let the casual observer be handed the egg of a common fowl and that of an alligator, and he will be much puzzled to tell you which will hatch a tasty chick and which a lusty "nigger guzzler." Possibly he did not know that alligators laid eggs, and if so, perhaps he will be interested in hearing what a professor of the Johns Hopkins university has been doing. He secured some fresh alligator eggs and kept them in an incubator for a couple of weeks; at the end of that time he noticed a curious squeaking sound coming from the inside of the eggs—the sound which tells the mother that her babies are about ready to appear and should be helped out of the mess of earth and leaves which constitute their nest and in which they are buried. During the act of hatching the professor tells us the little creatures were quite savage and would snap at his fingers. The newly born alligator is about ten inches long, and it is marvelous how he can be stowed away in so small an egg.

Humor in Examination Papers.

"The grind of going over examination papers," said the principal of a down-town school yesterday, "has its compensation if one has a sense of humor. Some of the answers are stupidly funny, while others are unconsciously witty. One of the questions in the papers I went over this morning was: 'Name some of the causes of dyspepsia.' One boy's answer was 'Eating green apples and drinking beer between meals.' Another answered: 'Drinking ice water and after-dinner speaking.' Isn't that delicious? A third boy said dyspepsia was caused by going in swimming on an empty stomach. Another question was: 'Name some of the vital organs of the human body.' One answer was: 'Heart, liver, lungs and lights. These are the eternal organs.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Transplanting Large Trees.

Paris has learned the art of transplanting large trees successfully, so that at the earliest signs of decay a street tree may be removed and the symmetry of the vista not spoiled by its successor. For these trees alone the expenses of Paris amount to about $60,000 a year. The municipal nurseries include a "hospital," or "cure," for the tired trees, where they are restored, if possible, to health and strength in soil that is richer than the city's. In spring and fall these trees on their way to and from the hospital are no uncommon feature in the street scenes of Paris.

Bark and Stone as Food.

In a very unusual season like that through which the province of Paiputana, India, recently passed, it is not uncommon for the people to grind the bark of trees and even stones to mix with their scanty supply of meal or flour in order to increase the bulk and thereby stay the pangs of hunger for a longer period. A small quantity of well-ground bark, or of a soft stone found there, does not seem to be injurious. If used to excess, however, the diseases incident to starvation become apparent.

MEMBER OF CONGRESS FROM SANDWICH ISLANDS

Cured of Catarrh of the Stomach by Pe-ru-na.

CONGRESSMAN R. W. WILCOX,
Delegate to Congress from Hawaii.

Hon. Robert W. Wilcox, Delegate to Congress from Hawaii and the Sandwich Islands, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have used Peruna for dyspepsia and I cheerfully give you this testimonial. Am satisfied if it is used properly it will be of great benefit to our people. I can conscientiously recommend it to anyone who is suffering with stomach or catarrhal troubles."
—R. W. Wilcox.

All over this country are hundreds of people who are suffering from catarrh of the stomach who are wasting precious time, and enduring needless suffering. The remedies they try only temporarily palliate the distress, but never effect a cure. Remedies for dyspepsia have multiplied so rapidly that they are becoming as numerous as the leaves of the forest, and yet dyspepsia continues to flourish in spite of them all. This is due to the fact that the cause of dyspepsia is not recognized as catarrh.

If there is a remedy in the whole range of medicinal preparations that is in every particular adapted to dyspepsia, that remedy is Peruna. This remedy is well nigh invincible in these cases.

Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O., says:

"In my large practice and correspondence I have yet to learn of a single case of atonic dyspepsia which has not either been greatly benefited or cured by Peruna."

No one suffering with catarrh of the stomach or dyspepsia, however slight, can be well or happy. It is the cause of so many distressing symptoms that it is a most dreaded disease. Peruna acts immediately on the seat of the trouble, the inflamed mucous membranes lining the stomach and a lasting cure is effected.

If you do not derive p[illegible]mpt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

E. P. Schaefer. A. Lembgen, John and Henry Gruetzmacher, G. W. Kluckhohn, and Morris Day accompanied the ball boys to Britt Thursday last.

H. Griewe, of Germantown, last week threshed out 1900 bushels of oats from a 35 acre patch. An average of 57 and one seventh bushels to the acre.

Misses Martha and Esther Schuldt, of Hayfield, were guests of some of Klemme's young folks Saturday, and visited at the home of their brother, Ed, in Germantown over Sunday.

Jake Kauffman got his arm caught one day last week in the cog-wheels of a separater self-feeder while oiling the gearing and is minus a peace of flesh. He is now carrying his right arm in a sling.

Station agent B. L. Allen is taking a couple of weeks vacation. He left yesterday for Cedar Rapids to take in the Republican Convention, and will go from there to Tama, Ia., and other places where he has friends. A Mr Orvis, an extra agent is taking his place at the operating bench.

Wm. Nissen, who has been helping Jno. Baumgartner with his barber work the past winter and spring, has accepted a position in the Web. Richards tonsorial parlor at Kanawha. The old reliable here in Klemme has turned out a number of new barbers since he established himself here in Klemme and has a flourishing business.

Bert Hess, of West Bora, Mo., sends in his order for the TIMES. Bert has stood it as long as he possibly could without hearing from Klemme people but don't intend to "stood it no longer." If it will be remembered he is one of Klemme's old barders and citizens and a relative of the Shafer's living here, being a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. A. B.

The Klemme boys got up against the real thing last Thursday. They went to Britt to show the British how the game is played and came home vanquished. Their hopes were high, and all were jolly, singing merrily, on the way over, but nary a tune could you hear when they came home. The score stood eleven to twelve in favor of the big town of Britt.

Mrs. Lydia Gruetzmacher, of Charles City, who has been visiting relatives in Klemme the past two weeks was married Sunday at the home of Chas. Gruetzmacher to Mr. J. F. Groh at 3:00 P M. Rev. A. M. Brenner officiating. Henry Gruetzmacher and wife accompanied the new couple to Garner the same afternoon from where they went to Chicago their future home.

Adolph Ridder had very bad luck last week while running the traction engine of Frank Schuldt. He was wiping the boxings near the cylinder and eccentric, and eccentric rod or piston rod when a burr on the eccentric wheel caught the cloth and pulled his arm under the rod, which pounded it down into the boxing and broke both bones between the elbow and the wrist and lacerated the flesh where the break was until it appeared gastly to behold. The water-boy happened to be near and seeing Adolph's predicament shut off the steam-power. His arm was jerked in such a manner that the shoulder was benumbed and he could hardly remove his arm. By this accident Adolph will lose the entire fall's work and it is to be regretted very much.

Now is the time to mow the weeds along the roads where it has not been done, before the seeds are ripe.

Potatoes will not go a begging this year. The can hardly be obtained for love or money. This will be a hard blow for the lovers of the Irish emblems.

In last week's issue we printed an item about six inches long purporting to be an answer to the item two weeks before stating that Ben Kaste's team had been untied while he was attending church in Germantown.

The first thing we wish to draw the attention of Germantown people to is that "some miscreant took the pains to untie Ben Kaste's team and start it without a driver." That is exactly what we intended to say. Had we intended the Epworth Leaguers we would have said so. "Some miscreant" does not mean 'many miscreants' neither does it mean the good people of that community. If the 'good young people of the League of Germantown consider that what has been said in the TIMES reflects discredit on their behavior we wish to inform them that some how they have mis-in-ter-pret-ed the words. As to the team being tied, there are ready witnesses to prove that both horses were fastened. And it matters not a great deal whether they were hitched to one or a dozen posts so long as the post is well set. It is no more unjust to presume that someone untied the team than it is to 'venture the assertion' that it became untied of itself. The good brother says: "Who knows but that the horses became untied and came home?" That certainly is an undisputed fact. The team came home without the post. It became untied. The team did.

In conclusion, "The young people of Germantown are not a hard set, but will compare favorably with the young people of other communities." Herein the use of sarcasm is shown and a boquet or two is thrown out in behalf of the Germantown lads and lasses. We are not here to dispute the sentance but humanity in general knows that every city has it's slums and every community it's black sheep. We do not believe that the people of Germantown, taken as a majority, have mistaken our intentions. The words were of a defensive character in favor of Mr. Kaste and the church, and it appears to us, although quite disinterested, that one or two families in that section are assuming entirely too much responsibility.

THEY BOTH SIGHED

'Twas down by the river side at Algona,

On the cool green grass 'neath a bending elm, sat two persons utterly oblivious of things of earth and sense.

The stirring whole-souled music coming from a nearby camp meeting song service did not seem to reach their ears, deaf to all but Love's old sweet song, but clear and loud to other ears was the hymn "Why Not Now," sung as only camp meeting followers can sing it.

He sighed.

And over their close bending heads, the gentle zephyrs wafted that good, old song, "Why do you wait, dear brother?"

He took her hand.

As if in very sympathy with what he felt but could not find the words to speak, rang out upon the ambient air, in accents soft and sweet, the pleading air, "Give me thy heart."

She sighed.

Responsive to a thought that neither he or she had dared as yet to breath, the further bank sent back the echo of that sacrificial song, "Take me as I am."

They both sighed.

And ignorant of the hearts' battle being fought so near, the earnest camp meeting attendants rose to their feet and sang again and again as the spirit moved them, "Blessed is the tie that binds."

The song service was over.

And he sighed.

And she sighed.

They both sighed.

Side by side,

Down by the river side.

In a lengthy article on the life of the Younger brothers, the Alton Democrat pays his respects to thieves and outlaws generally and declares that there are several nice morals in the life history of the Youngers. The principal one is that you should never attempt to steal anything you can't carry away. It is for better to steal a pig or a bull pup and get away than it is to be caught with a hippopotamus. The man who steals awkwardly or bunglingly and gets caught should be prosecuted. Those Youngers were considered great thieves, but they were not artistic. They depended to much on physical force. Not long ago a gang of thieves in Russia skinned a rich old lady alive because she wouldn't tell where her money was hid. Such violent metheds shock the aesthetic senibilities. Never skin an old lady unless absolutely necessary. There are plenty of ways to steal and do it it in a genteel and statesmanship-like manner. Any fool can steal, but it takes a man with intellect to steal without breaking a law or to do the job up in a brown rag so it wont be discovered. If you can't do either one you are a failure and should earn your living honestly. Violent robbery is inexcusable. There is no use inserting your hand into your neighbor's pocket to dig up his coin. Start a trust and make him hand it over. By so doing you can endow a college and get a nice monument in the park. Don't sneak over to your friend's granary and steal a sack of wheat. Corner the market and steal the whole crop, then you willl stand before kings and queens and jacks and aces and your daughter will marry a duke.

How did Dowie rise from a pauper to a millionaire? Did he rob trains and banks and get shot at and lay himself liable to the law? No—he took advantage of the fact that almost any crime can be commited in the name of religion and devised a scheme whereby his followers turn over their property to him in return for plush seats in the world to come. When he thinks they are not coming his way fast enough he declares himself Elizah and founds a City of Zion and announces that those who buy corner lots will be made prophets —and he clears fifteen million dollars on the deal. That's the way to steal!

An Allison school teachnr recently received this note: Sir—Will you please for the future give my sun easier somes to do at nights. This is what he's brought hoam for three nites back: 'If fore bottles of bere wil fil thirty to pint bottles. how many pints and half botties wil nine Gallins of bere fil? Wel we tried and could make nothing out of it at all and my boy cried and sed he didn't dare go back in the mornins without doing it. So I had to go and by a nine gal lin keg of bere, which I can ill afford to do and then we went and borrowed a lot of wine and brandy bottles, and then counted and there was 19, and he put the number down for an answer. I don't know whether it is rite or not, as we spilt some while doing it. P. S.—Please let the next some be in water, as I am not able to by more bere."

HOUSES WITH HISTORIES.

Two Old Buildings Famous in Revolutionary Days.

One of the most artistic and best preserved of those ancient inns—of which, alas! too few remain in their primitive, simple beauty of colonial dress—is the King of Prussia hotel at the post office of that name. It is located about three miles southwest of the Schuylkill on the Swede's Ford road, says the Philadelphia Record.

Its old sign board, bearing a picture of a gentleman mounted on a horse with an excessively graceful and impossible neck, and who is said to have been the king of Prussia, is what gave the house its name, and this was eventually communicated to the peaceful little village which has very slowly grown up around it. The sign has the date "1769" painted on it, although that is not the earliest record of a public house there.

The place is so pretty that it is no wonder it has been an inviting mark for romancers who have made use of the revolutionary period. Anna Robeson Brown has a charming description of it in her story of "Sir Mark" and in George Morgan's spirited narrative of the adventures of "John Littlejohn, of J.," it is mentioned frequently.

The King of Prussa inn has interest to local free masons as the occasional meeting place of lodge No. 8, a historic organization warranted by the provincial grand lodge June 24, 1766. Many, if not a majority, of the members whose names appear on its roster are known to have been with the continental army at Valley Forge.

While very little is now known of the old Mehl family famous in revolutionary days (the Mehls are now extinct except an Edward Mehl, who lives in Virginia), their old house at Germantown has remained much the same for over a hundred years.

When the British held possession of this region in 1777, one of the most exciting skirmishes between the opposing forces was viewed by the boys of the neighborhood from the cellars of this old house, and that of its next-door neighbor, afterward known as Lorain's.

Although cannon balls and bullets kept up a lively whistling about this old house during the battle, very little is told of its history immediately following, with the exception of the fact that the remains of certan soldiers were "buried at Mehl's gateway." This gateway, at one end and leading in to the back of the old house to a mill which stands in the rear, is now a scene of daily activity. And as heavily loaded wagons rumble back and forth from the mill, there is little time for thought of the dead soldiers who were buried in this immediate neighborhood, or the exciting scenes of long ago witnessed from these old but well-preserved buildings.

JOKE ON THE INTERVIEWERS

Had Heralded Coming of Famous Poet, But Met Obscure Relative.

An amusing story is told concerning a connection of the famous poet, Algernon Charles Swinburne. This young man owns the same initials as his illustrious relative, and some time ago he went out to Melbourne, giving his name, of course, in the passengers' list of the vessel by which he traveled as A. C. Swinburne. When the Melbourne and Sydney newspapers received this list they immediately jumped to the conclusion that the great man himself was about to visit Australia. They thereupon printed columns of eulogy and delighted anticipation, and went the length of declaring that the pulse of all Australians would throb faster, and their hearts would be gladdened at the very thought of a visit from such a famous bard. When the vessel arrived it was promptly boarded by eager interviewers and paragraphists. Then the young man came forward, politely explained himself, and was allowed to leave the ship in the utter privacy and oblivion that he desired.—London Tit-Bits.

A Remarkable Biblical Feat.

A local preacher in the Midlands has three times written out the whole contents of the New Testament. He has done this with the object of familiarizing himself with the various books, which he claims to have in this way completely mastered. He always preaches from the New Testament, and is rather fond of boasting of his knowledge of this portion of the Bible. Many a time he has been heard to say that nobody could quote any words from it for which he could not instantly give book, chapter and verse.—London Tit-Bits.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, August 12, 1901.

The work of grading the first eighteen miles of the Interurban company's road to Nevada has been commenced and large forces are at work in the vicinity of Ankeny throwing up the grade. It is expected it will take at least thirty days to complete this work. It is the intention, pending an adjudication of differences between the Interurban and Des Moines Union over right-of-way along the river north of the city, to prosecute the work in both directions from Ankeny, and much of the bridge and track material now on hand will be unloaded there. In all probability the first track laying will be done from that point.

Governor Shaw has appointed Dr. Francis M. Shriver of Glenwood to the vacancy on the state dental examining board caused by the expiration of the term of Dr. E. L. Brooks of Vinton, who retired July 1. It is expected the appointment will meet with the approval of practically the entire dental profession, as Dr. Shriver is recognized as one of the foremost men of his school in Iowa. He has lived and practiced dentistry in Glenwood about thirty years and is now 54 years old. He has always been prominent in local politics, but has never mixed to any great extent in the political affairs of the state. He was appointed because he is eminently well qualified for the position. Dr. Shriver has held the office of president of the state dental society, in which organization he has been a conspicuous figure.

Chief Frank Mathis, of the police department, has received the following letter from C. T. Plimer of Columbia, Mo.:

"Dear Sir: I am a young man of good standing and have none of the tobacco or drinking habits. Am sound and healthy and worth several thousands. I want to marry some nice widow or woman not over 30 years of age. Can you tell me of someone? I would like one who is strong and healthy and she must be a good cook and not afraid to work. She must also have a few thousands. If she can play the piano so much the better. Trusting to hear from you soon, I am, yours truly, C. T. Plimer, Columbia, Mo."

The letter was turned over to Detective Ed Johnson, who has written Plimer for a photograph.

George Scarberry, formerly a member of the Des Moines fire department and the police force, one of the few who made a fortune in the Alaskan gold fields, has returned from the fourth season spent in the frozen north. It is given out that J. E. Stout of Des Moines is already past the $50,000 mark, and is on the way to be a millionaire in less than five years. He does not say just how he stands personally in the financial world, but it is understood that Mr. Scarberry is a close second to Mr. Stout. Mr. Scarberry is the originator of the famous party bearing his name which was one of the first to get to the Klondike in 1898. The result of his long stay in that country is that he is interested in thirty-six claims that he considers paying. The best of these are the twelve owned by the Los Angeles and Cape Nome mining company, of which J. E. Stout of this city is president. These claims are particularly good for the reason that they have not been covered with snow and ice and are ready for working. The company now has about fifty men working and the work averages about $2 per pan.

Implement dealers report that the sales and transfers made through Des Moines houses so far this season have been about 30 per cent less than a year ago, and that the aggregate of sales will be the smallest in several years. This is because of the failure of the small grain crop in a considerable portion of the state, the uncertain condition of the corn crop and the small demand for machinery in states bordering on Iowa, due to crop failures.

The state auditor has just issued a statement showing the condition of the state and saving banks of Iowa at the close of business June 3. The changes in the condition of the banks since the last report, April 1, and the increase in deposits are shown. In regard to the latter item the past year shows an almost phenomenal growth. June 30, 1900, the total deposits were $91,147,056.88. The recent report shows them to have been, June 29, 1901, $114,731,614.06, an increase of over $23,000,000.

The democratic state central committee, at its recent meeting effectively disposed of the efforts of a faction of the Polk county delegates, headed by H. M. Belvel, to compel G. J. Huffman, chairman of the committee, to resign. Mr. Belvel did not appear to present charges against Mr. Huffman and a resolution was adopted unanimously expressing the confidence of the committee in Mr. Huffman and extending the thanks of the committee to him for the able manner in which he had performed the duties of chairman and for his unselfish devotion to the affairs of the democratic party.

The secretary of the state fair has absolutely arranged for the locomotive race to be given each day of the fair. The outlook for a big fair is growing brighter every day on account of the increased number of entries, the chances that Iowa crops will not be a total failure and the very fine program of attractions prepared this year.

Mrs. Hetty Green has had the name of Dewey put on her door instead of her own. The name is that of her pet dog, she explains, and as it is a good one, she uses it to escape calls from thousands of people who want money."

Suicided Near Waterloo.

Waterloo, Aug. 8.—The badly decomposed body of a man which, according to paper found on the body, is that of Jack Lesley of Republic, was found in the bank of the Cedar river about two miles below this city. A laudanum vial by his side, with a card with the following inscription: "My name is Jack Lesley. My family live in Republic, Chickasaw county, Iowa. Please notify." plainly indicated suicide. The discovery was made by two young boys while hunting frogs. All indications point that he had been dead two months. The body was almost completely hidden by vines and weeds and was coatless.

Wants $5,000 Damaged.

Creston, Aug. 11.—Mrs. I. E. Mathews has brought suit against Z. Smith in the Union county district court for slander, and asking $5,000 damages. She accuses the defendant of calling her vile names. Smith is wealthy. He owns almost 3,000 acres of Texas land and property in Texas. He is in trouble in Texas, where he is seekng a divorce. His wife has filed application for $10,000 alimony. The parties are from Orient, Iowa, and the case promises to be sensational.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

CORN'S STATE SERIOUS.

Secretary Wilson, Heretofore an Optomist, Expresses Change of Views.

Traer, Aug. 11.—Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture reached here after a tour of the most important corn producing states, made for the purpose of ascertaining the true condition of the crop and the extent of the damage caused by drought.

While he would not give a definite estimate of the crop condition, Secretary Wilson admitted that it was very serious. The corn crop has been injured in all the states of the Mississippi valley, said Mr. Wilson, and hurt most where it is grown for sale and least where grown for feeding on the farm to live stock that graze on fields where corn and grass are grown in rotation.

This is an important admission, coming from Secretary Wilson, as he had all along contended that the reports of crop damage had been overestimated and that the condition in the corn belt was not serious. Secretary Wilson, while in Washington was very optimistic, and deprecated the reports of great corn damage in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa.

One of the objects of the trip of Secretary Wilson was to get facts regarding corn growing that may form the basis of a bulletin to farmers, showing results of different farm management.

"A common observation regarding many fields of corn," he said, "is that they have cobs without kernels or with few kernels. The feeder who plows up a pasture to grow corn will lose least. The corn seller who has no animals to pasture will suffer most.

"It cannot be positively said that corn under the most favorable of soil conditions and thorough cultivation will resist all kinds of weather. The hot winds from the southwest are factors that are not controllable nor well understood, but with that exception intelligent management of good lands well underdrained, naturally or artificially, will insure good crops in seasons like the present. This is true of the corn belt proper, which extends as far west as twenty-five inches of rain falls annually and where half of this rainfall occurs in the growing season.

"Six inches of rainfall is sufficient to make a crop if none were evaporated through the soil. Such evaporation cannot all be prevented, but such continuous cultivation as will maintain a dust mulch on the surface will do much towards it. I am anxious to help farmers to avoid a repetition as far as possible and am making examinations principally to that end."

SEERLEY WANTS $142,100.

Says That Sum Is Needed for the State Normal School.

Des Moines, Aug. 8.—The thirteenth biennial report of the State Normal school at Cedar Rapids, just filed with the governor by the trustees of that institution, recommends additional appropriations for the school by the next legislature of nearly $150,000. The report is divided into two parts—that of the committee from the trustees, and that of President H. H. Seerley. The former outlines briefly the needs of the school. The latter goes into detail, telling explicitly why each additional appropriation is wanted. Briefly, the request is for the following amounts and purposes:

Teachers' fund, annually, additional	$ 15,000
Contingent fund, annually, additional	10,000
Repairs, for two years	3,000
Library, for two years	10,000
Summer school, for two years	12,000
Librarian and two assistants, for two years	4,000
Military instruction and expenses	1,600
Improvement of grounds	3,500
Chemical and physical laboratory	18,000
Gymnasium	15,000
Library building	50,000
Total	$142,100

The principal argument advanced in behalf of the request for additional appropriations is the fact that the school is growing rapidly. The report is for the years of 1899, 1900 and 1901. In 1899 the enrollment was 1,610, the number of teachers was thirty-seven and the teachers' pay roll was $41,410. In 1900 the enrollment was 1,751, the number of teachers was forty-two and the teachers' pay roll was $45,800. In 1901 the enrollment was 2,017, the number of teachers was forty-nine and the teachers' pay roll was $53,800. It is anticipated this ratio will continue, in which event the present appropriation will be inadequate.

RAN AWAY WITH AN INDIAN.

Bride of Five Months Alleged to Have Eloped With a Redskin.

Council Bluffs, Aug. 9.—Charles E. Hoyt of Sioux City came to Council Bluffs in search of his wife, whom he thinks left Sioux City last night with a member of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. Hoyt made a thorough search of the show grounds, but could find no trace of his erstwhile better half, and he is of the opinion that she is being concealed by a dark-skinned member of the aggregation, in whose company she was seen last night in Sioux City.

Hoyt describes his wife as a pretty blonde and says this is the first time there has been any trouble in their home since they were married at Fargo, N. D., five months ago. He is willing to take her back and forgive her.

Stabbing Affray at Elrick.

Muscatine, Aug. 10.—At Elrick Junction (commonly known as Battle-Ax Junction), the terminal of the M. N. & S. railroad, where it joins the Iowa Central, a stabbing affray took place, which for a time seemed as though it would result seriously. The person stabbed was G. L. Seevers, operator and ticket agent at that place. He was stabbed by some loafers that were lying around the station.

Mysteriously Missing.

Sioux City, Aug. 9.—F. W. Merchant of Gloucester, Mass., a young man of wealthy family connections, who had been a guest at the Monnamin hotel for two weeks, mysteriously disappeared last Friday, and it is believed he took his own life. He was subject to epilepsy and was despondent. He had been expecting $250 from Gloucester that did not come.

Drowned at Dubuque.

Dubuque, Aug. 9.—Richard Tregilgus, 45 years old, fell from a float at the boat house and was drowned. His body was recovered. His family, from whom he separated, reside in Wisconsin.

Fatally Kicked by a Horse.

Atlantic, Aug. 6.—William H. Disbrow, a prominent citizen of the county, who lived four miles northeast of town, was kicked by a vicious horse at the home of a son-in-law, James Lepner, near here, and was so seriously injured that he died as a result of the injury in a short time.

Hunter Has Top of dead Blown Off.

Manilla, Aug. 7.—While hunting near this place Ed. Beers was accidentally shot in the head by Ralph Laughlin. The whole top of Beers head was blown off. Beers got in the way of Laughlin's gun as the latter was aiming at some partridges.

THIEF WAS DESPERATE.

Conductor Recovers a Stolen Watch, But the Crook Jumped From the Train.

Des Moines, Aug. 9.—Conductor Cavanaugh of the Great Western passenger south, came near catching the thief who got Geo. W. Shope's watch show day. The man was on the train when Cavanaugh asked for his fare at Churchville. The man had paid cash before that time, but being out of money, wanted the conductor to take in payment for a ride to Kansas City a gold watch. He showed the time piece to Cavanaugh, who pulled out a note book and said:

"I guess this is the watch that was stolen from my friend Shope at Des Moines Monday, but if it isn't I will pass you along."

The man waited until Cavanaugh opened the case, then ran to the platform and jumped off while the train was running about twenty miles an hour. He was not hurt, and his name was not learned.

Cavanaugh met Shope at the police headquarters by arrangement and turned over the watch. Shope says the fellow was on one side of him and a companion on the other, just as he started to board a street car, and they jostled him and picked his pockets. Conductor Cavanaugh saw the story of the pocket picking in the papers, and from that caught on to the clue that caused him to observe the fact that the stranger was from Des Moines and had numerous watches and pins that he was trying to dispose of to passengers.

CAPTURED BY FILIPINOS.

Marshalltown Boy Tortured by Insurgents and Badly Injured.

Marshalltown, Aug. 12.—Word sent to Mr. and Mrs. James P. Ferrell of this city is to the effect that news has been received from the Philippines to the effect that Ed Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Farrell, who enlisted in the United States service at Audubon a year ago last January, and is now corporal, had been captured by a band of savages and nearly tortured to death.

It seems that Corporal Farrell was in command of a small scouting detachment of twelve men, which was sent out in advance of the regular command. While reconnoitering the men were surprised by the natives in ambush and overpowered. One of the number was killed before help could arrive and the savages were in possession of the small band of soldiers long enough to torture several of them severely, including Corporal Farrell. Farrell was badly wounded in the head during the skirmish. The captured soldiers were liberated after being in the hands of the Filipinos several hours, and all the injured men were, at the time the word was sent from the islands, improving. The letter states, however, that Ed was unable to raise his head from his pillow.

BIG FIRE AT LIME SPRINGS.

Greater Portion of the Business Section Swept Away.

Elma, Aug. 10.—The business portion of Lime Springs was destroyed by fire. The loss is $150,000. The fire swept both sides of Main street. The following buildings are reported consumed: John Sumson, general merchandise; A. M. Howland, restaurant; D. D. Dayton, drugs; A. J. Johnson, harness shop; John Russink, livery; Harry Moore, livery; H. P. Anderson, general store; Elva Duerdin, millinery; G. H. Wetter, restaurant; Coleman & Weaklin, general store; John G. Lore, drugs; Rucher's general store; Burns' meat market; the telephone exchange. But two banks and a hardware store are left standing.

COLFAX FOR ELECTRIC ROAD.

Citizens of Springs City Vote Tax and Franchise.

Colfax, Aug. 8.—The Des Moines, Colfax & Eastern Electric Railway company won out in a special election held here, a proposition to vote a 3 per cent tax and a franchise carrying by a vote of 268 for the franchise and 268 for the tax. This is the road which is to extend from Des Moines to Newton, through Altoona, Colfax and Mitchellville. No difficulty was experienced in securing a tax and franchise at Newton and it is thought with the victory at Colfax there will be no trouble experienced at Mitchellville.

Gravel Crew Has Narrow Escape.

Fort Dodge, Aug. 9.—The crew on a gravel train on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad had a narrow escape from an awful death, and only escaped after a plunge through the flames which enveloped a forty-foot trestle, which was even then tottering to its fall. As the train of eighteen heavily loaded cars, running at full speed on a down grade, turned a sharp curve in the track, they saw in front of them the blazing bridge which they must cross. There was no chance of stopping, and so Engineer Nelson opened the throttle wide and took the bridge at full speed. The supports of the bridge shook and trembled, but the train got across in safety. Conductor Hand, who was on the rear of the engine, was badly scorched.

Kept His Word and Died.

Clear Lake, Aug. 10.—Christian Benson, an aged farmer, living near Owen's Grove, suicided by hanging himself to the rafters of his corn crib. He was in town and became slightly intoxicated. Going home his wife remonstrated with him upon his condition and after the quarrel which ensued was ended, he took down his shot gun and started for the corn field with the remark that he intended to shoot himself. His wife thought that it was merely a threat and paid no attention to it. When he did not return she became alarmed and searching she discovered his lifeless body hanging in the cornerib. Life had been extinct for several hours. Benson was fairly well to do.

Brutal Brother Arrested.

Corydon, Aug. 10.—Because she did not get up and get his breakfast when he first called her, it is alleged Lafe Swan, the 15-year-old son of a Lineville blacksmith, sixteen miles southwest of here, dragged his young sister down stairs, knocked her down and beat her into insensibility. She succeeded in crawling back upstairs, where she remained all that day and night without medical aid or nourishment of any kind, and she was only discovered by the neighbors by accident. Swan was arrested, and is being held to await the result of his alleged brutality.

Whipped the Editor.

Sioux City, Aug. 9.—J. A. Prichard, a well known attorney at Smithland, Iowa, gave F. L. Giles, publisher of the Oto, Iowa, Leader, a whipping because of something published in the paper, and Giles had him arrested. Mayor Butler of Smithland fined Prichard $10, and an appeal has been taken to the district court. The article was about the Smithland postoffice, Prichard's wife having recently resigned the postmastership.

Meets Horrible Death.

Audubon, Aug. 6.—Herman Hohn, aged nineteen, the son of Chris Hohn, a farmer residing north of town, tied a rope about 25 feet long around a horse's neck and started out of the barn. In an unknown manner the young man caught his foot in a loop at the end of the rope and the horse becoming frightened started to run and dragged him about 100 yards through several barb wire fences. When his folks found him he was dying and died before the doctor could reach him. This is the second son Mr. and Mrs. Hohn have lost by accident in a few years.

NEWS IN GENERAL

GUNBOAT SENT TO COLON.

War Department Deems It Needful That a War Vessel Should Be There.

Washington, Aug. 9.—An order has been issued by the acting secretary of the navy for the gunboat Machias, now at the Boston navy yard, to proceed without delay to Hampton Roads and there to prepare for departure to Colon, near the eastern terminus of the Panama railway.

At the navy department it is explained that this movement has been ordered with a view of having the Machias take observations in the vicinity of the isthmus. In announcing the action of the department it was officially stated that "it is deemed needful that a United States war vessel be in that vicinity at this time."

The order to the Machias followed a conference held at the navy department between Acting Secretary of State Adee and Acting Secretary of the Navy Hackett. Mr. Adee had a dispatch from Consul Gudger stating that the revolutionists had held up a train for an hour at Marachit, on the line of the railway across the isthmus, and only about fifteen miles from Panama City. While this was not regarded as threatening an interruption of traffic or giving any ground for intervention by the United States, yet it was deemed advisable by the officials that one of our ships should be in the neighborhood in order that suitable observations could be made and steps taken to meet any serious emergency that might arise. For the present officials do not believe there will be any need of landing marines. The commander of the Machias, Lieutenant Commander Mason Sergeant, is regarded as an officer of tact and ability, and, besides this, he has had recent experience in West Indian waters, having been in command of the Scorpion when she made her recent trip to La Guayra to keep watch on American interests in Venezuela.

The Machias is a gunboat of 1,177 tons displacement, with twin screws and good steam capacity. She has eight four-inch guns in her main battery, six rapid fires and one automatic gun. Her run to the isthmus depends somewhat on the length of her stay at Hampton Roads, but it is believed she will be ready to proceed with little or no delay, in which case the trip will take about ten days or two weeks.

MACARTHUR'S REPORT.

Covers Period From October 1 Last Year to July 4.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The annual report of Major General MacArthur, dated July 4, 1901, the day that he relinquished command of the division of the Philippines, has been received at the war department. The period covered by the report is from October 1, 1900, when the last report from General MacArthur was dated. He reviews the policy of the Filipinos who were hostile to the Americans, saying that their action since the practical collapse of the insurrection has been a perplexing problem. With the disbandment of the insurgent field armies, the Filipinos organized desperate resistance by banding the people together in support of the guerrillas. This was carried out by means of secret committees, who collected contributions, inflicted punishment and carried on a considerable opposition to the Americans. General MacArthur reviews the manner in which operations were carried on against the guerrillas, and says he hopes the policy adopted will in time conciliate the natives and make them friendly. The education of the people in times past made them suspicious of any governmental beneficence, and they evidently looked upon the lenient attitude of the United States as indicating weakness. General MacArthur says the proclamation issued on December 20, firmly declaring the intention of the United States to hold the islands and to have the laws obeyed, had a good effect and the secret resistance was abated.

A considerable portion of the report is devoted to the field operations of the army, showing that on October 1, 1900, it occupied 413 stations, which was of necessity increased to 502 stations, every command being in contact with some hostile force. He speaks of the good service of the army, and says as a result of the cooperation between the army and the people, who have accepted the invitation to combine for mutual protection, the armed insurrection is almost suppressed.

General MacArthur gives the following statistics from May 5, 1900, to June 30, 1901, (during which time there were 1,026 contacts between American troops and insurgents), which show the casualties on both sides:

Americans—Killed, 245; wounded, 490; captured, 188; missing, 20.

Insurgents—Killed, 2,854; wounded, 1,193; captured, 6,572; surrendered, 23,095.

During the same period the following material was captured or surrendered from the insurgents: Rifles, 15,693; rifle ammunition, 296,365 rounds; revolvers, 868; bolos, 3,516; cannon, 122; cannon ammunition, 1,270 rounds.

At the date of the present report there was no embodied rebel force in Luzon above the Pasig river. In the department of Visayas all was pacified, including the island of Samar, and in the department of Mindanao and Jolo all the rebels had submitted and been disarmed. In southern Luzon disorders still continued in several provinces, but were diminished in force. Serious questions will arise from time to time, General MacArthur says, in Mndanao and Jolo, the adjustment of which will depend largely upon facts and knowledge of Moro character.

General MacArthur says that "in due time and beyond any question, if beneficent republican institutions are permitted to operate with full force, the Filipino people will become warmly attached to the United States by a sense of self-interest and gratitude. In the meantime the molding force in the islands must be a well organized army and navy. Anything in the immediate future calculated to impede the activity, or reduce the efficiency of these instruments, will not only be a menace to the present, but put in jeopardy the entire future of American possibilities in the archipelago."

Declared to Be a Reservation.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Acting Secretary of War Sanger has issued an order declaring the tract of land acquired at Des Moines for a military post to be a military reservation under the jurisdiction of the war department. Work will be commenced very soon upon the erection of buildings suitable to quarter troops at the Des Moines post.

South African War.

London, Aug. 9.—Lord Kitchener, in a dispatch from Pretoria announces that a post of twenty-five men, belonging to Steinacker's horse, on the Sabir river, has been surprised and captured by the Boers.

Lord Kitchener reports also the surrender at Warm Baths of Commandant Devilliers, who was second in command to Beyers.

Horse Kick Proves Fatal.

Thompson, Aug. 8.—The 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Newland, who live five miles north of this place, was kicked by a horse, from the effects of which the boy died.

WOOD'S ENTRY TO BE FOUGHT.

Citizens of Lawton Accuse Him of Violating Homestead Law.

Kansas City, Aug. 9.—A special to the Star from Ft. Sill, O. T., says: Calvert of Guthrie, O. T., one of the oldest established attorneys in the territory, has filed contest papers at the local land office against the entry made by James R. Woods, the winner of the first number in the Lawton district land lottery. According to the government plan two claims were made to adjoin the southern part of the Lawton town site. This was considered the most valuable land in the whole county thrown open to settlement, and in filing Woods claimed 160 acres running the entire length of the town site. This shut out Miss Mattie Beals, the Wichita, Kan., telephone girl, who won No. 2 on the lottery, and who was thus compelled to file on a claim of much less value. Five hundred Lawton business men have signed the contest papers, which recite that Woods violated both the spirit and letter of the homstead act.

BOB EVANS REPRIMANDED

Severely Rebuked by the Navy Department.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The navy department has acted upon the complaint made by the Hon. Wm. E. Chandler against Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans. It has reprimanded Admiral Evans and the following has been addressed to him:

"Navy Department, Washington, Aug. 9, 1901. Sir: The Hon. Wm. E. Chandler, president of the Spanish treaty claims commission, lately a senator of the United States and formerly the secretary of the navy, has complained to the department, as you are aware, of certain strictures upon himself in your book entitled 'A Sailor's Log.'

"The strictures in question are in the nature of aspersions upon the official conduct of the then (1884) secretary of the navy.

"The text of your book, it is not necessary here to recite.

"Nor is it needful to ask of you an explanation why you felt yourself justified in publishing what you have. It is obvious to any reader that you speak offensively of Secretary Chandler's action; that you impugn his motives and otherwise traduce him in respect to orders given you by the secretary in the discharge of the duties of his office.

"You are informed that this deliberate publication of yours has justly incurred the displeasure of the department. For an officer thus to attack a former head of the navy department because of orders given to him by that official is to abandon the courtesy that should always characterize an officer of the navy. If tolerated, it would unquestionably prove subversive of discipline. It would tend to bring the office itself into disrepute. The fact is the more reprehensible in this instance, because of your long experience in the service.

"It has become my duty, therefore, to censure you for this breach of the obligation imposed upon you as a commissioned officer of the navy of the United States, which I accordingly do.

"A copy of this letter will be furnished to the Hon. William E. Chandler. Very respectfully,

"F. W. Hackett, Acting Secretary.

"Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, United States navy, Washington, D. C."

Admiral Evans has acknowledged, under date of August 10, 1901, his receipt of the letter of Acting Secretary Hackett.

PART OF GOLD RECOVERED

Winters Confesses to Robbery of Smelter at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—The gold bars, amounting to $280,000, stolen from the strong room of the Selby Smelting works during Monday night last have been located, and $130,000 worth of the precious metal has been recovered and the balance will be taken from its hiding place within a few hours. The detectives worked on the suspect, Jack Winters, with the result that he confessed his crime and took the detectives to the spot where he hid the gold. The spot chosen by him was a poor one for the securing of so much treasure, it being at the end of the railroad wharf, but a short distance from the company's plant, and but a few feet of water covering its hiding place.

For three days the detectives have tried all sorts of intimidation to make Winters confess, but their threats apparently had no effect on him. Finally he asked to see Superintendent Ropp of the works, who he said was the only friend he had. In his conversation with Ropp, Winter's manner indicated that he knew where the gold had been hidden. Ropp told him that they had a strong case against him and that he would be sent to prison for thirty years. He said: "You will be an old man when you get out and it will do you no good to hide the gold. We know it is hidden in the water near the works and we will search every inch. You may be sure that the gold will be found before you get out of prison."

Winters finally weakened and told Ropp that he had taken the gold and would take him to the spot where it was hidden. The criminal, in company with Supt. Ropp and a force of detectives left on a tug for Crockett. There they waited all night for low tide. Winters pointed out the place at the end of the railroad wharf, behind the coal bunkers at the beginning of the Vallejo ferry slip. At that point at low tide the mud is about four feet deep, covered by a foot of water. When the tug first reached Crockett, Winters pointed out the spot in the water where he said he had thrown the gold. Supt. Ropp marked the place on the wharf and the tug steamed away to wait for low tide.

Winters himself got into the mud and water up to his neck and for an hour and a half groped for the missing bullion. At last reports $110,000 worth had been recovered. It is now only a question of careful search to find the rest of the $280,000. Winters claims that he did the job all alone. He says that he made fourteen trips from the vault to the wharf from which he dropped the gold. The smelter officials, however, are positive that he received asistance from some one. The detectives think that his story that he did it all himself is correct.

Boers Gain Another Victory.

London, Aug. 12.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria, today says: "A blockade near Brandfort (Orange River Colony) was rushed and captured by the Boers, after severe fighting, the night of August 7. Elliott has captured 70 prisoners and large quantities which he is sending in. No details have been received."

Revolt Against Hungarian Authority.

London, Aug. 7.—"The town of Klausenberg, in Transylvania, is in open revolt against the Hungarian authorities," says a dispatch from Vienna to the Daily Express. "A majority of the inhabitants are Germans. Resenting Magyar ascendency, they have stormed and wrecked the municipal buildings and the house of the prefect of police, the occupants barely escaping with their lives. An urgent summons has been sent for troops to quell the rising. There have been numerous casualties."

CUMMINS NOMINATED

Herriott Withdraws and Is Nominated for Lieutenant-Governor.

The Cummins Forces Were in Complete Control of the Convention and Won Out on Every Contest—Weaver, Brown and Barrett Complete the Ticket.

Cedar Rapids, Aug. 8—The Cummins forces were in complete control of the republican state convention and nominated candidates of their choice. Before the convention convened the lines had been drawn so clearly as to demonstrate to Mr. Herriott and his delegates that their cause was hopeless, and following the loss of a large number of delegates who had declared their intention of voting for Cummins Mr. Herriott announced his withdrawal.

The biggest fight of the convention was upon the report of the committee on credentials, which recommended that the full delegation from Polk county and the delegation from Carroll headed by B. I. Sallinger, and the delegation from Jackson headed by Frank H. Williams be seated. A minority report was similar to the majority report, except that it recommended the seating of the Cummins delegations from Carroll and Jackson counties. The latter report was finally adopted by a vote of 845 to 765, showing that the Cummins forces had won the first fight.

State Chairman Weaver called the convention to order at 11:50 o'clock and introduced Rev. S. B. McCormick, president of Coe college, who invoked the divine blessing. Chairman Weaver then read the call for the convention. The jubilee singers of Chicago were introduced by Chairman Weaver and proved a strong attraction.

Chairman Weaver announced as temporary chairman of the convention, Hon. James C. Davis of Keokuk. A long discussion of this country's course in Cuba and of the consequences together with a description of what has been done in Porto Rico and the Philippines stirred the delegates to a considerable degree of enthusiasm. This was greatly increased when he turned his attention to America's commercial and industrial development and stated that this country has started upon a peaceful conquest of the world through trade and commerce. When he later referred to Iowa's two senators and the distinguished position they occupy, there was repeated cheering and shouts for Allison and Dolliver, both of whom were on the stage. Mr. Davis spoke for a little over thirty minutes and closed with an appeal to the delegates for party harmony, unity and loyalty after the nominations had been made.

Following the speech committees were announced. The committee on resolutions and credentials follow:

Resolutions:

First district—C. A. Carpenter, Columbus Junction.
Second district—Geo. M. Curtis, Clinton.
Third district—W. H. Torbert, Dubuque.
Fourth district—W. J. Springer, New Hampton.
Fifth district—J. W. Doxsee, Monticello.
Sixth district—Dr. J. A. Riggen, Keota.
Seventh district—T. A. Cheshire, Des Moines.
Eighth district—M. L. Temple, Osceola.
Ninth district—Senator J. S. Junkin, Red Oak.
Tenth district—Geo. E. Roberts, Fort Dodge.
Eleventh district—A. B. Funk, Spirit Lake.

Credentials:

First district—Judge William Logan, Keokuk.
Second district—J. R. Lane, Davenport.
Third district—M. W. Harmon, Independence.
Fourth district—W. L. Converse, Cresco.
Fifth district—M. J. Tobin, Vinton.
Sixth district—F. W. Simmons, Cherokee.
Seventh district—Edmund Nichols, Perry.
Eighth district—Lewis Miles, Corydon.
Ninth district—Senator F. M. Hopkins, Guthrie Center.
Tenth district—Thomas D. Healy, Fort Dodge.
Eleventh district—E. C. Roach, Rock Rapids.

The new members of the state central committee are:

First district—Henry O. Weaver, Wapello.
Fifth district—E. H. Sargent, Grundy Center.
Sixth district—R. W. Clayton, Oskaloosa.
Seventh district—J. D. Whisenand, Des Moines.
Tenth district—S. X. Way, Wesley.

Chairman Davis called the convention to order for the second session at 2:25 p. m. and announced that the first business would be the receipt of the report of the committee on credentials, but no report was forthcoming. There was a long fight before the committee and its report was not ready before 5 o'clock. While the convention was waiting there were calls for speeches by prominent men present and Senators Dolliver and Allison and Congressmen Hepburn, Cousins, Lacey and Smith responded. At 4 o'clock the convention took a recess until 5 o'clock.

At 5 o'clock Chairman Davis called the convention to order and Lewis Miles of the Eighth district reported for the majority of the committee on credentials. Senator Healy read the minority report, seating the Cummins delegates. After a lengthy debate the minority report was adopted as stated previously and the Cummins men seated.

George M. Curtis announced that the committee on permanent organization had selected H. M. Byers of Shelby county for permanent chairman; A. M. McCall of Dallas, for secretary; H. C. Lounsbury of Marshall, W. A. Follette of Cass and L. C. Sutherland of Polk, for assistant secretaries, and E. R. Hutchins of Polk, E. M. Wilkins of Appanoose and Sherman Meyers of Cass, for reading secretaries. The report was adopted.

Mr. Byers was escorted to the platform. He said:

Gentlemen: I thank you for the honor of presiding over this convention. To successfully meet the responsibilities and discharge the duties of the office I will need the assistance of every member of this body. I trust you will give me your hearty co-operation.

This is the largest republican convention ever assembled in any state.

Iowa is the greatest and the safest republican state in the union.

The ticket named today will be elected by the largest majority ever given a ticket in Iowa. The people are on tiptoe to know who the standard bearers are to be. They shall not be kept waiting long. What is your pleasure?

Chairman Byers announced the report of the committee on resolutions, which was read by George E. Roberts of Fort Dodge. Mr. Roberts, before beginning reading, said the platform represented the unanimous action of the committee. The platform follows:

Resolved, by the republicans of Iowa in convention assembled, That we express our gratification over the endorsement given to the administration of President McKinley by the decisive majorities of last year and rejoice in the manifold benefits resulting to the country from his re-election. It has inspired new confidence to the business world, and the broad authority in our new possessions and strengthened the position of this country before the world.

That we congratulate the people of the country upon the enjoyment of a state of prosperity that blesses every class and community, our products after providing for the comfort of our people to a degree known in no other land, overflowing all markets and creating trade balances that are the amazement of the world. The results of growing wealth and of a wise financial policy are seen in the reduction of interest rates and the expansion of industry, while the demand for labor in every financial field is imperative and the only workers out of employment are those seeking to better their condition.

That we view with satisfaction and approval the work of the Fifty-sixth congress, its action for the reduction of taxation and its constructive legislation give effect to the party declarations of 1896 and 1900. We would emphasize our endorsement of its action in more firmly establishing our monetary system upon a gold basis, and in providing for civil government in Porto Rico and the Philippines, and for the relinquishment of our authority in Cuba. The policy of this government toward these islands has followed inevitably upon our expulsion of the authority of Spain. It has been dictated by the conditions entirely consistent with the spirit within the provisions of the constitution, and the paramount consideration has been to secure the lasting welfare of these people whose fortunes and destinies have become in a large degree dependent upon us. The fact that our authority there is the result of a war waged not for our aggrandizement, but in the name of humanity, must forever govern and inspire our relations to them.

That we are earnestly opposed to all legislation designed to accomplish the disfranchisement of citizens upon lines of race, color or station of life, and condemn the measures adopted by the democratic party in certain states of the union to accomplish that end.

That we stand by the historic policy of the republican party in giving protection to home industries and point for its ample vindication to the extraordinary rapidity with which our national resources have been developed and our industrial and financial independence secured.

We favor such changes in the tariff from time to time as become advisable through the progress of our industries and their changing relations to the commerce of the world. We endorse the policy of reciprocity as the national complement of protection and urge its development as necessary to the utilization of our highest commercial possibilities.

That we assert the sovereignty of the people over all corporations and aggregations of capital and the right residing in the people to enforce such regulations and restrictions or prohibitions upon corporate management as will protect the individual and society from the abuse of the power which great combinations of capital wield. We favor such amendment of the interstate commerce act as will more fully carry out its prohibition of discriminations in rate making, and any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording shelter to monopoly.

That the republican party will seek faithfully to guard the interests of all the people, to develop the resources of this country for the common welfare, to levy the necessary taxation without bias or favor and to secure that just recognition of the rights of every individual under which all find security and prosperity together.

That we voice the pride of Iowa in the prestige won for the state by its senators and representatives in congress. The character of the delegation, the important positions held upon the standing committees, the long and distinguished service of the older members, have acquired for the state an influence in the legislation in the country greatly to be prized. We take special pride in the elevation of an Iowa member to the post of speaker of the house of representatives and the discharge of the duties of that high office by David B. Henderson to the satisfaction of the whole country. We hold in highest esteem the ability, services and influence of our distinguished senators, William B. Allison and Jonathan P. Dolliver; endorse the records they have made and heartily favor their re-election at the hands of the general assembly to be chosen this fall.

We endorse with pride the administration of affairs in Iowa during forty years of almost uninterrupted republican rule. It is a record of capable and faithful management which will bear comparison with the government of any other state. We particularly commend and endorse the administration of Governor Shaw. It has been eminently practical and successful, while his discussion before the people of the great questions in national politics has made him justly a leader of national influence and renown. He will leave the executive chair having reflected honor upon the state and bearing the confidence and regard of its people.

Chairman Byers announced the next business would be the roll call for the nominations for governor. By common consent the roll call for presentment of candidates was omitted, and the main business attacked directly. The first ballot resulted in the nomination of Cummins for governor by the following vote: Cummins 860½, Conger 42, Harriman 359, Trewin 369½, Mahon 2, Herriott 8.

Colonel Stewart of Allamakee, manager for Trewin, arose and moved that the nomination of Mr. Cummins be made unanimous. The motion was quickly seconded by Raymond of Franklin in behalf of Harriman. Carried. A committee was appointed to bring Mr. Cummins to the platform.

Two ballots were required to nominate for lieutenant governor. On the first ballot Herriott received 778, Brant 664½, Klemme 178 and Harriman 12½. It was evident the tide had turned strongly against Brant in the Cummins counties, and almost the whole of his support came from the opposition. On the second ballot there was a division along Cummins and anti-Cummins lines, Herriott receiving 852, Brant 783 and Klemme 6.

Weaver was named for supreme judge on the second ballot. On the first ballot Weaver had 800 votes, Towner 423, Dewey 284 and Bishop 128. On the second ballot the vote was: Weaver 1,039, Towner 543, Dewey 50, Bishop 9.

For railroad commissioner E. C. Brown defeated Welcome Mowry on the first ballot by a vote of 854 to 787.

On motion of Lafe Young R. C. Barrett was nominated for superintendent of public instruction by acclamation.

The convention adjourned shortly before 9 o'clock.

The meeting of the state central committee for organization will be held shortly, when Mr. Cummins will be consulted as to his preference for chairman.

Address of Mr. Cummins.

Cedar Rapids, Aug. 8.—While the roll was being counted on the second ballot for lieutenant governor there were calls for an address by Mr. Cummins, who had come on the platform and was surrounded by congratulating friends. Mr. Cummins was brought forward by Chairman Byers and then followed a tremendous burst of enthusiasm. Mr. Cummins spoke briefly, as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: I shall detain you but a moment. This contest has been of a character that has not warranted me in preparing a speech of acceptance. (Cheers.) More than that, there are moments when the heart is so full of emotion that the lips ref

A Story of the East...

CHAPTER II.

The Terrible Julian.

In fear and trembling sat Ulin, awaiting the coming of the terrible robber. Half an hour passed, and she had not been troubled; but during that time she had witnessed transactions which were not calculated to allay her fears. She had seen over fifty of the king's guards bound and led away, and she saw that a number of the robbers had been placed on guard at the entrance of the rocky passage. They were wild, savage looking men, appearing to her fear-wrought vision, like the evil spirits she had heard her old black nurse tell about.

At length the sound of feet was heard near at hand, and very shortly the door of the apartment was opened, and a black slave entered. It was a woman, and one of those whom the king had left.

"Good lady," she said, trembling as she spoke, "the hour of doom has come. I am a slave to a new master, and that master has sent me to tell you that he wishes to see you."

"Who is he?" asked Ulin.

"I don't know, but I think he is Julian, the Scourge. His look is terrible.. Upon his brow sits the thundercloud, and in his eye flashes the forked lightning!"

"Will he come up here?"

"He said so."

"I have no power to prevent him. Tell him I am weak and defenceless, and at his mercy."

The slave bowed and withdrew, and in a little while some one else came. A heavy footfall sounded without, and the door was slowly and carefully opened.

But, who is this? What spirit has thus appeared in the palace! A man had entered the chamber alone. He was youthful—not more than three or four-and-twenty—with kindly look, and of noble bearing. He was not larger of frame than common men; but the perfect symmetry of form, the exact correspondence of all the parts; the delicate rounding of the graceful outline, and the filling up of all points where sources of strength could be deposited, gave token of a power which might lead the careless observer to pronounce him a giant.

He gazed upon the beautiful maiden for some moments without speaking, seeming to drink in a new inspiration from her loveliness, as the student of nature does when some new and unexpected scene of grandeur bursts upon his vision.

"Fair lady," he said in softest tones, "permit me to hope that this intrusion may be pardoned. I would not give you pain, and if you have been alarmed, be assured that you have cause for it no more. Tell me how I may serve you."

He approached her as he spoke, and she, without hardly realizing what she did, arose and gave him her hand. If he had gazed upon her with admiration, her own feelings had not been entirely different. Her woman's instinct told her that here was a man whom she could trust; and her woman's heart beat with an emotion entirely new and strange.

"Noble sir," she said, meeting his gaze with the strength of perfect trustfulness, "Heaven has sent you to save me from the dread man who has made his way to this place. If you have the power to do it, you will lead me to bless you forevermore."

"Of what man do you speak?" asked the stranger, still holding her hands.

"I speak of him who is known as the Scourge of Damascus—of the terrible Julian."

The man was silent for a few moments, but he did not withdraw his gaze from the maiden's face.

"Sweet lady," he at length said, speaking very lowly and tenderly, "I am informed that the king of Damascus has sent you hither to keep you safely until he can make you his wife."

"He hath done so, sir."

"And yet it seems that he did not provide so wisely, after all. Would you wish to be carried to the king?"

"No, no, sir—not to the king. I would be carried to my father."

There could be no mistaking the character of the emotions under which the princess spoke. With all the king's power her hope was not in him. The stranger marked the changes of her countenance; and, while a warmer light shone in his handsome eyes, he resumed—

"I cannot say when you shall be returned to your father; but I can give you my solemn assurance that I can protect you. I will protect you from the hands of those whom you have cause to fear; and, at the same time, I will regard you as a sacred trust, to be respected and purely cherished. And now, lady, have I your confidence?

He let go her hands, held until now, and when he had taken a seat not far from her, he continued:

"Lady Ulin, you have spoken of Julian, and I see that you fear him. Did you ever see him?"

Ulin shuddered as she answered in the negative.

"Did you ever hear his story?"

"No, sir. Albia has told me something, but not much."

"I can tell you the whole, if you would hear it."

"I should like to hear it, fair sir."

"Believe me, lady, when you have heard what I shall tell you, you will not regard Julian with so much of abhorrence. But of one thing I give you warning: In telling the story of Julian I must speak harsh words against your affianced husband."

"My—affianced—husband?" repeated Ulin, with a troubled pause between her words.

"I mean Horam, King of Damascus," said the stranger, regarding the beautiful maiden as though he read her every thought.

"I am not keeper over the character of Horam. The truth, spoken in a true cause, will not offend me."

"Then, lady, let me first assure you that Julian is not the monster your fears have painted. He has never done wrong to any, save the powerful of Damascus. Go to the forests and mountains of Lebanon, and you shall find a thousand poor peasants whose families he has befriended. He has taken gold and jewels, and precious stuffs of silk and linen, from the stores of Horam; but he hath not made himself rich therefrom. He and his followers have lived, and beyond this the booty has been bestowed upon the poor and needy. Julian hath also waylaid and broken up caravans; and turned back many expeditions which the king had sent out. He may be just what hath been said—he may be the Scourge of Damascus, but he has no wish to trouble honest men. His aim has been, vengeance upon the king."

"And why should he seek such vengeance upon the king?" asked Ulin.

"I will tell you, lady. But for the king of Damascus Julian might be now one of the most free and happy men living; but as it is, he is a stranger and an outcast upon the face of the earth. He is a wanderer, without a home, and with only such friends as are bound to him in his adventurous and dangerous course. Once many years ago—he had parents and the prospect of life was bright before him; but in an unhappy hour the gloom and the darkness came. Horam, in wicked, jealous wrath, swept away all that was bright and promising from the path of Julian and shut out the star of hope forever. O, sweet lady, I dare not pain your ear with all that Horam did. Were I to tell you all, you would regard the king as such a monster that your heart would close against him, and your very soul would shrink at the sound of his name. As true as the heavens are above us, so true is it that the heart of Julian is not evil. When he looks back upon the utter desolation of his young life, and realizes that the king of Damascus malignantly and cruelly brought the curse upon him can you wonder that his soul is fraught with vengeance?"

"I never heard this story before," said Ulin, her voice trembling with deep emotion. "If it is true, as you have told me, I cannot blame Julian so much."

"And yet you fear him, lady?"

"I cannot help it. He hath come hither in battle array, and made war against me."

"Nay, nay, sweet lady. You do much mistake his intent. I can tell you why he came hither. He heard from a messenger whom he met upon the plains of Marthal, that a fair damsel was shut up here—a maiden whom the king intended to marry. It might have pleased him to deprive Horam of a wife; but it pleased him more to release a gentle lady from such enslavement. He knows what the king of Damascus has, ere this, done unto his wives. He has heard that the dark waters of the Pharpor are but a short span from the royal bed. And hence he came to set free one whom he feared might meet a worse fate than the encountering of the Scourge of Damascus. Did he commit a grievous sin in this, lady?"

"Indeed, sir, I know not what to say."

"Will you not see Julian? Do not shudder. I assure you that he will be most gentle in his bearing. But I know he would like to speak with you—he would hear from your own lips that you do not think him a monster; and he would also know your pleasure."

"When will he come?"

"Let it be tomorrow morning, lady. It is near evening now, and your rest shall not be disturbed. You may sleep as safely tonight as ever you slept upon your mother's bosom, and so shall you be safe while I am near you. You will see Julian in the morning?"

"You will come with him?"

"If you wish it, lady."

"I do wish it, for I feel that I am acquainted with you; and, furthermore, I have said that I would trust you."

"It shall be so."

And thus speaking the visitor arose, and moved towards the door. He turned, with his hand upon the latch, and added:

"I trust that your dreams may be sweet and pleasant. If dark phantoms come to your pillow they shall not be of Julian. There is another whom you have more cause to dread—one who, in hard and hoary age would feast upon the charms of your loveliness. Pardon me, for I go with a blessing breathed upon thee."

In a moment more the man was gone, and the door was closed behind him. Ulin gazed vacantly upon the spot where he had stood, until she felt a hand upon her shoulder. She started, and looked up; and it was only Albia.

"My dear mistress, is not this a strange adventure?"

"Very strange," replied the princess, casting her eyes to the floor, and then slowly raising them to that vacant spot.

"What do you think of the strange man?" the slave girl pursued, sitting down by her lady's side.

"What do you think of him?" said Ulin.

"I think he is very handsome. He is the most noble looking man I ever saw."

Ulin showed by her look that she was grateful for this answer. It pleased her, though she may not have known it.

"Such a man could not be a bad man," she said. "Deception cannot dwell in such a face."

"I should think not," returned Albia, to whom the remarks had been put in the form of questions.

"And what do you think of the story he told concerning the robber Julian?"

"I think he told us the truth, my lady. As he went on with the tale, I remembered that I had heard it just so before. He told us the truth."

"Then the king must be a hard, bad man, Albia?"

"I must not answer you lady. The king is to be your husband, and it is not well that you should urge me to speak against him."

"Indeed, girl, I asked you to do no such thing. I did not mean that you should speak against the king."

"Then you should have asked me no question touching his character. I would rather talk of this man who has just left us. I, who am only a poor slave, could love such a man."

Ulin lifted her hand to her heart, and pressed it there as though some new feeling had crept in to worry her, and, as she sat thus, one of her black slaves came in to see if she would like her supper.

"Not now, Calypso," said the princess, starting up. "You may bring me some grapes, and a few dates. But first, tell me what these strange men are doing. How many of them are there here?"

"Not more than a score of them are in the palace, my mistress, but there are thousands of them outside of the valley."

Ulin had no disposition to argue the point; so she asked what the robbers were doing.

"Albia," said the princess, after the black slave had gone, "I do not believe that Julian is such a terrible looking man, after all. What do you think?"

"I think," replied Albia, "that people have described him who never saw him, and that their fear-fraught imaginations drew the picture."

"So I think," returned Ulin. She gazed a few moments upon that old vacant spot, and then added: "I shall see him on the morrow, and I must say that the thought is not frightful. I feel assured that he means me no harm."

"Yet," ventured Albia, "it is a curious whim which should lead him to seek to release you from the hands of the king. But I don't know as we can wonder at it. Perhaps he thought you were some friendless girl who did not know—"

The princess motioned for her companion to stop.

"We will not talk of the king, Albia; and, touching this Julian, we shall know more when we see him."

BRIEF AUTHORITY.

Highest Officers in Government Have but Short Terms.

When Mr. Arthur was president he once said to John M. Wilson, then a major in the regular army: "Presidents may come and presidents may go but the army runs on forever." A few weeks ago Wilson, as a brigadier-general, retired from service as the head of the engineer corps of the army. He had entered West Point as a cadet fifteen years before Mr. Arthur had been heard of outside the politics of New York, and his active work ends fifteen years after that president's death. The fact illustrates the truth of President Arthur's playful paraphrase, which might have been applied to other branches of the government. The official life of the head of an executive department is usually short. The throngs that have gathered recently to see the president and his cabinet on their tour of the country have looked upon the great national leaders of today, but four years hence, in all probability, not one of those high officers of state will be occupying any official position. Even a president drops quickly out of the larger life of the nation when he quits office. Senatorships, on the other hand, are long-term offices. Most of the senators have become prominent in the public life of state or nation before they are elected, and when they retire they are often appointed to important offices. Federal judgeships are offices of a still more permanent class. President John Adams appointed a chief justice who lived to administer the oath of office to Andrew Jackson; and his successor appointed by Jackson, administered the oath to Abraham Lincoln. Already Chief Justice Fuller, appointed by Mr. Cleveland in his first term, has four times inducted a president into office.—Youth's Companion.

COURTSHIP ENDED.

The Marriage of a Couple Stops Gossip in the East.

The end of the troubles of Miss Jennie Howell of Scranton, Pa., and Edward B. Dean of Hackensack, N. J., came when they were married. The courtship of Mr. Dean and Miss Howell was attended by unusual difficulties. The young couple met at Atlantic City last summer and were mutually attracted. Miss Dean was a woman of 31, and an invalid. Mr. Dean was a widower of 48, and each was well situated with regard to worldly goods. Mr. Dean frequently visited Miss Howell in Scranton, and a story was soon circulated that they were engaged. This was violently opposed by Miss Howell's brother, Franklin Howell, who instituted proceedings to have her declared a lunatic. How these proceedings finally collapsed in the face of the testimony of expert physicians from Philadelphia was told in the papers a short time ago. In answering the questions of the marriage license docket in court, Mr. Dean had placed on the records mention of the fact that he was divorced from his first wife in Cameron county in December, 1879, and his second wife died on March 17, 1900.

How to Become Wealthy.

In a New Hampsihre city there dwells an octogenarian physician who, in addition to his wide medical skill, is known far and wide as a dispenser of blunt philosophy. The other day a young man of his acquaintance called at his office. "I have not come for pills this time, doctor," said the visitor, "but for advice. You have lived many years in this world of toil and trouble and have had much experience. I am young and I want you to tell me how to get rich." The aged practitioner gazed through his glasses at the young man and in a deliberate tone, said: "Yes, I can tell you. You are young and can accomplish your object if you will. Your plan is this: First, be industrious and economical. Save as much as possible and spend as little. Pile up the dollars and put them at interest. If you follow out these instructions by the time you reach my age you'll be as rich as Croesus and as mean as h—l."—Buffalo Commercial.

Music for the Spheres.

Dr. Joachim, the eminent violinist and probably the greatest performer of his time, was in Leipsig when a boy of 14. He was living in Mendelssohn's house and often used to visit Schumann. One evening when the three musicians were sitting in the garden the stars were shining brightly. Young Joachim was next to Schumann, who as a rule was very solemn. Suddenly Schumann looked at Joachim, gazing at the stars in raptures, and said: "I wonder whether there are people living up there and whether they know that on this earth there is a little boy who plays the violin very beautifully and gives many of us great pleasure. Are they shining down in gratitude on that little boy, I wonder?" Joachim, modest from his earliest childhood as he is now, looked delighted, but only murmured: "Oh, how I should like to give them pleasure up there too."

Cork Industrial Exhibition.

The Cork Industrial exhibition, which is to be held next year, has not only been supported by substantial subscriptions from both Cork and Dublin, but it has now been given the support of the Irish department of agriculture and technical instruction, of which Mr. Horace Plunkett is president. The department, it is announced, has allocated a sum of £5,000 for the purpose of the exhibition, subject to the general scheme being approved by the department. A portion of the sum will be devoted by the department to the organization of an exhibit of products, appliances, and processes relating to industries, which are capable of being introduced into Ireland, or when already established, or being developed.

GOMPERS' STATEMENT.

Pledges Support of Federation of Labor to Steel Strikers.

Pittsburg, August 10.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor last night gave out the following statement:

"We unhesitating declare our judgment that the position of the Amalgamated association is absolutely justified and essential to its continuance and effectiveness as a union of the workers in that trade as well as the protection of the rights and interests of its members.

"It is true that the Amalgamated association in the first conferences asked that the United States Steel corporation sign the union scale of wages for all the mills operated, owned and controlled by that company, but it was also true that the request was withdrawn and one substituted so that the union scale would apply to those mills only in which the members of the Amalgamated association are employed; in other words, which are well known to be union mills. This the United States Steel corporation refused to concede, insisting that the scale should apply to only those mills which were union last year, even refusing to allow two mills to be included which, by a series of hectoring and symtematic opposition by the company, had become non-union during the year.

"It appears the company took the position that it did with an awoval that it would not allow the extension of the union to non-unionists. Such a position and avowal are tantamount to declaring that notwithstanding the growth of the craft, the organization had reached a status beyond which it could not extend.

"Organized labor advances or recedes, it never stands still. It therefore follows that if the trust, by its great wealth, can prevent the extension and growth of the Amalgamated association, it compasses its disintegration and destruction. The only power then standing between the trust and the workers as a protector are the tender mercies of the directors. Against such a calamity the sense of justice and humanity revolt and we solemnly protest.

"We shall stand by the Amalgamated association in the present conflict to the full extent of our power, morally and financially; we shall aid in every lawful way the men on strike or who may come out on strike to maintain the workers in their right to organize, and the extension of their organization, so that the only power which stands for their protection and advancement against the avarice of concentrated wealth may be perfected and perpetuated.

"The fight of the brave Boers may end in their undoing, but the spirit of justice, the love of freedom and the right suddenly looms up in another part of the world, these principles find lodging in the hearts of other men, who will carry on the battle until they are enthroned in the conscience and every day life of all peopies; so with the Amalgamated association, an organization may be defeated in a contest, but it will not be conquered.

"The Amalgamated association will not be crushed; she will not be conquered; she must not be defeated."

BOERS WILL BE BANISHED

General Kitchener Issues Proclamation to That Effect.

London, Aug. 10.—A parliamentary paper has been issued containing the proclamation issued by Lord Kitchener August 7, in accordance with instructions from the imperial government, the governments of Cape Colony and Natal concurring. The proclamation says: "All commandants, field cornets and leaders of armed bands, being burghers of the late republics and engaged still in resisting his majesty's forces, whether in the Orange colony, the Transvaal or other portions of his majesty's South African dominions, and all members of the late governments of the Orange Free State and Transvaal, shall unless they surrender before September 15 be permanently banished from South Africa. The cost of the maintenance of the families of all burghers in the field who have not surrendered by September 15 shall be recoverable from such burghers and shall be a charge upon their property, removable and immovable, in the two colonies."

The preliminary correspondence shows that the proclamation is based on suggestions which the government of Natal forwarded to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain July 24, and that the date September 15 was recommended by Lord Milner.

The newspapers comment approvingly upon the proclamation of Lord Kitchener. Even the Westminster Gazette says there is no fault to find with it, nor is there any objection to make on the score of justice. It thinks, however, that it is extremely doubtful if it will have any effect in shortening the war. Most of the fighting Boers are already completely ruined and nothing restrains them, owing to the devastation of the country.

TRUST MOVES A MILL.

Steel Combine Is Practically Run Out of McKeesport.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—The United States steel corporation has issued an order directing that the Dewees Wood plant at McKeesport be dismantled and removed to the Kiskiminetas Valley. The decision is ascribed to the hostility of the people of that city. The official announcement of the decision was made to a representative of the Associated Press by Pesifer F. Smith, district manager of the American Steel company. He said: "I have orders from President McMurtry of the American Sheet Steel company to at once tear down the Dewees Wood plant at McKeesport, and remove the same to Kiskiminetas valley. This I shall proceed to do immediately."

The Dewees Wood works is one of the oldest and best known plants in Pennsylvania. It was founded nearly forty years ago, and its shops and mills cover from 12 to 14 acres. It employed an average of 900 men, but in the busiest times the pay roll carried 1,200 names. The plant cost several million dollars. The company announced its intention of spending a large sum of money in improvements, but the order to dismantle the mill terminated that plan. The sentiment of the citizens and officials of McKeesport has been against the steel corporation and it is believed here that the latter preferred to go out rather than attempt to resume.

New Orleans has the only paper in the United States that publishes a Sunday evening edition.

Howison Appointed.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Rear Admiral Henry L. Howison has been selected to fill the vacancy on the Schley court of inquiry, caused by the inability of Rear Admiral Kimberly to serve. Admiral Howison's name is one of the several officers whom Admiral Schley notified the department were satisfactory to him. The appointment is also satisfactory to Captain Parker, Admiral Schley's assistant counsel.

UNNA DEFINES A CAUSE.

European Skin Specialist Says Dandruff is Caused by Parasites.

Upon that theory, proved beyond a doubt, a cure for dandruff was sought after. Scientists, chemists, druggists and physicians all "took a hand" and the successful issue is the present product known as "Newbro's Herpicide."

This remedy actually kills the parasite that infests the hair bulb, does its work most effective and contains not an atom of substance injurious to anything else than the germ alone. Herpicide causes the hair to grow as nature intended it should, soft and abundant.

An Irish soldier at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., was late on returning at night, and, fearing a reprimand, climbed over the barracks wall. He was discovered, and an officer asked why he did not enter by the gate. His excuse was quite unique: "Please, sir, I was afraid of waking the sentry."

For Women's Troubles Too.

New Baden, Ill., August 12th:—Mrs. Anton Griesbaum, Jr., has been very ill. Female weakness had run her down so low that she could not do her housework. She had tried many things, but got no relief.

Dodd's Kidney Pills, a new remedy, which is better known here as a cure for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, and Rheumatism, worked liked a charm in Mrs. Griesbaum's case. She used three boxes and is now a new woman, able to do her work as well as ever she was. Her general health is much improved, and she has not a single symptom of Female Trouble left.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are making a wonderful reputation for themselves in this part of the state.

RATES ARE REASONABLE.

A False Impression Corrected — Pan-American Exposition Railroad Fares and Hotel Rates Low as Could be Expected.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 30.—A joint meeting of railway passenger agents, hotel and newspaper men was held this afternoon with the view of adopting some means for correcting so far as possible the impression that appears to prevail at distant points that railway rates to the Pan-American Exposition are high and that hotel rates in Buffalo are excessive. The conference revealed the fact that Buffalo can accommodate two hundred thousand visitors in its private houses and hotels at rates ranging from fifty cents to two dollars per night, and that no one need pay more than one dollar for a first-class lodging in a private house. It was also shown that the railroad rate is lower than for any former exposition for a five, ten or fifteen day ticket, according to distance, being at the rate of one fare plus one dollar for the round trip, from all parts of the country. The Niagara Falls cheap, one-day special excursions of former years, when trains were overcrowded and everyone subjected to great discomfort, are remembered only so far as the low rate is concerned, and this is quoted as showing what might be done. The passenger agents assert that the present half rates are as low as can reasonably be expected. An extension of the present limit has been looked for, as it gives too short a time for anyone to see the big exposition, but it has not yet been modified. Other points which the representatives of the publishers' association will lay stress upon are that the Exposition is completed in all details and that both Buffalo and the Exposition are well policed and as free from dangerous characters as any city in the country. A joint committee was appointed to deal with questions affecting the Exposition and the proper welcome and care of guests. The Exposition has had in operation for some time a free bureau of information for the convenience of intending visitors.

There is nothing that will cool you quite so quick, during this hot weather, as a dish of ice cream, a glass of lemonade or milk shake. Drinks of all kinds served at all times at G. W. Kluckhohn's.

Swan Carlson, of Bailey Grove went to North Dakota Wednesday with 4 car loads of lumber, fencing and farming tools. He intends to fence four sections in which he will place 240 Texas steers.

The ladies of the Eng. M. E. church will serve a supper in the M. W. A. Hall on Saturday Eve, Aug. 17, from 5:30 until all are served. They will also serve Ice Cream and Cake. All are cordially invited.

Mr. Gerwine, of Germantown, heard some noise in the barn Tuesday night and on going out found one of the horses down. While endeavoring to get it up on it's feet the animal kicked him and broke one of his ribs on the left side. Dr. Spooner is in charge.

Prof. Triggs, of the Chicago University, recenly declared that Longfellow's and Holmes' poems were "not worthy of an ordinary man's consideration." What a powerful mind this man really has! Next he will startle the world by saying the ocean is made of carbolic acid and Bro. Bracket will try to prove it with boiler-plate editorials.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the home Mrs. L. Hawley on next Wednesday, Aug. 21. All ladies are cordially invited.

Attention is called to the new design adopted by J. H. Queal & Co., which will be found on the first page. Get them to show you the new Self-fitting Screens, cheapest and most convenient; American Wire fence; you cannot break it with stretching. New stock of Fence Posts.

"Clod" Fuller, while going up a stairs in the dark one night last week became over balanced and fell down eight ft. in such a way as to injure his side and hip so much that he has been in bed ever since. There were no bones fractured however and he will soon be better.

According to the Meservey Messenger the scarlet fever in it's town has been checked. Five cases of quarantine were instituted and the disease entirely wiped out. Rigid rules were enforced by the town council which proves that strict adherence to the law makes all things well.

Week ending Aug. 2 1901.

The Nora Business College opens Sept. 3rd, with a strong corps of five teachers headed by Prof E. F. Fisher. Its work has stood the test of years The best results at the lowest expense. A good business practice and college home maintained throughout.

As one of our citizens was leaving us the other day we asked him where he was going when he said: "To H——" as he hasn't returned yet we presume he has reached his destination.—Meservey Messenger.

That's nothing! When we run the Meservey paper about 35 citizens told us that same thing so we reckon this fellow will not be lonesome.

Here's a marriage notice with comment that appears in a North Dakota paper: Married at Flintstone by Rev. Windstone; Nehemia Whitestone and Wilhelma Sandstone. This is getting mighty "rocky" and there is bound to be a busting of these "stone" hearts before many pebbles appear on the connubial beach. The grindstone of infelicity will sharpen the axe of jealousy and discord. the sooner or later one or the other of the pair will rest beneath the tombstone. Then look out for the brimstone.

The corn crop throghout this section seems to be a puzzler for the farmers. Some claim three-quarters of an average crop and others claim it will hardly be fit for the crib. In questioning a number of them we find it something like this: All corn that was well kerneled and not stunted will be fit for cribbing. But there is a crop that was stunted, which, altho kerneled out, has a second growth of soft kernels on the cob which is an eye sore to the farmers. The little kernels have started since the recent heavy rains; they will not mature but will spoil the crop for cribbing. It will be all right as feed but not in shape for the market?

Someone has recently said that "if a woman wants to be a devil and make life a burden for her husband shecan do the trick, and if a man wants to be mean he can give Satan himself pointers, and he can make himself so disagreable that the imps of the lower regions would turn from him in the sulphuric flames." Every comunity has representatives of these "imps." Very often they operated under the cloak of religion, which often to its shame, protects them. The man or woman who in the home is eternally finding fault, eternally growling, never answering any member of the family only in the bluntest, briefest way is a representive of the devil on earth be his or her face ever so long in church.

There will be a meeting at the Center school house on Friday evening, Aug, 16th for the purpose of making arrangements for the Harvest Home Picnic. All that are interest are requested to be present.

Ira Derr received a serious injury last week while stacking grain. It seems that he had just completed the stack, and in coming down came in contact with the handle of a pitch fork which entered his body nearly eight inches. As soon as possible he was taken to Dr. Hoag who dressed the wound and found it necessary to put six stitches in the stomach. At first his chance for recovery were very slim, one out of a hundred but the one chance was enough and he is now rapidly recovering to the delight of his many friends.

He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns. and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me. I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties," He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. ELL CENTER NEWS.

Special Correspondent.

A. Kelly was a business caller here last Thursday.

J. N. Sprole was looking after his farming interests here last Thursday.

Mr Henry Grosz and daughter Annie, of near Meservey, were caller here Thursday.

Rumor has it that F. Grieman has purchased Fred Sycameyers place for $51 per acre.

Fred Ridder was out here last Friday making some repairs on the Katter Henry thresher.

Bert Crawford was awarded the contract for building the Grieman school house his bid being considered cheaper than the rest.

Dr. Richter was called to H. Rice's place the fore part of the week by the serious illness of Alan Jones and he is now improving.

This community is grieved to learn that Bessie Barsalou, of Thornton, daughter of a former pastor here, has broke her arm in the same place that it was broke last spring.

Last Friday night at the home of Mrs. Nissen, Myrtle Braund by mistake took somebody's fur collarette. If the person who has hers will kindly let her know she will exchange with them.

Good fellows must be scarce in our sister county for according to one the Hampton papers a girl of that place stuffed the arm of an old coat with hay and placed it around her waist and sat on the porch in the soft twilight one evening and now the other girls are dying with jealous envy and curiosity to know who the fellow was. Whats the matter with sending a few dozen bachelors from here, surely they would be as good as a coat sleeve stuffed with hay!

At the meeting last Friday evening H. H. Burman was elected President, and Thomas Marshall Secretary. Aug. 30th is the day set for holding the 3rd Annual Harvest Home Picnic. This is the first one of the new century and it promises to eclipse all former one. Good speeches, music, sports and races corn palace and a ball game between Klemme and Ell Center to decide the championship of the county. Don't fail to see it. Big dinner at noon. Old soldiers and settlers especially invited to attend.

Garner is one of the dogondest towns on earth. Dogs on the lawns, dogs on the streets, dogs on the right and dogs on the left, dogs in front and dogs behind, dogs to eat and dogs to eat you, dogs the bark in every key, dogs pious and dogs impious, dogs that go to church and dogs that go to the devil—we wish that they would all go there—and I'll be dogged if this town isn't the dogendest doggery I ever saw. The soul cries for a feast of dog rather than a feast for dogs. I never ate a dog, but dog my cats I'll eat one if others will join me until all the dogs of Garner are eaten up.—Hancock Democrat.

THE SCRIBE IN PERSIA.

His Survival Due to the Persian's Keen Artistic Sense.

Few, probably, among the reading public who are interested in Omar have any conception of the state of the book market, or of the manner in which literature is diffused in Persia. Some may picture to themselves a state of affairs similar to that in Europe, with a certain admixture of oriental slowness and lack of method; while others may suppose that Persia can boast of no book market at all, beyond the casual buying and selling of manuscripts.

Now, in some parts of the east, printing, book selling and journalism have—especially during the last ten or twenty years—been developed to a comparatively high degree. Both Constantinople and Cairo possess excellent printing presses, which are responsible for numberless books and journals, nor are these two capitals the only oriental towns which boast of a printing press. Nevertheless Persia is at the present day entirely dependent upon lithography for her native production of books and journals—which are very rare. At the beginning of the present century a press with movable types was set up in Tabriz, at which a certain number of books were printed. The effort, however, met with no encouragement, and had shortly afterward to be abandoned. The unpopularity of type printing in Persia, says the North American Review, is due to two principal causes; firstly, the straightness of the lines offends a Persian's artistic sense; and, secondly, in printed books the character of the letters is entirely lost. The same cause which leads a Persian to esteem so highly great caligraphers makes him deplore all absence of character in a type-printed book. What most delights him is a well-written manuscript, and he takes the same delight in the copyist's work as we take in the touch of an old master. Failing this, he contents himself with a lithograph, which is usually the fac-simile of the writing of some good scribe, and has, at any rate, a human element about it.

It is hard for us to credit the vast amount of attention that is paid to caligraphy in the east, where men of learning devote years to its acquirement, and their best days to making artistic copies of classical works. Although this art is dying out to a certain extent, owing to the cheapness of lithography, a man may even to this day in Persia become as famous for his writing as a poet for his verses.

HE KNEW.

Congratulations in Order from the Lear Black Man.

They met in front of the Reac house. One was fat and black, with a wonderful expanse of mouth and a voice like a couple of fog horns. The other was black and lean and weazened.

Said the fat black to the lean black: "Why doan yer 'gratulate me, Brudder Johnsing?"

"Whut fer I 'gratulate you?" said Brudder Johnsing.

"Whut fer you 'gratulate me? Why, man, kase I done mar'd de Widder Jeff's'n."

"You is—you dun mar'd de Widder Jeff'son!" squeaked out the lean one.

"I sho' is done mar'd that lady," said the fat one, with an air of great satisfaction.

"Den I does 'gratulate yer, wif my whole heart, I sho' does."

The two separated, says the Chattanooga News, when the lean one turned to a knot of white men who had been interested and amused auditors, and remarked:

"Yas, I'gratulate him! Haw! haw! haw!—he! he! I sho' does. He's de wus en'my I has, an' I certainly 'gratulates. Why, boss," he said, confidentially, singling out one of the spectators, "I wuz mar'd to dat woman fer a year myself. Yas, I sho' do 'gratulate dat man," and he moved off toward Market street chuckling and muttering to himself.

Decrease in Pauperism.

It is satisfactory to learn from the latest report of the English local government board that there continues to be a steady decrease in pauperism. The total number of paupers relieved last year was 807,471, which means that one person in every 39 in the kingdom is a pauper. This year the proportion is less than that, and 50 years ago one person in every 16 instead of every 39 was in receipt of relief.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. There are altogether in Yucatan seven cities, thirteen towns, sixty-two ruined cities, 143 villages, fifteen abandoned settlements, and 33 haciendas. Scarcely any of these places has as many as 10,000 inhabitants, the population of the great majority falling below 1,000.

American Roman Catholics contributed during 1900 for foreign missions $1,230, the amount being sent to the Central Council of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. The headquarters of the propaganda are in Paris, France, and from there the money is sent to support weak missions in all parts of the world. The American contribution is much larger than previous ones.

It isn't against the law in Minnesota to kill a gambler if he has been cheating, and will not return the money to his victim. At least, a case at Granite Falls has just been decided to that effect. Dr. Wintner pulled his pistol and shot a gambler with whom he was playing cards, because the gambler had cheated and refused to pay the money on demand. A jury declared upon oath that Dr. Wintner was not guilty of murder.

"Future punishment? Let's not discuss the theological side of it just now," said the old clergyman, gently, to his hot-headed young parishioners. "But did you ever think of it from the domestic and family side? When these babies of yours begin to grow up, and you see them imitating your faults and hampered by your weaknesses, and know that you're to blame—ah, there's the kind of future punishment there can be no two opinions about!"

He began his trip on the Seine and he is now on the Marne. He will sail down the Yohne, the Saone, the Rhone and its small branches flowing into the Mediterranean. Then he will go on the Loire and end his voyage through France on the Rance, which will conduct him to St. Malo, where he will take a steamboat to Jersey. The name of his canoe is Oithona, and is so constructed that it can be wheeled on terra firma whenever its occupant gets tired of being on the water.

The London Lancet, a high medical authority, says that the habit of self-drugging has grown to be a source of untold mischief. The practice has been greatly assisted by the enormous improvements in pharmaceutical preparations. Treating symptoms without medical advice may be temporarily satisfactory, but what if the physical disturbance be the sign of fatal disease? A little knowledge, coupled with overconfidence, is a dangerous thing in dealing with the ailments which come in so many forms. Varying the adage, it may be said that a man who is his own doctor has a fool for a patient.

Some amusing letters find their way to the government archives. One federal officeholder recently made an appeal for screens for the building where he worked, saying that within a hundred yards were three livery stables, one mule boarding house, one horse sanitarium with operating table, and one fish morgue. He added that as his handwriting had been spoiled by the constant endeavor to write and keep off flies at the same time. He had pasted ten sheets of sticky flypaper, and while they carried off thousands of victims they seemed to occasion no vacancies in the ranks of the survivors. The pathetic appeal was in vain. "Uncle Sam is rich enough to give us all" screens, but he is too hard-hearted to do it.

During the famous Douglas and Lincoln debate and subsequent campaigns the point was frequently brought out by the supporters of "the Little Giant" that Mr. Lincoln had served only a single term in Congress, but that Senator Douglas had enjoyed for years a national reputation. This point, says a writer in Lippincott's, was urged in a heated discussion between an ardent supporter of Douglas and a German voter who favored Lincoln. Finally the farmer, thinking to overwhelm his opponent, said: "Who is this Lincoln, anyhow? Nobody ever heard of him until Senator Douglas brought him into notice by holding a joint debate with him. Senator Douglas, on the other hand, is a great statesman. Why, he has had his eye on the presidential chair for the last ten years!" "Vot is it you say?" was the reply. "You say Senator Douglas have hat his eye on der bresident chair for ten years?" "Yes, that is just what I said." "Vell, you shoost tell Meester Douglas if he will keep his eye on dot chair shoost a little vile longer he will see old Abe Lincoln sitting down in it." This closed the debate, amid a roar of laughter from the bystanders.

The Rochester Theolgical seminary may be removed to New York in the near future, plans to that end being under consideration by the president and trustees of the institution. The reasons for the proposed removal, as stated by President Strong, are that modern tendencies toward the great cities make it necessary for institutions of learning to seek large center because of the superior opportunities to reach of students, and also the fact that a large part of the support of the Rochester seminary comes from New York City.

"Nearly every patient taken to the city hospital on account of heat prostration is a steady drinker," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. There is nothing of original scientific discovery in the remark, but it will bear frequent repetition during hot weather.

Stanford White is one of the largest collectors of antique statuary in America. Not only is his house in Gramercy Park, New York, a veritable museum of Greek and Roman art, but his lawn is now filled to overflowing with other examples.

The Vicar of Wakefield gave his daughter all he had—his blessing. A more tangible legacy was made in the Philippines recently, when General Arthur turned over the military command to his successor. "I bequeath to you all my troubles," he said, and General Chaffee promptly entered upon his inheritance.

King Oscar has passed seventy-two years and has delegated many of his powers to Gustaf, the heir to the throne, although there has not been a formal abdication.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

WAS THE RICHEST IOWAN.

Edwin Manning, a Hawkeye Pioneer, Dead at Keosauqua.

Keosauqua, Aug. 17.—Edwin Manning, the richest man in Iowa and for over half a century the leading business man in the state, died yesterday aged 91 years at his home here. He left an estate valued at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The story of the accumulation of this wealth is practically the history of the state from the days of Black Hawk to the present.

Mr. Manning was of English descent and was born in South Coventry, Conn., February 8, 1810. He was brought up on a farm and educated in the public schools until he was 16 years old, when he began life at Bethany, Pa., as a clerk in his uncle's store at $10 a month.

Coming west in 1836, he made a short stop in Missouri, and then settled in St. Francisville, Lee county, Iowa, where he bought some land from Indians. He, with James Hall and others, entered a claim and laid out the town of Keosauqua, this being the Indian name for the river at that place.

In 1839 Mr. Manning purchased the first stock of merchandise ever brought to Keosauqua, shipping it by way of the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi river. He built the first flatboat that ever passed out of the Des Moines river, and in 1851 ran loaded steamers between St. Louis and Des Moines.

He dealt in lands and merchandise and engaged in banking. He had partnerships without number, and his enterprises were always sucessful. He had a store at nearly every town and village on the Des Moines river from Keosauqua to Eddyville. His store at Eddyville, where the firm was Manning & Caldwell, was for years one of the best known mercantile establishments on the Des Moines river.

Mr. Manning never ran for office but always took a deep interest in politics. His son, "Cal" Manning, is a banker at Ottumwa, and was the United States commissioner to Paris from Iowa.

Mr. Manning was knowna for his steadfastness of purpose and for always keeping his head in a financial crisis. As manager of large interests he never overreached. He never lost faith in Iowa real estate, and at the time of his death owned thousands of acres of the best Iowa lands. His office was in his original bank building, looking out on the Des Moines river, the structure having been put up in the days of steamboating. He started many young men on successful business careers.

MOTHER FINDS DAUGHTER.

Was Grief Stricken Over the Arrest of Her Sweetheart.

Fort Dodge, Aug. 19.—Eva Judd, the beautiful and talented step-daughter of William Ralph, ex-mayor of Laporte, and a prominent citizen whose recent disappearance had been explained by the suicide theory, has been found by her mother, Mrs. Ralph, working as a chambermaid in the Union hotel at Fort Dodge, and a joyful union ensued. Shame and grief over the arrest of her lover for counterfeiting caused her to leave a home of luxury and refinement.

Eva is the only child of Mrs. Ralph. Not long ago while visiting at the home of an aunt in What Cheer she met and became attached to a young man prominent in society there, who was recently arrested charged with counterfeiting. The supposition is that this preyed on her mind until she determined on escape from home. On Monday she induced a neighbor to drive her to Waterloo, where she took the first train and went to Iowa Falls, coming later to Fort Dodge, where she secured employment in a hotel. In the fear that the girl had committed suicide the river near her home was dragged, but at length her father got on her trail and followed her to Fort Dodge, where he searched in vain. He returned to Laporte and the girl's mother came here. Just after she left the train she passed the hotel where the girl was employed and met her daughter coming out.

COSTLY FIRE AT MOULTON.

Business Properties Destroyed Were Valued at $11,500.

Ottumwa, Aug. 19.—A disastrous fire visited Moulton, a city of 2,000, twenty-five miles south of here. The blaze was first located in the second floor of Hard & Hefner's store building and was burning fiercely, and on the alarm being turned in nearly the the entire city turned out and after fighting the fire for several hours finally got it under control. The loss will reach $11,500. The origin is believed to have been incendiary. The town is equipped with a combination hand and chemical engine and did effective work, it being greatly handicapped, however, by the lack of water. The losses are distributed as follows:

Ledbetter Brothers' meat market, loss on building and contents, $1,000; no insurance.

Hard & Hefner, general merchandise, loss about $6,000; fully covered by insurance.

Wahls' property, including the Milly jewelry stores, loss about $4,000; fully covered by insurance.

Wood's barn, loss about $500; fully covered by insurance.

Amana Society's Crops Good.

Des Moines, Aug. 15.—John Cownie of the state board of control, on his return from a visit at the Orphans' Home at Davenport, stopped at his farm in Iowa county and brought back some ears of corn. He expects the corn of that county to average from fifty to sixty bushels an acre. He states that some of the farmers are even dissatisfied with these prospects and they think they should have more because the price will be high this year. The crops are suffering somewhat from lack of moisture, despite the fact that 4.42 inches of rain fell in June, 4.24 inches in July and 63 inches thus far in August. The Amana society reports a crop of wheat which went 53 bushels to the acre, oats and barley from 35 to 45 bushels to the acre, and of excellent quality.

Iowa College of Law.

Thorough 3-year law course. Expenses low. Six instructors. Degree and admission to the bar. Term opens September 10, 1901. For a special catalogue write the secretary, P. S. McNutt, Des Moines, Iowa.

Republican State Central Committee.

Des Moines, Aug. 17.—The meeting of the republican state central committee to effect organization has been called to be held at the Savery hotel club rooms in this city August 23.

Enthusiasm will lead a man to do things that common sense could not drive him to attempt.

Killed By a Fall From a Wagon.

Des Moines, Aug. 15.—James O'Donnell, living near Granger, was riding on a loaded wagon and when a wheel went into a rut he lost his balance and fell, striking on his head and receiving injuries from which he died. About a month ago he was struck by a Northwestern engine, and had never recovered from those injuries.

Killed in a Hay Press.

Dubuque, Aug. 17.—John Dean, aged 30 years, was caught in a hay press and crushed to death. Before the machinery could be stopped the man was fatally injured.

UNKNOWN MAN MURDERED.

Found Dead Near the Milwaukee Right of Way at Arion.

Arion, Aug. 17.—An unknown man was murdered Thursday night along the right-of-way of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, one-half mile west of this place. The murder was evidently committed with a coupling pin, as the dead man's head was completely split open and a large pool of blood was found near the right-of-way fence, together with a coupling pin all covered with blood, except where held by the murderer's hand. The crime was committed about 10 o'clock p. m., and the body was first discovered by a train crew on a Milwaukee freight train. The man had evidently been killed near the right-of-way fence and the body dragged to the track so that passing trains might obliterate the signs of the crime. A man has been arrested on suspicion at Mapleton. He had blood on his hands and on his handkerchief. The murdered man was in Arion Thursday. He was fairly well dressed and was thought to be a card shark, as he spent the day marking a deck of cards, which were found near the scene of the murder. Upon the body was found a note book with the address "T. F. Clements, 707 South Twenty-fifth street, South Omaha." He was known to have had money, and it is supposed the crime was committed for purposes of robbery. Two negroes were seen near the scene of the crime about 11 o'clock Thursday night and they will be arrested. The murdered man was about 35 years of age, medium height and weight, sandy hair, close cut and had in his pocket several fair admission tickets bearing the name "J. F. Love."

IOWA STATE FAIR.

Des Moines, Aug. 17.—The state fair, which opens on the 23rd, and continues to the close of this month, promises to be the very best ever held in the state of Iowa.

The entries already indicate that the fair will be in show condition earlier than common, and as one of the best day's programs has been arranged for Monday, the 26th, the probabilities are that the "big day" will come off very early in the last week of the fair, and as Monday is Des Moines day, and many excursion trains will enter the city that day over various roads, and as the very best fireworks program ever presented will be on Monday night, it is possible that Monday will be the big day of the fair. In addition to this being Des Moines day, all children under fifteen years will be admitted on Monday free. This should be an inducement to parents, not only in Des Moines, but in the state at large, to attend the fair early and get the benefit of the free admissions.

There will be the finest display of stock seen in recent years and there will be acres of machinery and exhibits in all lines, with the possible exception of the agricultural and horticultural departments, will be full to overflowing.

Special attention has been given to the free amusements and there is variety and quality to please all. Public comfort has been provided for, the best camp grounds of any fair organization in the United States being offered free. Catalogues and bulletins free by addressing the secretary, Des Moines.

MAX KRUSKOPF IS A FUGITIVE.

Deputy Postmaster at Marshalltown Said to Be a Defaulter.

Des Moines, Aug. 16.—United States Marshal Christian has received notice that Max Kruskopf, deputy postmaster at Marshalltown, charged with defaulting $800 of the postal funds in that city, is a fugitive, and it is desired that he be taken into custody wherever found.

Inspector Ketchum checked up the office and found it short a little over $800. Postmaster Saint was notified of the discovery and made the amount good to the government. The inspector reported that indications pointed to the guilt of Kruskopf, but that Chief Clerk Hawley was implicated by the records. Ketchum placed Hawley and Kruskopf under arrest, but as Kruskopf wanted to make an effort to make the amount good to Postmaster Saint, he was allowed to go, on his promise to be at the Great Western depot to take a morning train to Des Moines. It was the intention to charge him with the embezzlement and to bring Hawley here that he might give his testimony before the commissioner. Kruskopf failed to show up and Ketchum reported that he had absconded.

ANTHON GIRL A HEROINE.

Lightning Kills Brother, Stuns Father and Sets Barn on Fire.

Anthon, Aug. 16.—The electrical storm struck the barn of a Grant county farmer, George Fixsell, killed his son, Roy, 4 years old; stunned Fixsell, killed a horse and set fire to the barn, which burned.

The 15-year-old daughter, Lizzie, showed herself a heroine. She led from the blazing building the ten horses, wild with fright. The halter of the last one was in a blaze when she staggered out of the door.

The dead body of the boy and the insensible body of the father were removed before injured by the blaze.

Four hundred bushels of corn, two buggy sheds, all the harness and a loft full of hay were burned. The loss is heavy; partly insured.

Cedar Falls Canning Plant.

Cedar Falls, Aug. 15.—The Canning company began operations yesterday with a force of thirty employes and a small quantity of corn. The company has 400 acres under cultivation, about the same acreage as last season. Last year the output was 750,000 cans, but the concern feels that they will do well this year to put up 400,000 cans. The early planting will practically be a failure. What there is of it is badly filled, uneven and blistery. This will make the quality not as good as last season, but it will compare favorably with the output of other concerns, as some of them have abandoned the idea of opening at all this season.

Killed By Falling Limb.

Des Moines, Aug. 15.—"Pud" Rice, son of A. S. Rice, a wealthy farmer near Avon, was fatally injured while cutting down a tree on his father's farm. A limb weighing several hundred pounds fell on the young man's head fracturing his skull, and death resulted. He was 35 years of age and unmarried.

Iowan Suicides in Omaha.

Omaha, Aug. 17.—John W. McBride, aged 55, was found dead in his room at the Midland hotel with the gas turned on. It was evidently his intention to commit suicide. A note, bearing his name, was in his pocket and also a copy of the Columbus Safeguard, a newspaper published at Columbus Junction, Iowa.

Melon Crop Poor.

Muscatine, Aug. 14.—Melon growers on Muscatine island now estimate the crop at sixty per cent of the average. The July drouth was disastrous. Through the month of June rain was plentiful and irrigation was started later this year than usual, but the hot winds of July proved damaging and the size of the melons is reduced. Late ones will be better. Shipping has begun but prices are almost double those of last year. A fair sweet potato crop crop is expected. It will probably three-fourths of the usual yield.

NEWS IN GENERAL

HEAVY FIGHTING AT PANAMA.

Fighting Took Place on the Outskirts of Panama and Colon.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 16.—The British steamer Darien, has arrived here from Colon and brings reports of a heavy fighting Monday on the outskirts of Panama and Colon. The rebels were steadily advancing on the towns proper. A large number of men had been wounded.

A large number of wounded men belonging to the government troops were taken to Colon Monday. This is regarded as an indication of the persistency of the rebel attacks.

The converted cruiser Namouna has been found to be practically useless owing to the bungling attempts to mount heavy guns on board her. The Columbian government is now negotiating for the purchase of the steamer Bernard Hall of the West India and Pacific Steamship company (limited) of Liverpool.

The Darien brought forty passengers who were obliged to leave Colon in order to escape and avoid conscription. The British consul at Colon has entered a protest against Jamaicans being compelled by the Columbian government to fight against the rebels.

The passengers of the Darien say the chances for the liberals' success seems better than ever since the commencement of the revolution.

Guards are still kept on board the trains running between Panama and Colon.

Both sides are committing atrocities. In the attack made on the government troops Sunday a few miles out of Colon the rebels defeated the government force and one of the latter was afterwads found shot in the abdomen, with both legs amputated. This was a reprital for the torture by the government of political prisoners.

APOLOGIZED TO THE COMMONS.

Nationalist Members, Charged With Corruption, Force a Retraction.

London, Aug. 17.—In the house of commons yesterday G. E. Armstrong, a former lieutenant of the British navy, editor of the Globe, and W. T. Madge, manager of that paper, attended the bar in the custody of the sergeant-at-arms in accordance with the summons of the house for gross breach of the privileges of the house in accusing the nationalist members of corruption in connection with private bill legislation. After the speaker, Wm. Court-Gully, notified them of the cause of the summons, both Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Madge expressed regret at the appearance of the article and apologized to the house. The speaker then ordered the delinquents to withdraw, while the house considered the matter. Both of them backed out, bowing low at each step, amid the derisive cheers of the nationalists.

After a protest from John Redmond, the nationalist leader, against the inadequacy of the apology, the offenders were recalled and asked if they were prepared to withdraw the allegations. They did, in somewhat nervous tones. The speaker then severely reprimanded the two newspaper men, who were permitted to depart, the members of the house jeeringly congratulating them on their escape from imprisonment in the Tower.

CREEK INDIANS PROTEST.

But Their Lands Will Be Allotted According to Treaty.

Washington, Aug. 19.—A delegation of full-blood Creek Indians, headed by Chief John, called on the acting secretary of the interior to protest against any division of their lands and against any change in the conditions imposed by the treaty of 1832.

The delegation was reminded of the fact that on May 23 last the Creeks, by vote, ratified the agreement changing the treaty of 1832, and providing for a division of the lands of the Creek nation among the individual members of the tribe.

Chief John was told that it was obligatory in the department to execute the laws, and that the agreement entered into between the United States and the Creek nation must be enforced, and that the department is powerless to comply with the request of the delegation.

The Creeks have been inclined to repudiate this agreement. When the delegation was leaving the department Chief John remarked that the Indians want to do what is right, but they want their rights under the treaty of 1832. The acting secretary stated that the rights are defined in the laws of the United States and agreements made by the Creek nation with the United States, and that the Indians are expected to live up to them.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

Last Session of Legislature Said to Be Most Corrupt in History of State.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 16.—The campaign for the ticket nominated by yesterday's democratic state convention will be entirely on state issues. No mention is made in the platform of the name of William J. Bryan or free silver, imperialism and other national issues. The last legislature is condemned for the passage of the rapid transit and "ripper" bills and pronounced the most corrupt legislative body that ever convened in this state. All friends of good government are invited to join the democracy to save the state from further dishonor.

The platform was prepared at a conference of the party leaders which lasted until daybreak and it is one of the most remarkable declarations of principles ever issued by a state convention in Pennsylvania. Those democratic legislators who joined with the republican party in passing the bill condemned by the platform are left to their immediate constituents for the "infliction of political punishment."

The convention nominated Judge Harman Yerkes of Doylestown for supreme court judge and representative Andrew J. Palm of Meadville for state treasurer.

HUNDREDS EXILED BY SULTAN.

Ruler of Turkey is Daily Becoming More Suspicious and Irritable.

Constantinople, Aug. 29.—Seven hundred officials and servants in connection with the imperial palace, accused of complicity in the fire which recently broke out in the sacred precincts of the Yaldiz Kiosk, have been exiled by the sultan. Abdul Hamid is growing more irritable and suspicious every day. His hatred of Christians and foreigners seems to have been intensified by the present dispute with the French. His restrictions with regard to the intercourse of Turkish women with foreign women have caused much dissatisfaction.

Corea's Feathers Ruffled.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—The Cologne Gazette's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that Japan persists in her demands for the concession of 800,000 square metres upon the island of Make-gan-Pho, adjoining the Russian concession. The Corea government, stiffened by Russia, the correspondent says, has thus far declined to accede to the demand, but it is expected that it will ultimately yield to Japanese pressure.

The lawyer believes in words, but the real estate man is known by his deeds.

RANGER ORDERED TO PANAMA.

Cruiser at San Diego Will Proceed South at Once.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The cruiser Ranger now at San Diego, Cal., has been ordered to proceed southward to Panama. It is expected that she will be able to leave without delay, as her commander has had warning to prepare for the journey. The Ranger is a little over a thousand tons and her speed is but six knots an hour.

The cruiser Philadelphia has just arrived at San Francisco from the Samoan islands and is to go at once into dry dock at the Mare island yard for overhauling and general repairs. The navy department has decided that this vessel should be immediately placed in condition in order that she might be prepared, if occasion arose, to go south to the scene of the trouble on the isthmus. The state department is receiving nothing additional on the Colombian-Venezuelan situation, except through mail advices, which throw little new light on the condition of affairs.

PHILLIPS COMPANY FAILS

Commission House in the Hands of a Receiver.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—On the petition of three creditors of the George H. Phillips company a petition in bankrupcy has been filed for the company in the United States district court. George H. Phillips and two other directors of the company filed their consent that the petition be allowed, and the Chicago Title and Trust company has been appointed temporary receiver.

The filing of the petition and the appointment of the receiver will enable the company to continue in business.

One of the directors, W. K. Sackett, will be appointed by the receiver to manage the business and the affairs of the company will proceed under the new management.

By Mr. Phillips' own statement the company is insolvent. The liabilities he places at about $200,000, with assets at known and face value amounting to $225,000 or $250,000. Of this he believes $100,000 is in worthless accounts, so that the company will fall short approximately of $100,000 in the settlement.

This, Mr. Phillips declares, he will make up to his creditors to the last cent. He says that he has lost or given up all of his money and real estate, but that, accepting the offers of financial assistance, he will resume business individually. Voluntarily, he proposes to give for the benefit of the creditors every dollar of profit he makes in his transactions over and above $2,500 a year, which he will keep for himself and family.

STORM WORST OF HISTORY.

Great Destruction in the Vicinity of Mobile, Ala.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 17.—The tropical storm, which came up Wednesday and increased in force during the day following, is believed to have been the severest in history in the vicinity of Mobile. The wind blew at the rate of 70 miles an hour for some time. Various reports of the drowning of men in the bay have reached here, but it is impossible to confirm them, owing to the complete demolition of all means of communication.

The pleasure yacht, Ariel, bound for Fish river with a party of Mobile people on board, is believed to have pounded to pieces on the wharf at Battle's on the eastern shore of the bay. Nothing has been heard of the crew.

The pleasure yacht Mayflower of this city with a party of prominent people on board reported lost has been heard from. All on board found refuge on Cat island, but the boat was wrecked.

Nothing has been heard from Fort Morgan. Two companies of the coast artillery are stationed there. The barracks undoubtedly received the full force of the blow.

No communication can be had with any of the islands on Mississippi sound, just outside the bay, forty miles below here. All news concerning the fate of the islanders must come by boats and this is anxiously awaited.

The fruit steamer Herald from Peurto Cortez has arrived. She reports seeing a two-masted schooner sixty-five miles southwest of this port totally dismantled. The captain of the schooner denied assistance. Logging camps and mill manufacturers have suffered considerable loss by the breaking of booms. Saw logs and squared timbers drifted in Mobile all day, much of it coming up on Royal street, three blocks from the water front. Two saw mills at Magazine point were badly damaged, parts of the plants being blown away. No estimate of the damage in Mobile is possible at this time.

SENSATION IN EUROPE.

Late Dowager Empress Said to Have Been Secretly Married.

Paris, Aug. 15.—Was the late Dowager Empress Frederick secretly married in 1896 to Count von Seckendorf? In a story in the affirmative the French papers are now reveling. It is the European sensation of the day. It is believed to be true, and it is quite likely that other sensations will soon follow these revelations.

The kaiser is furious at publications concerning the empress, not only in France, but in England and the United States. He is understood to have ordered a censorship of all telegrams sent to foreign papers.

In the French journals numerous anecdotes are recalled concerning quarrels between Emperor William and his mother regarding the question of a marriage between the latter and Count von Seckendorf.

In letters written by the Baroness von Rosbach, who was formerly one of the chief ladies-in-waiting to the empress, she insists that the empress and Seckendorf were secretly married in 1896; that they lived together as man and wife; that they had the deepest affection for each other, and that their marital relations were as happy as they could possibly be under the circumstances.

The marriage was known to the kaiser and to all the empress' royal relatives, but was never officially or even privately acknowledged. The kaiser never allowed his children to visit Friedrichsdof, and only permitted Count von Seckendorf to enter his presence under protest and only then in his mother's suite.

It is understood that the empress has bequeathed a large amount of money to the count. Other conditions of her will will likely cause consternation among her German and English relatives. Its real terms, though, are never likely to be published, as every precaution is being taken to prevent any leakage of its contents.

Important Capture in Philippines.

Manila, Aug. 16.—Second Lieutenant Walter S. Grant, of the Sixth cavalry, while scouting with a detachment near Taal, Batangas province, has made what the military authorities consider to be the most important capture since Aguinaldo was made prisoner. Grant captured Col. Martin Cabrera, his adjutant and six other insurgents. Cabrera has been growing in power for some time. He controlled all the insurgents in southern Batangas and also those westward of the city of Batangas.

It is safe to say that some authors would rather be president than write.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED

State of Siege Now Exists in Venezuelan Provinces.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—The department of state has received a dispatch dated August 1, from the consul at Maracaibo, reporting that Dr. Rangel Garbiras has invaded Venezuela with four thousand men from the frontier of Cucuta. Everything was done by the Venezulean government to meet the invaders.

The first fight took place at Econtrados and the invadors were obliged to retire.

The invadors took two steamers to come to Maracaibo, but these boats were recaptured by the Venezulean troops.

The Venezulean government has issued the two following decrees:

"General Diego Bautista Ferrer, provisional president, state of Zulia.

"Considering that the peace in general has been greatly disturbed by an invasion to the Venezulean territiry with an armed force of Colombians, commanded by the traitor Carlos Rangel Garbiras as per declaration issued yesterday by the provisional president of the republic, and in compliance with the dispositions on public order therein specified, suspending the rights and guarantee referred to in the national constitution.

"Article 1—Until public peace is restored, I declare suspended the guarantees referred to in the constitution of the state of Zulia.

"Article 2—The complimentary dispositions shall be dictated by the secretary of state.

"Article 3—The secretary of state is encharged with the execution of this decree and will communicate the same and publicly diffuse it in order that it may be known to all.

(Signed) "Diego Bautista Ferrer.

(Countersigned) "The secretary general, Dr. Asdrubal Araujo."

This decree is dated Maracaibo, July 27.

The other decree is dated Caracas, July 26, and is signed by President Castro and his entire cabinet. It says:

"The federal executive of the United States of Venezuela, using the attributions conferred by him in number twenty-one of article eighty-nine of the national constitution and considering that public peace has been disturbed in the towns of the Venezulean frontier of the state of Tachira by an invasion in arms from Colombia."

"Article 1—The rights referred to in the national constitution are hereby suspended in the state of Tachira, Merida, Trujillio and Maracaibo.

"Article 2—The rights of Venezuelans referred to in the same constitution are also suspended in the rest of the states of the republic, federal districts and territories.

"Article 3—The presidents of the states, the governor of the federal territories shall regulate this present decree, in their respective jurisdiction in accordance to the supreme necessities of public order."

DEATH IN BURNING CRIB

Victims Number Twelve and Possibly Thirteen.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—Five men were burned to death, four were drowned, three and possibly four were suffocated and several injured as a result of a fire which destroyed a temporary water works crib two miles off the Cleveland harbor early yesterday.

Twenty-six men obeyed the order of Manager G. C. Van Deusen when the flames broke out and took refuge in the water on floating pieces of wreckage. Four of them lost their hold upon their frail floats and sank beneath the waves just as help reached their comrades.

The crew of the tug J. R. Sprankle heard the fire whistle blown from the crib and raced to the scene from the harbor. She picked up eighteen of the survivors who had drifted to the west of the crib on their floats of boards and wreckage.

Van Deusen and three of his men were hanging in the water from a two-inch line suspended from the crib. Just as the line was burning away above the men's hands, a yawl boat from the barge Wilhelm, manned by two men, dashed into the veil of heat and smoke that enveloped the crib and rescued the four men on the rope at the risk of their own lives. The men picked up in the water were brought to the city on the tug Sprankle. They were naked, exhausted and badly burned. Many of them were hurt by falling timbers.

The crib is a total loss. It was a frame building 200 by 50 feet, the sides sheathed with iron. It contained valuable machinery.

It is now a charred, shapeless mass of wreckage and mingled with the blackened timbers are blackened, rusted and twisted pieces and plates of iron and steel.

IRON AND STEEL WORKERS STRIKE

Both Sides Claim to Have Made Substantial Gains.

Pittsburg, Aug. 15.—There were victories on both sides of the great steel strike yesterday, but they furnish no direct line on the ultimate result of the conflict. The strikers succeeded in finally forcing the National Tube works at McKeesport, probably the largest individual plant in the United States Steel corporation, to finally close down. On the other hand, the steel corporation reopened the big Painter mill in this city, and also resumed operations with non-union men at the Crescent plant of the American Tin Plate company at Cleveland. Two mills were on at the Painter plant, although one of them broke down during the day, and according to the statement of officials, half the mills in the Crescent plant were moving. The forces at both the plants named are to be increased, and the managers claim they will soon have them working in full. They make the fifth and sixth plants which the steel corporation has succeeded in starting with non-union men, the others being Wellsville, Hyde Park, Clark's and the Lindsay & McCutcheon.

Taku Forts Stand.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Commissioner Rockhill has not reported to the state department as to whether the protocol provides for the destruction of the Taku forts, but if the press advices are correct, that the ministers have failed to include this provision in the protocol, the result will be in line with the desires of this government from the outset. When the first tentative desires of this government were put forward, including the razing of the Taku and other forts, this government expressed doubt as to the advisibility of such a move, and it has all along been averse to including it in the protocol.

Illinois Crops.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—Section Director Blystone, in the weather bureau and crop bulletin for Illinois, just issued, says: "There has been continued improvement in the condition of corn in the northern district, but the yield will not be up to the average. In some localities there will be a good crop of late corn, if favorable conditions prevail the rest of the season. In the central and southern districts there has been still further deterioration. In many places there could be but little improvement, however favorable the conditions might become."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, August 19, 1901.

The cost of running the state house outside of the money paid for salaries, according to matter compiled for the coming biennial report of the auditor of state has been found to be approximately $36,000 per year. The exact figures for the two years ending June 30, 1901, are $72,105.57. Of this sum $8,150.57 comes under section 164 of the code, and the $63,955 under section 165.

Following are the totals of the different items without respect as to under which section the supplies and material were ordered:

Gas lights, capitol building and grounds	$2,910.53
Repairs, capitol building and grounds	1,973.53
Telephone service	1,296.95
Telegraph service	583.21
Water, building and grounds	1,386.35
Supplies and stores	30,079.69
Blank books, engraving, printing and lithographing	3,356.82
Postage, stamped envelopes, etc.	18,4[illegible].30
Furniture	4,667.01
Fuel	6,000.95
Miscellaneous	1,496.23
Total expenditure for two years	$72,105.57

Every cent of this money is appropriated by the general assembly and the funds are at the disposal of the executive council, which body audits and approves all bills before they are paid.

Iowa consumed 563,103 barrels of petroleum in the two years ending June 30, 1901. This, according to the official reports of the fourteen state oil inspectors. It is remarkable that in handling nearly 564,000 barrels, only 770 barrels should have been found to be bad oil, or testing under the standard fixed by the state. But the official reports show that was the case. Only 770 barrels were rejected during the biennium, and in the year ending June 30, 1901, only 133 were rejected. During the same period 259,153 barrels of gasoline were rejected for illuminating purposes. For inspecting these 564,000 barrels of oil, the oil inspectors collected fees amounting to $82,302.60. They retained $31,035.74 of this for themselves, being their salary, which is limited by law to $100 per month each. For expenses, however, another $27,900.43 was retained by the inspectors. The state treasury received from this source $23,457.28. The per cent of expenses of the fees received during the biennium was 33.90; the per cent of the fees paid to the state treasury to the total amount of fees collected was 28.50. Of the rejections of oils, S. H. Bauman was responsible for 115 barrels, J. B. Bishop was responsible for 130, C. H. Hare for 154, C. F. Gullixon for 4, John O'Keefe for 116, H. M. Pickel for 239, and L. Weinstein for 12.

Superintendent R. C. Barrett of the department of public instruction has prepared a circular to county superintendents in which he urges that the greatest care be taken in securing an accurate school census. The federal census of Iowa, taken in 1900, shows there are 767,870 children of school age in the state. The school census for the same year reports but 731,154. Mr. Barrett calls attention to this and says a difference of 36,716 in the two reports is good evidence that someone has done careless work and a sufficient argument that more accurate account should be made this year. The circular urges that the time fixed by the statute for making the enumeration be strictly followed. Section 2785 requires each director to take the census between the 1st and 10th days of September in each year, and by the 15th day of September to report the list to the secretary of the school township, who is required to make a full record of the list prepared by the director. The law requires all persons between the ages of 5 and 21 years who are residents of a district to be included in the census of that district. Careful inquiry is emphasized. It is specified in the circular that a child in one of the charitable or reformatory institutions must be enumerated in the district in which his parents reside. But if the child is in the institution to remain permanently, having no parent or guardian, his residence is in the district in which the institution is located, and he should be enumerated therein.

The prevalence of the drink habit at the Soldiers' Home is the chief obstacle in the way of good discipline among the inmates, acording to the biennial report of Commandant C. C. Horton to the board of control. "The drink habit is the root of nearly all our troubles at the some," says the commandant. The percentage of drunkards is less at this writing than at any time during the history of the home. The new pension law which provides for the withholding of pensions from those twice convicted of drunkenness has resulted in a number of this class taking their discharge, and has proved in a general way beneficial to the best interests of the home."

Commandant Horton says the discipline at the home is good, though maknig it plain if it were not for the liquor habit the government would be more easy. His report is for the biennial period ending June 30, 1901. Attention is called to the need of a number of new improvements and new buildings in the coming biennial period, the cost being $57,000.

KITCHENER MADE NEW RECORD.

The Most Favorable Weekly Report Yet Sent by the British General.

London, Aug. 15.—Lord Kitchener, in a long dispatch, says: "I am glad to be able to send you the largest return I have yet had for one week. Since August 5 the columns reported thirty-nine Boers killed and twenty wounded, including Commandant Moll, dangerously; 685 prisoners, including Wolmarans, late chairman of the First Volksraad; eighty-five surrenders, including Commandant Devillers, and the capture of 24,000 rounds of ammunition, 754 wagons, 5,580 horses and large quantities of stock. Most of the captures were made in the Orange River colony."

In the course of the descriptions of the operations, Lord Kitchener says that General French, in Cape Colony, is "gradually driving the enemy's scattered bands northward."

Miss Beals Will Not Contest.

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 14.—Miss Mattie Beals, who returned from Lawton, said that just before leaving her claim she had been offered $25,000 for it, but that she refused the offer, since she really intends to take up farm life. She stated that she will not contest Wood's claim and that she is of the opinion that her quarter section will be worth quite as much as his within a short time.

"Will you tell me what is the latest thing in kids?" she asked. "When I left home," said the absent-minded clerk, "it was colic in both of mine."

The Weekly Panorama.

Woman and the Kitchen.

Mme. Schmahl, editor of the Avant Courier, goes even further than Mme. Sarah Grand in her advocacy of woman's enfranchisement. Mme. Schmahl would apply the ax to the underpinnings of our domestic institutions. "The kitchen must go," says she, "before women meet the responsibilities of the twentieth century and specialize their work according to their tastes." That is, if women are to have free scope for their intellectual development during the present century, they must abandon the cooking stove and the pantry, the refrigerator and the china closet, the kneading board, the rolling-pin and the broom, and devote themselves exclusively to what Mme. Schmahl regards as the higher pursuits.

How are they to do this if they expect to have husbands, children and the happiness for which the soul of every good woman yearns in those days? Can they abandon the kitchen and still preserve domestic peace? Or, to put it in a broader way, will it be possible for the woman of the twentieth century to eliminate the kitchen from her home life?

North Carolina can boast the largest grape vine in the world. It is on the farm of B. F. Meekins, Roanoke Island, not far from the site of Fort Raleigh and near the birthplace of Virginia Dare. It is claimed that the vine was planted by Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated colony in 1587. It is of the Scuppernong variety, covers an acre of ground, and yields about a ton of grapes annually.

One of the stories that is going about London just now deals with Sir Henry Irving's revival of "Coriolanus," which has been such a great success. During one of the later rehearsals, a consultation was held on the stage between Sir Henry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who wrote the music, and Sir Laurence Alma Tadema, who designed the scenery. "Three blooming knights," remarked a supernumerary. "Yes," replied another, "and that's about as long as the piece will run."

When Richard Wagner was conductor of the Royal opera in Dresden, the orchestra of that institution, though one of the best in Germany, was far from being as good as it is now, and Wagner had a good deal of trouble in making it follow his intentions. Some years later, when he was living as an exile in Zurich, he undertook to train the local orchestra. After a few attempts, he exclaimed: "Gentlemen, you have just given me a great pleasure; you have played exactly as badly as the Dresden orchestra." The Zurich players laughed, and the idea that they might play better than the royal musicians in Dresden so fired their zeal that they actually succeeded in doing it.

CHAPTER III.

Love in Danger.

A bright, beautiful morning, with a gentle breeze sweeping down the fragrance of flower and shrub from the mountain slope. Ulin had eaten her breakfast, and, with Albia by her side, sat upon an open window, gazing out upon the park of fountains. As she thus sat, the slave woman Calypso entered the apartment and announced that the robber wished to see the Lady Ulin.

"What robber?" asked the princess.

"The same one that came yesterday."

Ulin did not stop to think whether the visit would be pleasant or otherwise. The man had signified his purpose, and as he was master in the palace, she had no idea of opposing him. Calypso withdrew, and presently afterwards the robber entered. He came in with the same noble step and bearing; the same pleasant, genial face; and with the same look and salute of reverence and respect.

"I trust that the Lady Ulin has passed a quiet night," he said, in deep sincerity.

"I have rested well, sir," she replied.

"Good. I am glad of that. I feared you might have bad dreams."

"Not many, sir."

"Ah—and did you have any such?"

"Not—not many."

"You dreamt that Julian was a demon, eh?"

"No, no, sir—my dreams were not of him."

"I hope, sweet lady, that you dreamed not darkly of me."

"No, sir. It was of—"

The maiden hesitated, and seemed troubled; but her visitor came to her assistance.

"Never mind, lady. I meant not to inquire into the secret twinings of your mind. I only hoped that I had not been unfortunate enough to excite the apprehension of your slumbering fancies."

He smiled as he spoke, at the same time moving a step nearer, and then adding:

"I am glad you have not suffered from our coming; for I have the more courage to ask you if you will see Julian."

"You said you would accompany him, sir."

"Yes."

"Then I may as well see him at one time as another. You may inform him that the lady Ulin rests her safety and honor in his manhood."

"He has been so informed, fair lady."

"Then, let him come."

"Gentle lady, pardon me if I have led you upon a fanciful way of thought. I am Julian. I am he whom men call the Scourge of Damascus. And now I crave your indulgence; but still I shall bow most humbly to your commands. At your word I leave this apartment; yet, I should like to speak a little further. I should like to explain more fully why I am here."

Was Ulin frightened? Not at all. She was startled when she first knew that the man before her was the dreadful Scourge of whom she had heard so much; but it was an emotion of astonishment. At first she could hardly believe that she had heard the truth.

"You—Julian?" she murmured, gazing into his face.

"Aye, lady." And then he added, with a smile, "I suppose you expected to find me black and ugly, like the foul genii whom Solomon imprisoned in the sea. Am I right?"

"I did not think you were Julian," the maiden said, after some hesitation. As she spoke she seemed to gain new confidence and composure; and presently she added, "I had heard so much of your terrible deeds, that I expected to find a—"

"A monster," suggested Julian, helping her out.

"Not exactly that," returned Ulin, with a smile, "though I am free to confess that I should not have been so much surprised as I have been, if I had seen a worse looking man."

"Thank you," cried the robber laughing. "I shall take that as a compliment, and lay it up among the most precious of my recollections. I understand you; so, upon this point, I need only assure you that I am Julian, and that I must own the somewhat dubious title which has been bestowed upon me. And now, lady, may I sit here for a few moments, and speak with you further?"

The very thing Ulin had been upon the point of suggesting. She did not like to see him standing before her; nor was she anxious that he should leave her. She had a strong curiosity to hear him speak further. There was something in the appearance of the youthful adventurer that deeply interested her. She bade him be seated, and then, without intending to be heard, she murmured:

"So young!"

"Aye, lady," he said, catching the whispered words. "I am young—younger, perhaps, than I look. Only three-and-twenty years have cast their shadows upon me. At that age the youth of the city just breaking from the bonds of parental restraint, is as a child; but with me it has been different. A parent I never knew. A kind, generous woman, who was my nurse, took the place of a mother during my earliest childhood; and a white-haired old man, who lived apart from the world, gave me my first lessons of life, and led me up till I could protect myself. A father's fostering care I never knew. A mother's love I never realized. The cruel blow which shattered the cup of my joys, killed my poor mother ere my tongue could lisp her name. As I grew to manhood I knew that I was an orphan, and that my misfortune was the work of the King of Damascus. O! how the iron settled into my soul. I had grown strong and resolute, as though heaven would enable me to work retribution upon the tyrant. Do you ask me if I enjoy the life I have led. I answer—I have made enjoyments for myself. I have felt a peculiar satisfaction in knowing that the king feared me. When I have heard my name spoken by the rich and powerful with fear and trembling, I have liked it; and when I have known that Horam dreaded my approach, I have felt that my labors were not without their result. But these have not been my joys. In Damascus the name of Julian is a terror; but there are other places where that name is spoken with love and gratitude. Upon the plains of Abilene, and in the mountain passes of Lebanon, where the busy craftsmen prepare timber for Jerusalem—there Julian is hailed as a friend and benefactor. The grim satisfaction of torturing the cruel King of Damascus is tempered and softened by the calmer atmosphere of these friendly regions."

Why did Ulin sit so still and listen with such rapt attention to the words of the speaker? She bent her head as though soft music were stealing o'er her senses; and she gazed upon the man before her as though a grand, inspiring picture had been unfolded to her vision. His words carried truth in their very sound, and all her sympathies had been aroused. She was a woman whose nature had not been warped by art; and the avenues to her soul were guarded only by the pure instincts of virtue and humanity. Not always the safest guard; but still the happiest when surrounding influences are not evil.

"And now, lady," pursued Julian, "I must tell you why I am here; and in doing this I speak only those words necessary to the truth. On my way from the plains I met a messenger, who informed me that a fair maiden had been shut up in the Palace of the Valley. I could not believe that a beautiful young virgin had willingly given herself to the desires of Horam. I thought she had been shut up thus against her own pleasure. With this belief I resolved to release her. The result you know. I have heard your story from the lips of the black slave who attends upon you, and she informs me that you are affianced to the king by your own consent, and without any desires on your part to the contrary. Is it so?"

"The slave told you truly, sir," replied Ulin, bowing her head, and speaking in a very low tone.

"And you came here to this place of your own free will?"

"Yes, sir. My period of mourning was not passed, and the king brought me hither that I might be more retired."

"And but for the death of your mother you would have been the king's wife ere this?"

Ulin replied in the affirmative; but her voice trembled, and she seemed to shudder at the thought thus presented.

"Lady," said Julian, showing some emotion, which he evidently did not mean to show, "for my seeming wrong I most humbly beg your pardon. I had thought to wrest from the grasp of the king one who was an unwilling captive; but since I find myself mistaken I will do all I can to make amends. A "And," said the robber, rising to his feet, "it is better that I should leave you at once."

He stopped, and swept his hand across his brow, and when he resumed, his speech was very low, and his voice tremulous:

"This has been a most strange adventure; and as I now look upon it, it seems as though some mischievous sprite had planned it. As I live I thought when I came hither but such as I have told you of. I have met you, lady, and for the first time in my life I have felt my heart drawn warmly towards my native city. Henceforth there will be something in Damascus towards which my thoughts will turn with other sentiments than those of bitterness. Lady Ulin, we may never meet again. In this moment of our strange companionship, may I not take you by the hand?"

She could not have refused had she wished; but that she had no wish so to do was evident from the free and friendly manner in which she arose to meet him. She gave him her hand, and suffered him to raise it to his lips.

"Dear lady, should we never meet again, I trust that you will bear one kindly thought of Julian. If you are forced to think of the wrongs he has done, let a memory of the wrongs he has suffered be some extenuation. Bless you, lady! All good spirits guard and protect you; and peace be thine forevermore! Farewell!"

He turned and was gone. Ulin felt a warm spot upon her hand—a drop of moisture—a tear! She gazed upon it, and knew that it came not from her eye. It fell there with the kiss. A strange tribute from the Scourge of Damascus!

"Albia, I think I shall never see that man again; but I shall remember him with emotions far removed from fear or terror."

"You will remember him as little as possible, my mistress," said the slave girl, taking a seat close by Ulin's side, and resting her hand upon her arm.

"What mean you, Albia? Why should my memory be narrowed or shortened?"

"Because you are to have a husband who will demand your every thought and feeling. Horam is deeply versed in all the secrets of the female heart, and his eyes will not sleep while you have a thought which he does not understand."

"Indeed, Albia," cried the princess, with a look of amazement, "you misunderstand me."

"If such be the case," replied the girl, very quietly, 'you will forgive me for what I have said; and of Julian we will think no more."

Ah—was it so? Had Ulin been misunderstood? Had the keen-eyed Albia been mistaken? Would there be no more thought of Julian?

The day passed away, and towards evening Aswad returned from the mountains. He said he had not fled from fear of the robbers; but that, when he saw that defeat was inevitable, he had sought safety from capture so that he might communicate with Damascus. Perhaps he old the truth. At all events, he resumed his command, and once more posted his guards about the valley; and then came to assure the princess that she was safe.

It was in the evening, just as the last gleams of day were fading out, and before the lamps had been lighted—at that season when the thoughts are most apt to wander and strange fancies visit the mind.

* * *

It was not to be that Ulin should spend the alloted time at the Palace of the Valley. The king had heard of the attack of Julian, and he came with a large army to bear the princess away from a place which was no longer safe. He was somewhat surprised when he found that the Scourge of Damascus had been within the palace, and had withdrawn again; and when he had heard the story from Calypso, he ordered one half the palace guadsmen to be executed within the valley.

The maiden had heard from Calypso of the bloody deed which had been done by the king's order, and when she knew that he was coming, she declared her intention of refusing to see him. But Albia persuaded her to a different course.

"As you value your future welfare," plead the bondmaiden, "so must you behave before the king. If you would live in peace, let him have no occasion to mistrust your real feelings. He is coming. Beware!"

The warning was most seasonable; and Ulin, by obeying it so conducted herself that Horam thought she only suffered from the dreadful fright occasioned by the appearance of the terrible Julian. He spoke to her words of cheer and assurance, and announced his purpose of carrying her back to Damascus.

"We will rest tonight, sweet love," he said, "and on the morrow you shall find a safer shelter."

Ulin gazed upon the wrinkled face, and upon the quaking limbs, and upon the sparse gray hairs; and she could not repress a shudder. She looked upon the thin, hard hands of the monarch, and they seemed covered with blood. She watched him as he departed with her father; and when he had gone she sank down, and leaned her head upon Albia's bosom.

"O," she murmured, "I fear that I have undertaken more than I can accomplish. I cannot be that man's wife! I never knew him until now. He will kill me!"

"Peace!" whispered the bondmaiden. But she whispered in vain.

WAS A TERROR TO BAD MEN.

Frontiersman Who Had Killed Many a Desperado in His Day.

The naval architects build more powerful torpedo boats and call them torpedo boat destroyers. The latest evolution of the genus bad man in the great Rocky mountain region—to which visiting noblemen and junketing generals still resort for big game, along with a few genuine sportsmen like the vice president of the United States—is the bad man destroyer, who supports the sanction of the law over the guise of all the deviltry and twice the courage of the ordinary terrors of the west. The best known of these in the mining regions of Colorado and all along the lines of railroad of which Wells-Fargo's treasure routes run is a modest, low-spoken gentleman—baptized Sherman Bell less than thirty years ago on the prairies of Indiana. A number of desperadoes in the Cripple Creek strike and in the desperate attacks on the express company's wagons and ore sacks have contributed to Sherman Bell's baptism of blood, and Theodore Roosevelt, among whose rough riders there was no more dashing cavalier, has honored Bell with his personal friendship. But he is to all appearances the same smooth-faced gray-eyed stripling that left his grandmother years ago to seek his fortune in the gold mines, with the promise, religiously kept, that he would never touch a drop of liquor.—From Harper's Weekly.

ECCENTRIC WILLS.

Benjamin Franklin Left a Small Sum Which Is Now Available.

When Benjamin Franklin died, in 1790, he left a small sum of money, which was not to be used until the twentieth century. His gift is at last available, and the sum now amounts to $375,000, having been invested at compound interest, says the Pittsburg Press. The trustees of the Franklin fund have decided to use the money for the erection of a Franklin institute in Franklin square, Boston. Curious provisions made by will are more common than one would suppose. Within the last few months, there have been several examples of eccentric disposals of property. To one young woman has been left $25,000 by her brother under the express condition that she neither marries nor becomes a nun. If the conditions are not fulfilled, the money is to be distributed among other relatives. To his three daughters an Italian who recently died left $600 a year each if they remained single and $2,500 each a year if they married. A late member of the English parliament left by will to his two daughters $720,000, with the provision that the money is only to be payable if they attain the age of 35 years, without marrying either a citizen of the United States or a Hebrew.

8 Feet 2 Inches Tall.

Hassan Ali, an Egyptian twenty-five years old, who is 8 feet 2 inches tall with his russet shoes off, got into trouble with Customs House inspectors in Jersey City recently, because he attempted to bring 2,000 cigarettes into this country in the false bottom of his trunk. The giant arrived on the steamship North America of the La Veloce Line from Naples, on his way to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, where he says he expects to make a lot of money by placing himself on exhibition. When the inspectors tackled his baggage Hassan gazed down upon them and smiled good naturedly until they penetrated to the cigarettes. Then he got nervous. He stoutly denied that he had any intent of smuggling. He said that he was very fond of the brand and brought the cigarettes with him for personal use. The cigarettes were appraised and later the giant paid the duty on them and left Jersey City. Hassan said his father, who was killed in the Soudanese war, was 8 feet 7 inches tall. He has a sister who is only 7 feet in height.—New York Sun.

Motor Car Record.

The Paris-Bordeaux motor car race held on Wednesday reduced the record for the 348 miles by nearly three hours. M. Fournier, the winner, who left Paris at 4:25 a. m. on a sixty-horse power Mors car, covered the distance in six hours seven minutes and forty-four seconds "net" time—two hours and thirty-seven minutes being deducted for passing through towns and villages, where the speed is restricted to twelve kilometers an hour—which gives an average speed of 56¾ miles an hour, and three other competitors, all driving Panhard cars, averaged more than forty miles an hour. M. Fournier, in an interview published recently in the Daily Mail, stated that his maximum speed was two kilometers a minute, and admitted that the excitement and strain were intense. But it is worthy of note that although sixty-four cars took part in the contests, not a single serious accident occurred.—London Spectator.

GOVERNOR'S WIDOW IN JAIL

Mrs. Mason, Formerly of Michigan, Dying at Toledo.

TELLS A PITIFUL STORY.

Declares She Was Poisoned and Robbed by Strange Woman—Detectives Are Investigating Charges—The Officers Believe She Is Slightly Demented.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Unknown to the heads of the police department until last evening, Mrs. Dr. Pauline Mason, who says she is the widow of ex-Governor Mason of Michigan, has been at the police station in care of the matron for one week. She is 74 years old and is critically ill with dropsy. She says she was robbed of $1,742 in this city by another woman a short time ago. Mrs. Mason has lived here for forty years and for the last four years, until five weeks ago, had resided on Adams street. According to her story she was poisoned by a woman whose husband died at the hospital, and that while she was sick the woman ransacked her trunk and robbed her of her money and other property. It is thought that she is slightly demented. Five weeks ago Mrs. Mason went to Detroit with friends for treatment, but was brought back to Toledo a week ago Thursday and placed in care of the matron at the police station. The matron has cared for her as best she could, but last night was compelled to call Dr. William Walker, although Mrs. Mason objected to medical attendance. Detectives O'Brien and Kruz are investigating the story of the robbery. The woman whom Mrs. Mason charges with stealing her property left Toledo for Detroit after the death of her husband. One of Mrs. Mason's most sensational statements is that the woman also poisoned her own husband with fatal effect. He was taken to the Toledo hospital on July 3 and died two days later.

To Climb Mountain Peak.

City of Mexico, Aug. 19.—Prof. A. R. Crooks, who occupies the chair of mineralogy and economic geology at Northwestern university, Evanston, has started to climb Orizaba peak, a volcano on the edge of the Mexican plateau 18,314 feet high. The mountain is exceedingly difficult of ascent, but Prof. Crooks, who has done a great deal of mountain climbing in Europe and Asia, is confident that he will reach the top. He is fully equipped for the expedition and carries a full photographic outfit. He expects to secure much valuable data for use in his class work. He came to Mexico in the interest of his profession and during his stay in this city has been entertained by the Geological institute. The Mexican government has extended all the assistance possible to aid him in his researches.

Will Ask Exhibits for Fair.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Former Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, chairman of the national commission of the St. Louis Purchase exposition, and former Gov. David Francis of Missouri, president of the exposition company, were callers upon Secretary Hay at the state department. They talked with Mr. Hay concerning formal notification which the exposition managers desire the department to send to the various governments of the world soliciting exhibits at the coming exposition. Secretary Hay told the commissioners that the state department would prepare such letters and transmit them as soon as possible.

Will Help Photo-Engravers.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 19.—At the session of the International Typographical union a resolution offered by Delegate Gowan of New York, to take away from the photo-engravers their charter, was defeated. After considerable discussion it was determined to harmonize the differences between the photo-engravers and the Typographical union. It was also decided to send out organizers to organize the photo-engravers in the south and west, where they are not now organized.

Serve Meals at Loss.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Managers of popular restaurants in Chicago are in worry and rumors of closing down were freely mentioned to-day among the patrons of long-established concerns. Prices of vegetables are so high that the most experienced restaurateurs are unable to see a satisfactory way out of the difficulty. If they raise the prices the patrons will protest and the restaurants will lose trade. If they do not raise prices they will lose money.

Wright Defeats Davis.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Wright beat Davis in three straight sets in the second round of the national tennis tournament. This match took on additional interest because of the probability that the winner would be one of the men in the final event. The final of the interscholastic matches was scheduled for to-day, Irving C. Wright of Harvard being scheduled to meet E. P. Larned of Princeton.

Judge Killed in Saloon.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 19.—William J. McNamara, a former magistrate of this city, was killed by John Meagher, a bartender. McNamara attacked Meagher and tried to put him out of the saloon.

Visible Supply of Cotton.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 19.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a total visible of 1,887,551, against 1,261,697 last year, of which 1,222,551 is American.

Jacob Peirce, a Grand Army veteran, who died a few days ago in Denver, Colo., was known in Ohio in the years preceding the civil war as a director of the "underground railway," and through him many a slave was helped to freedom beyond the Canadian frontier. His principal work during the war was as wardmaster of all the union hospitals in Nashville, Tenn. In the line of his duty it fell to his lot to close the eyes of more than 1,000 boys in blue.

Miss Mary Holbrook, a member of a well-known family of Holbrook, Mass., has established a fund of $5,000, the income from which is to help maintain public worship in the Winthrop Congregational Church of that town. It is also given to perpetuate Miss Holbrook's annual gift, as she has been accustomed to give yearly to the church an amount about equal to the income from $5,000.

About 2,000 persons and 300 vessels are employed in the sponge fisheries of Florida. The profits last year are estimated at $850,000.

MADE STRONG AND WELL.

A Prominent Lady Raised From a Sick Bed by Pe-ru-na---Entirely Cured in Two Weeks.

MRS. E. A. CROZIER.

Mrs. E. A. Crozier, Senior Vice President of the James Morgan Post, W. R. C., the largest corps in Minnesota, writes from "The Landour," 9th and Nicollet, Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"Please accept hearty thanks on behalf of Peruna, that wonderful medicine which raised me from a sick bed and made a strong and well woman of me in two weeks. I suffered with bearing-down pains, backache and continual headache, and found no relief until I tried Peruna. It cured me completely, and I feel as young and well as when 18. I wish every woman knew the merits of the medicine, and no home would be without it."—Mrs. E. A. Crozier.

Mrs. Wm. Henderson, Bordulac, N. C., writes:

"I was troubled with very serious female weakness; had spells of flowing that exhausted me so that I feared I would lose my mind. I suffered untold agony with my back, the pain extending down my left leg. My pain was so severe that I would have welcomed death at any moment—so no one need wonder that I recommend Peruna so highly, for it cured me entirely of that. Not a sign of pain has returned, and that will soon be two years now.

"I am glad that there is a way I can speak, trusting that many a sufferer will read my testimonial, and not only read but believe."—Mrs. Wm. Henderson.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

Free Treatment During Hot Weather by Dr. Hartman.

By the assistance of an experienced staff of physicians, Dr. Hartman proposes to direct the treatment of several thousand women, who, for one reason or another are ailing.

Each patient sends name, symptoms, and a short description of previous treatment, and are entered in the doctor's books as regular patients.

The treatment is directed from time to time as may be found necessary by the doctor, without charge. Every letter and name is held strictly confidential, and in no case will any one be published except by the express wish of the patient herself.

These cases are treated with the same care and fidelity as the private patients of a regular family physician. During the past year a large number of cases have been cured. Every item of the treatment is directed for which no charge whatever is made.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium Columbus, Ohio, for free treatment.

THE HAIR BRUSH.

Breeds Dandruff, which Causes Failing Hair and Finally Baldness.

Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says that dandruff is as contagious as any other malevolent disease, and that one common source of the spread of dandruff is the use of the same hair brush by different persons. The way to avoid catching dandruff or any other disease from another's brush, is to insist on the use of Newbro's Herpicide. It not only kills the dandruff germ, but it is also an antiseptic that will prevent the catching of any disease whatever through contagion of another's brush.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Mrs. Mathews of Charles City mother of Mrs. Wm. Koerner, arrived Friday for a short visit.

Miss Ella Arnold, who has been in McGregor the past winter and summer, returned to Klemme Friday.

Geo. Nissen invited in a number of his young friends to enjoy a "social hop" Friday night. They enjoyed it.

Miss Estella Gruetzmacher, returned to her home at Charles City, Friday, after a six week's visit with relatives here.

Laura Flint, of Ell-town, returned home Sunday after a few days visit with her friend Fay Shafer.

Frank Gallery is going to have a little music around his farm home. A new $300. piano is in the deal.

E. G. Ell and Henry Yahnke, with their ladies, were at Clear Lake Sunday enjoying the "sea breezes."

E. P. Dow and wife and C. G. Bracher were attendents at the German Luthern Grove meeting at Goodell Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Baumgartner and children, of Garner, came down Thursday to visit over night with J. E. B. and family.

In less than two weeks the law on wild chicks will be out and then there will be a panic among the feathery tribe.

Mr. Spink and wife, of Slayton, Minnesota, were visiting with Mrs. Spink's father Rev. Brenner, Friday and Saturday.

The young men who are disabled with broken arms and fingers are thinking seriously of organizing a 'one arm brigade.'

Mes. D. E. Packard, of Belmond and J. Rowen, of Rowen, both aunts of Mrs. J. L. Harr visited her Friday between trains

The home of Charles Schlichting is now worth about $500. more than heretofore. A new baby girl is the cause of the raise.

Clare Dow, of Garner, was in town Monday visiting his brother E. P. He goes to Ames, Ia., next week to attend the State University.

Mr. F. Wellemeyer, of Germantown, was at Clarion Sunday conducting the funeral service of his old friend and neighbor Mr. John Christina.

The Standard Oil Co.'s man Mr. Thompson, of Belmond, was in Klemme with his "go cart" Friday furnishing the merchants with "coal oil."

Mr. E. S. Lewis and neice Miss Crane, of Beaver Dam, Wis., who have been visiting L. Lewis and family of this place for some time returned home last week.

The grain market in Klemme is always up. The highest price is paid. Our eleator men do business on a patronage winning principle. Haul your grain to Klemme.

Henry Schoper now has a wagon that the farmers cannot break down with. It is made entirely of steel excepting the wheels and the box. Is the latest thing out.

The woman that was to marry Wm. Guth but married a Mr. Prelipp last winter, is now ready to marry some other man. She herhaps thinks 'Variety is the spice of life."

The enterprising people of Ell Center have decided to hold their annual Harvest Home Picnic on Friday Aug. 30th. A big time is being arranged for. Further information will be given leter.

Those farmers who are so axiously requesting rain might do well to direct their supplications, as did the Missouians, to the fellow that handles the weather department. Pray unceasingly.

There is nothing that will cool you quite so quick, during this hot weather, as a dish of ice cream, a glass of lemonade or milk shake. Drinks of all kinds served at all times at G. W. Kluckhohn's.

Mr. John Kaste and wife, of Chicago, arrived Tuesday evening for a week stay in Klemme with Mr. Kaste's sisters and brother Ben. Mrs. Chas. and Henry Gruetzmacher and Mrs. E. P. Schaefer being the sisters.

The school board of the Independent district of Klemme has purchased a bell to adorn the school house dome. The old one was without a time ticker and this addition to the new building will be heartily appreciated by all it's patrons.

J. W. Griggs, of Avery twp., and Elmer Arnold left Tuesday morning for Howard City, Minor county, S. D. on a land seeking tour. Mr. Griggs owns three quarter section up there. E. J. Bauman and R. Brisco of Goodell accompanied them.

The Hancock County Fair Association has arranged it's annual meeting to come off on Sept, 17, 18 and 19, 1901 at the fair grounds in Britt, Ia. People of the county should remember this; turn out and make the "county fair" a rousing success.

Our merchants are all well supplied [illegible] and do well to [illegible] the next fire breaks out the proper thing to do is to grab one of them and smash the liquid contents into the flames. This will kill the flame.

Attention is called to the new design adopted by J. H. Queal & Co., which will be found on the first page. Get them to show you the new Self-fitting Screens, cheapest and most convenient; American Wire fence; you cannot break it with stretching. New stock of Fence Posts.

They ball boys have skinned the ball diamond and put it in excellant shape for a game. We are pleased to announce that a game has been secured with Britt to be played here on today, Aug. 22nd. Everybody is invited. The ladies of Klemme are cordially requested to be in attendence.

J. L. Harr received a letter last Friday from manager Geo. Carson of the New Century Mining Co., stating that in sinking a drill test for zinc ore he struck the mineral at a depth of 69 feet which continued at a distance of 80 feet and he is not yet thru the vein. This makes a layer of 18 feet with more to follow.

Quail are increasing very rapidly all over the west. Legislation which protects these birds and the determined stand taken by so many farmers not to have them shot at any season, have much to do with the increase. There is no more valuable bird on the farm than the quail as he is the all year round weed seed eater and insect destroyer.

The Minnetonka medicine company show opened it's performances here Monday night, which although not on the great drama order are well worth the price of admission. It is selling and advertising the Minnetonka Remedies and is not quite so much of a fake as most traveling "liver medicine" shows generally are. It seems to be putting up no extravagant claims that cannot be fulfiled.

Ye editor was over to Meservey Monday and is informed that that town will 'spread itself" and have big a time Saturday Aug. 24th. Horse races, foot races, a ball game and fire works in the evening are the main features. Of course there will minor feats and features.

The Meservey "2nd celebration" bills state that Klemme's all star team is to play at Meservey Saturday, Aug. 24th at 1 o'clock. Negotiations to that effect were under course of completion but owing to the inability of our boys being able to loose themselves from the bonds of duty on that day the expected arrangements were not perfected. No affirmative agreement to aforesaid statement is in evidence. The affirmative argument for Meservey's committee is decidedly negative for the Klemme disciples of the diamond. The boys would, under any ordinary circumstances, permit themselves to meet the Meservey aggregation and cross bats to their heart's content. But Saturday, the day of hustle, bustle and toil for city people is the greatest of all day with the exception of the grand, good, great and ever glorious Sunday. (Then everybody can play ball if they so desire.) In the first place our boys agreed to not agree to agree to play ball as the committee on games in our neighboring town would gladly have agreed to have us agree. Klemme is not responsible for being thus advertised and misrepresented by greedy celebrationers and the lovers of the national game who expect to see our ball team there Saturday will of necessity be dissappointed and kindly excuse us from presenting our manly constitutions arrayed in splendifferous uniform with seven unhealthy fingers on each hand on the diamond of Meservey to play —play ball.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden, editor World-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

On next Thursday night Aug. 29th the ladies of the M. E. church will give a lawn social at the home of Mrs. Phil. Ell for benefit of pastor. Ice cream and cake will be served and everyone is invited.

HUMBOLT COLLEGE, Humbolt, Iowa, opens Aug. 20th. Free tuition to one from each county—see catalog.

Read It In His Newspaper.

George Schuab, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon. Ohio is a constant reader of the 'Dayton Volkseitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns. and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the pain balm for a few days my wife said to me. I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties," He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by J. L. Harr, druggist.

A New Game Law.

The last legislature enacted many new laws, some good and wholesome and others of doubtful value. One of the enterprising editors of the state who is always getting in on the ground floor, culls, as he says, a few items from a new law.

1. It shall be unlawful to hunt and kill piano peddlers. feather renovators, stock food peddlars or wheat fan distributers between January 1 and December 1.

2. It shall be unlawful to shoot, stab. wound or main any book agent between sunrise and sunset.

3. It shall be unlawful to ensnare, entrap, enviegle or entice any old maid into any kind of matrimony between the first day of May and the last day of April, by the use of any net or fascinatins known to horrid man.

4. Widows, sod or grass, are not upon any acccunt to be molested in their quest of game, between the front yard gate and the parlor sofa, during the time eligible widowors are liable to be at large and unprotected.

5. The man with a grevience and the woman with a mission may be exterminated at any time and the county court is empowered and authorized to offer bounties for scalps of this kind of game at any regular session thereof.

6 Hoss traders and crap shooters are not to be killed on the first day of the week (commonly called Sunday) nor is it lawful for editors to go gunning for delinquent subscribers later than ten o'clock Saturday night.

REDUCED RATES to IOWA FALLS.

For the Iowa Baptist Sunday School Assembly at Iowa Falls, August 4-17, the B. C. R. & N Ry will sell round trip tickets at excursion rates. For rates, dates of sale, etc. call on agents.

The Hancock County Fair Association is doing a lot of advertising this year. Among the various devices used for this purpose appears a fan on which is printed a dog, a man, a bear, all on the run the man is after the dog, the dog is after the bear and the bear is after the man. The dog is the tail-ender, the bear is the master of the situation and the man makes a good pace-setter. A big gun lies in sight which has been discarded on account of the absence of penetrating power. The picture when closely studied represents a scene of this kind: They man on the run is Thomas A. Way on his way to Mason City trying to get away from the bear who is none other than Bailey, the fighting editor of the Britt Tribune. The tail-ender or the dog we cannot place, unless it is our democratic candidate for representative, Willie Bracket, bringing up the rear. The gun is the one with which Cummins was killed!

The best ball game of the season was played last Thursday on the Klemme diamond. Britt, arrayed in professional uniform and loaded with out side players came over to scalp the home team and pull the wool over its eyes in great shape! The home team got right into the game and made them play elevan full innings to get 4 scores while our boys got 3. Although the Klemme team got the worst of it we feel proud of the game the boys put up. It was a nice quiet game as the Britt boys are thorough gentleman. There was no jangling. The crowd was large and well behaved and the gate receipts were enough to pay expenses.

The state convention of Woman Sufferagists of Iowa will be held in Waterloo in November this year. The dates for the meeting were fixed by the executive committee of the association at Des Moines for November 12, 13 and 14. This will be after the election has been, and by that time the women believe they can review the political field and determine on a better plan of action than could be had at an earlier date.—Mason City Star.

The other day a fellow down east killed his wife because he was too stingy to support her decently. It is to be hoped that that state will not be stingy of it's electricity when it comes to ridding the world of such a thing. There are cases when the most cheese sparing economist may well forego his demend for frugality.

The Minnetonka Medicine Co. pulled stakes and made their "git away" this morning. They have been here about ten days and done a lively business. It's entertainments are of a comical and interesting nature and were attended by large audiences The remedies seem to be satisfactory.

In every one's life there comes a waking up time, and it's well for them if it comes at the beginning and not at the end, when it is too late to mend the past. These times are private revivals and do more good than any public ones.—September Ladies Home Journal.

The Redfield (S. D.) Journal-Observer tells it this way: "Ben Kaste returned home Tuesday morning. Several of his friends were at the train to see him leave. It was very apparent that been hated to go.

Hum-m-m-mum!

The telegram informs us that a Kansas girl jerked her head back so hard when a youth tried to kiss her that she broke her neck. This may explain why the Klemme girls are so steady under such circumstances.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. Seven Years In Bed,

"Will wonders never cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk, she writes, and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from headaches, backache, Nervousness, sleeplessness, meloncholy, fainting and dizzy spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Harr. Only 50c.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Posi-Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, August 25, 1901.

The flourishing condition of the state treasury was indicated when the governor's office checked up the accounts therein. Over a million dollars in general revenue was found on hand. The total of all the funds in the treasury reached nearly $1,800,000. The balances were as follows:

General revenue on hand	$1,052,457.25
Agricultural college endowment	652,735.89
Special Iowa State college revenue	31,295.96
Agricultural college addition endowment	25,000.00
Swamp land indemnity	10,718.18
Special university revenus	2,384.74
Permanent school	63.34
Total	$1,774,655.49

Assistant Attorney General Van Fleck has rendered an opinion to J. S. Hungerford of Carroll, one of the board of trustees of the Iowa State college of Agriculture at Ames, to the effect the trustees must pay their own expenses if they go on a trip to eastern educational institutions. It appears the trustees had planned a junket and concluded to go east to look over the buildings of eastern colleges and universities and gather inspiration for plans for the new building that will be asked for at the next session of the legislature.

The Hawkeye Insurance company has commenced suit against the board of review demanding that the assessment against it be cancelled on the grounds that when it was made there was no law for it, and further, that the liabilities of the company were not taken into consideration by the assessor as an offset against the property. Acording to the petition the company was assessed at $119,000, the company claims that this property is offset by liabilities, and that it has already paid to the state a sum mounting to 1 per cent of all the premiums that it had received during the past year. The statute which declares that all property belonging to insurance companies shall be assessed after the liabilities of various kinds (including policy risks) are deducted, is cited as a reason that the assessment is illegal. It is declared that inasmuch as an amount sufficient to pay the taxes which the company is required to pay has already been paid to the state treasury, that the present assessment, if enforced, will really be double taxation.

A fine life-size oil painting of Mrs. Caroline Given Swalm has been hung in the art gallery of the State Historical building. Mrs. Swalm, her mother, Mrs. Given, and her daughter, Miss Nina, were present when Curator Charles Aldrich superintended the ceremony. Mrs. Swalm has not yet determined definitely upon the legend to be engraved on the name plate, but she is being urged by Mr. Aldrich and other friends to inscribe her name and the words "Iowa Journalist" on it. The portrait was painted in Montevideo, Uraguay, by an Italian artist who is living there. Mrs. Swalm has spent about three years in that South American land and in traveling. Her husband, Col. Al Swalm, is United States consul at a port named. They have been spending the summer visiting Iowa friends.

Ida M. Street, daughter of the famous Gen. Joseph M. Street, who is buried at Agency, has been spending the past week at the State Historical department building, mounting the immensely valuable letters which her father left at the time of his death, and whose immense worth in historical matters led her to present them to the Historical department. She has also gone with the material and prepared manuscript to Chicago, where it will be bound under her personal direction. The letters left by her father and given to the state of Iowa contain many important epistles written by early prominent men of the state in relation to Gen. Street's continued efforts toward Christianizing and civilizing the Indians of the territory.

C. F. Mason, who is interested in a new company forming in Des Moines to manufacture paint from the Jasper county iron and silica deposit, has sent 400 pounds of the material to Chicago, where chemists will analyze and experiment with it with a view of ascertaining the cheapest and most effective manner of separating the minerals. The debris it is composed of 60 per cent of iron and 40 per cent of silica. The iron is used in making paints for exterior use and the silica for making paints for inside use. Heretofore blowers have been used for separating the minerals, but with this system the waste was enormous and reduced the profits very materially. It is believed that the experiments now in progress will develop a plan for separating the minerals by floating them in a combination of oils. If this can be accomplished, about 90 per cent of the raw material can be saved.

The board of control has determined in view of the unusually high price of potatoes to feed the inmates of the institutions on beans, corn and hominy to a considerable extent this winter, providing potatoes once a day. This year's supply of navy beans for the state institutions will be obtained. Awards have been made on contracts for a year's supply of navy beans for the institution. Specifications for beans were sent out some time ago, as soon as it was ascertained there would be a shortage in the potato crop. The aggregate amount of beans provided for was 70,000 bushels, though more can be obtained under the contracts if needed. Contracts for dried apples were also awarded for some of the institutions where fruit is scarce on account of the drouth and hot weather.

New Record for Cresceus.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 24.—The celebrated Cresceus was the magnet to draw almost 15,000 people to the grand Circuit meeting here. In the second heat of his winning race with Geo. Derby and Charley Herr, the famous horse lowered the track record for the mile by three-quarters of a second and broke the world's record of final quarters, by trotting a distance in 29¾, beating the former record of thirty seconds for the last quarter, which he himself made at Detroit a month ago.

Strike in Clark's Mines.

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 21.—The United Verde, probably the richest mine in the world, which brings its owner, Senator Clark of Montana, $12,000,000 a year, is idle, because the copper miners will not grant his men an eight-hour day. About 1,000 men are affected. When presented with the demands of the men a few days ago, Clark said: "I will not grant my men an eight-hour day. I would never let the grass grow up in the streets of Jerome."

THE NEWS IN IOWA

POPULISTS IN CONVENTION.

Adopt a Platform and Nominate Candidates for State Offices.

Des Moines, Aug. 24.—Twenty delegates attended the state populist convention yesterday afternoon. With the exception of L. H. Weller, John Youngerman, M. A. Stanford and Andrew Macomber, few of the old line wheel horses were present, though seven or eight of them sent their regrets, which were read by the secretary. Aside from the declaration as set out in the report of the committee on resolutions and the nominations committee, the subject that seemed to interest those who attended was that of devising ways and means by which to launch a newspaper organ for the party in Des Moines. The movement was strongly urged by L. H. Weller and Alli Reed, the latter secretary of the state central committee, and for several years engaged in the publication of a newspaper advocating populist doctrines at Muscatine. The resolutions endorse the Omaha platform, denounce trusts, demand that franchises shall not be given to individuals or corporations and extend sympathy to people struggling for liberty, and demand the abolition of the offices of state printer and state binder. The following ticket was nominated: For governor, L. H. Weller of Chickasaw county; for lieutenant governor, Perry Engle of Jasper county; for supreme judge, J. R. McDonald of Polk county; for railroad commissioner, Luke McDowell of Shelby county; for superintendent of public instruction, J. C. Harland of Woodbury county.

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

R. H. Spence of Mt. Ayr Was Elected Chairman.

Des Moines, Aug. 24.—Robert H. Spence of Mt. Ayr, Ringgold county, was elected chairman of the republican state central committee by unanimous vote yesterday. The election followed an entire day spent in caucuses and conferences of the different factions of the committee.

When the committee finally met in formal session Committeeman George E. Scott of the Eleventh district offered the following resolution:

That the committee be organized for the ensuing year as follows, to-wit: Chairman, R. H. Spence; vice-chairman, J. D. Whisenand, Des Moines; secretary, Charles W. Phillips, Second district; executive committee to be invested with the power of the full committee when the latter is not in session: C. W. Phillips, chairman; R. H. Spence; J. E. Bruce, Ninth district; S. X. Way, Tenth district, R. W. Clayton, Sixth district.

This resolution was adopted by unanimous vote, and the committee called in A. B. Cummins, candidate for governor; E. C. Brown, candidate for railroad commissioner; Secretary of State Martin and other republicans, from whom remarks were heard with reference to the opening of the campaign and the issues.

IS SAID BUSSE CONFESSED.

Accused of Shocking Murder and an Attempt to Burn Wife.

Allison, Aug. 24.—Louis Busse, who was suspected of killing his wife and burning the body last June, now awaiting the action of the grand jury at the October term of court, is reported to have confessed the crime. It is reported that he claims to have had quarrels at different times with his wife and that this time they came to blows; that he knocked her down, killing her. He tried to burn the house and barn to cover up the crime. The confession is said to have been made to avoid expense of a long and losing suit, as it is said the evidence hunted up by the sheriff and county attorney would surely convict. The children by his first marriage have saved for them most of Busse's property.

BILLINGS GETS THIRTY DAYS.

Young Man Throws Baggage Out of Window and Tries to Beat Hotel.

Ames, Aug. 24.—Joe Billings, the young man who tried to beat his board bill at the West House yesterday, was given thirty days in jail by Jusice Haverly. Billings claims to be an agent for a tailoring house in Chicago and worked the night clerk at the hotel for $5 in payment for being appointed agent for the concern. After closing this deal he went to his room, cut the screen and threw his grips to the ground below. He afterwards came down the front stairs and saying that he was going up town went out and gathered them up and went toward the depot. The clerk, suspecting him, informed the marshal, with the result that he was arrested and fined as above.

PIERCED BY A PINE STICK.

Engineer Has a Piece of Moulding Driven Through His Breast.

Ft. Dodge, Aug. 23.—Frank Bender of Waterloo, an engineer on the Illinois Central, was probably fatally injured here. He was switching in the yards. His cab failed to clear a box car, and the collision forced away a strip of moulding from the car. It sprang upward and struck Bender in the breast, and passed clear through him. In his agony Bender threw open the throttle and the engine sped down the track, colliding with a freight, doing considerable damage. Bender was also burned about the shoulders and arms.

Deadlock Is Broken.

Estherville, Aug. 24.—After three adjournments and after a three days' session of the republican representative convention for the counties of Emmet, Dickinson and Osceola at Sibley, Iowa, the deadlock was finally broken by Osceola casting a sufficient number of votes on the two thousand seven hundred and twenty-first ballot to nominate B. F. Robinson of Emmet county. A motion to make it unanimous was made by L. E. Francis of Dickinson county, seconded by Mr. Stage of Osceola county, and carried.

Threat Was Burglar's Undoing.

Fort Dodge, Aug. 23.—A burglar entered the residence of O. F. Cady and awakened Margaret Cady while removing a valuable ring from her finger. She was admonished to keep quiet or have her head blown off. A stern demand for money and valuables brought a scream from the lady, awakening the entire household. The burglar escaped through an open window, tearing down the curtains as he went.

Made Bed on Railway.

Denison, Aug. 23.—The Northwestern flyer train No. 1 ran over an unknown man near this place. He had evidently gone to sleep on the track. His body was mangled so that it had to be picked up in pieces.

Emlin McLain Honored.

Iowa City, Aug. 23.—Judge Emlin McLain was elected president of the American Association of Law Schools at Denver.

Gives $30,000 to a Church.

Cedar Rapids, Aug. 23.—Mrs. T. M. Sinclair has decided to dedicate a $30,000 church to the Third Presbyterian church of this city as a memorial to her late husband. Work will begin at once on the building, which will accommodate 500, with Sunday school rooms for 400.

Boy Steals His Last Ride.

Cedar Rapids, Aug. 23.—E. M. Babcock, aged 16 years, was killed. He stole a ride from the Union station for about fourteen blocks and jumped off. His head struck a rail and was split open. He lived but a few minutes.

IS PART OF COLLEGE.

Experiment Station at Ames Is So Regarded by Mr. Mullan.

Des Moines, August 26.—Attorney Geueral Mullen has rendered an opinion that is in direct opposition to one given by ex-Attorney General Milton Remley. The board of trustees of the Iowa State College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts at Ames asked Mr. Mullan for an opinion on the construction of section 1, chapter 152 of the laws of the Twenty-eighth general assembly, which makes an appropriation of $25,000 annually to the college for repairs and general improvements, and also on section 2674 of the code, which makes an annual appropriation to the college. The question at issue was whether these appropriations were meant to apply to the experiment station of the college as well as the college itself. It was the opinion of Mr. Remley that inasmuch as the federal government makes an appropriation for the experiment station, the state appropriations for the college could not be used for the experiment station. He held further the experiment station was not a part of the college and could not reap the benefit of an appropriation intended for it.

Mr. Mullan, in a lengthy opinion, considers the history of the experiment station of the Iowa College of Agriculture. He says every legislative body has undertaken to make the experiment station a part of the college and a department thereof. Nowhere, he says, is the experiment station treated as a separate institution. The control of the experiment station was taken from congress and the state legislature and given to the trustees of the college to enable them to arouse enlarged interest in agriculture.

The appropriation provided under section 2674 can be used by the board of trustees of the college, according to Mr. Mullan, as their judgment should direct and to pay the current expenses for the experiment station as a department of the college. This construction also applies to section 1 of chapter 152. The trustees have been led to obtain the opinion in view of the need of new buildings at the experiment station.

ACCOUNTS ARE PERFECT.

Experts About Through With Books of Board of Control.

Des Moines, Aug. 22.—Philip H. Skinner and William H. Hedges, the expert accountants appointed by the executive council, have practically completed the examination of the accounts in the board of control office. Their report will be filed with the council in a short time. It will show the accounts of the board are in a perfect condition.

The experts are greatly pleased at the condition of things in the board of control office. "There are some details of the system of accounting," said Mr. Skinner, "that might perhaps be eliminated, but it is questionable whether they could be done away with and at the same time the same moral effect as now on the wardens and superintendents could be preserved.

"The system is perfect. I doubt if three men could be found in the state who would be more competent and would transact the affairs of the board more harmoniously than they. There is absolutely no politics in it. Part of the employes in the board's office are democrats and part republicans. They are selected solely with regard to merit so far as I can ascertain. The system of buying supplies through bidding is a means of effecting a great saving to the state, and at the same time the quality of the food, particularly the meats, that is provided for the inmates of the institutions, is better than you or I buy on the market for our own use. The board is in close touch from its office here with all the affairs of the institutions. If a dozen spools of thread are bought for an institution, the board can tell from its office here just how many spools ought to be on hand from the time of the purchase until the goods are consumed. The only thing needed to make the board of control law perfect is to have it extended so that all the insane and dependent now in the county institutions are cared for in state institutions and under the board of control's supervision. I doubt whether there is a state in the union that has a system superior to the one in Iowa."

ARMY POST PLAN FINISHED.

Will Soon Be Forwarded to Washington by Capt. Turner.

Des Moines, August 26.—Captain R. B. Turner, officer of engineers in charge of the government reservation, four miles south of Des Moines, has completed his rough map of the army post grounds, showing the locations of the various buildings as the captain will recommend them to the department at Washington. By the middle of this week the finished map will be ready to send to Washington. When this part of the work is done, Captain Turner will probably begin laying out the ground for the sewer to North river, two miles to the southeast of the reservation. The citizens' committee of Des Moines furnishes easement for the sewer through the adjoining lands and the government pays for the sewer itself. A large part of the necessary right of way has already been pledged by neighboring property owners, and the remainder will be secured without difficulty.

IOWA BUYS COAL.

The Board of Control Makes Contracts for State Institutions.

Des Moines, August 26.—The board of control has let contracts for the year's supply of coal for the state institutions. According to the estimates of the superintendents of what will be required, 53,350 tons of coal will be necessary to keep the institutions supplied the coming year, beginning October 1. In each instance, the contractor agrees to keep the institutions in full supply for the time specified. According to the needs of the institutions last year, the estimates of some of the superintendents are not sufficient.

The board expects to cut down the cost of fuel at the institutions this year. Heretofore mine run has been contracted for largely. It has been found as good results can be obtained by utilizing a mixture composed of slack and pea, and to a great extent the board has contracted for this kind of coal.

Yeomans Sells His Farm.

Sioux City, August 26.—One of the largest land deals in Iowa this year has just been consummated by Interstate Commerce Commissioner J. D. Yeomans in the sale of the Ashton stock farm of 160 acres, all in Monona county. The purchaser is H. Edward Evans, of Illinois, the consideration being $34,500. Some years ago Mr. Evans lived on the fruit farm. It belonged to him. Now he buys it back at a much increased price.

Two Sisters Drowned.

Maquoketa, Aug. 21.—Bessie and Hazel, aged twenty-one and sixteen, daughters of William Reeve of this city, were drowned in the Maquoketa river today. Their bodies were found two hours later clasped in each other's arms in nine feet of water. It is a sad shock to the community, and the father, who lost his wife but a few years ago, is prostrated with grief.

Some sin does not find you out as soon as the gossips.

It will not injure your health if you attend to your own business.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SHERIFF WHIPS A MOB.

Alabama Official With a Little Band of Deputies Protects a Prisoner.

Asheville, Ala., Aug. 24.—Sheriff North, with a posse of twenty-seven men, fought and whipped a mob of 400 armed citizens who were determined to lynch Jim Brown, a negro, under sentence of death. In the battle three members of the mob were wounded, two of them fatally, and the crowd dispersed, at least temporarily.

Brown, the negro, was convicted at a special term of court of an assault upon a white woman, and sentenced to hang September 20. The court directed Sheriff North to take the condemned man to Birmingham for safekeeping until the date of his execution. When this became noised about the neighbors of the woman, mostly farmers and planters from Springville, organized for the purpose of taking the negro from the sheriff and lynching him.

The court house was speedily surrounded and the leaders of the mob demanded that the sheriff surrender the negro. The plucky officer replied that the prisoner had been committed to his custody for safe-keeping and that he would promptly shoot the first man that set foot in the court house. After a hasty consultation a member of the mob dashed up the court house steps, firing a revolver.

A general fusilade followed, over 100 shots being fired. The sheriff's force fired through the windows and doors and the mob retreated, firing back as it went. Walter Blankenship was shot through the head with a Winchester ball. Arthur Blankenship was shot in the head and shoulders with buckshot. Both will die. A boy named Hanby was shot in the head. A heavy rain came up and the mob sought shelter in the near-by stores.

The officers took advantage of this lull and spirited the negro away in charge of two special deputies. He was gotten safely aboard a freight train for Birmingham.

PRODUCTION OF BEET SUGAR.

The Production in the United States Is Rapidly Increasing.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The growing belief that the United States will shortly be able to produce from beets the $100,000,000 worth of sugar which her people now annually import seems to be shared by British Consul Wyndham, who has given the subject close attention and reported upon it to his government. The following is an extract from his report which has just reached the treasury bureau of statistics:

"The production of beet sugar in the United States is rapidly increasing, and in the Chicago consular district there are four factories in the state of Illinois, three in Nebraska, and three in Colorado; those in Nebraska and Colorado belong to the American Beet Sugar company, and are at Grand Junction, Rocky Ford, and Sugar City, and when fully completed will employ thousands of hands.

"Statistics indicate that the United States consumes more sugar than any other nation or approximately one-quarter of the whole of the world's product. The conditions of soil, climate, and other advantages are quite as good in the United States and especially in Colorado, Nebraska and Illinois for the development of the beet as in any of the countries of Europe or Asia. The world's production and consumption of sugar is now about 8,250,000 tons per annum from beets and only one-third from cane, whilst the normal consumption is estimated as increasing at the rate of 250,000 tons yearly.

"The success attending the cultivation of sugar beet in this district has proved that it may be made a profitable and successful investment."

TOWNS WRECKED BY WINDS.

Lives Wiped Out in Oklahoma's Infant Villages.

El Reno, O. T., Aug. 23.—A wind and rain storm, amounting to almost a tornado, nearly demolished the new town of Anadarko. W. P. Levis of Weatherford, Texas, and John Antone of Paris, Texas, were killed by falling buildings and a number of others were injured, while about twenty buildings were almost completely wrecked, and hundreds of tents and great quantities of merchandise were strewn over the prairie.

Dr. Mase of Wichita was killed in his tent by an unfinished house blowing down on him.

John Antone was killed in the lodging tent and grocery store of his sons, located just west of the postoffice. The postoffice building, a rudely constructed affair, collapsed and fell over the tent. Antone's three sons succeeded in getting out, but their father was caught by a large timber and crushed to death. W. P. Levis was killed in a tent by the side of a saloon building being erected on the corner of Tenth and C streets. He leaves a wife and three children. He was a painter. Dan Warren, a young man, was injured while standing in a tent near by Levis' place, being knocked from his cot by a timber.

INTERVENTION IS PROBABLE.

Czar Said to Be About Ready to Take Action on Transvaal War.

Brussels, Aug. 23.—The Independence Belge prints a dispatch from Copenhagen, which says:

"It is currently reported in Russian circles that the czar has decided to broach South African intervention to Emperor William and President Loubet. He considers the time opportune for friendly mediations."

The paper adds, under reserve, that the czar, during his stay in France, will receive Mr. Kruger in private audience and obtain from him a direct statement of the Boer position, with the view of formulating a plan for action.

Philippine Imports Increasing.

Washington, Aug. 24.—A continued increase in the import trade of the Philippines is shown in a comparative statement compiled at the war department giving the commerce of the islands for the seven months ending January 31, 1901, and 1900.

The total value of the merchandise imported during the seven months ending January 31, 1901, was $17,999,167, as against $12,674,705 for the same period in 1900, and the merchandise exported was $12,637,359, as against $8,305,530 for the 1900 period. This shows an increase of 42 per cent in the value of imports and 52 per cent in export values.

Mississippi's Treasury Short.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 23.—Governor Longino has issued a statement of the condition of the state treasury showing that on August 15 he found therein by actual counting $677,846 when the books called for $840,468—a shortage of $162,621. Treasurer Stowers was, however, allowed credit for bills, drafts etc. amounting to $55,000, leaving the shortage $107,621.

Leaves Wife to Nurse a Leper.

St. Louis, Aug. 21.—Dr. Louis Knapp, aged 40, a practicing physician of this city, has forever seperated himself from his wife and four children, and will become isolated from the world, to nurse Dong Gong, the Chinese leper, who was found here two weeks ago. The doctor, who is a graduate of a Detroit medical college, took final leave of his family yesterday. With his patient and prisoner as his only companion, Dr. Knapp will live in a three room frame house at quarantine until the necessity for his services are ended.

IS A CLOSED INCIDENT.

Navy Department Has Nothing to Say Regarding Schley Affair.

Washington, Aug. 24.—At the navy department the matter of the service of Admiral Howison on the court of inquiry is considered as a closed incident so far as the department is concerned, and one which will be left to the consideration of the court itself.

Mr. Hackett states that he has not received the reply it is said Admiral Schley will submit in regard to the action of the department declining to refer the original request concerning the Howison interview to that officer for a statement.

Captain Lemly, the judge advocate general of the army, and judge advocate of the Schley court, has returned from Canada and will at once begin the work of making the list of witnesses to be summoned before the court of inquiry. It is expected that this list will be ready for submission to Admiral Schley early next week.

FRENCH PRESSURE WINS

Turkey Yields at Last to the Demands Upon Her.

Constantinople, Aug. 26. — The Quays company question has been settled, as expected, in accordance with the desires of France.

An imperial irade has been issued, ordering that the company shall be allowed to exercise freely all the rights granted by the concession.

Paris, Aug. 26.—Turkey has yielded to French pressure, as was inevitable, and a full rupture of the relations between the two countries has been averted. The official communique announcing the granting of the French demands issued this morning follows: "In consequence of the declaration made to the porte by the French ambassador that he acts under instructions of the minister of foreign affairs, an imperal irade has been issued directing that no obstacle shall be placed in the way of the free exercise by the Quays company of the rights of using their concession."

A firman for the settlement of the matters in question will, it is believed, be issued shortly.

The foreign office officials do not conceal their delight at the settlement of the Turkish difficulty. During the last few days it was evident that some anxiety was felt lest the affair mar the festivties on the occasion of the czar's visit.

The correspondent of the Associated Press learns that M. Constans' dispatch was very brief, but it leaves no doubt that the sultan has yielded all that was wanted in the matter of the quays, by issuing an irade recognizing the full rights, claimed by the French company, to extend its operations, buy land and start ferries, also removing the annoying restrictions hitherto imposed by the custom and police officials. This not only ended the disputes, but ends also all questions of the repurchase of the company's concession by the porte at the present time.

Regarding the other French claims as their amount has been admitted by Turkey, the negotiations only turn the matter of payment. This will be arranged quickly.

FRANCE OUT WITH TURKEY

M. Constans, French Minister, Says Sultan Broke His Promise.

Constantinople, Aug. 22.—The French ambassador, M. Constans, has notified the sultan's first secretary that all diplomatic relations between France and Turkey are broken off and that the ambassador has informed his government to this effect.

M. Constans communicated direct with the sultan because the latest negotiations were transacted with the sultan personally. The ambassador justifies his action on the ground that the sultan broke his direct, personal promise, given to M. Constans at an audience in the Yieliz palace Thursday, regarding the purchase of the quays and the settlement of the disputed French claims. The foreign minister also gave formal assurances that the agreement would be carried out, so in view of this double breach M. Constans held that it is impossible for France to continue diplomatic relations with Turkey.

STRIKERS ARE HOPEFUL.

Claim a Turn Will Soon Occur in Their Favor.

Pittsburg, Aug. 24.—A summary of the steel strike situation to date shows about the following condition:

Pittsburg: Star mill—Two mills running; strikers say fire more men left the plant and joined their ranks, but the management positively denies the statement. Painter mill—Four mills running; fire lighted in bar mill furnaces, but failed to start as expected. Pennsylvania Tube works—Mill idle, machinists say they will quit tonight. All Carnegie mills running full.

McKeesport—Demmler plant idle, and no attempt will be made to start it before next week. Everything else closed down.

Irondale—Mill running with same force as yesterday, making two turns and assurance from the manager that more men will be added tomorrow.

Wellsville—Situation is unchanged, twelve mills running.

Lisbon—Fires started in tin plate plant. Manager George Evans says everything is in readiness to start soon with plenty of men. Strikers voted today to remain out and the mill is strongly picketed.

Wheeling—Everything tied up and no apparent indication of any attempt to start any of the mills.

Bellaire—The National Steel company's idle plant, it is said, will be started early next week by a full force of men.

No late advices have been received by the Amalgamated officials from either Bayview or Joliet, and the situation at these points is considered by them to be unchanged.

The conferences of the labor leaders at offices of the association yesterday was the leading feature of the strike during the day. The leaders all seemed pleased with the way things were moving, and one said somewhat mysteriously: "In another six days you will see a decided change in the strike that will tell with greater effect on the trust and aid in hurrying the final outcome of this struggle."

Just what this change was to be was not said, but it was inferred strongly that the coming event hinged upon the conference that was taking place.

Bullion Robber Sentenced.

Martinez, Cal., Aug. 23.—Jack Winters, the man who got away with $320,000 in gold bullion from the Selby Smelting works and afterwards confessed, was sentenced to fifteen years at Folsom. The prisoner asked to be sent to San Quentin, but the request was refused. He was taken to Folsom today.

Battleship Iowa Sails.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The battleship Iowa sailed yesterday afternoon for Panama.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The navy department has been informed of the sailing of the battleship for Panama. She will stop at Acapulco for coal. The distance from San Francisco to Panama is 3,274 miles and the trip will occupy about twelve days.

In walking a mile a man uses seventeen and one-half tons of energy. An ordinary day's work contains 300 tons.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER IV.

The Israelite.

When the king left his affianced bride he was sorely perplexed; and the longer he reflected upon what had transpired, the deeper grew his rage and chagrin. He walked alone in the garden until the sun had set, and then he went in and called for his minister to attend him.

"Aboul Cassem, what think you of this outrage which the Scourge of Damascus has now committed?"

"I think it is high-handed and startling," replied the minister.

"Has your daughter explained more to you than I have yet heard?"

"She has told me all she knows, sire. The robber came, according to his own account, for the purpose of wresting her from the King of Damascus; but she refused to go with him; and so urgent was she in her protestations, that Julian finally went away and left her. I think, however, that his retreat was hastened by the fear that your majesty might be upon him with a dangerous force."

"I have no doubt that such is the case, Aboul. But the end of this is not yet. This daring demon has run at large long enough. He has already stricken fearful blows upon our commerce, and now he takes a new course of attack upon our defenceless daughters. It has come to be so that a caravan is not safe to start from Damascus; nor are our merchants safe in returning from other lands. It must not be so. By the heavens above me, it shall not be so! I must find some way for this man's capture. I have sent out my armies against him, and he has either avoided them, or met and overcome them. Life of my soul just think of it. He met a thousand of my armed men, and swept them back over the plains of Abilene as though they had been so many women. What shall I do, Aboul?"

"There is but one way, sire, that I can conceive of. It seems to be useless to send out force against him; for he is a quick-witted rascal; and, if he cannot successfully cope with them, he can keep out of their way. He has spies throughout the whole land."

"Aye—I know he has!" cried the king, with a fresh burst of rage. "He has friends among those who live very near to our capital. I wish I could get hold of them."

"Get hold of the chieftain first."

"Ah—but how?"

"It must be done by strategem, sire. If you cannot find some one man who is able to entrap the Scourge, I see not how you are ever to overcome him. A single man with wit, will and endurance may accomplish much. A little mouse, working in secret, may uproot a great tree.'

"By my life, Aboul, you have spoken the truth. The work must be done secretly. Have I such a man about me?"

"How is it with Judah, the Israelite?" suggested the minister.

The king started and clapped his hands together when he heard the name.

"By the shades of Tartarus, good Aboul, you have hit the very man. Judah is with us now. I left him in the hall as I came in from the garden. I will send for him."

A slave, who stood just without the door, was sent after the man who had been spoken of, and ere long he made his appearance before his royal master. He was a middle-aged man, with black hair and keen black eyes; with features sharp in outline, and moulded into a cast of peculiar cunning; and with body and limbs light and muscular. He was below the ordinary size of man; and what he may have lacked in physical strength was more than made up by the quickness and precision of movement. He had been a dweller in Damascus since childhood, his mother having come from Judea, in poverty and disgrace, and given him away to an officer of the king's household.

"Judah," spoke the monarch, "I want you to engage in a dangerous enterprise; but, if you are successful, the honor will be greater than the danger. Are you willing to try it?"

"Anything, sire, that can yield me honor and emolument," replied the Israelite, with a low bow. "Give me the freedom of a citizen, and gird the sword of a lieutenant about my loins, and I will undertake anything. I would not even hesitate to go out against the Scourge of Damascus."

"Ha! It is the very thing, Judah. It is this accursed robber chieftain that I wish to secure. If you will slay him, and bring me his head, I will make you a free citizen of Damascus; and if you will bring him to me alive, and deliver him into my hands, I will not only bestow the citizenship upon you, and gird the sword of a lieutenant about your loins, but I will give you a house and a wife."

The black eyes of the Israelite snapped and sparkled like polished gems of jet. He strode across the room, and then walked slowly back.

"Sire," he finally said, "give me until tomorrow morning to think of this. In twelve hours from this you shall have my answer. If I embark upon this enterprise, I must have some hope for success. I will converse with those of the slaves who have seen the robber and his men, and their observations may help me."

"But, Judah, you are not to breathe a word of this. My slaves must not mistrust your object."

"I underseand you, sire; and I will be guarded. Shall it be as I have said?"

"Yes, only bear in mind that the thing must be accomplished if accomplishment is possible."

"I understand you, sire; and be assured that my wits shall be stretched to their utmost."

"Aboul Cassem," said the king, after Judah had gone, "what do you think?"

"I think the fellow will study up some grand plot between now and morning. At all events, sire, I do not believe you can find a better man for your purpose."

At an early hour the king retired, and all night long his sleep was troubled with very unpleasant dreams. He dreamed two or three times that the Scourge of Damascus had robbed him of his beautiful bride, and once he dreamed that his throne had passed from him. In the morning he was more anxious for the apprehension of the robber than before, and impatiently did he await the coming of the Israelite.

At the appointed hour Judah made his appearance and announced that he would undertake the task of delivering up the terrible Scourge.

"If I succeed," he said, "you will hear from me as soon as success crowns my efforts. If I fail, you will perhaps never hear from me again."

"And when will you set forth?" asked the king, almost beside himself with hopeful anticipation.

"At once, sire. This very day, if I can get ready."

"Do you want help?"

"I would select two of your most trusty guards."

"Take as many as you want."

"Two will be enough, sire."

"Will you take them from those who have been on duty here?"

"No, sire. That would not be safe. The robbers might recognize them. I will have two who came with us from Damascus yesterday."

"As you will, Judah. Select the men you want, and they shall accompany you."

The Israelite promised that he would have all his arrangements made before the king was ready to depart, and with this assurance he went away.

By the middle of the forenoon the king was ready to set forth on his return to Damascus. Ulin and Albia were placed within a comfortable box upon the back of a stout camel, and around them were posted a hundred armed men. The remainder of the retinue was arranged under the direction of Aboul Cassem, the king's prime minister, and only the order was needed to set the whole in motion. At this point the king withdrew to the palace, where he found Judah ready to set forth on his dangerous mission, and with him were two guards, Osmir and Selim, two resolute, intelligent fellows, who seemed to love the excitement of the work upon which they were about to enter. The king was pleased with the choice Judah had made.

"I might not have hit upon them," he said; "but I know they will serve you. And now, what more can I do?"

"Nothing," replied Judah. "I have all that I can use, and am ready for the work. If I succeed, you will hear from me in good time; and if you never hear from me, you may at least be assured that I failed from no lack of will to serve you."

With a few words of encouragement the king left his servant to pursue his own course, and proceeded to join his army, which was soon in motion; and before the close of another day he arrived at Damascus, where Ulin was once more suffered to find shelter beneath the roof of her father. Touching her marriage, it was understood that the cefemony should be performed as soon as the period of mourning had passed, which would be in two weeks; and until then she was to remain in close retirement. Horam asked that she might not be suffered to go out, for he feared to have her see too much of the outer world before he had secured her hand.

We must now return to the Palace of the Valley, where we left those who were to go in search of the robber chieftain. As soon as the king had gone, Judah repeated the instructions he had already given to the guards. They were not to accompany him; but they were to come after him, in a manner agreed upon, and were to conduct themselves towards him in all respects as though they had never before seen him.

Towards the latter part of the afternoon Judah stripped himself bare to the skin, and caused one of the men to beat him with a leathern thong until long livid ridges were raised upon his shoulders and back. After this he resumed his clothing, and as soon as the shades of evening began to fall, he mounted a fleet horse, and rode away to the northward towards the plains of Abilene. He knew that Julian had taken that course, and he hoped to overtake him before many hours. Until midnight he sped on quite rapidly; but after that he moved more cautiously, peering and listening, upon the right hand and upon the left, as he advanced. So he rode until day had dawned, without seeing or hearing anything worthy of note. But he was coming upon something very soon. Just as the sky began to glow with the rich, red glare of the rising sun, he came to a point where a narrow pass between two steep hills opened into a pleasant vale, and just here his horse was stopped by a stout man who advanced, spear in hand, from some trees by the wayside.

"Hold!" said the sentinel. "Who are you?"

"A wayfarer, as you may see," replied Judah.

"Whither are you traveling?"

"To the north."

"Of what are you in pursuit?"

"Just at this present moment I am in most urgent pursuit of something to eat."

"Have you money in your purse?"

"Enough for present use."

"Are you afraid of losing it?"

"How?"

"By robbers."

"Bless you, no. I am rather anxious to see some of these robbers."

"You may see them sooner than you would like."

"That cannot be, sir; for I would like to see them at once."

"Ah—what would you with them?"

"Never mind. If I am so fortunate as to find them, they shall know."

"Perhaps I can find them for you."

"I believe you can; and, my good sir, if you will conduct me into the presence of Julian, I shall thank you."

"Upon my life, you give me credit for wonderful power."

"I give you the credit of belonging to Julian's band; and as I am very anxious to see him, I ask you once more, to lead me to him."

The man hesitated a moment, and finally said, with a smile breaking over his sunburnt features:

"You are free-spoken, and seem to be honest; and I think I will lead you to the man you seek. But my bold friend, you have need of some fair purpose."

"Lead me to Julian, and I will be answerable for the rest."

"Very well; you shall not ask again. Dismount, and follow me."

According to the London Vanity Fair, a celebrated surgeon met a young officer in Piccadilly the other day, and greeted him with surprise: "Well, I am pleased to see you! I am surprised! Do you know I have a portion of your brain in a jar at home?" "Ah, well," laughed the other, "I can easily spare that; I have got a berth in the war office!"

Replying to his opponent's remark that "the Boers are unwashed and semi-barbarous," Professor Joseph Johnson, in a recent public debate in Philadelphia regarding the South African war, retorted, solemnly: "It is true that the Boers are not cleanly of person, but the English have driven them first from Cape Colony, and then from Natal, to the desolate uplands beyond the Vaal where there is no water; and how, therefore, can you expect them to wash?"

Some days ago a swarm of bees entered a roadside letter-box near Mullingar, in Ireland. A number of letters were in the box, and the postmaster-general offered a reward of two shillings (fifty cents) to any person dislodging the bees. This tempting offer resulted in the sending of a stinging letter from the owner of the swarm, who threatened, if the bees were injured, to take legal proceedings against Lord Londonderry, as his offer to remove the intruders was rendered fruitless by the refusal of the postoffice authorities to allow the door of the letter-box to be opened.

It is said that not long ago Rear-Admiral Robley Evans entered a fashionable house of worship in New York and took a seat far forward. He was well but not very expensively dressed. Soon after the admiral had seated himself, a man and his wife entered. He looked uneasy, and pulling out his card wrote on it: "Do you know I pay fifteen hundred dollars a year for this pew?" Not to be outdone in courtesy, Admiral Evans took one of his own cards, and above his name, which necessarily gave his naval rank, wrote in reply: "Well, you pay too d——d much."

PHILLIPS THE NOMINEE

Ex-Mayor of Ottumwa Nominated for Governor by Democrats.

The Principles of the Kansas City Platform Were Reaffirmed, But Special Emphasis Is Given to State Issues.

Des Moines, August 22.—After wing ing in the committee on resolutions and preparing a declaration which contained no reference to the Kansas City platform or to national issues in any guise, that element of the Iowa democracy which is desirous of getting rid of the 16 to 1 issue, met defeat on the floor of the convention yesterday afternoon. By a vote of 661 3-5 to 558 2-5, the convention adopted a minority report signed by Walter H. Butler, Claude Porter and John J. Seerley, prefixing to the resolutions reported by the majority a preamble specifically reaffirming allegiance to the Kansas City platform. Mr. Seerley signed the minority report in compliance with instructions received from the first district caucus.

It was almost 11 o'clock yesterday morning when Chairman Huffman of the state central committee called the democratic convention to order. He briefly announced the purpose of the convention, then called upon Rev. I. N. McCash to deliver the invocation. A selection by the band followed after which Mr. Huffman introduced E. M. Sharon of Davenport, who, he said, would preside.

The address of Temporary Chairman Sharon was a model of discretion and diplomacy. Not one word was uttered about silver, but trusts and imperialism were denounced in vigorous terms to the plaudits of the assembled delegates. He criticised the colonial policy of the administration and hinted of carpet-bagging. He demanded that senators be elected by the direct vote of the people and that there be an income tax, the constitution being amended, if necessary, to acomplish this end. That part of the address which deals with state issues is as follows:

"The republican party is the same in the state as in the nation. Its tendencies are the same whether at Washington or Des Moines, or Havana or Manila. It has been for thirty years—since the days when its honest leaders wasted away—a party held together by a chronic appetite for the spoils of office. It has been corrupt in nation and state and our first experiments as a colonial power, have given to the world the most scandalous examples of political debauchery, misconduct in office, grand larceny and embezzlement of public moneys. The first men sent out with the credentials of republican leaders have been put in colonial jails or brought back embezzlers and thieves.

"The democratic legislators have shown to the people of Iowa the wrong doings of the state officials and the attorney general of the state has found the duties of his office more onerous each year on account of the peculation of state officials.

"The republican party for years in the face of protests of democrats, in the face of the reports of investigating committees—against the demands of honest members of their party, have refused to abolish the office of state printer and binder. They have allowed the people through these offices to be robbed to the extent of thousands of dollars annually in order that the office might be given as a reward for party services. They have kept up the exorbitant prices paid for work in these offices with the guaranty that the same work could be done at from 25 to 50 per cent less by contract. Recent developments have shown that even these prices were not large enough to satisfy the rapacity of republican officials, and the late printer is accused of charging over $5,000 in excess of already excessive rates.

"The muict law is another example of republican hypocrisy. Defeated as the party of prohibition in '89 and '91, it decided to take a 'step backward' and desert its position. The democratic party offered and still offers for republican state wide ineffective prohibition, a license that would produce a large revenue and leave it to the cities, towns and villages of the state to determine their position in regard to the traffic in intoxicating liquors. They proposed a system for the control of the traffic that objectionable parties might be kept out of the business and the whole traffic be safe-guarded—that while it became a legitimate occupation and industry, its abuse by irresponsible parties might be provided against.

"The republicans in order to hold within its ranks the liberals and the prohibitionists evolved from an ingenious and fertile imagination the hybrid of a muict law, through which they were enabled to promise the prohibitionists prohibition and the liberals the manufacture and sale and the saloonkeepers a license to violate a law of the state by paying a muict tax.

"It has the taxing feature of a license system and there all analogy ends. The power to license presupposes the power to pass upon the merits of the party licensed. Under the muict law any man or woman direct from Fort Madison or Anamosa, if able to get a keg of beer on credit can open a saloon and the only thing the municipal power can do—its local option, is the right of the board of supervisors to assess an additional tax against the property occupied. The property occupied may be ten or twelve feet on the bank of a gully and the tax can never be collected, but the person operating in strict accordance with the pious provisions of the republican law.

"It is unnecessary to discuss the success or failure of prohibition—of a license system or the muict law. The facts are familiar to you all. In Scott county we have no local interest in the matter but in the interests of sobriety and honesty we would like to have some provision for the entire state that would wipe out the drug store and other incentives to drunkenness.

"The democratic party demands in state affairs equality of taxation for its citizens—that the corporations of the state bear equal burdens with other taxpayers. They do not believe that corporation influence should be strong enough to oblige the state to lower the assessment of corporation property, while the assessed valuation of individual property is largely increased.

"In Scott county the assessed valuation of all property during the last ten years has increased over 35 per cent while the assessed value per mile of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific company in the county decreased from $12,600 for the main line in 1900. The assessment of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern and other lines have remained at the same valuation. In 1900 the assessed valuation of lots and lands in Scott county was $7,605,514. In 1901 they are assessed at $9,090,995. During these ten years the betterments of railroad property both locally and for the whole lines have been greater in proportion than the improvement of farm lands and city lots. This is evidenced if in no other way by the increased selling value of the stocks of railroads. According to the report of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway company in 1899 to the Inter State Commerce Commission the funded debt of the Rock Island amounted to $22,089 per mile, and the stock outstanding to $17,075 a mile. This stock was worth a few days ago on the Chicago market $175.00 per share, which would make the value of the road, according to the ordinary method of assessing property, $35,874 per mile. It is said that the C., R. I. & P. Railway company is one of the roads that has not been able to get the ear of the executive council.

"The valuation of individual property of the state has steadily increased during the past ten years. The railway assessment has decreased from $5,319 in 1891 to $5,042 per mile in 1900 taxable value, while the earnings have increased from $4,522 per mile in 1891 to $5,697 in 1900. There can be no excuse for this except the favor of the executive council charged with the assessment of corporate property.

"The idea of the statutes of Iowa is that all property for purposes of taxation shall be valued at its fair market value. Your property is so valued. If your farm be mortgaged for $10,000 and your equity in it is worth—or if you are able to sell it for $10,000 subject to the mortgage—it is the duty of the assessor under the law to put a valuation of $20,000 on it. If a railroad corporation is mortgaged or bonded for $20,000,000 and its stock which represents the equity in the property is worth $50,000,000, it is the duty of the assessing body to value it for taxation at $70,000,000.

"Railroad lawyers with political influence ought not to be able to induce the executive council to say its value is one-half or even 99 per cent of that sum. The same rule applies to telegraph, telephone and express companies—to gas and electric companies, water companies, street railway companies and every other corporation having valuable franchises and earning capacity. They should be assessed on the selling value of their stock. It is the only legal, the only just and equitable method of assessment and the courts uphold it.

"The supreme court of Michigan recently held that the Detroit Street Railway company was property assessed for $2,000,000 over and above the value of its tangible property as represented by its tracks, ties and rails and cars and stations.

"The supreme court of Ohio has held that an express company ought to be assessed for something more than the horse and wagon and office furniture with which it does business in any locality. Its right to do business in different states—to tax the people for performing a public service, is worth at whatever its earning capacity fixes the value of its charter.

"If the state is not able to get at the proper proportion of the property of a railroad, express company, telegraph or sleeping car company doing an interstate business, let some commission or bureau of the federal government be charged with putting a fair valuation upon the entire property of such corporation and then apportion it justly among the states for local taxation.

"Ex-Senator Edmunds says: 'Unequal taxation is the most galling and destructive of all forms of tyranny.' The people of this state agree with him. Just government ceases when even a dollar is taken from one taxpayer because some corporation or individual pays less than his share. Taking one single dollar unjustly is no better than highway robbery, it is a crime on the part of the state.

"It should be the work of this convention to emphatically declare for equality in the taxation. The republican party will never assessment of all property for purposes of settle this question in the state of Iowa. They may resolve in county and state convention in favor of it, but they are unable to accomplish it. Horace Boies tried to do with a republican majority on the executive council and he failed. Senator Cheshire has tried to get a republican legislature to provide for it and he too failed. There is no hope of relief in the election of Mr. Cummins. There is no promise in the platform on which he is seeking election. The fight between Mr. Cummins and Mr. Blythe and Mr. Hubbard was a fight between rival railroads. The railroads which John Herriott said were favored were turned down and the railroads that were 'kicking' seek to get the favor of the executive council by placing one of their attorneys on the council.

"The people of the state, their rights and their interests, have not been taken into account, and no word has escaped Mr. Cummins before or since he won his great fight that he would favor equality of taxation between the railroads whose attorney he is not and the property of the farmers and factories and lot owners of the state."

Committees were then announed as follows:

State Central Committee—First, N. C. Roberts of Fort Madison; Second, Charles G. Hippell of Davenport; Third, E. M. Carr of Manchester; Fourth, Senator D. A. Lyons of Cresco (hold over); Fifth, A. E. Jackson of Tama; Sixth, S. F. McConnell of Bloomfield; Seventh, George A. Huffman of Des Moines (hold over); Eighth, A. W. Maxwell of Seymour; Ninth, S. B. Morrisey of Harlan; Eleventh, J. H. Quick of Woodbury (hold over).

Resolutions—John J. Seerley of Burlington; Second, W. D. Ely of Scott; Third, W. M. Higbee of Fairbank; Fourth, H. C. Bishop of Elkader; Fifth, M. E. Jackson of Tipton; Sixth, D. W. Hamilton of Sigourney; Seventh, Walter H. Butler of Polk; Eighth, Claude Porter of Centerville; Ninth, W. F. Cleveland of Harlan; Tenth, John L. Powers of Carroll; Eleventh, E. C. Herrick of Cherokee.

Credentials—First, E. H. Rockwell of Van Buren; Second, A. Brandt of Maquoketa; Third, W. S. Porter of Hardin; Fourth, Elmer Benton of Clayton; Fifth, John Baum of Garrison; Sixth, Fred Townsend of Albia; Seventh, Lee Evans of Madison; Eighth, Ben Wildener of Corning; Ninth, J. D. Goss of Atlantic; Tenth, D. A. Roy of Humboldt; Eleventh, Frank Harvey of Monona.

Permanent Organization—First, P. J. Hanley of Washington; Second, C. A. Caldren of Muscatine; Third, John B. Wade of Butler; Fourth, R. N. Douglass of Postville; Fifth, J. A. Green of Story City; Sixth, W. C. Anderson of Oskaloosa; Seventh, James McNeil of Warren; Eighth, J. W. Freeland of Corydon; Ninth, C. Dennis of Red Oak; Tenth, E. C. Jordan of Boone; Eleventh, James Parson of Rock Rapids.

Vice Presidents—First, John F. Leach of Henry; Second, G. W. Ball of Iowa City; Third, F. P. Hagerman of Bremer; Fourth, W. B. Meade of Howard; Fifth, A. T. Lowof Marshall; Sixth, John W. Jones of Brooklyn; Seventh, J. S. Cunningham of Knoxville; Eighth, J. I. Shepherd of Mt. Ayr; Ninth, R. M. Harris of Missouri Valley; Tenth, W. M. Thompson of Rutland; Eleventh, A. P. Cramer of LeMars.

At 2:15 Temporary Chairman Sharon called the convention to order and report of credentials was heard and adopted.

The report of the committee on permanent organization recommended John M. Redmond of Cedar Rapids for permanent chairman and that the remainder of the temporary organization be made permanent was adopted.

Mr. Redmond on taking the chair, said among other things:

I desire to thank you for this unexpected honor. I do not care to take up your time here this afternoon by making a speech. I want to say, however, that this is one of the proudest moments of my life. From my youth up have I been a democrat. I have been a democrat because I believe the democratic party is an organization, not only of force, but possessed of a conscience. I have but one hope—one wish for the democratic party of Iowa today, and that is that there may be peace and harmony in this convention. I cast my ballot for the first democratic candidate since the war, and I cast my last ballot for the man who, above all others, should have been the democratic president (Great and prolonged applause) and saved us the disgrace of having the republican stump speakers ridiculing the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States.

Mr. Redmond again thanked the convention and made ready to sit down. There were cries of "Go on! Go on!" from the audience, and the chairman after ascertaining that the committee on resolutions was not ready to report, spoke ten minutes longer on the issues of the day and eulogizing the party.

C. A. Wendle, the well known newspaper man of Chicago, was called for. Mr. Wendle made a stirring and humorous address that aroused laughter and applause at frequent intervals.

Sam P. Wright of Tipton addressed the convention on the shortcomings of the republican party and the need of democratic harmony.

D. J. O'Connell of Keokuk made a plea for democratic harmony. "Never," he said, "has the outlook for the democratic party in Iowa been more auspicious than at present, if the democrats would only settle their differences in the convention hall.

The majority report of the committee on resolutions was read by Chairman Cleveland. In effect it adopted the democratic platform in a general way with no specific reference to silver. Upon its reading, Walt Butler gained the floor and presented the minority report, which was an out and out endorsement of the Kansas City platform and free silver. No sooner had he read the first sentence relating to silver than half the delegates were on their feet wildly cheering the reader and the minority report. Mr. Butler followed the reading by a short and decisive address in favor of the Kansas City platform and free silver.

D. W. Hamilton, of Sigourney, at the close of Mr. Butler's remarks offered a second minority report in which it was declared that the state issues were paramount though none of the principles of the national platform should be repudiated.

Walt. Butler immediately rose to a point of order declaring that a second minority report could not be adopted. He was sustained by the chair, and a vote on Butler's substitute was declared in order and balloting began after order had been restored. The majority report follows:

We, the democrats of Iowa, in convention assembled, do hereby declare and adopt the following declaration of principles:

"Resolved, That the fundamental principle of democracy, "equal rights to all and special privileges to none," applies in full force to the subject of taxation. The democratic party believes that the burdens of taxation should be borne equally by all taxable property. We pledge our members of the general assembly to formulate and urge the adoption of such a law as will compel the burdens of taxation to rest on corporate and individual property alike without favor or exemption of any interests.

"We demand economy in the administration of state affairs, the repeal of the muict law, the enactment of a local option law, the abolition of the offices of state printer and state binder and the contracting for supplies for the state with the lowest responsible bidder.

"We cordially invite all honest men of the state to unite with us in securing the enactment of these principles into law."

The minority report was the same as the majority report, with the following preamble:

We, the democrats of Iowa, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirm the principles of the democratic national platform adopted at Kansas City July 5, 1900, and without surrendering our convictions or abating our loyalty to our national policies, we believe this campaign to be particularly one that should be confined to state issues.

The second minority report, declared out of order, was as follows:

We, the democrats of Iowa, in convention assembled, make the following declaration of principles:

"We hold that in this campaign state issues are paramount while not retracting or repudiating any past declarations of the democratic party, we deem it our duty at this time, waiving questions of national politics, to address ourselves to the redemption of Iowa from republican misrule.

"In all other respects, same as majority report."

The motion to substitute the minority report for the majority report carried by a vote of 669 3-5 to 550 2-5.

After the announcement of the adoption of the Butler substitute, Judge Wade moved to substitute for the preamble of the platform as amended the Quick resolution presented by Mr. Hamilton. The chair ruled that the motion could not be entertained since it proposed a substitute for a substitute. Pandemonium immediately reigned. Men were on their feet endeavoring to convince the chair that the substitute having been adopted became the report of the amendment and was subject to amendment, adoption or rejection by the convention. Other motions similar to Judge Wade's were offered but unheeded. During the discussion some one moved to proceed with the nomination of a candidate for governor. The motion was put and carried. Then the discussion of Judge Wade's motion was resumed. E. M. Sharon gained the chair's attention and after insisting on the appropriateness of the motion, renewed it. The chair then announced his final decision. It was that the Butler substitute, having been adopted, it became the platform of the convention. Final action had been taken and it could only be tampered with through a motion to reconsider. Mr. Sharon insisted that a substitute had simply been adopted for the original report and that the report as amended through the substitute had never been adopted by the convention. The chair held to his ruling and Mr. Sharon appealed. The point of order was then raised that business had intervened, that the convention had voted to proceed with the nomination of a candidate for governor and that nothing else could be taken up. The point of order was sustained.

Before the nomination of a candidate for governor was begun Cato Sells gained the floor. He asked unanimous consent to present a resolution to the convention. There cries of "no," "no." Mr. Sells then explained that his resolution dealt with the taxation question, but the delegates persisted in refusing him a hearing and he retired with his manuscript in his hands.

The committee then proceeded to the nomination of a ticket. Judge Caldwell of Tama county nominated H. J. Stiger of Toledo, and John R. Lewis of Ottumwa nominated Thomas J. Phillips, former mayor of Ottumwa. The first ballot resulted: Phillips, 526; Stiger, 562; Weaver, 20; Redmond, 13; Ball, 10. On the second ballot Phillips was nominated by a vote of 595½ to 589½ for Stiger.

When it came to the nomination of the lieutenant governor several names were presented, among them that of Cato Sells of Vinton. G. E. Ferguson of Logan, Harrison county was put in nomination, Lou Genung of Mills county was named, but he took the stage and declined the honor. W. T. Davis of Fremont county was nominated but declined. All other names having been withdrawn, Mr. Ferguson was nominated by acclamation.

There were three candidates for superintendent of schools, Samuel D. Whiting of Johnson, William D. Johnson of Iowa county, superintendent of schools at Carroll, and Logan Steece of Des Moines county. Mr. Johnson was nominated on the first ballot, by the following vote: Whiting, 323½; Steece, 84; Johnson, 524½.

Fred White was nominated for railroad commissioner. Mr. White declined. He said he was physically unable to make the canvass and did not believe any democrat there desired to put any more burdens on him. A. C. Brice of Taylor county was then nominated for the office by acclamation.

A committee of three, consisting of John Green of Jones, John M. Lewis of Wapello and J. J. McMahon of Tama was named to notify Mr. Phillips of his nomination.

It was 7:30 when the proceedings were brought to a close.

THE CANDIDATES.

T. J. Phillips, candidate for governor, is superintendent of the Whitebreast Fuel company mines in Iowa and Illinois. He is a practical miner, having commenced as a miner's assistant when 7 years old. He rose by merit through successive stages to his present position with the Whitebreast company. He served one term as mayor of Ottumwa and is reputed to have given the city an excellent business administration. He is said to be popular among the miners and laboring men, where he is best known.

George E. Ferguson, candidate for lieutenant governor, is editor of the Logan Nucleus and is one of the best known of the younger newspaper editors of the state. He was born in Marshalltown in 1866. In 1879 his family moved to Carroll county. He received his early education in the Manning schools. Later he learned the printer's trade and worked in Manning and Council Bluffs. In 1893 he went from the Council Bluffs Globe to Logan, where he took charge of the Nucleus, which he has made a highly successful paper. In 1894 he was chosen chairman of the Harrison county democratic central committee. The year before the democrats polled 1,400 votes in the county. The democratic vote in 1894, under his direction of the campaign, increased to 1,800; and in 1895 it was 2,300, and in 1896 3,200. Mr. Ferguson was a delegate to the national democratic convention in 1896, and secretary of the state convention at Dubuque, the same year.

John Shortley, of Perry, Dallas county, was born in Wisconsin in 1851 on a farm and attended the rural schools and farmed during his boyhood days. He drove a team to Iowa in 1868 and lived on a farm near New Hampton, Chickasaw county. He farmed and taught school in his younger days and earned money to take him into Upper Iowa university, where he graduated from the law class in 1874. He was in the same class with ex-Governor Jackson and Judge Carr of Manchester. He began practice with Judge Scott of Brooklyn and continued four years, when he went to Perry, where he has since resided. He was in partnership with H. H. Cardell, now deceased, for a number of years. Mr. Shortley has a large practice and has been very successful. He was formerly a republican but went over to the democrats about twelve years ago on the tariff and other questions and has been a consistent democrat ever since.

W. B. Johnson, candidate for state superintendent, is a resident of Iowa county, but at present employed as superintendent of the Carroll public schools. He stands well as an educator.

A. C. Brice, candidate for railroad commissioner, is one of the best known residents of Taylor county. He was appointed consul to Matanzas, Cuba, by President Cleveland and served until after the close of the Spanish-American war. During the trying times which succeeded the blowing up of the Maine he rendered distinguished services, secret and otherwise, to the government and received especial mention from the state department for his work. Mr Brice is an old soldier.

One of the most popular "spielers" of the Midway at the Pan-American exposition is a man with a cigar stand in front of the Soft Drinks' building, as it is officially called. One of the waitresses partook too liberally of soft drinks the other day, and the ambulance was sent for. It pulled up in front of the cigar stand, and had barely stopped when the cigar man took advantage of the situation to do business with the crowd. "Here you are!" he shouted; "anybody that wants to get a ride in the ambulance just buy one of these here cigars. Smoke one o' these cigars an' the ambulance 'll ride you right down to the hospital." A man who was passing and had not heard the invitation stepped up to buy a cigar. "That's right!" shouted the dealer; "here's one man that wants to ride in the ambulance. Anybody else like to go? One cigar warranted to do the business. A trip in the ambulance goes with every cigar. No blanks. No extra charge. Only five cents for a cigar and an ambulance ride thrown in. No such bargain anywhere else on the grounds!"

No century has ever begun on a Wednesday, a Friday, or a Sunday, and the same order of days is repeated every twenty years. January and October of each year always begin with the same day. So with April and July, so with September and December, so with February, March and November.

A quick and easy way to change the atmosphere in an invalid's room is to pour cologne into a soup plate and set fire to it. The spirit will make a pretty flame, and impart a delightfully refreshing odor to the air.

Several colonies of stingless bees have been discovered in the island of Montserrat, in the West Indies. Efforts are being made to introduce them in this country, as their honey-producing qualities are fully equal to those of the common variety of bee.

A Son's Devotion.

Wallace, Mich., August 26th: — A striking example of a man's dutiful and attentive care of his mother is seen in Mr. Oscar Swanson of this place.

Mr. Swanson's mother has suffered much with Kidney and Urinal Trouble and Female Weakness. Her son has sought out and procured for her everything that he thought could possibly benefit her.

She did not improve, till at last he bought her a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. In a few days she was completely cured, and her faithful son has the reward for his loving efforts, in the knowledge that she is now strong and well.

Norway and Sweden also reported damage by the hot winds. Even the midnight sun seemed to be warming up a bit.

Millions of Mothers

USE CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin of infants and children, for rashes, itchings, and chafings, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use Cuticura Soap in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour,

Cuticura THE SET Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. HON. THOMAS J. PHILLIPS.

In the examination paper of a Philadelphia school boy he was required to name the vital organs of the human body. This is what he wrote: "Heart, liver, lungs and lights. These are the eternal organs."

A minister in a Kansas town regretfully learned that the church collections were diminishing in amount. On a recent Sabbath he informed his congregation, just before the plates were passed round, that the members who were in debt were not expected to contribute. To his delight he later was informed that the collection was double the usual sum.

Thomas W. Lawson, owner of the Independence, is something of a fatalist. The toss of a coin has determined for him more than one stock transaction. He believes that whatever befalls after a man has done his best is part of a grand scheme of the total of human events. He believes in the good luck of certain numerals. The figure 3 or its multiples appear in all his affairs. His office is at 33 State street, Boston. His telephones are 33 and 3339, respectively. His yacht's first sailing test took place on the 3d of June. He wears a watch chain consisting of 333 gold beads.

Tanner, of fasting fame, now 68 years old, has challenged the brewers of Denver to a fasting contest. Six men are to drink beer only, and he is to drink water. The brewers have agreed to the contest.

James Smith, of "Rejected Addresses" fame, who never married, thus wrote in his journal: "I have had a horrid dream, viz., that I was engaged to be married. Introduced to my bride, a simpering young woman with flaxen hair, in white gloves. Just going to declare off—coute que coute, when to my inexpressible relief, I awoke."

Poverty is no disgrace to a man, but it is confoundedly inconvenient.

A rare phenomenon attended an earthquake that visited a little town in Mexico. Having wrecked several houses in the town, the tremor passed on to a lake in the neighborhood, the water of which it put into violent agitation. The agitation ceased after a few minutes, and then the water gradually disappeared, leaving the bottom of the lake exposed, when it was seen that the earthquake had opened a fissure in the bottom, and thus drained it.

TRADE EMBLEMS.

Not So Common in the Streets of Large Cities as Formerly.

"Like other things here below, trade emblems undergo a change in the course of time," said a cigar dealer to a Washington Star reporter.

"Twenty years ago in front of every cigar store in the large cities stood the silent emblem of the tobacconist's calling, the wooden Indian, holding invitingly in his right hand a bundle of cigars or a bunch of tobacco leaf. If a man wanted to find a cigar store his eye wandered up and down the street in search of the wooden warrior. The wooden image gave way to the more elaborate figure of the untutored red man of cast iron, and now, sad, though true be the fact, the ferruginous cast is being relegated to the junk shop.

There are only a few of these images left in Washington, and in my trips to other cities I have noted their disappearance to a considerable extent. Why it is so I cannot say, unless it is that the tobacconist of today is too tired to roll his warrior out in the morning and pull him back at night, if he takes such good care of him.

"The Indian is an appropriate emblem for the tobacconist, but it cannot be said that a red and white striped pole surmounted by a blue ground with stars is appropriate to the barber's trade, as the national colors have nothing to do with that business. It is purely an arbitrary assumption of an emblem, the origin of which I never saw satisfactorily explained.

"The druggist of to-day does not display his emblem of mortar and pestal with such frequency as of old. Now that they have gone so extensively into the notion and toilet article trade perhaps the association of the pill mixer is repugnant to the compounders of prescriptions.

"When Maiden lane, in New York, marked the limits of the retail trade district of the metropolis on some tailors' signs would be seen the emblem of a lamb suspended in a sling of cloth tied at the ends. This appropriate emblem of woolen goods was brought from England, where it is to be seen now frequently upon the signs of the drapers and tailors' shops. The present generation in this country never saw this emblem here.

"If you see a painting of a high glass, with or without a side handle, but always with the representation of a lot of soapsuds flowing over the top, you may bet your last cent that inside of that window you can buy a glass of beer for a nickel.

"There are no gold beaters in Washington, but in the vicinity of South Fifth avenue and Prince streets, New York, pretty much all of the gold leaf used in this country is pounded into the neat little thin golden sheets used in the trade. In front of all of these places is either a sign or gilded wooden arm of muscular proportions bared to the elbow, with the hand clutching tightly the gold beater's mallet. A painter knows this sign as quickly as a thirsty man recognizes the schooner of beer.

"The pawnbroker will never take in the well-known three balls. Years ago one would see on a liveryman's sign the picture of a horse in motion, but now they are to be observed only in the smaller cities and towns. The blacksmith still keeps the horseshoe in front of his shop, while occasionally is to be observed the saw, plane and square of the carpenter. A good emblem for the plumber would be his proverbial bill. Old residents will recall the big boots which used to be placed in front of shoe stores on the pavement or suspended above the door, but now the emblem is relegated to the cobbler. The artist and painter have the palette with brushes through the thumbhole, the jeweler his street clock, and the optician the big spectacles. In short, all trade emblems are appropriate to their business except the barber's."

A FINE DISTINCTION.

Drug Clerk Has Not Got It Quite Clear Yet

A young downtown drug clerk who had heard the story of the colored woman who had asked for flesh-colored court plaster and was given black by the observant dealer, stored the incident away in his mental dust box, and decided to use it at the first opportunity. He had not long to wait, for a few nights ago a comely colored girl stepped into the store where he was employed. "Ah wants some co't plaster," she said.

"What color?" inquired the clerk, with affected nonchalance.

"Flesh cullah, sah."

Trembling in his shoes, and keeping within easy reach of a heavy pestle, the clerk handed the woman a box of black court plaster, and he was surprised at the time that the situation afforded so little humor. The woman opened the box with a deliberation that was ominous, but she was unruffled when she noted the color of the contents.

"Ah guess you mus' 'a' misunderstood mah ordah. Ah asked foh flesh cullah, an' yo' done give me skin cullah."

The drug clerk is still a little dazed from the encounter, and he has firmly resolved to subject every joke to rigid laboratory test hereafter before using.—Pittsburgh Daily News.

WE CAN PRINT YOUR SALE BILLS.

Workidg Night and Day.

The busiess and mightiest little thing ahat ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Harr.

Josh Westhafer, of Logootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer" writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. Its simply wonderful for Burns, Boils Piles, and all skin eruptions. Its the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Harr.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disiase germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's DrugStore.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea.

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Fred Bock has built a new cattle shed and hen house on his farm.

John Braund has given up farming to learn to be a tonsoril artist.

Ike Ptacek one of our banner farmers has a new banner wagon with yaller wheels.

Prarie chickens will soon be ripe and there is no scarcity of help to harvest them.

Mrs. Temby, of Crystal Lake, visited her daughter here, Mrs. Ed. Quintus, last week.

Several from here attended the District Conference at Garner Tuesday and Wednesday.

There will be a social held at Pleasant Mound school house Thursday evening Sept. 5th. Ladies are requested to bring lunches for two persons. Proceeds to apply on pastor's salary.

The schools have nearly all commenced this week with the following corps of teachers:

Ell Center, ... Miss Cramer.
Gilbert..... Miss Smalley.
Groesbeck..... Miss Hubburd.
Buelah..... Miss Hubbard.

There was a good sized audience at Pleasant Mound Sabbath listening to the Missionary program which was well rendered. The people were deeply impressed with the services, and responded liberally to the collection.

Fred Sycameyers house caught fire from the kitchen stove last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Sycameyer was alone at the time and with great presence of mind gave the alarm. with the assistance of the neighbors the fire was extinguished and only the roof was badly burned. The carpet was injured with water. Fortunately the house and household goods were insured and the carpenters were on hand the next morning to repair the loss.

Last Friday was a red letter day for Ell Center, the weather was all that could be desired and at an early hour people arrived and at noon 200 were present. The parade was a good one, then came dinner which was a feast, followed by the race, the ball game, etc., and so ended one of the happiest days spent in this part of the county.

Chas. Ford and wife of Concord, formerly old time residents of this township attended the picnic here and renewed old acquaintances.

Just to assist the Meservey people with their celebration a number of the Belmond boys got together on short notice and went up there last Saturday and played the combined Meservey and Klemme teams and were defeated by a score of 5 to 3, not a bad game, but it seemed to swell the heads of the Klemme contingent and if the team from that burg wants a $25 or $50 game with Belmond, we think, they can be accomodated.—Iowa Valley Press, of Belmond.

That's right Walter, the heads of the Klemme 'contingent' did swell, but none have cracked as yet The Belmond 'contingent' —Oh my!—they were not sore —Oh no! but just kind 'o sick looking, that's all. You have our sympathy, Walter. Say Walter, back up your windy weather, Walter, by putting up your money, Walter, in the Iowa Valley Bank, Walter. Then Walter,—honestly now Walter—we will cover it for you, Walter, and play the game, Walter, any time you wish, Walter, to your heart's content, Walter. You sprung the bluff, Walter, and are the one, Walter, to put your coin, Walter, so we can 'call,' Walter. When that is done you will have a chance to get into tha game, my Walter, Alter, Ter

A Grand International Speed Contest for the Pan-American Exposition

THE Queen City of the Lakes, with her beautiful tree-embowered streets and parkways, will this summer be the Mecca of the automobilists of the Americas.

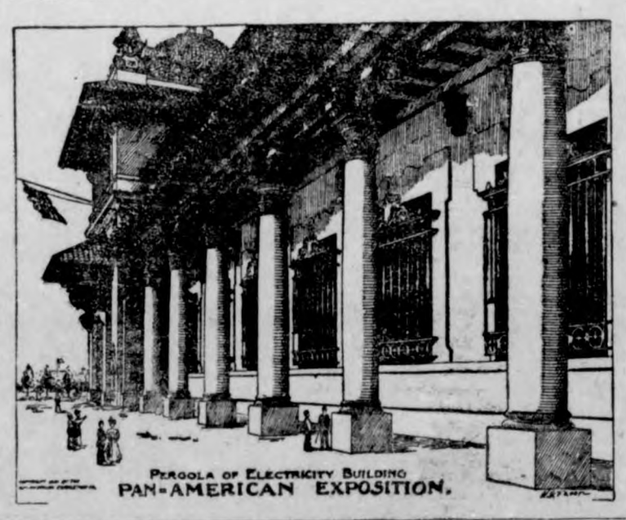
As a result of a conference held in Buffalo between William I. Buchanan, director general of the Pan-American exposition, and a committee appointed by the board of governors of the Automobile Club of America, consisting of Albert C. Bostwick, Percy Owen and J. M. Hill, all of New York city, together with Thomas M. Moore, superintendent of transportation exhibits, and the sports and athletics committee of the exposition, it was decided to hold a grand international road race of 200 miles from Buffalo to Erie and return as the culmination of a week of automobile sports at the Pan-American exposition.

To arrange and carry out the programme of the tournament Director General Buchanan has appointed a committee of automobilists to act in connection with the sports and athletics committee of the exposition.

Mr. Malcolm W. Ford will be chairman of the special committee, and his associates will be Mr. J. M. Hill, who will represent the electrical vehicle interests; Mr. Percy Owen, representing the gasoline vehicle interests, and Mr. S. T. Davis, Jr., representing steam vehicle interests. All four are members of the Automobile Club of America, and Mr. Davis is also president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers. The fifth member of the committee is Dr. Truman J. Martin, president of the Buffalo Automobile club.

Though the programme of the tournament, which will be held in the stadium, has not been arranged, it has been suggested that trials to test the mobility and economy of the various types of motor vehicles, obstacle and hill-climbing contests, brake contests and pursuit races be included in it.

The tournament will take place during the week beginning September 16. It is intended that the international speed contest over the famous Buffalo-Erie course shall rank with the famous long-distance automobile races held annually in France. This contest will be the feature of the week of automobile sports and tests, and will be open to self-propelled vehicles of all types and all countries. Large purses and valuable cups and medals will be presented to the winners.



PERGOLA OF ELECTRICITY BUILDING
PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

During the week preceding that of the motor vehicle tournament at the Pan-American exposition the Automobile club of America will hold a tour or endurance test from New York to Buffalo as a practical demonstration of the utility of motor vehicles.

This run will not be a speed contest, as the object of the trip is to demonstrate the possibilities of the various types of motor vehicles under all conditions of weather and roads.

Automobilists of all countries are invited to participate, and valuable cups and medals will be given as prizes.

The course is to be up the Hudson to Albany and thence across the state to Buffalo, a distance of about 400 miles.

The route to be followed will be definitely fixed by a committee appointed by Mr. A. R. Shattuck, president of the Automobile Club of America.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Doller. Seven Years In Bed.

"Will wonders never cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk, she writes, and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from headaches, backache, Nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Harr. Only 50c.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Post-Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly tasteless pleasant to the taste, and can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temperate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Sept. 2, 1901.

Auditor of State Merriam has completed his report of business done in the past two years by building and loan associations. The report shows there are 20 less companies engaged in business now than at the time of the close of the report first preceding the one just issued. This tends to emphasize the effect of the laws passed by the legislature at its last session and of which the building and loan companies bitterly complain. A decrease in receipts in the two years is reported amounting to $1,272,940.51.

John H. Charles, who will long be remembered in Iowa and the middle west as the projector of the Floyd monument at Sioux City, has just sent to the Iowa Horticultural department a scarce and highly important book of early travels in the regions bordering on Lake Superior and the upper Mississippi. The full title of the book is as follows: "Travels through the interior parts of North America in the years 1766, 1767 and 1768. By J. Carver, Esq., Captain of a company of Provincial troops during the late war with France. Illustrated with Copperplates. London. Printed for the author, and sold by J. Walter, at Charingcross, and S. Crowder, in Pater-noster Row, MDCCLXVIII." This is a copy of the original edition. It contains an interesting account of the travels of an explorer whose name will be perpetuated in Minnesota. There is in that state a town of Carver, and a county and river bearing the same name. Carver's Cave is within the suburbs of the city of St. Paul. The Jonathan Carver centenary was celebrated by the Minnesota Historical society in 1867. Neill's "History of Minnesota" contains an excellent account of the work of this early explorer. The book donated by Mr. Charles is illustrated with four fine copperplate engravings and two most interesting and valuable maps of the country as it was known in Carver's time. The book is in excellent condition and is in every respect an important acquisition. The saddest fact connected with the life of Jonathan Carver is that his explorations and publications reduced him to extreme poverty.

A complete survey of a line of road from one point on the Great Western near Des Moines to a point on the roads recently purchased, Mason City and Fort Dodge division near Lehigh, will be made during the fall and winter months. A line will be located and it is the intention to build it next season and to have it in operation about the same time the company's new lines to Sioux City and Omaha will be completed. This decision on the part of the Great Western will give Des Moines another St. Paul route; will open a new territory along the Des Moines river not now reached by a direct Des Moines line, and will also afford a new state line as well as a third route through an almost entirely new territory to Sioux City. While the new connections will undoubtedly result in great benefits to the brick, coal, jobbing and manufacturing interests of the city and open to them a lot of new territory, it is not this that the Great Western is looking to. It is seeking a short line from Kansas City to St. Paul and Minneapolis. At present the route is via Oelwein. The new route will shorten the distance about sixty miles and will give the Great Western with its new lines to Sioux City and Omaha the shortest routes between those cities and Kansas City to Chicago as well as the shortest existing Omaha-Kansas City and St. Paul-Minneapolis routes

As far as it is possible to estimate, the receipts of the fair this year will not fall greatly behind those of last year, in spite of the fact that it rained Thursday and other conditions were more or less unfavorable. At a meeting of the board of directors, Treasurer Ellyson reported that to date he had received $43,429.50, as compared with a total of $18,521.49 last year. He estimated that he will receive $1,000 or $1,100 from the different departments yet, and besides there are 6,800 tickets sold by the railroads which have not been paid for, and will not be, until he turns the tickets over to them. This will make $3,400 more. The total receipts, therefore, are estimated at $47,929.50, or slightly less than those of last year.

A movement has been started in Des Moines to secure the passage by the Iowa legislature next winter of a land registration law similar to the Torrens law of New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and California. Local real estate men and money lenders are interested in the movement and will seek the support of all the members of the general assembly. Some opposition from lawyers and abstract men is anticipated, but it is expected to overcome this by making a campaign of education for the measure, which, it is claimed, will be one of the greatest money saving laws for the mass of the people ever enacted in Iowa.

The Torrens law establishes a state commission for the examination of abstracts of titles, and makes the acts of that commission effective and permanent. When the seal of the state commission is affixed to a certificate of title to the ownership of a piece of land, the validity of the title is unquestionable. Instead of going back to the government grant of lands, property owners who wish to sell, or to borrow money on their lands, are obliged to trace their title back only so far as the certificate of the state commission. Freedom, security and cheapness of land transfer are the primary merits claimed by friends of the Torrens system.

COLOMBIAN ARMY IN VENEZUELA.

Two Thousand Men Go to Force Castro's Downfall.

New York, Aug. 29.—A revolutionary force of 2,000 men has pushed its way over the border from Colombia into Venezuela, says the Colon correspondent of the Herald. This force, the correspondent hears, is to aid in the overthrow of President Castro. When, it is said, his downfall is accomplished, a similar plan will be followed in Nicaragua.

Trouble is imminent on both the eastern and the southern boundaries of Colombia. Troops have been rushed in both directions and the frontiers of Venezuela and of Ecuador are lined with armed men, ready to advance at a moment's notice.

Town Lots Sold for $659,427.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Reports at the general land office show that the total receipts from the sale of lots in the new towns in Oklahoma to August 24 aggregated $659,427. The sales were: In Lawton, 1,068 lots for $351,805; in Anadarko, 1,043 lots for $179,245; in Hobart, 1,123 lots for $128,377. Mr. Richards, the assistant commissioner, who has had general charge of the sales, estimates that the disposition of the remaining lots will bring the grand total up to $700,000.

In Sweden purchase of medicines from abroad by individuals is forbidden by law.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

OSTEOPATHS WIN A VICTORY.

Demurrer Filed by State in Mandamus Case Is Overruled.

Des Moines, Aug. 29.—Judge S. F. Prouty has overruled the demurrer of Milton Remley, on behalf of the state board of medical examiners, to the petition of C. L. Parsons, of Eagle Grove, for a writ of mandamus compelling the board to issue him a certificate to practice osteopathy in Iowa, under the osteopathic state law.

This is a great victory for the S. S. still College of Osteopathy, of Des Moines. It compels the state to justify and defend its refusal to grant these certificates. Its demurrer to Parsons' petition set up two reasons. One was the alleged unconstitutionality of the osteopathic law; the other was the claim that the board of medical examiners is the sole arbiter of the administration of the law. The court overruled the motion based on these grounds, and it is doubtful if the board, in view of that adverse ruling, will carry the case farther or even appeal from Judge Prouty's decision.

Practically, therefore, the petition will give the graduates of S. S. Still College a right to the state certicates. It is true that they can already lawfully practice osteopathy in Iowa. Now they will come under state sanction and administration.

EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE.

Serious Accident Resulting in Probably Fatal Injury at Corydon.

Corydon, Aug. 31.—An explosion of dynamite occurred at the hardware store of the E. A. Rea company, resulting in the injury of two men, employes of the Rea company. John Parnham, the tinner of the store, and his assistant, E. E. Evans, were soldering up a tin can of dynamite for the purpose of blowing out some kind of obstruction in a well being bored at the store, when by some accident the explosive was discharged, resulting in the injury of both Parnham and Evans. The latter had both eyes blown out, left arm blown off below the elbow and was otherwise injured by the laceration of tissues about the face and arms. Evans is seriously hurt and will most likely die. Parnham's injuries were less serious, he losing one finger and having tissues lacerated. The building and shop was damaged, but not to the extent that might have been expected from the discharge of half a pound of dynamite. Three other men were close by in the shop with the workmen, but miraculously escaped injury. Evans is 45 years of age and single.

CLEVER DETECTIVE WORK.

Northwestern Railway Detective Recovers a Diamond Worth $150.

Des Moines, Aug. 31.—W. F. Reilley, chief detective for the Northwestern railway, recovered a $150 diamond which had been stolen from M. D. Gates of Kingsley at the Ames depot. Reilley learned, when he came to Des Moines, that Tom Gohegan and "Kid" Nichols had been jailed by the city detectives, to be kept out of circulation during the fair. He spotted them as possible participants in the diamond robbery, and went after them. He kept two of the gang in custody, while a third was ordered to produce the diamond, or all three would be sent over the road. The scheme worked. The diamond was produced. The thieves had screwed the stone, in a shirt stud, from Gates' shirt while the crowd of passengers was hurrying to get off the train at Ames. In accordance with his agreement with the thieves, Reilley turned all of them loose when the diamond was returned.

WENNERSTRUM IS PRESIDENT.

Scandinavian Republican League Meets at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Aug. 31.—State Labor Commissioner Wennerstrum was unanimously elected president of the Scandinavian Republican League of Iowa, which met here in annual session. The recent republican nominations by the Cedar Rapids convention were ratified. Officers for the ensuing year were elected. Ole O. Roe is the retiring president and C. F. Wennerstrum is the retiring secretary. Speeches were made by Congressman G. N. Haugen, former State Committeeman John T. Krug, former Senator C. J. A. Erickson of Boone, C. I. Dahlberg of Des Moines and President Ole O. Roe and Ole Nelson of Slater. Haugen, Nelson and Roe represented the Norwegians and Dahlberg, Ericson and Krug the Swedes.

SENATORIAL DEADLOCK BROKEN

F. G. Hartshorn of Wright County Nominated on 3337th Ballot.

Webster City, Aug. 29.—After being in session five days, the Twenty-seventh district senatorial convention has finished its work. On the 3,337th ballot Hardin county cast her twenty votes for F. G. Hartshorn, of Wright county, making him the nominee. The best of feeling prevailed throughout the prolonged contest and the nominee will receive the full party vote at the polls.

Disastrous Fire at Scranton.

Scranton, Aug. 31.—The most terrible fire in the history of Scranton raged here for one hour, and as a result twenty buildings are totally destroyed and others damaged and a block and a half of Main street is covered with ashes. The fire was discovered in the hay loft of John Mosteller's Main street livery barn at 11 p. m., and at 12 p. m. the destruction had been accomplished. The total loss is given at $33,750, and the total insurance $18,000. No clew to the origin of the fire exists. The buildings destroyed are among the oldest in the town and were all frames. The burned district extends from the livery barn to the railroad, and everything on both sides of the block is destroyed.

Lost $100,000; Dies a Pauper.

Dubuque, Aug. 29.—Reuben Jarrett, at one time worth $100,000, died at the county poorhouse, aged 90 years. He came here in 1836 and made money by mining. Jarrett, after he had made his pile, went to St. Louis, where he spent money lavishly. Among other things he bought a steamboat and ran it up and down the river for pleasure. His fortune was soon spent and for years he has been an inmate of the poorhouse.

Sac City Man Killed.

Sac City, Sept. 2.—Cory Tiberghien, of this city, was fatally injured while working with a pile driver operated by his brother-in-law, Charles Lemon, in Cook township. A stake became loosened and the derrick pitched forword, striking Mr. Tiberghien and fractured his skull, broke his leg and injured him internally. He is 28 years and leaves a young wife.

The sugar cane is a variety of grass whose saccharine properties have been developed by cultivation.

Chicago Great Western Improvements.

Fort Dodge, Aug. 29.—President Colt, of the Mason City & Fort Dodge railroad, in an interview stated that the Omaha and Sioux City extensions of the Chicago Great Western would begin with the opening of spring. The Clarion, Hampton, Mason City and Manley Junction connections will be completed by the end of the year, and trains will be run on the Great Western from Fort Dodge to Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis by January 1. The total cost of the building to be done by the Great Western will approximate $10,000,000.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR FAIR.

Directors Contemplate Permanent Improvements.

Des Moines, Aug. 31.—A movement is on foot among the state fair directors which is expected to result, within the next few years, in the erection of an entirely new set of buildings on the fair grounds. The board has received several propositions from coal companies for the coal rights to the land owned by the state and comprising the state fair grounds. It is the intention of the board to urge the society to accept the most favorable of these propositions and use the royalty accruing therefrom to erect new buildings. The question will be brought up and probably acted upon at the annual meeting of the society in December. As the land is owned by the state, as the coal is there to be mined, and as there are several companies anxious to take it out and pay for the privilege, the directors feel the society will look favorably upon the plan as a means of raising needed money.

For several years the coal companies adjacent to the fair grounds have been anxious to secure the coal rights for the state land. Heretofore the society and directors have not felt they had the authority to make a contract. Accordingly, the companies have been compelled to stop mining when they reached the fair grounds fences. It is believed under the new agricultural society law, enacted two years ago, the society has full power to lease the coal rights. Practically the entire fair grounds are underlaid with coal. The hill, which runs back from the principal street or road running north from the railway gate, is believed to be almost sond coal. This is a tract about half a mile long by a quarter of a mile wide, comprising about 200 acres. Leased at 10 per cent to 12 per cent of the amount of the coal taken out, the usual contract, the land would produce an income of from $2,000 to $3,000 per annum.

SHAW IS A CANDIDATE.

Announcement Is Made in Chicago by Senator.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa yesterday announced the candidacy of Governor Leslie M. Shaw for the presidential nomination in 1904.

"This is an announcement," said Senator Dolliver. "Not only is Mr. Shaw the candidate of Iowa," the senator continued, "but he will be found to be a candidate for the major part of the middle west as well. He is Iowa's favorite son, a simple, truthful, able man, a business man, a man of affairs, a plain citizen without frill, his heart animated by a sincere love of humanity and his manners democratic and direct. He has made one of the best governors Iowa ever had, his grasp of administrative business being remarkable and his probity and honor being unimpeachable.

"Nor is he merely Iowa's favorite son. He is typical of the middle west. All the adjacent states know him well. In Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Minnesota the people feel him to be one of themselves. They know him as well as if he were one of their own natives. He has spoken to them effectively from the stump, and his homely common sense, his direct logic and quick retort, put him in touch with the plain people in some such fashion as President Lincoln himself. The reputation of his administration has gone much further than his own state."

Consul Johnson's Wife Insane.

Ottumwa, Aug. 30.—Mrs. Ben Johnson, wife of United States consul Ben Johnson of Utila, Honduras, whose home is at Keosauqua, has been adjudged insane and sent to the hospital at Mt. Pleasant for treatment. The case is a very sad one, Mrs. Johnson's malady appearing within the past six weeks, or since her husband had left home to return to his post of duty. Mr. Johnson has been on a three months' leave of absence, which he spent with relatives in this vicinity. His daughter, Mrs. Lee Daugherty of Keosauqua, returned to Honduras with him and expects to remain until October. As yet she has not been apprised of her mother's trouble.

Clever Swindle in Sioux City.

Sioux City, Sept. 2.—Sioux City housekeepers were badly swindled by a clever woman who sells bogus old family silver. She dresses artistically for her role; she appears at the door attired in worn but neat looking clothes and she has the air of having seen better times. Her story deals with her family in Scotland, her voyage to America with her husband, and later misfortunes which compel her to part with precious little heirlooms and bits of old family silver. The silver she displays appears to be old, and it bears quaint old designs of another time, but when inspected by a silversmith the fraud is readily exposed. The scheme proved a profitable one in Sioux City.

Suicide of Despondent.

Parkersburg, Sept. 2.—The dead body of J. H. Hough, generally known as "Job Davis," an unmarried man about 45 years of age, was found two miles east of town. The appearance of the body indicated that the man had committed suicide. Hough had no relatives. He was subject to despondent spells and in that condition was wont to wander off into the woods, and it is believed that in one of these that the man took his life. At his side was an empty whisky bottle, which indicates he had been drinking.

For Extermination of Armenians

London, Sept. 2.—The Daily Mail publishes an article written by Ali Nouri Bey, former Turkish consul at Rotterdam, declaring that the massacre of Armenians by Kurds, which has just recommenced, is part of a regular system of extermination. He says, "The number of Armenians killed will depend upon the outcry raised in Europe, and the pressure brought to bear upon the sultan. The same horrible process will be repeated year by year until all are killed."

Negro Indicted for Murder.

Ottumwa, Sept. 2.—The most important indictment returned by the grand jury was that against John Bradshaw, the South Side colored man who, it is alleged, struck the blow that killed young Court Musgrave in front of a saloon on South Market street about midnight June 17. He is indicted on the charge of murder in the second degree. Judge Sloan fixed his bail at $6,000. The negro is in jail.

Boys Buried in a Sand Bank.

Cedar Rapids, Aug. 29.—Johnnie Skersick and Charlie Simprich, two boys at Bertram, a small town near this city, were smothered to death in a sand bank and were not discovered until some of their comrades passed on their way for the cows and saw the boys' hats and dinner buckets.

Postmaster Bowker Short.

Fort Dodge, Aug. 27.—Leslie E. Bowker, postmaster at Crystal Lake, Iowa, was arrested on charge of shortage in accounts. The arrest created much excitement, as Bowker was a highly respected citizen of Crystal Lake. The shortage to the amount of $300 was discovered by Postal Inspector Ketchum, and Bowker admitted his guilt and restored part of the money. He could not furnish bail and was jailed at Sioux City. Bowker will not divulge the motive which prompted his action.

NEWS IN GENERAL

WAS NO ADAM AND EVE.

American Association for Advancement of Science Decides So.

Denver, Aug. 31.—The American Association for the Advancement of Science decided that there never was either an Adam or an Eve. Professor W. J. McGee, the Chesterfieldan ethnologist, who knows all about the men who have inhabited the earth, was down on the programme to read an innocent looking paper, entitled "Current Questions in Anthropology." He said that for centuries students had adhered to the supposition that mankind had sprung from a common parentage. Modern research had shattered this theory. It must be apparent that the negro, the Mongolian, the Malay and the Caucasion could not have descended from the same pair. Talk of Adam and Eve having set up housekeeping in the Garden of Eden was, in the opinion of the professor, absurd. There must have been several such couples.

Professor McGee continued along these lines for thirty minutes, and then the supporters of the common parentage idea got the floor. Professor George Dorsey, who occupied a front seat at all gatherings of anthropological section of the Field Museum at Chicago, defended Adam and Eve, and gave exhaustive data to make his argument effective.

He was ably seconded by Professor Frank Russell of Harvard, but the rest of the members went over to McGee, and it was soon apparent that the latter had won the day, and the story of Eden and its occupants would have to be placed on the shelf with William Tell, Santa Claus and other interesting but ephemeral personages.

KILLED AND CREMATED.

Forty-one Victims in Great Northern Wreck.

St. Paul, Sept. 2.—A special from Kalispell, Mont., says:

The wreck at Nyack was the worst in the history of the Great Northern. Forty-one deaths have been reported up to the present time. Five dead were brought to Kalispell with eighteen wounded and seriously hurt, one of whom has since died. Of forty-three in the day coach on the rear of the train, only thirteen wounded were saved and only five dead were taken out of the burning ruins, the remainder being completely consumed. The scenes at the catastrophe were heartrending in the extreme, there being many poor creatures pinned in among the wreckage whom the passengers and trainmen were doing all in their power to extricate from their perilous position. The wreckage had taken fire immediately after the collision and it was with great difficulty that the few saved were taken from the ruins. Several men were loudly calling for help, begging that if they could not be gotten out they be killed rather than suffer death by fire.

People were compelled by the intense heat to stand aside and see the victims burned alive, powerless to lend aid.

Ten cars of shingles were upon the rear of the freight that caused the wreck, and as soon as it struck the standing passenger train the cars burst and the shingles were thrown in all directions over the wrecked passenger cars. In almost an instant the whole was a mass of flames and the work of rescue was rendered dangerous.

Assistant General Superintendent Downs, whose headquarters were at Spokane, was in his private car just ahead of the day coach, but in the rear of the sleeper. He was at supper when the cars struck and it is the general opinion that he, together with his young son, were instantly killed.

The laboring men were from Duluth and were coming west to work on a branch of the Great Northern. They were mostly Scandinavians.

It appears that the cause of the wreck was that the freight train of twenty-eight cars, going east, was at Essex and that the head engine went forward, leaving a helper engine in the rear to hold the train. The helper engine set the air brakes, left the train standing on the tracks and went to coal up.

Conductor Matthews was in the office getting orders and both brakemen were with the engine. It is believed the air leaked and that the train, being on a steep grade, slipped away without the train crews knowing it and dashed down the mountain at a tremendous rate of speed, variously estimated at from 75 to 100 miles an hour, going down the hill a distance of seventeen miles, when it overtook the passenger. This train was moving in the same direction as the runaway, otherwise the disaster would have been greater.

The men on the passenger had not the slightest warning of their danger. There is nothing of the wreck left but smoldering ashes and bent and twisted irons and chains.

The names of the killed and wounded are unobtainable.

WOMAN CONFESSES MURDER.

Mason City, Sept. 2.—Mrs. A. C. Linhoff has confessed to the murder of Edwin C. Bromley. It is the culmination of a long series of family quarrels. The Linhoff and Bromley families are neighbors. Trouble was introduced by the children quarreling over the use of a pump. The older members took the quarrel up and went into court. A lady living in the same house with the Bromleys, Mrs. Charles Kettleson, got into trouble with Mr. Linhoff. Bromley took up the trouble and went over on Linhoff's premises to settle the matter. It is alleged that Mrs. Bromley accompanied him and assaulted Linhoff. Mrs. Linhoff, who was on the porch, went into the house, and, procuring a revolver, advanced to the porch and fired five shots, one of them striking Bromley and passing through both lungs. Mrs. Linhoff is now under arrest and in jail, charged with murder. Evidence is very contradictory over the facts immediately preceding the shooting.

County Auditor Indicted.

Eldora, Aug. 29.—The Hardin county grand jury has returned an indictment against County Auditor C. E. Welch, accusing him of failure to perform his duty in not having published in the official papers of the county all the proceedings of the board of supervisors. This is the initial number of various suits growing out or the collection of back and delinquent taxes. Much interest is manifested all over the county in the matter.

All Powers Must Consent.

Pekin, Aug. 28.—Commercial relations with China if hereafter considered will be discussed by representatives of eleven powers regardless of the amount of trade of each nation, as the consent of each power will be essential to any arrangement that is made.

Mulcted His Guests.

Colon, Aug. 27.—General Alban, governor of Panama, who was recently granted extraordinary civil and military powers on both sides of the isthmus, is now absent at Savanilla. He is supposed to be bringing troops for the protection of the isthmus. He lately invited a number of friends at Panama to his home, put a guard at the door and forced his guests to contribute liberally to the government before releasing them.

Norway and Sweden also reported damage by the hot winds. Even the midnight sun seemed to be warming up a bit.

ANARCHISTS TRIUMPH AT ROME.

Government of Italy Is Becoming Greatly Alarmed.

New York, Sept. 2.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from Rome says:

The complete triumph of the anarchists in the recent election to the Rome labor council is causing alarm in government circles. This is the first time anarchists openly contested against the socialists with the result that the council stands twelve anarchists to three socialists.

But a more serious fact is that all the societies of workmen which participated in the voting qualified as anarchistic, socialistic or republican; not a sugle monarchial workman appeared on the list. This demonstrates clearly that the entire working population of Rome, like that of other large cities in Italy has completely abandoned the monarchial party.

Leading newspapers seriously comment on this. The Selcolo says:

"If all the working classes of Italy have become socialists, anarchists or republicans, where are we to find defenders of the monarchy?"

KRUGER HOLDS A BOMB

Favors Issuance of Letters of Marque But Delays Positive Action.

The Hague, Aug. 20, via New York, Aug. 31.—President Kruger recently came within an ace of bringing on a most sensational and hazardous international scare. He wanted to issue a proclamation announcing that the Transvaal was ready to issue letters of marque to all who wished to fit out privateers to prey upon British shipping.

This proposal has been under consideration for some time among the men who form Mr. Kruger's entourage here—Messrs. Fischer, Wolmarans and Wessels, the former commissioners to America, and Dr. Leyds. Two factions appeared among them, one for the proclamation and the other against it. After the matter had been discussed for some time President Kruger, as he is still called by his lieutenants and his other admirers, decided in favor of action. He was ready to give the device a trial and see what came of it.

But immediately two other factors entered the situation. One of these was the British government and the other the government of her most gracious majesty, the queen of the Netherlands.

The result of their interference was that President Kruger did not issue his manifesto. Instead of inviting all the world to go forth destroying British merchant ships, he announced, through Dr. Leyds' personal organ at Brussels, Le Petit Bleu, that he would withhold the proclamation for the present, but intended to issue it in case Lord Kitchener should carry out his threats to shoot all Boers as highwaymen after September 15. There the matter rests.

BOERS BECOME MORE AGGRESSIVE

Part of Cape Colony Heretofore Untouched, Is Invaded.

London, Sept. 2.—Some interesting side lights are thrown on the South African war by advices just published. A dispatch from Cape Town to the daily Mail indicates that Scheeper's commando has now moved to the southwest and invaded a part of Cape Colony previously undisturbed by the Boers, while more severe restrictions have been imposed with the object of preventing communication between Cape Town and the newly disturbed areas.

The Cologne Gazette's correspondent in Cape Town declares that the entire Cape Colony is a "seething mass of disorder and alarm." He asserts also that the Boers are receiving support from all sides.

Edgar Wallace, writing to the Daily Mail, expresses a decided opinion that Lord Kitchener's banishment proclamation will not result in the surrender of a single important commandant and that much severer penalties are needed, the only useful policy being vigorous military measures.

In the early part of August a correspondent of the Morning Post had a long talk with Lord Kitchener, from which he gathered that "not Lord Kitchener but the government is to blame for many of the present evils." Lord Kitchener, it seems, complained that the government continually worried about trivial details, "merely to reply to parliamentary heckling," and that it compelled him to enforce a strict censorship over telegrams, though personally he objected to the present system. He said he thought the correspondents ought to be given greater liberty and to be made responsible for their statements. He avoided expressing any opinion about the "approaching end of the war," but conditions are rapidly improving. At the beginning of August there were 100,000 persons in the concentration camps.

A correspondent of the Morning Post asserts that the Boer refugees get eighteen pounds in rations per head as against twelve pounds per head given to British loyalists, and he recommends as politically and economically advisable that the Boers be removed to the coast.

SULTAN WANTS A LIFE.

Georges Dorys, Author of a Life of the Sultan, Condemned to Death.

Paris, Aug. 30.—Georges Dorys, son of the late Prince of Samos, a former minister of the sultan of Turkey and formerly governor of Crete, has been condemned to death by the sultan's courts at the direction of Abdul Hamid II. This action was taken in Constantinople because of the publication of M. Dory's book, "The Private Life of the Sultan."

The book so angered Turkey's ruler that he exerted his influence in diplomatic channels to have it suppressed in all European countries. His efforts succeeded in Sweden, but the popular outcry against such action in Paris was so strong that the government declined to exert itself.

M. Dorys secretly left Constantinople some time ago, and is now resident in Paris, where he has identified himself with the young Turkish party.

Paris, Aug. 30.—The Echo du Paris says it learns that if the sultan does not satisfy the French demands within twenty-four hours surveillance over the young Turkish party in France will no longer be enforced.

Paris, Aug. 30.—M. Constans, the French ambassador to Turkey, arrived in Paris yesterday from Constantinople and had a conference with the foreign minister, M. Del Casse. In an interview afterward, M. Constans said he would not return to Constantinople until the dispute was settled. M. Del Casse at yesterday's conference confirmed the statement that he (Constans) had acted in perfect accord with the views of the government. The ambassador did not think the sultan would hold out very long, while as to the possibility of war between France and Turkey, M. Constans said it was quite out of the question.

England to Stand Pat.

Cape Town, Aug. 28.—Lord Milner, the British high commissioner in South Africa, replying to an address of welcome, said there was no doubt whatsoever of the unshakable determination of the people and government of Great Britain to adhere to their South African policy.

A little girl read a composition before the minister. The subject was "A Cow." She wove in this complimentary sentence: "A cow is the most useful animal in the world, except religion."

There is consent in a smile, while a laugh is often a refusal.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

List of Witnesses to Be Called to Testify.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The list of witnesses prepared by Captain Lemly, judge advocate of the Schley court of inquiry, and transmitted to Admiral Schley has been made public by Captain Lemly. It does not purport to be a complete list, but includes the principal witnesses who will be called by the judge advocate. The witnesses whom Admiral Schley has asked to be summoned are not included in the list. That list is as follows:

Rear Admirals Wm. T. Sampson, Robley D. Evans, Francis J. Higginson, Charles S. Cotton, Henry C. Taylor.

Captains French E. Chadwick, Caspar F. Goodrich, Charles D. Sigsbee, Wm. C. Wise, Francis M. Cooke, Bowman H. McCalla, Theodore F. Jewell, Wm. M. Folger, Robt. M. Berry, John L. Hannum, retired.

Commanders Wm. F. Potter, Richard Wainwright, Joseph D. Eaton, Newton E. Mason, Seaton Schoeder, Giles B. Harber, James M. Miller, Lewis G. Heilner, Alexander B. Bates.

Lieutenant Commanders Sidney A. Staunton, Nathaniel R. Usher, Albert W. Grant, Albion C. Hodgson, Wm. H. H. Southerland, Wm. H. Scheuetze, Templin M. Potter, Alex Sharp, Jr.

Capt. Wm. C. Dawson, U. S. M. C.

Lieutenants Charles C. Marsh, Spencer S. Wood, Victor B. Simms, Charles Webster, John Hood, Charles H. Harlow, Charles W. Dyson, W. D. McAlpin.

Lieutenants (junior grade) Ernest B. Knott, Henry G. Mustin.

Acting Boatswain Dennis J. O'Connell.

Chief Quartermaster Niels Anderson, and others.

The list of witnesses to be called by the judge advocate throws considerable light upon the lines of testimony which he will seek to adduce before the court. Admiral Sampson, as commander-in-chief of the fleet, of course heads the list. Then follow the captains of all the ships engaged in the Santiago campaign, with the exception of Captain Clarke, of the Oregon, and Captain Philip, of the Texas, the latter having died since the war. Evans was in command of the Iowa, Higginson of the Massachusetts, Cotton of the scout Harvard, Taylor of the Indiana, Chadwick of the New York, Goodrich of Newark and the scout St. Louis, Sigsby of the scout St. Paul, Wise of the scout Yale, Cooke of the Brooklyn, McCalla of the Marblehead, Jewell of the scout Minneapolis, Folger of the New Orleans, and Barry of the Castine. Hannum (retired) was chief engineer of the Brooklyn; Commander Potter was the executive officer of the New York; Wainwright was in command of the Gloucester, Eaton of the Resolute, Mason was executive officer of the Brooklyn, Schroeder was executive officer of the Massachusetts, Harber was executive officer of the Texas, Miller commanded the Merrimac, Hilner was navigator of the Texas, and Bates was chief engineer of the Texas. Lieutenant Commander Staunton was Sampson's chief of staff aboard the New York. Usher was commander of the Erickson, Grant was aboard the Massachusetts, Hodgson was navigating officer of the Brooklyn, Southerland was in command of the Dolphin, Schuetze was aboard the Indiana, Potts was aboard the Massachusetts and Sharp was in command of the Vixen. Captain Dewson was commander of the marines aboard the Indiana, Lieutenant Marsh was on Sampson's staff, Wood was commander of the Torpedo boat Dupont, Blue was aboard the Vixen, Coyle and Webster on the Brooklyn, Hood was in command of the Hawk, and Barlow was executive officer of the Vixen; Dyson was engineer of the Texas, and McAlpin assistant engineer of the Brooklyn; Lieutenant Bennett was on Sampson's staff, Ensign Mustin was aboard the New York, and Boatswain O'Connell and Quartermaster Anderson were on the Brooklyn. Edgar May, a clerk in the office of the judge advocate, has been detailed to assist Judge Advocate General Lemly in the preparation and handling of papers before the court. Although not an assistant to Judge Advocate General Lemly in a technical sense, he will act in that capacity so far as the handling of the papers in the formal presentation of his case is concerned.

It is stated here on authority that Messrs. Wilson, Rayner, and Parker constitute all the legal aid to be employed by Admiral Schley in the approaching court of inquiry.

HOWISON NOT PREJUDICED.

Declares That He Is Not Opposed to Admiral Schley.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Acting Secretary Hackett has made public a letter received from Admiral Howison, dated Yonkers, N. Y., August 24, denying the authenticity of the interview attributed to him in which he is made to comment adversely on Admiral Schley. The acting secretary has, therefore, continued Admiral Howison as a member of the Schley court of inquiry, leaving the court itself to determine any further question as to his competency. In his letter Admiral Howison says:

"This newspaper cutting in question contains a statement in which it is said that I made a comparison between Schley and Sampson, unfavorable to Schley.

"The word 'respected' as used by the reporter, is seldom or never employed by navy men in comparing the qualities possessed by officers, and I am sure I could never have said this as he reports, nor said that Schley had the reputation of being nervous and hotheaded in the naval academy.

"From the papers it appears that Admiral Schley has strong doubts as to my fitness to fairly judge this case with Admiral Dewey and Benham.

"As it is a case of grave importance to those concerned and to the country, I am desirous of giving my little help to clear away the troubles.

"The duties of members of courts martial and the courts of inquiry are not sought or desired by officers.

"While I feel highly honored by the department's selection of myself for this duty, it is anything but a pleasant task to sit in judgment on brother officers."

New Phillips Grain Company.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Incorporation papers for a grain company headed by George H. Phillips, whose concern recently suspended business, have been sent to the secretary of state at Springfield. The name of the new corporation will be the George H. Phillips Grain company. It will be capitalized at $500,000, of which the old creditors of Phillips' defunct company will hold $20,000. Mr. Phillips expects to begin business within two weeks.

The total value of the coffee imported into the United States was something like $60,000,000 last year.

Sultan to Pay a Big Sum.

Constantinople, Aug. 27.—The amount of indemnity which the sultan agrees to pay the quays company for interference with the rights is 760,000 francs. The sultan will also pay 600,000 francs to a Frenchman on account of the seizing of his lands in Albania. The quays company renounces for a year the clause in its concession regarding the transfer of the quays to Turkey, only, it is believed, to save appearance for the sultan.

We should all like to see the undertaker prosper if we could designate the source of his income.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

A TALK FULL OF THE SUMMER SPIRIT.

"Go Forth Unto the Mount and Fetch Olive Branches and Pine Branches and Myrtle Branches and Palm Branches * * * * to Make Booths."—Neh. 8:15.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Washington, Sept. 1.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage is full of the breath of the hills and fields and is a summer sermon; text, Nehemiah viii, 15, "Go forth unto the mount and fetch olive branches and pine branches and myrtle branches and palm branches and branches of thick trees to make booths."

It seems as if Mount Olivet were unmoored. The people have gone into the mountain and have cut off tree branches and put them on their shoulders, and they come forth now into the streets of Jerusalem and on the house tops, and they twist these tree branches into arbors or booths. Then the people come forth from their comfortable homes and dwell for seven days in these booths or arbors. Why do they do that? Well, it is a great festal time. It is the feast of tabernacles, and these people are going to celebrate the desert travel of their fathers and their deliverance from their troubles, the experience of their fathers when, traveling in the desert, they lived in booths on their way to the land of Canaan. And so these booths also became highly suggestive—I will not say they are necessarily typical, but highly suggestive—of our march toward heaven and of the fact that we are only living temporarily here, as it were, in booths or arbors, on our way to the Canaan of eternal rest. And what was said to the Jews literally may be said figuratively to all this audience. Go forth unto the mountain and fetch olive branches and pine banches and myrtle branches and palm branches and branches of thick trees to make booths.

We Need Olive Branches.

Now, if we are today going to succeed in building this gospel arbor we must go into the mount of God's blessing and fetch the olive branches, and whatever else we must have we must have at least two olive branches, peace with God and peace with man. When I say peace with God, I do not mean to represent God as an angry chieftain, having a grudge against us, but I do mean to affirm that there is no more antagonism between a hound and a hare, between a hawk and a pullet, between elephant and swine, than there is hostility between holiness and sin. And if God is all holiness and we are all sin there must be a treaty, there must be a stretching forth of olive branches.

There is a great lawsuit going on now, and it is a lawsuit which man is bringing against his Maker. That lawsuit is now on the calendar. It is the human versus the divine, it is iniquity versus the imaculate, it is weakness versus omnipotence. Man began it. God did not begin the lawsuit. We began it. We assaulted our Maker, and the sooner we end this part of the struggle, in which the finite attempts to overthrow the infinite and omnipotent—the sooner we end it the better. Travelers tell us there is no such place as Mount Calvary, that it is only a hill, only an insignificant hill, but I persist in calling it the mount of God's divine mercy and love far grander than any other place on earth, grander than the Alps or the Himalayas, and there are no other hills as compared with it, and I have noticed in every sect where the cross of Christ is set forth it is planted with olive branches. And all we have to do is to get rid of this war between God and ourselves, of which we are all tired. We want to back out of the war, we want to get rid of this hostility. All we have to do is just to get up on the mount of God's blessing and pluck these olive branches and wave them before the throne. Peace through our Lord Jesus Christ!

Health for Mind and Soul.

But my text goes further. It says, "Go up into the mountain and fetch olive branches and pine branches." Now, what is suggested by the pine branch? The pine tree is healthy, it is aromatic, it is evergreen. How often the physician says to his invalid patients: "Go and have a breath of the pines. That will invigorate you." Why do such thousands of people go south every year? It is not merely to go to a warmer climate, but to get the influence of the pine. There is health in it, and this pine branch of the text suggests the helpfulness of our holy religion. It is full of health—health for all, health for the mind, health for the soul. I knew an aged man who had no capital of physical health. He had had all the diseases you could imagine. He did not eat enough to keep a child alive. He lived on a beverage of hosannas. He lived high, for he dined every day with the King. He was kept alive simply by the force of our holy religion. It is a healthy religion—healthy for the eye, healthy for the hands, healthy for the feet, healthy for the heart, healthy for the liver, healthy for the spleen, healthy for the whole man. It gives a man such peace, such quietness, such independence of circumstances, such holy equipoise. Oh, that we all possessed it, that we possessed it now! I mean it is healthy if a man gets enough of it. Now, there are some people who get just enough religion to bother them, just enough religion to make them sick, but if a man takes a full, deep, round inhalation of these pine branches of the gospel arbor he will find it buoyant, exuberant, undying, immortal health.

But this evergreen of my text also suggests the simple fact that relig

The recent death of the Dowager Empress Frederick recalls a pretty tribute which her father, Prince Albert, paid to her when the present Emperor William was born. "You must bring the hopeful Wilhelm with you," he wrote in a letter, "and not hide him away with a blush, as you used to hide your drawings in the portfolio—'Don't look at that, papa; it is so bad that you must not see it'—and then forth came into view something full of beauty and talent!"

In his recently published autobiography, "A Fragment," Professor Max Muller tells the following anecdote of the Duke of Wellington: "His servant had been sent before to order dinner for him at an out-of-the-way hotel, and in order to impress the landlord with the dignity of his coming guest he recited a number of the duke's titles, which were very numerous. The landlord, thinking that the Duke of Vittoria, the Prince of Waterloo, the Marquis of Torres Vedras, and all the rest were friends invited to dine with the Duke of Wellington, ordered accordingly a very sumptuous banquet, to the great dismay of the real duke."

HOUSEKEEPERS, ATTENTION!
Try a package of Russ Bleaching Blue and you will use no other. 10c at grocers.

Judicious silence is an excellent indication of wisdom.

Ask your grocer for DEFIANCE STARCH, the only 16 oz. package for 10 cents. All other 10-cent starch contains only 12 oz. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

A good mirror tells the truth, no matter on whom it reflects.

The Home Laundry.

There is no reason why the clothes cleaned at home cannot be ironed up to the same standard of excellence that comes from sending them to the laundry. All that is necessary to attain the desired object is the purchase of a package of Defiance starch at any grocery. Use it once and you will understand why clothes ironed at the laundries have that mild, glossy appearance. All first-class laundries use Defiance starch. If there is no grocery in your neighborhood that keeps it they will send for it on request. Made by the Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb.

IN THE GOOD OLD FASHIONED DAYS.

Powdered Wigs Formed an Important Adjunct to a Gentleman's Apparel.

It is safe to say that the majority of bald men of today would gladly revive the old, dignified custom if they could. But they can do the next best thing to it; that is, to revive the growth of the hair nature gave them.

In cases where the hair root or hair bulb has not been completely destroyed by parasites that infest it, Newbro's Herpicide will do wonders in the way of stimulating the growth of lifeless and falling hair. Destroy the cause, you remove the effect. That is the successful mission of Herpicide.

PAINT IN THE FALL

Fall painting is best; the paint gets well seasoned before the hot sun gets busy.

You want your paint to last, and to protect your property. If you use Devoe ready paint, you'll have both.

Lasts longer than lead and oil; costs less. Devoe is a safe name in paint things.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...
By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER IV.—(Continued.)

Judah got down from the back of his horse, and having thrown the rein over the branch of a tree, he started after the volunteer guide. Half a mile distant, at the edge of a thick piece of wood, the Israelite was informed that he must submit to be hoodwinked. He made no objections, and the robber proceeded to bind a sash over his eyes, after which he was led some distance further, by a winding, tortuous way; and when the bandage was removed, he found himself in a low vale, beneath a roof of thick foliage, and in the presence of a hundred armed men. One man—a handsome, noble-looking youth—arose and approached him, to whom his guide reported what had transpired.

"Do you seek Julian?" asked the stately youth, looking upon the Israelite with a searching glance.

"Yes, sir," replied Judah, as frankly and calmly as though he had been answering one of his own brethren.

"I am Julian," said the chieftain, quietly.

"Then, sir," returned the newcomer, with a low bow, "to you I present my petition."

"First,—who are you?"

"My name is Judah, and I have been a servant in the train of the king of Damascus."

"Ah,—is it so?" The chieftain may have looked a little more sharply into the man's face, but he betrayed no surprise. "You spoke of a petition. What is it?"

Judah removed his mantle, and then stripped off his tunic, thus baring his back to the gaze of those who stood around.

"Do you see that back?" he cried, quivering, and grinding his teeth. "Do you see where the cruel lash has eaten into my flesh? Horam, king of Damascus, put that stain upon me. Do you wish me to say more?"

"I think you would be revenged upon the king?" said Julian.

"I would be placed in the very front of that force which is to strike at Horam, or at anything belonging to him. I am not of Damascus born, and my love is not there. I would join my fortunes with those of Julian."

After a very short conference with some of his companions, the chieftain informed Judah that he might remain where he was; and that, if he proved himself worthy, he would be received into full fellowship.

The Israelite expressed himself as thankful for the favor thus conferred and was soon allowed to mingle with the members of the band. For two days he ate with them, and joined them in their sports; and during that time he knew that watchful eyes were upon him. But he was equal to the task, and on the third day he was counted as one of them.

On the fourth day one of the sentinels brought a black man into the camp, who gave his name as Osmer, and who said that he had escaped from a tyrannical master in Aleppo. And he furthermore said that he had a companion who was hiding somewhere in the forest. Before noon said companion made his appearance, announcing his name as Selim; and when the two had been questioned, their stories were so harmonious, and so frank, that they were suffered to remain; and finally they were allowed to perform the duties of body-servant to the chieftain.

Judah could have asked for nothing better thus far; and he was resolved that his further plans should be carefully and surely laid.

Ah! Julian little dreamed of the danger that was creeping upon him!

CHAPTER V.
Caged.

The circumstances which might have led another to hasten his operations, led the Israelite to greater care and reflection. He had not supposed that Julian would take the two black men to service so near his own person, and when he found that such arrangement had been made, his first inclination was to hesitate least a suspicion of the slaves' honesty had led the chieftain to place them thus near him. However, after the lapse of a few days, Judah was satisfied that no suspicion was entertained against himself or his companions, and he began to turn his attention to the work he had in hand.

On the morning of the fourth day Julian announced his intention of moving, and gave orders that his men should be in readiness. A spy had arrived during the night with intelligence that a large caravan was on its way from Tyre to Damascus, and the chieftain had determined to intercept it. Some wealthy merchants from Rome were in the approaching train, and it was probable that they bore wealth for Horam.

Just as the sun was rising, while Judah was in the wood after his horse, he was accosted by Osmir, who had been out on an errand for the chieftain.

"Ah, my master," said the black, gazing carefully around to see that he was not observed; "I am glad that I have met you. I have been wondering whether you meant to carry out the plan which brought us here."

"Why have you wondered at such a thing?" asked Judah.

"Because," replied Osmir, "I have made up my mind that if the choice of masters were left to me I should choose to serve Julian rather than the king of Damascus. I like him much the best. He is not such a terrible man as he has been represented. He is a kind, generous man, and I blame him not for his hatred of Horam."

"Well, sir," said the Israelite, speaking quickly and sternly, "do you think of turning your face from the work we have to do?"

"No, no, my master. I am not so determined. I shall follow you. Your commands must be my law. If you say proceed I am with you."

"And how is it with Selim?"

"You have nothing to fear, my master, from him. The two men whom you selected to accompany you will not betray you. Selim thinks of this robber chieftain as I do; but he is bound to his duty, and will perform it."

Judah knew the characters and dispositions of the two and he felt no uneasiness.

"My good Osmir," he said, with a smile, "concerning this Scourge of Damascus I feel much as you feel. I have long known that he was a noble, true-hearted man. But he is an enemy of our king, and we have promised to capture him. Just think, for a moment, what must be the result if we take him, and convey him in safety to Damascus. Think what people will say of Osmir and Selim. Now the merchants of Damascus are in fear and trembling on account of this terrible Scourge, and the king sits uneasily upon his throne; but if we arrest the dreaded chieftain, and deliver him up, the merchants will rejoice, and the king will be grateful. And upon whom shall their thanks and their honors fall?"

This speech pleased Osmir, and fired him up to new zeal in the work he had undertaken. Judah moved out from the cover to observe if any one was approaching, and when he was satisfied that he was still safe, he returned and gave Osmir such instructions as he deemed necessary. He was careful that all should be understood, and that each projected movement should be so arranged that there could be no possible clashing. He knew the wit and temper of his associates, and he had no fear that they would disappoint him by any blunder or mistake.

"And now," said the Israelite, after his directions had been given, "if we are at all favored by fortune we shall most surely succeed. Thus far fortune has been upon our side. Your position near the person of Julian is most favorable. Impart our arrangements carefully to Selim, and await my further signal."

Osmir promised obedience, and the two men separated, Judah going in search of his horse, while Osmir proceeded directly to the camp, where, having delivered a message to the chieftain, he sought Selim, and in a little while the two were in secret consultation.

Toward the middle of the forenoon the robber train was in motion, and when it came night they camped in an open wood, between two hills, near to the road which led from Caesarea Philippi to Damascus; and here they were to remain until the expected caravan made its appearance.

Sometimes Julian took his tent with him when leading his band upon long expeditions, but on the present occasion he had left it behind, choosing that the place of his encampment should be as little noticeable as possible. After he had seen his sentinels all posted, and given such directions as he thought necessary, he sought a place of rest beneath a large tree, where he soon sank into a dreamy slumber. It must have been near midnight when he was aroused by some one moving near him, and on starting up he was addressed by Osmir:

"My master, I have a strange message for you."

The chieftain arose to a sitting posture.

"Is this Osmir?"

"Yes."

"From whom bring you a message?"

"From one, my master, whom I had little expected to see here. As I walked forth a short time since, a sentinel informed me that some one outside of the camp wished to speak with me. I went to the spot designated, and there found a young bond-maiden of Damascus. Her name was Albia."

"Albia!" cried Julian, starting to his feet. "Why, such was the name of the maiden who attended upon the princess Ulin."

"Aye, my lord, she is the same."

"What? Do you mean that the bond-maiden of Ulin is at our camp?"

"She is."

"What is her business?"

"She wishes to speak with Julian."

"But her business—of what does she wish to speak?"

"She did not tell me, my lord. She would only say that she was the bond-maiden of Ulin, and she desired to see you. I knew her not; but she seemed so gentle, and so timid, and used your name so eloquently, that I could not doubt her. I think her story is true. I think she is what she represents herself to be."

"Did she not tell you from whom she came?"

"No, unless her announcement that she was the bondmaiden of the princess Ulin may be taken in answer to the query."

"By the lyre of Apollo, she must have come from her mistress," exclaimed the chieftain, warmly. "The princess may be in trouble. She may need stout arms to help her. Lead me to this bondmaiden at once."

"She begged, my lord, that she might not be exposed."

"Lead on. I will see her."

The great road wound around the foot of the hill, and ere long the guard had reached a point so utterly shut off from the camp that his loudest cry could not have been heard by the robber sentinels.

"Is the girl here?" asked Julian, as his sable guide stopped and turned.

"She must be very near here, my lord. I left her upon this very spot."

The chieftain heard a slight rustling behind him; but, not being startled into quick action, before he could turn he received a blow upon the side of the head that felled him to the earth. He was for the moment stunned, and before his reason was clear enough to direct his movements, he was set upon by three stout men, who bound his arms and legs so quickly that his power of resistance was gone before he fairly knew what opposed him.

"Sir Robber," spoke the Israelite bending over the prostrate chieftain, "you are my prisoner, and henceforth you are in my keeping until I deliver you up to my master. You cannot escape me, so do not trouble yourself with the attempt."

"You are Judah," said the chieftain.

"I am."

"And these others are professed to be of Aleppo?"

"Yes."

"And you three serve the king of Damascus?"

"You have guessed the truth."

"By the gods," muttered Julian, as though communing with himself, "I should have guessed this before. I have been blind. I have acted like a child. But I am not yet quite lost. I am still within the—"

The Israelite had been watching him narrowly, and when he saw that the chieftain had a disposition to call for help, he sprang upon him and stopped his mouth.

"Do not blame yourself, Sir Robber. Judah of Damascus has done more difficult work than this; and you may take to yourself the assurance that when he set out upon his mission the deed was sure of its accomplishment. Ah, here comes Selim with the horses. You shall have an easy ride and a quick one; and when you are in the presence of the king you can plead your case as eloquently as you please. I have not time to listen; nor have I the power to judge."

The Scourge of Damascus, in the full vigor of robust manhood, and possessed of a strength and daring beyond any of his stalwart followers, was a prisoner in the hands of three slaves—a prisoner within sound of his own camp—and so surely a prisoner that he had no way of escape. His steel-wrought muscles were powerless beneath the cruel bonds, and his mouth was stopped from the utterance of alarm. He was lifted from the ground and placed upon the back of a powerful horse, and in a few moments more he was being borne swiftly away from his friends and companions—away towards the city where dwelt his deadliest enemies.

HE BREEDS WILD GEESE.

Man Who Raises Birds to Decoy Their Free Brothers.

F. W. Thompson of Salisbury Cove, Me., has succeeded in breeding wild geese in captivity. For sixteen years he has been experimenting and is now satisfied with the success he has achieved. He can breed them almost as well as the domestic geese. Mr. Thompson secured his first trio of wild geese by shooting into a flock and crippling them. He was very careful that nothing should happen to them until he had secured a sitting or two of eggs and had raised a flock of wild geese that would stay with him. But his first year's experience was a failure. The geese laid eggs, but they were not fertile and he did not secure a single gosling. The next year he sent to a breeder of wild geese in Massachusetts and bought a gander, the bird costing, express included, $16. It proved a good investment, as he raised nine goslings that year and since then has raised from fifteen to twenty-five annually from the three pairs which he keeps. The wild goose lays but one litter of eggs, although she will sometimes lay three or four extra eggs if not allowed to sit. When the goslings are about four weeks old the end of the wing on which the flight feathers grow must be removed to the first joint. "I believe," said Mr. Thompson, "the instinct for flight, or migration, is so strong that even after being bred so long in captivity they would leave either in the spring or the fall. It is interesting to see the geese change their location on the farm. In the fall they will locate at the south end of the farm buildings, and in the spring they will move to a point north. It is the same way when they fly, as they often do, sometimes a mile or so away; but they always go north in the spring and south in the fall."—New York Sun.

WHITE GIRL AS INDIAN.

She Has Had a Strange Life Among the Blackfeet.

The curious story of a white girl's life among the Blackfeet Indians for 16 years just come out through a suit brought by Alice Burke against Thomas Husson, a cattle rancher of Eastern Oregon to recover a ranch which once belonged to her father, and is now valued at 22,000 dollars, says the "Chicago Herald." Burke and old Husson started to cross the plains from Kansas to Oregon. Burke was detained and sent his girl, then two years old, with Mrs. Husson. Husson sold the child to a Blackfoot Indian Chief for 12 ponies, and when Burke arrived in Oregon told him that Alice had died. Six years ago Burke died, and the Hussons have been in possession of his ranch. Alice meanwhile grew up among the tribe, and when white people noticed her fine hair, the Indians said she was a half-breed whose parents were dead. She gained the love of the son of a chief named Fleetwing, who was sent to Carlisle. When he was there Alice took lessons of the Indian agent's wife and kept pace with him in his studies. When the agent was removed she went with him to Boise City, but his wife died, and she had to take a place as a servant, and was a kitchen drudge for many months. Then Fleetwing sent her money, and she returned to the reservation. The revelation of her white blood came when she was an applicant for a place in a big tribal ceremony. Then young Husson appeared and told her the story, but offered her only $100 for her father's property. She refused and investigated, and is now suing for the recovery of the land. When she gets it she is to marry John Fleetwing.

Observation Cars for Cities.

The plan of observation cars on street railroads, first made popular in Washington, has spread, and as it has spread it has developed and many improvements in cars have been made. In San Francisco an observation car has four rows of longitudinal seats arranged in tiers or steps, the two inside rows being higher than the outside ones. The advantage of this arrangement is that the passengers seated on the two inside rows may have as clear a view as those occupying the other rows. The car is forty-five feet long and ten feet wide and can seat seventy-two passengers. Several gates make ingress and egress possible without incommoding passengers. In San Francisco these cars make three trips daily, each taking about three and one-half hours. All the points of local interest are included in the route and stops are made at specially interesting places.

Vocation for One Man Only.

There is a vocation followed by only one man. The vocation is that of traveling inspector on the American ocean liners, and in the course of his employment he crosses the Atlantic oftener than any other human being. This unique vocation is held by Alexander Filippini. He spends practically no time on land, frequently reaching port in time to sail back again on another liner the same day. It can readily be understood that the provision of excellent meals on steamships is a very difficult task on account of the small working quarters for cooking, and the difficulty of keeping up supplies of varieties of fresh vegetables, meat, and fruit. The inspector's duties are in overseeing and improving the service of meals on the ships.

Topophone Prevents Collisions.

An instrument named the "topophone," has just been invented for the prevention of collisions at sea. The topophone registers even slight sounds far outside the range of the human ear, and by enabling foghorns to be heard at immense distances, will greatly minimize existing risks in thick weather.

As the World Revolves

Woman Fencer to Wed.

Miss Grace Pomeroy, whose engagement to Philip Clark has just been announced, is known as the most expert all-around woman athlete in the United States. At the same time Miss Pomeroy, who is wealthy, is a favorite in New York society. Among the feats which she has to her credit is the killink, single-handed and with one rifle shot, of a grizzly bear near her camp at Glenwood Springs, Colo. She is also a famous cross-country rider and long-distance swimmer. One of her most unique claims to distinction in an athletic way is the fact that the best known teachers of fencing in the country declare her to be, without exception, the best woman fencer in the United States, "capable of fencing with any man, no matter how expert, without expecting that favor be shown her because she is a woman." Miss Pomeroy is a Cincinnati girl, while her prospective husband, Philip Clark, is a native of St. Louis.

Three to Two Minute Trotters.

Within the memory of living man a three-minute trotter was pretty sure to throw his dust in the face of anything on the road. Then came the period when "2:40 tail over the dashboard" was expressive of the limit of the trotter's speed. Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his poem on "Contentment," remarked that he would be satisfied with a nag that could do 2:40, though a few seconds less would have given him the pole against all rivals.

But the real attack of the trotter on time began with Flora Temple's stepping out of the 2:30 class and establishing a record from which the descent has been almost by single seconds or fractions of seconds down to that of Cresceus this year. How the seconds have been clipped off is shown in the following table:

1856—Flora Temple	2.24½
1859—Flora Temple	2:19¾
1865—Dexter	2:18¼
1866—Dexter	2:18
1867—Dexter	2:17¼
1871—Goldsmith Maid	2:17
1872—Goldsmith Maid	2:16
1874—Goldsmith Maid	2:14
1878—Rarus	2:13¼
1879—St. Julian	2:11¾
1880—Maud S.	2:10¾
1881—Maud S.	2:10¼
1884—Jay-Eye-See	2:10
1884—Maud S.	2:09¾
1885—Maud S.	2:08¾
1891—Sunol	2:08¼
1892—Nancy Hanks	2:07¼
1892—Nancy Hanks	2:05¼
1892—Nancy Hanks	2:04
1894—Alix	2:04
1894—Alix	2:03¾
1900—The Abbot	2:03¼
1901—Cresceus	2:02¾
1901—Cresceus	2:02¼

The most remarkable showing of this table is that which gave to Maud S. her title of "Queen of the Turf," which she held for no less than ten years, the record of Jay-Eye-See not standing long enough to constitute a flaw in it.

The present champion of the turf holds not only the record for the fastest time ever made by a trotter, but the fastest heat in a race, the fastest second heat, the fastest two-heat race and the fastest three-heat race. His endurance is as remarkable as his speed.

Jacket Cost $300,000.

Mlle. Fagette, who lately made her debut in Paris, a few days ago received a present of a bewitching bolero jacket, which it is said cost 1,500,000 francs, about $300,000.

FAGETTE JACKET.

It is covered with diamonds and pearls, emeralds and sapphires, rubies and turquoises.

It was placed on exhibition in the window of a jeweler in the Avenue de l'Opera, where it attracted crowds.

More After-Dinner Weakness.

Only Americans with irreducible back-bone should trust themselves under the mahogany across the sea. A little flattery seems to boil a weak American spinal column down to jelly. A Connecticut judge named Harrison, who ought to have proved stronger, has coolly prevaricated at the International Association dinner in Glasgow by solemnly declaring that the American people want the treaty ratified and that the next session of congress will see it adopted.

Had there been the least justification for so preposterous an assertion would Hay and Pauncefote have been willing to mend their joint production radically so as to secure even a promise of its future favorable consideration, or is the jelly-backed person from the wooden nutmeg state a candidate for British naturalization?—Chicago Chronicle.

John W. Gates, the steel wire magnate, is probably one of the best amateur billiard players in the country. He is very fond of the game and plays it nearly every evening.

Howison Makes Denial.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Acting Secretary Hackett has made public a letter received from Admaril Howison dated Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 24, denying the authenticity of the interview attributed to him in which he is made to comment adversely on Admiral Schley.

The acting secretary has therefore continued Admiral Howison as a member of the Schley court of inquiry, leaving the court itself to determine any further question as to his competency.

STORIETTES.

It is said that the late Professor Tait of Edinburgh university, in obedience to an oath that he would cut up the first hat he found lying on his professional desk, once destroyed his own headgear. He had been annoyed by the students leaving their hats there, and on this historic occasion one of them placed Tait's own hat there.

During a recent thunder storm at Paterson, N. J., a Mrs. William Donohue jumped out of bed and getting what she supposed was a bottle of holy water, sprinkled the sleeping members of her family. When they awoke in the morning and saw themselves in a mirror they were startled by their streaked faces. The woman in the dark, had picked up by mistake a bottle of bluing.

One day, before his marriage, the Rev. Sydney Smith ran into the room where his fiancee was, flung into her lap six small teaspoons, which, "from much wear, had become the ghosts of their former selves," and said: "There, Kate, you lucky girl, I give you all my fortune." He gave her, however, what he did not mention, his fine character and great talent, and in every way proved himself an excellent husband.

Recently an old Cornishwoman asked her parish priest to read to her a letter from her son who had left her many years ago, and was living in New England. The writer's orthography was doubtful, but the conscientious vicar did his best to decipher the words. "I cannot tell you how the muskitties torment me. They pursue me everywhere—even down the chimney!" he read. The fond mother's eyes grew large with mingled pride and amazement. "Ezekiel must be rare handsome," she said, "for the maidens do be sa after him. And I reckon the Miss Kitties is quality folks, too!"

In a Massachusetts town last winter, James A. Riis was asked by a gaunt, funereal sort of chap what he should say by way of introducing him to an assemblage. "Oh," said Mr. Riis, in a spirit of levity, "say anything you like. Say I am the most distinguished citizen in the country. They generally do." Whereupon his funereal friend marched upon the stage and calmly announced to the audience that he did not know this man Riis, whom he was charged with introducing, never heard of him. "He tells me," he went on, with never a wink, "that he is the most distinguished citizen in the country. You can judge for yourselves when you have heard him."

A veritable "quick luncheon," it is said, is to be had at a restaurant in Paris, where a dinner of several courses, composed of concentrated food in the form of tablets, can be consumed in a few minutes. The entire meal, indeed, can be carried about in the vest pocket or pocketbook.

Mother's love prompted a heroic act at St. Louis the other day. To save her child from being burned, or from injury by the fall from a second story window, Mrs. Joseph B. Bosek stood with her back to a brick pavement, her heels on the edge of the window ledge, with flames in her face, and threw herself backward. Her own body cushioned the fall of her 10-months-old baby, who she held in her arms. A moment later she was raised unconscious from the sidewalk. She suffered a badly wrenched back and severe internal injuries. The baby was not hurt.

A Happy Boy

Oldenburg, Ill., Sept. 2d:—The doctors all failed in the case of little thirteen-year-old Willie Keil, who suffered with acute Rheumatism.

For over three months the poor little fellow suffered excruciating torture. His father, who had done everything he could think of, saw a new Rheumatism Remedy advertised — Dodd's Kidney Pills. He bought some, and soon his little son showed signs of improvement. Three boxes cured him completely, and he has not a symptom of Rheumatism left.

This miraculous cure of a case which had been given up by the physicians has electrified Madison County, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are a much talked of medicine.

PE-RU-NA AVERTS

In That Critical Time When a Woman

MISS BESSIE KELLOG.

Miss Bessie Kellog, President of the Young Woman's Club, of Valley City, North Dakota, writes the following from First street, South, Valley City, North Dakota:

"Ever since I matured I suffered with severe monthly pains. The doctor did not seem to understand what the trouble was and the medicine he prescribed from time to time did not help me. He finally suggested that I have an operation. One of my friends who had been cured of a similar affliction through the use of Peruna, advised me to give it a trial first, and so I used it for three weeks faithfully. My pains dimished very soon and within two months I had none at all.

"This is six months ago, and during that time I have not had an ache nor pain. I give highest praise to Peruna. Every woman ought to use it, and I feel sure that it would bring perfect health."—BESSIE KELLOG.

The experience of Miss Bessie Kellog, of North Dakota, ought to be read by every girl in the land. It is a critical period in a woman's life when she ceases to be a girl and becomes a woman. Very few pass through this period without some trouble. The doctor is called [illegible] eration [illegible] tient to a [illegible] with nervin[illegible] he does not o[illegible] cause he does not recognize the trouble.

In a large majority of the cases catarrh of the female organs is the cause. Peruna relieves these cases promptly because it cures the catarrh. Peruna is not a palliative or a sedative or a nervine or a stimulant. It is a specific for catarrh and cures catarrh wherever it may lurk in the system.

This girl was lucky enough to find Peruna at last. As she says, the doctors did not seem to understand what the trouble was and the medicine he prescribed from time to time did not help her. Peruna hit the mark at once and she is now recommending this wonderful remedy to all the other girls in the United States.

Thousands of the girls who look at her beautiful face and read her sincere testimonial, will be led to try Peruna in their times of trouble and critical periods. Peruna will not fail them. Every one of them will be glad and it is to be hoped that their enthusiasm will lead them to do as this girl did—proclaim the fact to the world so that others may read it and do likewise.

Mrs. Christopher Fliehmann, Amsterdam, N. Y., writes:

"I have been sick with catarrh of the stomach and pelvic organs for about five years, and had many a doctor, but none could help me. Some said I would never get over it. One day when I read you almanac I saw those who had been cured by Peruna; then I thought I would try it. I did, and found relief with the first bottle I took, and after two more bottles I was as well and strong as I was before."—Mrs. Christopher Fliehmann.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A circular letter from Supt. H. W. Rothert of the school for those who are too deaf to be taught at a public school announces that the institution at Council Bluffs will begin its next term of school on Oct, 1st. Any parent having a deaf child is welcome to send the same without cost as the state maintains this branch of education.

The social liberties of the American child are one of the evils of this country. Children's dances and children's parties, once given in the afternoon, have intruded into the evening, and are sending thousands of our children to their beds in a state of excitment which means no good for their future. It stands to reason that no child can with his or her unformed strength, burn the candle at both ends.

We, with others, drove out to the Ell Center Harvest Home Picnic last Friday and enjoyed the afternoon among the farmers. A lively time was had all the way round. A big dinner was served free gratis by the ladies by which they did themselves proud. A program was delivered, foot races were indulged in, a slow mule race was witneessed and a ball game was played, Every thing went off lovely and the feeling of all is soaring high.

Frank Kluckhohn and Geo. Nissen rode to Kanawa on their "bikes" Sunday. Right here is where the joke comes in. Their wheels were crying for oil so they proceeded to get some. They got it at the resuarant and oiled their machines. When part way home the wheels needed more oil and the proceeded to grease up. During the operation the wrapper came off the bottle and (what do you think? Lo and behold) they had a bottle of lemon extract. They enjoyed the music!

A couple of the big threshers from out west came to town last Saturday and proceeded to tell one another which could pound out the most grain and the talk became so exciting that one called the other a lair, and for said call received a stunning thump on the cheek. The man that hit the man that called him a story teller was called before the majistrate and requested to shell out five-fifty for the blow.

EAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of southern Minnesota. The six new towns. Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

The busiess and mightiest little thing ahat ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Harr.

Josh Westhafer, of Logootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer" writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. Its simply wonderful for Burns, Boils Piles, and all skin eruptions. Its the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Harr.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's Drug Store.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Although the news has been spread to the uttermost parts of the world by this time we fell it our duty to mention the attempt-assassination of President Wm. McKinley, for the benefit of those who do not read the dailies. While attending the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition on last Friday afternoon a few moments after four o'clock and while shaking hands with other prominent man he was approached by a well dressed man to whom he extened his hand. The stranger had one hand wrapped in a handkerchief and while extending one hand he used the disguised hand to shoot and fired two shots from a 32 caliber revolver. The first shot struck a vest botton and glanced off making only a surface injury. The second entered the abdomen plowing it's way through the stomach and lodging near the back bone. The assassin was hurridly taken by secret detectives and police and placed behind prison bars. He first gave his name as Neiman but afterwards said it was Leon Czolgosz. The pronunciation for the name Czolgosz is 'Shawl-gotch.' He claims to be an anarchist and undoubtedly is as letters on his person have shown anarchistic correspondence. At present the nation's ruler lies at the Milburn home in Boston undergoing the best medical treatment. The danger point of death is past and he is speedily recovering.

In the case of the attempted murder of the President there is one point which the nation regrets and that is that if McKinley lives the instigator and perpetrater of this diabolical crime as Shawlgotch claims to be, is punishable by only ten years imprisonment. It was intent to murder of the first degree, the shots were fired at two vital spots, and had both shots entered the body the President would have been buried by this time. Irregardless of the President's surviving and living on for years the criminal and all those of anarchistic incliuations who teach "no government" should be swept from the earth. No death however horrible is too cruel to bestow upon such soul-less mortals as this assassin.

A law that would teach and exemplify to others, that they "shall not" do likewise, as in the attempted assassination of McKinley would serve this old Union to invaluable ends.

Our chattels persenal are of such a kind that all can be packed in a trunk!

Its not such a bad idea after all to have the government direct some secret service man to accidently shoot a hole through the stomach of Shawlgotch. It wouldn't be very wicked to send a plug through him on the cris-cross plan after the first one had lodged comfortably. This method of ventilation would save him considerable breathing.

Some men are but brutes and should be handled as they handle others or in fashion with brute keeping.

Selecting Seed Corn.

A few observations taken in the corn belt will convince one that the shortage in the corn corp this year cannot be attributed entirely to the drouth and dry weather. The use of poor seed has added immensely to that loss. It is true that we attributed our poor "stand" to unfavorable condition at planting time, but these very conditions suggest the wisdom of using seed that will germinate one-hundred per cent even when the soil is cold.

olo

Preparations for a good crop in 1902 should begin as soon as the growing crop has matured. Where only a few bushels of seed are to be saved, this should be selected in the field before husking time, and especially before the heavy frosts begin. Seed for high ground should be selected from the higher lands, while for the bottom lands the seed should be taken from lower soils. Ears should be chosen only from such stalks as are of a good size and also bear the ear well up on the stalk.

olo

As to the best type of ear to choose, there will be some variations in varities, although on general principals all varities that are worth preserving should conform to a certain standard. In the first place it should be uniform in coir, both grain and cob, which would indicate some fixedness in type and give at least some assurance that that the crop grown from such a seed would resemble the parent, not only in color but in other essentials. All ears chosen should be well filled out at butt and tip. Bare tips indicate that the lower kernels on the ear absorb nourishment that should be distributed throughout the entire length. Of course imperfect pollination is sometimes the cause, but on general principals such seed should be rejected. Perfect filling at ends is more often found where the ears are short and mistakes are easily made in this direction. Nothing should be chosen that is shorter than nine inches, and ten and ten and one half is much to be preferred providing there is no deficiency in other respects. The circumference should at least be seven inches, or seven and one-half would be still better. The rows of kernels should be numerous, straight and well packed together. The kernels should be deep enough to yield 58 to 60 pound of shelled corn per bushel when cured. An ear that will yield much to a twisting pressure should be rejected. Nothing should be saved from seeds that show a tendency to revert to the flint type. Any appearance of this reversion is always plainly apparent in the tip and but kernels. Although smaller, these kernels should show the clearly defined dented character.

olo

Where a large quantity of seed is saved, it may be selected during the husking season by placing such ears as conform to a high standard of perfection in an apartment of the wagon designed for that purpose. In either case, the selection should be carefully made.

olo

Seed corn should be stored where freezing and thawing cannot take place. It is true that corn taken from the crib will often grow quite well, but it has been demonstrated beyond question that the germ of such seed is always weaked to some extent. If conditions should be unfavorable after planting a poorer stand is always the result when corn of this kind is planted. After spending time in selecting seed, one cannot afford to have his work undone by leaving it exposed to our severe atmospheric conditions.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Sept. 9, 1901.

The semi-annual apportionment of the interest of the permanent school fund has been made by Auditor of State Merriam. Provision for this apportionment is made in sections 89 and 2847 of the code. The basis for this year's apportionment is 14.91 cents for each youth of school age. The total amount of the permanent school fund January 1, 1901, was $4,510.73. The interest on state funds is $108,942.52. This also represents the amount of interest apportioned at this time. The present basis of apportionment is about 2 cents less per capita than that of last March.

The argument of the atttorneys for the appellant in the noted Hossack murder case, appealed from Warren county, has been filed with the supreme court. Henderson & Berry of Indianola are the attorneys for Mrs. Margaret Hossack. The filing of the appellant's argument makes it practically certain the case will be reached at the October term of the supreme court and submitted at that time.

The board of control has made the awards of contracts for the supply of flour needed for the state institutions the coming year, beginning October 1. The total amount bought will be 9,120 barrels. Last year the amount purchased was slightly over 9,000 barrels. The price paid this year ranges from $3.35 per barrel to $4.10. It averages slightly less than $4 per barrel and is an average of 25 cents lower than the price paid last year. Members of the board say an excellent quality of flour has been obtained.

The governor has appointed the following delegates to the international Good Roads convention at Buffalo, which meets September 16 to 21: Hon. I. G. Heans, Henry A. Crawford and Rufus L. Chase of Des Moines and James I. Gibson of Denison.

Dr. M. N. Voldeng of Des Moines has been appointed by the state board of control superintendent of the state insane hospital at Cherokee to commence his duties as soon as the hospital is ready for use. The work on the hospital is being pushed rapidly by all the contractors and the hospital will be ready for use early next summer. The board deemed it best to select a superintendent at this time, so that the force could be properly organized in advance of the opening. Dr Voldeng was for several years assistant superintendent of the Independence hospital, but has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Des Moines.

T. F. McConnell, of Bloomfield, was elected chairman of the democratic state central committee at its meeting held at the Savery. Mr. McConnell was the member of the committee from the Sixth district, the same district from which Mr. Phillips, the democratic candidate for governor, comes. He will make arrangements for open headquarters at once. To succeed him F. Q. Stuart, of Chariton, was elected chief clerk. He will have charge of the headquarters when Mr. McConnell is away and will look after the correspondence and office work.

The trustees of the state historical department will ask the legislature next winter for reasonably liberal appropriation. They do not believe that the effort which has been made in certain quarters to make it appear that the department is a local Des Moines enterprise will appeal to the members of the assembly who are familiar with the scope of the work and its importance to the whole state irrespective of locality. The present wing of the state historical building, as completed, cost $75,000. It is estimated that the remainder of the building can be built for about $200,000. It is probable that the trustees will not require more than enough to build the foundation for the completed structure in 1902. Added to this, they will ask for sufficient to erect the wing in 1903. The remainder or portion of the structure could then be left to the succeeding legislature.

Secretary Van Houten reports that the total income of the state fair of 1901 was over $50,000. The expenses were slightly above $40,000. A certain surplus of $8,000 is figured on, which makes about $28,000 on hand.

Contracts have been awarded by the state board of control for meat for the state institutions. They amount to about $8,500 for pork and $4,000 for beef. The contracts were awarded as follows: Pork—Armour Packing Co., Kansas City—Anamosa, Cherokee, Council Bluffs, Davenport, Madison, Glenwood and Independence. Cudahy Packing Co., South Omaha—Marsnalltown, Mitchellville, Pleasant and Vinton. Beef—Armour & Co., Omaha.

COLUMBIA IS CHOSEN.

Boat Will Make the Race With Shamrock II.

Port, R. I., Sept. 6.—The yacht Columbia, champion of 1899, has been chosen to race against the Shamrock II in defense of the American cup. This decision was reached after a conference lasting two hours between the members of the challenge committee. All the committee were present, Commodore Lewis Ledyard presided. It was held that while the decision might be disappointing to the syndicate which owns the Columbia, the committee was compelled to choose the Columbia, whose merits have not shown the erratic qualities manifested by her rival.

It is the challenge committee's belief it was learned there will be no further racing of the 90-footers at Newport. The time between now and the international cup race at Sandy Hook October 21 will be spent in putting the Columbia in the best possible shape to defend the cup.

Assaulted Own Sister.

Corydon, Sept. 9.—Jack Christopherson, a local tough, was arrested on the charge of rape preferred by his own sister. She claims that her brother choked her until blood came from her mouth and nose, but was able to fight him off. After making the assault he skipped to Lineville, twenty miles east of Decatur, where he was arrested.

Revolution in Persia.

London, Sept. 3.—A dispatch to the Standard from Teheran, dated August 13, says: "A widespread revolutionary movement is gaining ground in Persia, fostered by discontent with the government, owing to the failure of loan negotiations with Russia. The grand vizer is accused of ruining the country and failing to carry reforms. Martial law has been proclaimed in the capital and environs. The agitation, it is said, proceeds from the entourage of the shah, who frequently finds threatening letters on his writing table."

THE NEWS IN IOWA

LET STATE ISSUES ALONE.

Meeting of Prominent Republicans at Des Moines to Discuss Issues.

Des Moines, Sept. 9.—National issues and not state ones will be paramount in the speaking campaign of the rejublican this fall.

After the conference of members of the Iowa delegation, candidates and leading republicans the principal topic considered was what issues should be foremost on the stump this fall. Other questions concerning the campaign policy were considered. It was the unanimous statement that there should be no lapse of energy on the part of the republicans.

The conference expressed itself for a vigorous campaign, but a brief one, to continue from about October 1 to the election.

The meeting was well attended by the long-time leaders of the party in the state. The conference met at ten o'clock and later in the day a meeting of the state central committee was held.

Among those present were Senators Allison and Dolliver, Congressmen, Hedge, Rumple, Haugen, Lacey, Hull, Smith, Connors and Thomas; Governor Shaw, Secretary of State Martin, State Treasurer Gilbertson and Attorney General Mullan, A. B. Cummins, John Herriott, Judge S. M. Weaver and Ed C. Brown, all candidates on the republican state ticket; R. H. Spence, Charles W. Psillips, W. L. Turner, W. L. Clayton, J. D. Whisenand, James E. Bruce, and S. X. Way, members of the republican state committee; Senator J. J. Crossley of Winterset, James Wilson of Adair, Joseph Whelan of Red Oak, George Christian, United States marshal for the southern district of Iowa; Paul MacLean of Creston, A. W. Purcell of Hampton, H. P. Gow of Greenfield, Senator H. C. Hayward of Davenport, Bernard Murphy of Vinton, Roscoe Morine of Mason City, W. C. McArthur, clerk of the federal district court; W. H. McClure of Fontanelle, A. F. Dawson of Maquoketa, G. L. Dobson of Des Moines, L. H. Meyne of Palo Alto county and Lafe Young.

At the conference speeches were called for from nearly all present. Senator Allison spoke first and urged a vigorous campaign. It was significant that not a single speaker urged a vigorous campaign on state issues. The railroad taxation question was not mentioned. It was felt the campaign should be an educational one, preparing the way for the congressional campaign next season. It was contended by some of the speakers the democrats had not adopted a platform that called for a discussion of any state issues, unless it was in relation to local option. It is not expected it will be necessary for the republicans to take up this question seriously as it is believed the people are not disposed to change the present mulct law.

Both in and out of the conference the policy to be followed on the stump was talked over. The line of argument on the tariff was not dwelt on in the conference, but it was talked over outside of it. There is no question the tendency will be to speak for a broad policy or tariff reform. McKinley's recent address at Buffalo and the republican state platform will be taken as foundations for the arguments of speakers on this subject. However, the ideas expressed by McKinley do not go as far as considered necessary by some of the leaders, and utterances on the tariff that a year ago would have been deemed heretical may be looked for this fall. A part of the delegation in congress is pronouncedly in favor of the Babcock measure and these members are likely to plead for the removal of the tariff on all goods on which a domestic mnnopoly has been established.

MYSTERY MAY BE UNEARTHED.

Cherokee County Grand Jury Investigating an Old Case.

Cherokee, Sept. 5.—Six years ago this fall an aged couple by the name of Schultz, living sixteen miles southwest of here, were murdered. The old people had between $1,300 and $1,500 hidden in the house, $600 being in the old bible. Only a small part of the money was taken. Three years ago a man by the name of Skinner was tried for the crime, but was acquitted. The murdered woman had two brothers, George and John Montaghney, living near. Both brothers are well-to-do farmers. Suspicion has pointed a finger toward the brothers from the first, but there was nothing definite. Since that time George's mind became unbalanced and he has been at the asylum for some time. John's wife died from nervous decline. Recently there has been trouble in the family, and a son of George has turned state's evidence and the matter is now before the grand jury. Both brothers and their families as well as a foster son of John, George Goodrich, have been called before the jury. If the boy's confession is accepted there will be a solution of one of the dark crimes of the county's history.

ALARMED BY STRANGE BEASTS.

Animals of Unknown Species Chase Children and Kill Sheep.

Jefferson, Sept. 6.—Some sort of a strange beast is making life a burden to the people of Kendrick township, in the northwestern part of this county. It has on several occasions recently chased half-grown children, two good sized boys being treed by the animal. The boys says the beast is about the size of a small calf, having a long body and a flat head. Two little girls belonging to Joseph Gray were chasen to their home by the animal. Lafe Cochran says he has seen two of them, one a trifle larger than the other. They had killed some of his sheep and were after others. From all descriptions the animals are mountain lions, or pumas. The people of the township are greatly agitated over the matter and children are kept closely housed. It is said that arrangements are being perfected to organize and hunt the beasts down. Thus far no human lives have been lost, but a number of narrow escapes are reported.

Strange Case at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Sept. 9.—There is undoubtedly a strange story connected with the frightful injury of the patient who is receiving surgical treatment at the St. Joseph's hospital. He walked into the hospital a few days ago and told the surgeons of an unmentionable injury which had been inflicted upon him, but refused to give his name, residence or who perpetrated the deed. He simply said he had money to pay for the treatment he needed and no further information than this would be given. He had evidently walked a number of miles and had taken precautions to prevent hemorrhage.

Held to Grand Jury.

Ames, Sept. 5.—Ace Williams, the negro porter charged with attempting to assault Florence Sullivan, the daughter of Northwestern Conductor Sullivan, was arraigned in justice court here. He waived examination and was held to the grand jury. He failed to give bonds and was committed to the county jail.

Charged With Selling Oleo.

Clinton, Sept. 5.—Henry Badger was arrested yesterday on a complaint filed by State Dairy Commissioner Norton, charged with having sold oleomargarine. His hearing is set for September 7.

ANOTHER STATE TICKET NAMED.

Iowa Socialist Party Puts Candidates in the Field.

Des Moines, Sept 6.—The socialist party of Iowa met in state convention at Trades Assembly hall yesterday and nominated the following ticket: For governor, James Baxter, Monroe county; for lieutenant governor, W. A. Jacobs, Scott county; supreme judge, A. F. Thompson, Appanoose county; railroad commissioner, A. C. Middlebrook, Lyons county; superintendent public instruction, E. E. Stevens, Des Moines county. The following platform was adopted: The socialistic party of Iowa, in convention assembled, hereby ratifies and endorses the action of the convention of the united socialistic party held at Indianapolis July 29. In accordance with the provisions thereof we declare our allegiance to the principles of international socialism. We believe socialism to be a scientific solution of the labor problem and that it will provide an ethical construction of society whereby equality and existing justice will be meted out to every individual. We declare our unalterable opposition to the competition for bread and to the capitalistic control of the means of production and distribution, and to secure a system whereby want, misery and poverty shall be forever eliminated we pledge ourselves to the final and complete overthrow of all competitive and capitalistic systems and the substitution thereof of a co-operative commonwealth and collective ownership of all means of production and distribution. This is our construction of socialism. Anything more is unnecessary; anything less would fail of the accomplishment of our purpose. Our movement is revolutionary only in principles and ethics. Our methods are peaceful and our appeal is to the reason and conscience. We recommend to the voters of Iowa the study of our national platform as a plain statement of the general and specific demands of our party.

PAID $2,000 FILING FEE.

Interesting Document Is Placed on File at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Sept. 7.—A neatly written pen and ink manuscript just filed made the final conveyance of the Sioux City and Pacific railway to the Chicago & Northwestern.

The filing fee alone cost $2,000, although the consideration named was only one dollar, but the Chicago & Northwestern assumes payment of the $4,000,000 in bonds issued by the Sioux City & Pacific August 1, 1901, and the first mortgage given on that date to secure the payment of the bonds. The consideration is therefore $4,000,000, and revenue stamps in accordance with this amount are affixed to the instrument. The stamps are only two in number, each of $1,000. They are the first $1,000 stamps seen in Sioux City.

Farmer Files Peculiar Claim.

Jefferson, Sept. 8.—The board of supervisors of Carroll county is probably considering the most peculiar claim ever presented for auditing. It appears that by reason of failure of the county to order vacated a certain road, that a farmer, one Clemens Olderding, and family, have been compelled to go a hundred rods out of their way each time they went to and from town. Mr. Olberding now presents a bill of $3,861.60, representing value of time lost in going around, for himself and family. The bill is itemized as follows:

Self—Three trips a week at 25 cents for 1,560 weeks.

Wife—Three trips a week at 10 cents, 2,080 weeks.

Three sons—Six trips a week at 10 cens, 936 weeks.

Four sons—Three trips a week at 15 cents, 520 weeks.

Four daughters—Three to six trips a week, at 10 cents, 780 weeks.

The bill is duly certified to. Olberding says it is just and that he proposes to collect it.

Solon Claims Big Damages.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 5.—Martin Solon has filed suit in the United States court in Fort Dodge for the sum of $25,000 damages from the Chicago Great Western Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received by the plaintiff on November 13, 1900, in the yards of the company at Des Moines. Solon states through his petition that he was called upon to couple a Great Northern tourist car to a Great Western sleeper. He claims that neither car had an automatic coupler, and that he was compelled to go between to make the coupling. In doing this he says that his right arm was caught at the wrist and was badly crushed. The case will be tried at the sitting of the United States court in November, and is arousing much interest, as it involves the question whether or not the railroad companies must provide automatic couplings for their cars.

Alleged Counterfeiters Arrested.

Hedrick, Sept. 7.—Deputy United States Marshal Webb of Omaha arrested Columbus Monohen and Gerald Ruby here, charging them with making counterfeit quarters, half dollars and dollars. They are supposed to be members of a gang having headquarters in the woods on Skunk river. The work is rather crude, although it has been passed frequently within the last few months. The men arrested are ignorant and other more capable minds are supposed to have originated the idea. They refused to talk.

Burned to the Water's Edge.

Muscatine, Sept. 7.—The Carnival City Packing company's new boat, Urania, burned to the water's edge here. The fire started in the laundry. A large excursion party of Burlington people, returning home from Davenport, escaped without loss of life. The Urania was lately purchased by Captain Walter I. Blair at Cincinnati for $17,000 and had been in the trade but a short time. The boat was fully insured.

Brant for the Legislature.

Clinton, Sept. 9.—The legislative ticket nominated by the Clinton county republican convention is: Senator George D. McDaid, Clinton, representative, David Brant, Clinton, and Dr. Morton Lyons, Dewitt. Mr. Brant, when his name was presented, tried to decline, but he was drowned down by cries of "sit down," "out of order," etc, and he was named by acclamation.

Brothers Indicted for Murder.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 5.—The grand jury has returned an indictment for murder in the first degree against George and Oliver Bricker, who are charged with the killing of C. A. Guild and son, Clarence Guild, in Yell township last June. The trial is expected to be one of the most sensational in the history of Webster county.

Placed Lips to a Snake Bite.

Waterloo, Sept. 7.—The heroic act of a Waterloo lady probably saved the life of a 10-year-old son of J. B. Palmer, who was bitten by a snake at a picnic. The lady sucked the poison from the wound, after which it was cauterized.

Held to the Grand Jury.

Mason City, Sept. 9.—Four days have been consumed in the preliminary hearing of W. M. Smith, charged with assault upon Lena, the 12-year-old daughter of Charles Schmidt. Judge Chambers bound him over to the grand jury, and he was thrown into jail. There is great indignation in the southern part of the county, where the assault is alleged to have been committed. For a number of years past Smith was connected with Phillips on the board of trade in Chicago. He is now in the employ of Dodd, Meade & Co., publishers, Chicago.

NEWS IN GENERAL

ECUADOR HAS INTERVENED.

Joins Forces With Rebellious Elements On the Isthmus.

Washington, Sept. 6.—A cablegram has been received from an authoritative source in Cali, Colombia, near the Ecuadorean border, stating that Ecuador has intervened as against Colombia with an army well equipped and with vessels of war. Under these circumstances, the cablegram states it will be necessary to meet the move of Ecuador by having Colombian war vessels in Pacific waters near the Colombia-Ecuador frontier.

The information in the cablegram is considered clear evidence of Ecuador's intention to join forces with the rebellious element on the isthmus of Panama. Until now Ecuador has maintained strict neutrality, but the cablegram received today indicates that the first overt move against Colombia has been made.

Considerable surprise is expressed at the news of the intention of Ecuador to invade Colomia, as disclosed by a dispatch received from Cali, which is the most important of the cities of the department Cauca bordering on Ecuador. Senor Eraza, the new president of the latter country, who has just assumed office, heretofore has given evidence of his attention to observe strict neutrality between Colombia and Venezuela in their pending difficulties. The impression prevails that the invading force is under the direction of the intervening party in Ecuador which probably has a force of men near the border line and is taking an early opportunity to act before the new president can stay it. The real objective point is believed to be Panama, where the invaders may assist the Colombian revolutionists and those who may be brought from Nicaragua. Reliance is placed, however, by the Colombian officials on the presence of United States men of war at Panama to prevent any attack on the place. The battleship Iowa is expected at Panama in a day or two, and with the Ranger now there will be able to land a considerable force of marines should this be necessary to prevent attack.

BISHOP MADE THEM MAD.

Jersey City Negro Stirs Up the Ecumenical Council.

London, Sept. 5.—The most striking feature of the Ecumenical Methodist conference, which opened yesterday, was an impassioned plea of the colored bishop, Walters of Jersey City. He declared that there was a systematic effort on foot on the part of white Americans to destroy the good opinion which the English people had of American negroes. He recapitulated the lynching figures of the year 1900 and declared that, though ninety negroes were lynched, in only eleven cases had assault on white women been proved.

This elicited loud cheers from the English and several southern delegates went out, while others did not conceal their disagreement with the speaker.

Another incident which attracted comment was a declaration of Sir Charles Skilton, formerly mayor of Sheffield, who, in welcoming the Americans, severely criticized the war in South Africa, exclaiming:

"Hell is let loose in South Africa."

He appealed to the visitors to go back and by preaching an example, make such wars impossible.

BRYAN HOPES MAN WAS INSANE.

The Crime Is Terrible, But Would Be Worse If the Man Were Sane.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 8.—Following the news of the attempt upon his life, W. J. Bryan sent a brief message to President McKinley expressing his concern. Mr. Bryan has given out the following statement:

"The attempted assassination of the president is a shock to the entire country and he and his wife are the recipients of universal sympathy. The dispatches say that the shot was fired by an insane man, and it is hoped that this is true, for, while it is a terrible thing for the president to be the victim of the act of a maniac, it would be even worse for him to be fired upon by a sane person prompted by malice or revenge. In a republic where the people elect their officials and can remove them there can be no excuse for a resort to violence. If our president were in constant fear of plots and conspiracies we would soon sink to the level of those nations in which force is the only weapon of the government and the only weapon of the government's enemies."

Sinking of LaPopa.

New York, Sept. 5.—The brief cable mention of the recent sinking of the Colombian gunboat LaPopa has been supplemented by further particulars regarding the accident, by mail, says the Tribune. Gen. Joaquin Velez, governor of Bolivar, charges that LaPopa was sunk by rebels, and has caused the imprisonment of the four survivors, charging them with complicity in the plot.

The government has used every endeavor to suppress the details of the wreck. On this account it is not definitely known how many lives were lost. LaPopa was carrying troops from Cartagena to Barranquilla, and none of them were saved. The warship, which went down about sixty miles from the port of Savanilla, also carried a cargo of 500,000 cartridges and 1,000 rifles, the loss of which will be seriously felt by the government.

The sinking of LaPopa will also cripple the naval fighting force, as Colombia recently sold the Cordova, which was her largest ship, and is now left with only one gunboat on account. This is the General Pinzon, formerly the American steam yacht Namouna. One hundred thousand dollars has been sent to General Velez from Bogema with which to purchase another vessel.

Decided in Favor of Settlers.

Dubuque, Sept. 8.—Judge Shiras, of the Federal court, handed down a decision in the Noble land case which involves many others in O'Brien, Lyon and other counties. The case decided was that of Manly and Tow. The court holds that the actual settlers on these lands have preferences over those persons who purchased them from the Sioux City & St. Paul Railway company, because of failure of said company to carry out its agreement. The defeated party will take the case up to the court of appeals in the Eighth district, which will be held in St. Louis, and from that court the case will then go on to the United States Supreme court. It may take a year or two to get a final decision.

Rev. H. C. Marshall Accepts.

Sioux City, Sept. 5.—Rev. H. C. Marshall has announced that he will accept the superintendency of the Iowa Anti-Saloon league, which office was tendered him at the meeting of that organization in Des Moines a short time ago. He will make his headquarters in Sioux City. He has not mapped out his plan of work.

COERCIVE ACTION BY FRANCE.

Turkish Spies Are to Be Expelled From the Country.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The French government has decided upon the first coercive measures against the Sultan of Turkey. A decree has been drawn up and will probably be signed today expelling a number of Turkish agents whose mission has been to spy on the young Turks in France. The list includes several names well known in Parisian society. It is also learned that the sultan has telegraphed to Munir Bey recalling him to Constantinople.

HE MAY RECOVER.

There Is a Steady Improvement in the Condition of the President.

Buffalo, Sept. 9.—Through the quiet peaceful Sabbath every word that came from the big vine-clad house on Delaware avenue, in which the stricken chief magistrate of the nation lies battling for life, was reassuring, and now the chances for his recovery are so greatly improved that all of those who have kept vigil at his bedside feel strongly that his life will be spared. The developments of the last twenty-four hours were dreaded, but hour after hour passed and the distinguished patient, struggling there beneath the watchful eyes of physicians and trained nurses showed not an unfavorable symptom.

Five times during the day the eminent doctors and surgeons assembled for consultation, and each time the verdict was unanimous that what change had occurred was for the better. Not the slightest premonitory symptom of peritonitis appeared, and the fresh hope, born with the morning, grew stronger and stronger as the day advanced, until towards evening the confidence expressed in the president's recovery seemed almost too sanguine.

Dr. Charles McBurney, the famous New York surgeon, who was summoned in consultation, after a thorough examination in which he said he had not found a single unfavorable symptom, joined in the last afternoon bulletin, which declared that the president's condition was satisfactory to all the physicians present. It is not strange, therefore, that the vice president, the members of the cabinet and other distinguished visitors who called came away with lighter hearts and buoyant tread and gave expression to the most optimistic sentiments.

And yet, despite all this optimism, the president is by no means out of danger. Not one of his advisors who is permitted to the inner councils—has the temerity to go so far as to declare that he is out of danger. But if he continues to improve for one more day, the danger of peritonitis, which is most dreaded, will have practically disappeared.

Saturday one of the doctors thought forty-eight hours would be the limit of the danger from that source, but his more conservative colleagues believe at least twenty-four hours, possibly thirty-six from this time, must elapse before the possibility of peritonitis shall have vanished. That disposed of, still other complications may arise. Blood poisoning might set in or an abscess form where the bullet is imbedded in the muscles of the back. Thus far the ball of the assassin, which is still in the body, gives the physicians no anxiety.

But if the slightest inflammation appears in the region of the lead it will be immediately extracted. No difficulty is anticipated in this regard. One of Edison's best X-Ray machines and his most skillful and trusted operator, Dr. H. A. Knolls, have arrived. The batteries were charged and the machine is ready for instant use. With it the physicians say there is not the slightest doubt that the ball can be located perfectly for an operation. They do not deem it advisable to sap any of the president's strength at this time. All his reserve force is needed now to resist the danger of peritonitis and septic poisoning. Besides, if inflammation does not set in around the bullet it will soon become encysted.

Buffalo, Sept. 9.—6 a. m.—The president passed a somewhat restless night, sleeping fairly well. General condition unchanged. Pulse 120, temperature 101, respiration 28.

OPERATION WAS SUCCESSFUL.

Detailed Account of the Work of the Surgeons With President.

Buffalo, Sept. 9.—The Express says regarding the first operation performed on the president:

The operation performed at the emergency hospital left no need for a second operation to follow it almost immediately. The full details of the operation heretofore have not been known. It was performed by Dr. Mathew D. Mann. His first assistant was Dr. Herman Mynter. His second assistant was Dr. John Parmenter. His third assistant was Dr. Lee of St. Louis, who happened to be on the exposition grounds at the time of the tragedy and placed his services at the disposal of the president. Dr. Nelson W. Wilson noted the time of the operation and took the notes. Dr. Eugene Wasdin of the Marine hospital gave the anaesthetic. Dr. Rixey arrived at the latter part of the operation and held the light. Dr. Park arrived at the close of the operation. It was Dr. Mann who wielded the knife.

The operation lasted almost an hour. A cut about five inches was made. It was found necessary to turn up the stomach of the president in order to trace the course of the bullet. The bullet's opening in the front wall of the stomach was small and it was carefully closed with sutures, after which a search was made for the hole in the back wall of the stomach. This hole where the bullet went out of the stomach was larger than the hole in the front wall of the stomach, in fact, it was a wound over an inch in diameter, jagged and ragged. It was sewed up in three layers. This wound was larger than the wound where the bullet entered the stomach, because the bullet, in its course forced tissues through ahead of it.

In turning up the stomach, an act that was absolutely necessary, and which was performed by Dr. Mann with rare skill, the danger was that some of the contents of the stomach might go into the abdominal cavity and as a result cause peritonitis.

It so happened that there was very little in the president's stomach at the time of the operation. Moreover, subsequent developments tend to show that this feature of the operation was grandly successful and that none of the contents of the stomach entered the abdominal cavity. If any of the contents had entered the cavity, the probability is that before this time peritonitis would have set in.

In this connection it is of interest that some experienced surgeons do not mind the temperature at all in noting the bulletins of the president's condition, but say that so long as the pulse is in the proper relation to the temperature in a big operation like this, it is very common for the temperature to remain around 102 or even 103. But if the temperature had dropped and the pulse had accelerated it would have been a danger signal of peritonitis setting in.

Dr. Robert Koch, the famous bacteriologist, is a versatile man. He is a good public speaker and something of a linguist, but his knowledge of English is very imperfect.

The Penalty Involved.

Des Moines, Sept. 9.—Under the criminal laws of New York attempted murder is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a maximum of ten years. This will be the limit of the punishment of Czoglosz in case the president recovers. Under Iowa laws the maximum penalty is eight years imprisonment.

"Time for Action Arrives."

Caracas, Ven., Sept. 4 (via Haytien cable).—The Republica, semi-official organ of the government, publishes an inspired article ending as follows: "The hour for notes has passed and the time for action has arrived."

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER VI.

It was near noon, and the king of Damascus was in his chamber with Aboul Cassem. They were talking about the approaching marriage.

"In three days more," said Horam, "I shall claim her for my bride."

"In truth, sire, it is as you have said," replied the minister. He spoke not with the enthusiasm of appreciation, but as one who would not dispute his king. "I trust, sire, your hopes may find their fruition. I pray that Ulin may bear to thee a son, and thus make bright and promising the evening of your life."

"Good Aboul, I trust in thy words. Ha! what now? Whom have we here?"

"Sire, "spoke a page, "the Israelite, Judah is without, and would speak with thee."

"How!" cried the king. "Is it the Judah whom I sent from the Valley of Lycanius?"

"The same, sire."

"Then send him to me at once. By my life, Aboul, he cannot have accomplished his mission so soon. I dare not hope so."

"Let us hope for the best," suggested the minister; and before further remark could be made Judah stood in the royal presence.

"Ha, Judah—do I see thee back so soon? Have you come to bring me word of failure?"

"Nay, sire," replied the Israelite, "I have come to bring the robber chieftain to Damascus."

"Have you taken him?"

"Yes, sire."

"Alive?"

"Yes, sire."

"And have him here?"

"Ready to be brought before you at any time."

"He is bound?"

"Yes, sire."

"Then bring him at once. By the host of Pluto, I would see the fellow. But—hold. He is guarded?"

"Yes, sire. Osmir and Selim are with him."

"Are they all?"

"It needs no more. The prisoner is securely bound, and can offer no resistance."

"Then let him come."

"Ye gods!" uttered Horam, turning to his minister, after Judah had gone, "what manner of man shall we behold?"

"I cannot guess, sire."

"A giant, I think—as ugly as a Cylop. But he is bound, Aboul—he is bound."

In a little while the door opened, and Judah entered, followed by Osmir and Selim, who led a bound man between them.

"Sire," spoke the Israelite, "this is the prisoner."

"But where is Julian?" demanded Horam.

"This is Julian."

"This?" cried the monarch, taking a step forward, and gazing into the face of the bound man before him. "This?' he repeated, in a lower tone, advancing another step, and gazing more earnestly upon the bold, open, youthful face. "This is not Julian."

"This is he who hath commanded the robber band," said Judah.

"Aye—and I am he whom you have called the Scourge of Damascus," spoke the prisoner, standing proudly erect, and gazing full into the face of the king. "I am Julian, the enemy of Horam, and the avenger of wrongs done years ago."

The monarch, as he gazed more intently upon those features, and as the tones of that voice fell upon his ear, seemed startled by the memory of some old dream. And Aboul Cassem was not entirely uninterested. The old minister gazed as fixedly and as earnestly upon the face of the young chieftain as did his royal master; and he, too, seemed puzzled and perplexed.

"Who are you?" asked Horam.

"I am Julian, the Scourge."

"But what else?"

"You should know what else, most mighty king. I have tried to make myself felt by you."

"But," urged Horam, taking no notice of the robber's tone, "why have you sought to harm me? Who are you that can have cause for such enmity?"

"I am one who knows the bitterness of deepest wrong," replied Julian. "Fatherless and motherless came I from the feeble steps of childhood; and I know that Horam was the murderer of my parents."

"Ha!" cried the king, with a start. "Who were your parents?'

"I will not speak their names in your presence."

"Beware, robber! I may compel you to answer."

"If you have power to extract answers from dead men, you may force answers from me."

"By the gods, thou art insolent."

"Then bind my tongue, as these slaves have bound my arms."

"No," said Horam, struggling with his passion. "I have another plan. The secret which you will not speak to me you shall never speak. You shall follow your parents with all possible speed. Judah!"

"I am here, sire."

"You know the deepest, darkest dungeon, where the most dreaded prisoners are confined?"

"Yes, sire."

"Conduct this man thither. Plunge him into the very bowels of the deepest cavern, where the doors are of iron, and the bolts of triple steel, and see that he is kept safely there until the morrow. You will answer for him with your life."

"Once more the king gazed into that youthful face, and then turned away to a window.

"Sire," spoke the minister, after the prisoner had been conducted away, "why do you spare that man for even another hour? Why do you not execute him at once?"

"Because," replied Horam, starting up, "I have a curiosity to know who he is. There is some mystery in that face of his. It is now near the hour of the council, and I have not time to think. I must see him again. Did you not mark something peculiar in his look?"

"Yes, sire; there is something in his face which is familiar to me; or, at least, it seems so."

"By my life, Aboul, it must be so. Did you mark that bold front; that open brow; that Jove-like sweep of nose and chin? and did you mark the deep lustrous eyes, and the gentle curling of that sunny hair?"

"Yes, sire."

"And can you not read its secret?"

"No. Can your majesty?"

"Not yet—not yet, Aboul; but I must I have a strange curiosity; and it is a curiosity which has been strangely and suddenly excited."

CHAPTER VII.

At Hassem's House.

Ulin had lost none of her wondrous beauty; but she had become pale, and the healthy flash of the eye was gone. Late in the evening she sat in her chamber, with her brow resting upon her hand, and ever and anon a deep sigh escaped her.

"My dear, good mistress," spoke Albia, gliding to the side of the princess, and resting her hand affectionately upon her arm, "I cannot bear to see you suffer so. What is it?"

"It is nothing, Albia." Ulin spoke without raising her head, and her voice was low and sad.

"Don't tell me that," urged the attendant. She got down upon her knees, and gazed earnestly up into Ulin's face.

"Oh, my dear lady, you are miserable and unhappy. Why will you not pour out your sorrows to me? Perhaps I can help you bear them. You know I love you; you know that I will be faithful. Tell me all, and I will suffer with you if I can; and I will help you if there is help to be had. As I live at this moment, so, if it should appear to me necessary, would I lay down my life for your welfare. Will you not trust me?"

"Ulin leaned her head forward upon Albia's shoulder, and burst into tears.

"Oh, Albia, you are my friend—you are my sister. I know you love me; and I cannot tell you how grateful I am."

"They why will you not lift the veil from your sorrow, and allow me to feel still more for you?"

"I had almost resolved to tell you, Albia."

"Then make the resolution sure, and admit me to your fullest confidence."

The princess dried her eyes, and finally lifted her head from her companion's shoulder.

"Dear Albia, I know not how to commence. I am a child—a poor, foolish child—as you will say when I have told you all. You will say that I deserve to suffer, and that punishment should be mine."

"Nay, my lady," responded the bondmaiden; "you must not commence in that way. Tell me first all the cause of your sorrow; and leave it for me to base my own judgment. Come—trust me, and let me give you all my sympathy."

A few moments the princess was silent, and then she said, with a low tremor in her voice:

"Dear Albia, when I said that I would marry with the king I did not think what I was doing. That strange dream, so wonderfully repeated, led my father to broach the subject, and I did not refuse. When he talked of my being queen, and of my giving birth to a king to a king of Damascus, I thought it might be my duty to offer myself. I did not then know Horam. But—now—I have learned new things. I dread the fate which I have courted. I fear and loathe the man whose wife I have promised to become. When I first promised to give myself to Horam I felt that I could perform the duty without the sacrifice of any real virtue or comfort of life. But, oh, how changed it has all become. Not only does my whole nature shrink from the sacrifice, but it seems as though a fate worse than death were involved in the ordeal. Last night I dreamed that Horam was my husband, and that he meant to kill me. He did not plan to drown me, as he did poor Helena; but he declared that I should be thrown alive into a den of wild beasts. It makes you shudder, Albia."

"Oh, how terrible!"

"And yet, my dear girl, I dreamed that I felt a relief when I knew that death was coming, even though it was to come so dreadfully. Just think what a state of mind that must be. Oh, it is horrible! Dear Albia, I know not what to do."

"Have you told me all?" whispered the bondmaiden, winding her arm about her mistress' neck, and kissing her upon the brow.

"Have I not told you enough?" returned Ulin, covering her face with her hands.

"Not if there is more to tell, dear lady. You have trusted me this far—trust me with all. You have told me that you dread the king; and I do not wonder at this. You cannot have forgotten that I spoke against the union from the first. It seemed to me unnatural. But, lady, there is something more."

"Nothing more which I dare to tell, Albia. Nay—do not ask me. I have told you all that I can tell. And now I ask you—what can I do? The fatal hour is nigh at hand in the which I have promised to give myself to the king."

"There is one thing you can do, my mistress—one thing alone, which, I can see."

"Speak, Albia."

"You can flee."

"Flee!" repeated Ulin, in a startled whisper.

"There is but one other course open to you.'

"And that——"

"Marriage with the king."

"Oh, Albia, this is dreadful! That same thought of flight has entered my mind before; but can I leave my father?"

"If you become the king's wife, you must leave him. Think of it, lady."

"But whither can I flee?"

"I have thought of that,' said the bondmaiden, "and I think I know where you could find safety. Some miles from Damascus, among the hills where the Pharphar winds its water in a mummuring channel, lives an old hermit, named Ben Hadad. His home is in a cave which the hand of nature has fashioned in the solid rock; and his life is given to deeds of charity and good will. I have seen him, and I know that he is good and kind."

"And how came you to know this old man?", asked the princess, with some surprise.

"I know him through an old woman named Ezabel, who has been often in the city, and who was well acquainted with your mother. This Ezabel used to come often to our house, and once Ben Hadad came with her—a white-haired old man, whose just and temperate life is lengthening out far beyond the span of years usually allotted to man. Your mother gave him money to be expended in charity; and he told her, if she ever could find use for his aid, it should be freely given. I know that he will befriend you. If you wish to flee, I will go with you, and to the last of my strength and my life I will help and sustain you. Think of it, my mistress."

"I will think of it, Albia, and on the morrow my mind shall be made up. You may retire now. It it late, and we both need rest."

(To be continued.)

The Apple Crop.

Few people, probably, appreciate the importance of the apple crop of the country. In value it exceeds even the wheat crop. Last year, for instance, the apple crop was 215,000,000 barrels, or 538,000,000 bushels. At a base of $2 per barrel, which is considered a conservative estimate, the crop netted $430,000,000, or nearly one hundred and seven million dollars more than the value of the wheat. On a percentage basis the apple crop reaches nearly fifty per cent more than the wheat. Our export of apples in the barrel exceeds four millions a year, and is increasing enormously. Our apples have a fixed value from Liverpool to St. Petersburg, and last year shippers to foreign ports experienced considerable difficulty in supplying the demands. This trade had grown for several years, but took an enormous bound after the Paris exposition, owing to the fine American display and the manner and energy in which American fruit growers presented the merits of the American apple.—New York Post.

Who is it that does not wish to be out in the open air or alive in some field of sport, whether it be with the bat, rod or gun; whether we go coasting over the hills and vales on the wheel or sailing over rough waves or into serene coves, it is all sport, and the springing muscles seem to need it. It is bound to happen that some mishap will occur. Thus it is that we have sprains, in abundance. Light sprains, sprains that cripple, sprains that give great pain, sprains that rob us of sleep, but sportsmen of all kinds have come to know that there is nothing better than the old reliable St. Jacob's Oil. How Clothes Are Blistered.

Many of the starches now being used in washable fabrics contain ingredients that break and blister the goods so that after a few washings they are of little service. Defiance starch (made in Nebraska) is manufactured with a special view to obviating the difficulty. It contains a solution that can in no way injure the linen—but instead gives it a smooth, glossy finish that makes goods look new after each ironing. Sold by leading grocers. Made by Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb.

PRESIDENT WAS SHOT

Attacked By an Assassin While Holding a Reception at Buffalo.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—President McKinley was shot and seriously wounded by a would-be assassin while holding a reception in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exposition a few minutes after four o'clock yesterday afternoon. One shot took effect in the right breast, the other in the abdomen. The first is not of a serious nature and the bullet has been extracted. The latter pierced the abdominal wall and has not been located.

It was shortly after 4. p. m. when one of the throng which surrounded the presidential party, a medium-sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president. Both Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn noticed that the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. Reports of bystanders differ as to which hand. He worked his way amid the stream of people up to the edge of the dias until he was within two feet of the president.

President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling of myriad feet and vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage.

There was an instant of almost complete silence. The president stood stock still, a look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment, upon his face.

Then he retreated a step, while a pallor began to spread over his features. The multitude, only partially aware that something serious had happened, paused in surprise, while necks were craned and all eyes turned as one to the rostrum where a great tragedy was being enacted.

Then came a commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward as with one impulse and sprang toward the would-be assassin. Two of them were United States secret service men, who were on the lookout and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity as had there befallen the president and the nation. The third was a bystander, a negro who had only an instant previous grasped in his dusky palm the hand of the president. As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the president's assailant. In a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon was wrested from his grasp and strong arms pinioned him down.

Then the multitude which thronged the edifice began to come to a realing sense of the awfulness of the scene of which they had been unwilling witnesses.

A murmur arose, spread and swelled to a hum of confusion, then grew to a babel of sounds and later to a pandemonium of noises.

After the first shock of the assassin's shot he retreated a step, then, as the detectives leaped upon his assailant, he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands. In an instant Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were at his side. His waist coat was hurriedly opened, the president meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm.

"But you are wounded," cried his secretary. "Let me examine."

"No, I think not," answered the president. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Nevertheless his outer garments were hastily unloosened, and when a trickling stream of crimson was seen to wind its way down his breast, spreading the telltale stain over the white surface of the linen, their worst fears were confirmed.

A force of exposition guards were on the scene by this time and an effort was made to clear the building.

The president's assailant in the Meantime had been hustled to the rear of the building by exposition guards, where he was held while the building was cleared and later he was turned over to Superintendent Bull of the Buffalo police department, who took the prisoner to No. 13 police station and afterwards to police headquarters. As soon as the crowd in the Temple of Music had been dispersed sufficiently the president was removed in the automobile ambulance and taken to the exposition hospital, where an examination was made. The best medical skill was summoned and within a brief period several of Buffalo's best known practitioners were at the patient's side.

The president retained the full exercise of his faculties until placed on the operation table and subjected to an anesthetic. Upon the first examination it was ascertained that one bullet had taken effect in the right breast just below the nipple, causing a comparatively harmless wound.

The other took effect in the abdomen, about four inches below the left nipple, four inches to the left of the navel and about on a level with it.

Upon arriving at the hospital the second bullet wound was probed for. The walls of the abdomen were opened, but the ball was not located. The incision was hastily closed and after a hasty consultation it was decided to remove the patient to the home of President Milburn. This was done, the automobile ambulance being used for the purpose.

Arriving at the Milburn residence, the task of probing for the bullet which had lodged in the abdomen, was begun by Dr. Roswell Parke.

When it was decided to remove the president from the exposition hospital to the Milburn residence, the news was broken to Mrs. McKinley, as gently as might be, by the members of the Milburn family. She bore the shock remarkably well and displayed the utmost fortitude.

THE ASSASSIN CONFESSES

He Claims He Had No Confederates. Disciple of Emma Goldman.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—Leon Czolgosz, who first gave his name as Nieman, the accused and self-confessed assassin, has signed a confession covering six pages of foolscap, which states that he is an anarchist and he became an enthusiastic member of that body through the influence of Emma Goldman, whose writings he had read and whose lectures he had listened to. He denies having any confederate and says he decided on the act three days ago and bought the revolver with which the act was committed in Buffalo. He has seven brothers and sisters in Cleveland. Some of them are butchers and others in different trades. He is now detained at police headquarters pending the result of the president's injuries. Czolgosz does not appear in the least degree uneasy or penitent for his action. He says he was induced by his attention to Emma Goldman's lectures and writings to decide that the present form of government in this country was all wrong and he thought the best way to end it was by killing the president. He shows no sign of insanity, but is very reticent about much of his career. While acknowledging himself an anarchist, he does not state to what branch of the organization he belongs.

PHYSICIANS' STATEMENT.

Result Cannot Be Foretold, But There Is Hope of Recovery.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.—Secretary Cortelyou last night gave out the following statement:

"The following bulletin was issued by the physicians at 7 p. m.:

"'The president was shot about 4 o'clock; one bullet struck him on the upper portion of the breast bone, glancing and not penetrating; the second bullet entered the abdomen five inches below the left nipple and one and one-half inches to the left of the median line. The abdomen was opened through the line of the bullet wound. It was found the bullet had penetrated the stomach. The opening in the front part of the stomach was carefully closed with silk stitches after which a search was made for a hole in the back wall of the stomach. This was found and also closed in the same way.

"'The further course of the bullet could not be discovered, although careful search was made. The abdominal wound was closed without drainage. No injury to the intestines or other abdominal organ was discovered. The patient stood the operation well, pulse of good quality, rate of 130; condition at the conclusion of operation was gratifying. The result cannot be foretold. His condition at present justifies hope of recovery.'

GOMPERS' LABORS ARE FINISHED

Conciliation Board at New York Has Finished Its Work.

New York, Sept. 7.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation, said yesterday that the work of the conciliation board had come to an end. Asked whether the board would again act in the capacity of peacemaker, Mr. Gompers replied: "If called upon again we will be glad to act. Personally, I always am glad to use my best efforts for industrial peace in the interests of the laboring man. As a laboring man myself, as president of the American Federation of Labor, as a member of the conciliation board of the national civic federation and as a man I certainly will do all in my power to bring about peace between the working man and his employer."

Anglo-Turkish Contest.

Constantinople, Sept. 7.—The Turkish embassador in London, Costaki Anthopulo Pacha, has been instructed to inform Great Britain that the action of the commander of a British warship in the Persian gulf in preventing the Turkish corvette Sehob from entering Koweyt is incompatible with friendly relations. The British side of the controversy is that the Sehob was trying to land Turkish troops on the territory of a sheikh who is independent of Turkey.

A Baltimore engraver, H. A. Houseal, has performed a wonderful feat. On the head of a pin, one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, he has engravid all the letters of the alphabet. They are arranged in two circles with the character & in the center. All the letters are capitals.

The sum of $230 in a roll of bills, held by a stout elastic band, was accidentally dropped from the pocket of Elwyn Phillips, in Southampton, N. Y. A few days later his horse had a coughing fit and coughed up the roll intact. It is supposed the horse picked up and swallowed the cash.

A horseshoe was found in the road by a farmer in Elk Creek, N. Y. It was peculiar in shape, being very heavy and rudely made, as if by an unskilled hand. The farmer was nailing it on his barn for luck, when it dropped and put a hump on his nose. His wife laughed at his discomfiture, and he threw a hammer at her. Now they don't speak and the lucky horseshoe is not yet nailed up.

A pious little boy dwells in Gardiner, Me. He has for a comrade a lad who lives next door, and this lad is fond of climbing trees. Tommy climbs the trees, and, O God, see that he doesn't fall and break his cussed neck."

M'KINLEYS AT BUFFALO

Immense Crowd Greets President at Pan-American Exposition.

Buffalo, Sept. 6.—President's day at the Pan-American exposition dawned bright and clear, with the temperature sufficiently low to make the day all that could be desired.

At the entrance to the exposition grounds the president was met by detachments of the United States marines and the sea coast artillery and the Sixty-fifth and Seventy-fourth N. G. S. N. Y. regiments. A president's salute of twenty-one guns was fired. The president was at once escorted to the stand erected in the Espanade, where probably the greatest crowd ever assembled there greeted him with ringing cheers. The vast assemblage overflowed to the Court of Fountains. In the stand on each side of the president were seated many distinguished men and women, among them representatives of most of the South American republics.

President McKinley's speech was frequently interrupted with applause, his words referring to the establishment of reciprocal treaties with other countries, the necessity of the American people building an isthmian canal, and a Pacific cable, and his reference to the work of Blaine in developing the Pan-American idea bringing forth especially enthusiastic cheers. Upon the conclusion of his address a large number of people broke through the line around the stand and the president held an impromptu reception for fifteen minutes, shaking hands with thousands.

The carriages were then brought to the steps of the stand and the president, accompanied by the diplomatic corps and specially invited guests, was taken to the Stadium. When the president arrived there at 11:45 the structure was crowded to the last inch of standing room. The troops stood at attention while the president, accompanied by Colonel Caapin and the officers in command, reviewed them. Cheer after cheer from the vast assemblage greeted the chief executive as he walked from one end of the tribune to the other and back to the reviewing stand.

The troops then marched past the stand, and performed intricate manuevers for fifteen minutes.

COLOMBIA IS BOMBARDED

Venezuelan Fleet Begins an Attack Upon Town of Rio Hacha.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The Colombian legation has just received the following cablegram:

Willemstad, Curacoa, Sept. 7.—Venezuelan fleet is bobarding Rio Hatcha.
BECERRA.

Dr. Becerra formerly was Colombian minister in Washington. Rio Hacha is an important town on the north coast of Colombia. This bombardment appears to be the first open act of war on the isthmus. The Colombian legation is in receipt of a dispatch from the minister of foreign affairs at Bogota, which says that new invasions from Venezuela, Ecuador and Nicaragua are announced. The minister declares that Colombia continues to be pacific and strictly neutral, and that Colombia condemns the rebel invasion of Garbiras into Venezuela.

The navy department has ordered the gunboat Machias, now at Colon, to Bocas del Toro, to look after American interests in that quarter, should it appear that any such are in need of protection. The battleship Iowa has arrived at Panama. The gunboat Ranger, now at that place, has been ordered back to San Francisco.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Sept. 9, via Haytien Cable.—The cable between Curacao and Maracaibo is broken. This is the cause of the absence of news from the Venezuelan frontier, which can only be obtained by letter. Under date of Sept. 4 mail advices say that the Venezuelan troops have not made another attempt to invade Colombia. President Castro absolutely refuses to entertain the idea of accepting the good omices of the United States.

Caracas, Sept. 9.—It is understood the United States legation here will make no further attempt to effect a settlement of the Venezuelan trouble.

New York, Sept. 9.—Senor Arturo De Brigard, consul general of Colombia in this city, has been advised from Paris that the Colombian government had just purchased 35,000 Mauser rifles and 5,000,000 cartridges. This is the largest purchase of war material by a South American republic in several years, and has caused the impression that Colombia is preparing for war with her enemies, Venezuela and Ecuador. Consul General De Brigard explained that these munitions are to be used against the rebels in the interior of the country. The government, he said, was determined to put an early end to the insurrection.

AMERICA'S VAST AMBITION.

English Comment on McKinley's Speech at Buffalo.

London, Sept. 8.—The vast ambitions of the United States, as deduced from what the St. James Gazette calls President McKinley's sensational speech at Buffalo, continue to be the theme of the London editorial writers.

"As military power and commercial enterprise we must go hand in hand" says the St. James Gazette, "the importance of the statement upon the world of politics, as revealing the new epoch upon which America is entering, must be immense."

The Evening Standard inquires if the reference to the isthmian canal is a "hint to England that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty will have to go. It looks like it." The paper considers "that the determination of the United States to be uppermost in Central and South America, both commercially and politically, is one of the hardest facts of our times."

The Globe thinks President McKinley's program forecasts the rivalry which England must expect from the United States, amounting, as the paper believes, to a definite abandonment of extreme protection.

Sues Mother-in-Law for Damages.

Des Moines, Sept. 5.—Lawrence Kirsher has begun suit against his mother-in-law, Eliza Ann Jones, for $5,000 damages for the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. He declares that she circulated false and malicious reports concerning him, and persuaded his wife that his relations with other women were too intimate. As a result of these accusations, he declares that his wife left him, but after an investigation all charges were found to be false. Still, he declares, his motner-in-law insisted that his wife should not live with him, and finally her efforts resulted in their separation. For this he demands $5,000 damages.

Gambling on the Yacht Race.

Pittsburg, Sept. 4.—The great international yacht bet of $400,000 between an English syndicate, represented by Walter J. Kingsley of London, and a group of patriotic Pittsburgers, represented by William I. Austin, was finally arranged yesterday afternoon. The entire sum was was deposited in the hands of the stakeholder, Mr. Kingsley turning over $150,000 in British bank notes and Mr. Austin giving a certified check for $250,000. What is said to be the greatest bet in history was thus successfully consummated.

STORIETTES.

The spielers at the Midway at the Pan-American exposition are a quick-witted lot of men, and take advantage of every remark, good, bad or indifferent, made by the spectators who listen incredulously to their harangues. One of them, however, waxed so eloquent a few nights ago, in depicting the attractions of the entertainment which he represented, that a brawy tilier of the soil, who stood open-mouthed before him, ejaculated: "By gum!" "No, buy tickets!" shouted the spieler, quick as a flash, and he had the farmer's half-dollar before the latter realized what he was about.

A few seasons ago, Denman Thompson put on a piece called "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley," in which Richard Jose, the sweet-voiced tenor who has been appearing at the Orpheum, was to sing with a quartet. Thompson wrote a small stuttering part for him, and, although he mastered the lines, on the first part, instead of stammering, the words dropped from his lips like liquid pearls. "You never saw a more disgusted man in all your life," says Jose, "than Bob Eberle, the stage manager. Since then I have stuck to my singing, have given up minstrelsy and intend to stay in vaudeville."

One day, just as Pere Monsabre, the celebrated Dominican preacher of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Paris, was preparing to aseend the pulpit, a message came to him that a lady wanted to see him who was worried about an affair of conscience. After much waste of time she came to the point. She was given up to vanity. That very morning, she confessed, she had looked in her looking glass and yielded to the temptation of thinking herself pretty. Pere Monsabre looked at her and said, quietly: "Is that all?" "That's all." "Well, my child," he replied, "you can go away in peace, for a mistake is not a sin."

Couldn't Wear Shoes.

Sumpter, Ill., Sept. 9th.—Mrs. J. B. Flanigan, of this place, had suffered with dropsy for fifteen years. She was so very bad that for the last three years she has not been able to wear her shoes. She had doctored all the time, but was gradually getting worse.

Last winter Mr. Flanigan, who was very much discouraged, called for some medicine at Mr. J. J. Dale's drug store in Carmi. Mr. Dale persuaded him to have his wife try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he bought six boxes. His wife used five out of the six, before she was entirely cured. She is now as sound and well as ever she was, completely restored to health, and free from any symptom whatever of dropsy.

To say that Mrs. Flanigan is pleased at her wonderful deliverance does not half express her feelings, and she and Mr. Flanigan are loud in their praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and of Mr. Dale for recommending this wonderful remedy to them.

The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Flanigan of such a severe case of dropsy, after the doctors had given her up, has made them the most talked of remedy ever known in White county.

Easy Come, Easy Go.

The man who creeps along bent over, with his spinal column feeling in a condition to snap like a pipestem at any minute, would readily give a great deal to get out of his dilemma, and yet this is only the commonest form by which lumbago seizes on and twists out of shape the muscles of the back. This is commonly known as backache, a crick in the back, but by whatever name it may be known, and however bad it may be, 10 minutes vigorous rubbing with St. Jacob's Oil on the afflicted part will drive out the trouble and completely restore. It is a thing so easily caught, it may be wondered at why there is not more of it, but because it is so easily cured by St. Jacobs Oil may be the very reason that we hear so little of it.

BOSTO 'S BARBER REGULATIONS.

Board of Health Orders Sterilization of All that Barbers Use on Customers.

A special dispatch from Boston, May 5, 1900, to the N. Y. Sun gives as new regulations of the Boston Board of Health as to barber shops: "Mugs, shaving brushes and razors shall be sterilized after each separate use thereof. A separate, clean towel shall be used for each person. Material to stop the flow of blood shall be used only in powdered form, and applied on a towel. Powder puffs are prohibited." Wherever Newbro's "Herpicide" is used for face or scalp after shaving or hair cutting, there is no danger as it is antiseptic, and kills the dandruff germ.

WAS A DARING MAN.

FRENCH EXPLORER WHO DIED IN CHINA.

Prince Henry of Orleans Led Some Noted Expeditions in the East—A Sketch of His Life—He Espoused the Cause of Republic.

The recent death of Prince Henry of Orleans at Sargon, in French Cochin China, has closed the career of a brilliant and daring explorer. He was the eldest son of the Duke of Chartres, who at one time was attached to the staff of Gen. McClellan in the civil war. The prince himself had visited here and was on his way round the far east to San Francisco when death overtook him.

Prince Henry was born in 1867. In 1887 a law was passed forbidding princes of the royal blood to serve their country in any capacity. Prince Henry then turned his attention to travel, and as an explorer displayed courage and many high qualities. His travels extended over some 12 or 13 years, in the course of which he had visited India, Siberia, Tonquin, Thibet, Madagascar, Central Africa and Abyssinia.

He accomplished the most in the journey he made with two companions from Tonquin to Calcuttta, in 1895. They left Havre in January and followed the Red river into Yunnan. Turning to the Mekong, they struck the trade routes between China and Burmah, crossed mountains in Thibet, traversed districts never entered previously by white men, and after many hardships, often being in want of food, by indomitable pluck reached Assam and Calcutta as the first explorers to find the most direct route from China to India.

In 1896 the prince acknowledged the French republic and repudiated all connection with the royalist party in France. Afterwards he led an exploring porty in Central Africa and visited the King of Abyssinia. His strictures on the military campaign the Italians had waged unsuccessfully against King Menelik led to a duel with the Prince of Turin, in which Prince Henry was wounded. In recognition of his work as an explorer Prince Henry had conferred on him the Cross of the Legiop of Honor.

AUSTRALIA'S GRACE DARLING.

With Heroic Daring She Saved 50 Persons from Death.

Grace Russell, who has earned the title of "the Grace Darling of Australia," has the distinction of having saved fifty persons from almost certain death. It is an old story in the antipodes, but a new one in this country. It happened one day in December, 1876, that a vessel was wrecked off the coast of Australia, a few miles from the Russell home. The lifeboat on board the steamer was lowered, but it capsized and the eight people in it were drowned. So the rest of the crew clung to the sinking steamer. The surf ran so wildly that no one would dare to swim through it, and there was not a house or person in sight. But help was near, though they knew it not. The girl of 16, who was a splendid horsewoman, was riding along with a native servant.

She caught sight of the vessel in distress, and, turning her horse's head toward the coast, she started at a quick gallop. When she reached the sea, she urged her horse into the angry surf.

She rode boldly on until she reached the vessel. With great difficulty she took some of the children in her arms and put them before her on the saddle; then with bigger children and women clinging to her dress she started for shore, gave those she had rescued to the care of her servant had returned again to the wreck. So she went backward and forward for four hours until all were safe on land, the servant having ridden to bring out the last man.

Two Miles a Minute.

In England the advocates of great speed in transportation predict that in a few years they will have a single railine on which trains will be run at the rate of 110 miles an hour. In Germany an electric railroad is proposed, over which cars are expected to move 12 miles in 60 minutes. Americans are not slow, but they are not impatient for transit so rapid as to exceed the bounds of reason. A mile a minute is fast enough for the great majority of sober-minded and practical people.
